Mental Health Peer Support Workforce Designline

Jessica Wolf, PhD, Decision Solutions

Introduction

This "Designline" (Graphic Design Timeline) aims to increase awareness of the rich history, context and challenges of the mental health peer support workforce.

Peer support began in late 18th century France and in the mid-19th century in the U.S., with mutual support groups starting in the 1930s. The mid-20th century saw overcrowded "insane asylums," the introduction in the early 1950's of (now controversial) antipsychotic medications, and the community mental health centers movement in the 1960's. Deinstitutionalization efforts beginning in the 1970's were accompanied by active protests and advocacy, significantly contributing in the following decades to a shift from primarily medical-model treatment to a rehabilitation and recovery focus, including peer support and involving individuals with lived experience as key participants in service design and delivery. Emphasis on community support and psychiatric rehabilitation in the 1980's was followed by increasing attention to recovery and the participation of peers in the 1990's. In the 21st century, the peer workforce has grown considerably, with increasing attention to person-centered care and self-determination.

We consulted with current and past peer leaders and reviewed numerous books, articles and accounts in developing this Designline. Not all key events are included. While opinions may diverge about choice of events, our purpose is to increase awareness of peer support workforce history. A list of references offers additional depth to this important story.

We recommend the New York State Academy of Peer Services course on The Historical Roots of Peer Support for an extensive interactive history of the disability rights and consumer/survivor/ex-patients' movement that insisted on "nothing about us without us." Movement pioneers, together with other leaders who advocated for recovery from mental health conditions and a full community life, did the critical work that eventually resulted in current employment of thousands of certified peer specialists and other peer support workers in 43 U.S. states, the District of Columbia and the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Thousands more are employed as recovery coaches in substance use prevention and treatment programs, as parent partners, youth peer support workers, forensic peer specialists, dual diagnosis peer specialists, peer supervisors, and peer support workers in primary and integrated care settings. In important ways, they support the recovery of individuals living with mental health and substance use conditions.
1900-1950
Themes: Large public psychiatric hospitals are overcrowded and little more than warehouses for those locked up, many of whom are committed for indefinite periods. Many people die there and are buried in graves marked only by numbers.
1900

1908: : A Mind That Found Itself, by Clifford W. Beers, published.

1909: Clifford Beers founds the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, now known as Mental Health America.
1930

1935: AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) founded by Bill Wilson and Dr. Robert Smith.

1937: Recovery, Inc. founded by Dr. Abraham Low.

1940

1948: Film "The Snake Pit" released, based on Mary Jane Ward's 1946 novel about her terrible experiences in a psychiatric institution.

1948: The Shame of the States, by Albert Deutsch published, about appalling conditions in state mental hospitals.

1948: WANA ("We Are Not Alone"), former patients, found Fountain House.

1950

The 50s

Themes: People with serious mental health conditions—then considered a "life sentence"—are hospitalized in large institutions. While the development of antipsychotic medications leads to discharges, continuity of care from hospital to the community is lacking. Some medications, such as Thorazine, have terrible side effects including tardive dyskinesia, an irreversible condition with disfiguring grimacing. The U.S. psychiatric institution population in 1955 is 558,000.

Early 1950s: Monoamine Oxidase (MAO) inhibitors become widely used as antidepressants.

1950

1954: FDA (Food and Drug Administration) approves Thorazine, the first psychiatric medication.

1955

1959: FDA approves Imipramine (Tofranil®) for treatment of major depressive disorder, establishing tricyclic antidepressants as a class of drugs.

1959

The 60s

Themes: Large institutions are the worst places to care for people with serious mental health conditions; people do better with community-based services. Some federally funded community mental health centers tend to treat the "worried well," rather than people with serious mental health conditions. The first modern anti-psychiatry group is founded, sparking the social justice movement of people with psychiatric histories.
1961: Action for Mental Health: Final Report of the Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health, published.
1960

1963: The federal Community Mental Health Act passed.

1963: One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Ken Kesey novel, published.

1965

1965: Medicare and Medicaid legislation passed.

