

Movie Script Book

Process

Contents

Background	05
Assignment Brief	06
Research & Inspiration	08
Initial Process	10
Initial Look	25
Feedback	40
Updates	41
Final Project	42

Background

For this project, I was tasked with picking a movie and expressing its script solely through a typographic book and typographic movie trailer, and I could pick any movie I wanted. As a music-lover and cello player myself, the choice was obvious: “Amadeus.”

“Amadeus” is told from the point of view of Mozart’s rival composer, Salieri, and the hand he played in Mozart’s death. Amadeus is a dark tale that is visually stunning and brought to life through Mozart’s most famous music. The three themes that are highly present throughout the film are music, jealousy, and death.

The final book and trailer capture the dark essence and classic era in which the movie takes place through its use of typography, hand-drawn music notes, and textural elements like bloody fingerprints and scorched pages.

Assignment Brief

Static Movie Script Book

Pick a film or a play, choose three key scenes and transform it into a typographic book. One resource for scripts is: www.imsdb.com. This book should be your interpretation of the film; do not use the existing logo, typography or imagery from the film.

Kinetic/Motion Typographic Trailer/Animated Poster

Using the same film, focus on a single crucial scene. Create a 10–15 second video using the script from that scene as a trailer or animated movie poster.

Print Specifications

Required elements: cover, title page, body text, colophon.

Optional: half title, cast of characters, dedication, epigraph.

Document Size: Up to you.

Typefaces: Up to you. The book must be primarily typographic, but you could create type-based imagery.

Color: Black and white or color.

Must be designed in InDesign.

Video Specifications

Video: Must include type from script for chosen scene. 10–15 second video created in AfterEffects.

Keep in Mind

- What is your overarching concept for the book?
- How can you express the themes of the film/play typographically?
- How will you give a voice to the characters?
- How will you organize the pages and approach the visual choppiness of dialogue?
- How can you express the rhythm or pacing of the film through the pacing of your book?

Research & Inspiration

Mozart was born in 1756 in Salzburg, Austria, died in 1791, and was buried in a common grave. Mozart was one of the key composers of the Classical Period of music, and is still one of the most famous and influential composers to this day. Given that Mozart is such a historic figure, I wanted my book to reflect the time period in which Mozart was alive. I researched different images, paintings, and fashion reminiscent of the time period and took screenshots from the movie to establish a tone and feel for the book.

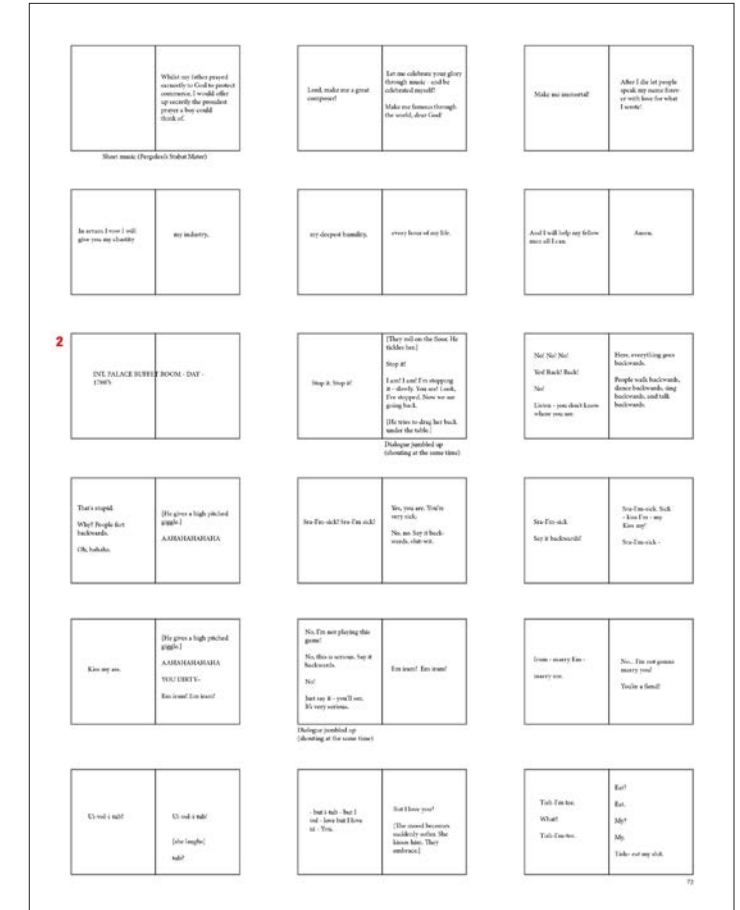

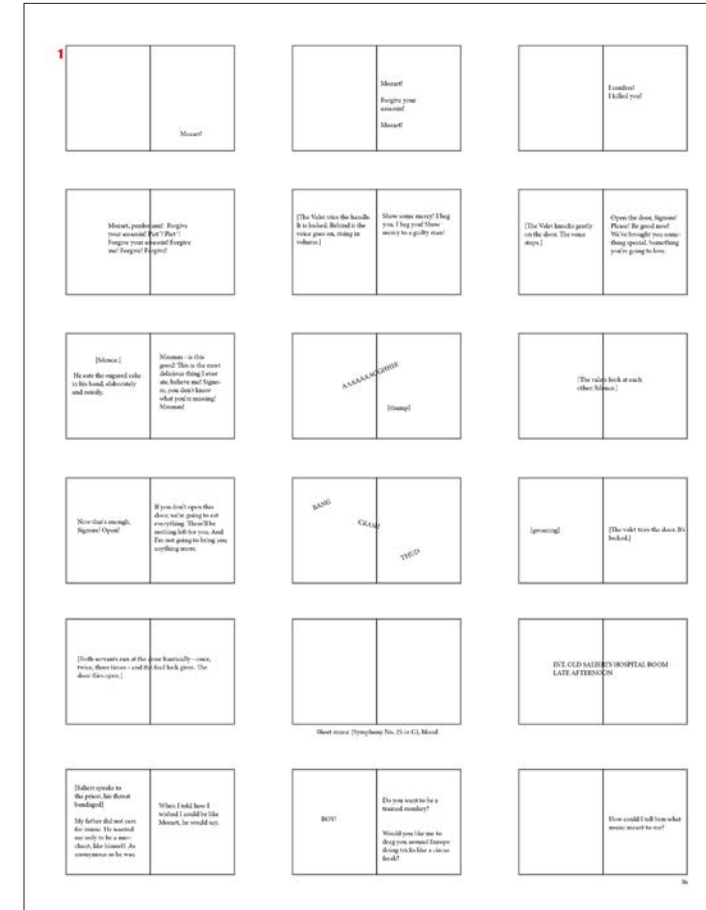

The fashion in the movie and from the time period