1969-1970: The Insane Liberation Front (ILF) organized in Portland, Oregon, by Howie the Harp, Dorothy Weiner, and Tom Wittick, the first-known modern self-help/advocacy group organized by ex-patients and dedicated to liberation from psychiatry.

1969

the 70s

Themes: Numerous "mental patients' liberation" groups are founded on the West and East Coasts; Madness Network News begins publication; advocacy/political action and self-help movement groups make successful demands for inclusion in federal program planning.

1970

1971-1972: Mental Patients' Liberation Front founded in Boston; other groups are founded in New York City, San Francisco, and elsewhere.

1971

1972: San Francisco-based Madness Network News begins publication.

1971: Emotions Anonymous founded.

1972

1973: The first International Conference on Human Rights and Against Psychiatric Oppression.

1972: New York State consumer-operated programs underway.

1973

1975: The U.S. Supreme Court, in O'Connor v. Donaldson, rules that people cannot be institutionalized in a psychiatric hospital against their will unless they are found to be a threat to themselves or others.

1972: The Mental Health Law Project (now the Judge David L. Bazelon Center for Mental Health Law) founded.

1974

1975

1975: IAPSRS (now PRA–Psychiatric Rehabilitation Association) founded.

1975: "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," released, based on 1962 Ken Kesey novel.

1976

ON OUR OWN

JUDI CHAMBERLIN

1978: On Our Own: Patient-Controlled Alternatives to the Mental Health System, by Judy Chamberlin, published.

1977

1978: National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) Community Support Program (CSP) initiated.

1978

1978: : Adult Children of Alcoholics founded.

1979: NAMI (National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, now the National Alliance on Mental Illness, founded.

THE 80s

Mental health advocates, led by people with lived experience, call for the end of abusive treatment. The federally-funded Community Support Program begins to collaborate with individuals with psychiatric histories. Tension exists in the consumer/survivor/ex-patients' movement about the value of working outside versus inside "the system." NIMH Community Support Program funding continues through the 1980s as psychosocial rehabilitation is added to medical-model treatment of mental health conditions.

1980s: Dual Diagnosis self-help groups begin.

1980: National Association for Rights Protection and Advocacy (NARPA) founded.

1981: National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression (NARSAD) founded.

1981: NYAPRS (New York Association of Psychiatric Rehabilitation Services) founded.

1982: Statement of Principles adopted at 10th International Conference on Human Rights and Against Psychiatric Oppression.

1983: On Our Own, Inc. in Maryland first to receive state and federal funds to open a consumer-operated drop-in center.

1985: The National Mental Health Consumers' Association, the first national c/s/x organization, founded under Joseph Rogers' leadership.

1985: The final International Conference on Human Rights and Against Psychiatric Oppression, in Vermont.

1985: Madness Network News ceases publication.

1980

1980: The Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act (CRIPA) gives the Department of Justice the power to sue state or local institutions that violate the rights of people held against their will, including those residing in institutions for the treatment of mental health conditions.

1981

1980s-1990s: Offices of Consumer Affairs are established in State Departments of Mental Health.

1982

1982: Survivors of Incest Anonymous founded.

1983

1983: The California Network of Mental Health Clients, first statewide peer-run organization, founded.

1984

1985

1985: The first annual Alternatives conference in Baltimore, MD, organized by and for individuals with psychiatric diagnoses, organized by On Our Own of Baltimore and funded by NIMH-CSP. Federally funded Alternatives conferences continue through 2017.

1985: Altered States of the Arts founded by Gayle Bluebird, Howie the Harp and others.

1986: The Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, authorizes federal funding of employment services for people with "mental and physical disabilities."

1986: "Reaching Across: Mental Health Clients Helping Each other," by Sally Zinman, Howie the Harp, and Su Budd, published.

1986: The State Comprehensive Mental Health Plan Act (P.L. 99-660) mandates case management and other services as Medicaid benefits. Required stakeholder involvement in the State Block Grant program recognizes the importance of service user voices.

1986: The National Depressive and Manic Depressive Association founded; later renamed the Depression and Bipolar Support Alliance.

NDMDA

1987: "Vermont Longitudinal Study of Persons with Severe Mental Illness" published, demonstrating that people diagnosed with schizophrenia did not necessarily have to take drugs indefinitely; psychosocial services positively affected recovery.

NIMH
National Institute of Mental Health

1988-1991: NIMH CSP funds 14 consumer/survivor-run demonstration projects including drop-in centers, outreach, businesses, employment, housing, peer-run crisis respites.

1989: The National Association of State Mental Health Program Directors (NASMHPD) "Position Statement on Consumer Contributions to Mental Health Service Delivery System" approved.

NASMHPD

1986

1986: The National Mental Health Consumers' Self-Help Clearinghouse, the first national technical assistance center serving the c/s/x movement, conceived and founded by Joseph Rogers in Philadelphia.

the Clearinghouse

1986: The first peers including activist Pat Risser, trained to work as Consumer Case Manager Aides in Denver, Colorado, through the leadership of Paul Sherman, PhD Services were billable to Medicaid under the Colorado Medicaid Rehabilitation Option Waiver.

1986: The Protection and Advocacy for Mentally Ill Individuals (now the Protection and Advocacy for Individuals with Mental Illness) Act of 1986 passed.
1987

1987: Selective Serotonin Reuptake Inhibitors (SSRIs) antidepressants introduced.

1988

1989

1989: FDA approves Clozapine as the first atypical antipsychotic drug. The danger of death required weekly blood tests.

The 90s

Themes: Advocacy against abusive treatment continues. The concept of recovery is promoted with a range of coordinated community rehabilitative services. "Nothing about us without us": c/s/x (consumer/survivor/ex-patient) voices gain more prominence, advocacy groups grow; and peer-designed and -operated programs are implemented in mental health systems. State hospitals continue downsizing; some close. In just over 40 years, U.S. occupied state hospital beds declined from 339 to 21 per 100,000 people. In 1998, 57,151 people were in state hospitals.

1990: The Americans with Disabilities Act becomes law.

1992: The National Empowerment Center (NEC) founded in Massachusetts by Dan Fisher and Laurie Ahern. The NEC and the Clearinghouse apply for and receive federal funding.

1992: The federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) succeeds NIMH; the Center for Mental Health Services is created.

1993: The Mental Health Law Project renamed the Judge David L. Bazelon Center for Mental Health Law.

1993: The first consumer Civil Service job title is created, in New York State.

1995: Paolo del Vecchio appointed SAMHSA Consumer Affairs Specialist.
1995: "Consumers as Peer Specialists on Intensive Case Management Teams: Impact on Client Outcomes" by Felton et al. is published, stating "Integration of peer specialists into intensive case management programs appears to lead to enhanced quality of life for clients and more effective case management."

1995: Return to Community: Building Support Systems for People with Psychiatric Disabilities, by Dr. Paul J. Carling, published.
1998-2004: Federally funded research by Jean Campbell, PhD, on Consumer-Operated Service Programs proves peer-run program effectiveness, leads to other research on c/s/x-run programs and establishes peer support as an evidence-based practice.

1999: Mental Health: A Report of the Surgeon General, published.

1999: U.S. Supreme Court Olmstead decision affirms the right of people with disabilities to receive state-funded services in communities and be treated in the least restrictive setting.

1990: Bill Anthony, founder of the Boston University Center for Psychiatric Rehabilitation, labels the 1990s the "Decade of Recovery."

Decade of Recovery

1992: National People of Color Consumer/Survivor Caucus launched at Alternatives Conference.

1994: Research by Drs. Phyllis Solomon and Jeffrey Draine demonstrates consumer case management is as effective as a non-consumer team in helping individuals with serious mental health conditions over a two-year period.

1995: SAMHSA issues first "National Consensus Statement on Mental Health Recovery," with updated versions in 2006 and 2010.

1995: The Howie The Harp Advocacy Center begins peer training program in NYC.

GEORGIA MENTAL HEALTH CONSUMER NETWORK

1999: Georgia Mental Health Consumer Network with Larry Fricks' leadership makes Georgia the first state to receive Medicaid reimbursement for peer services.
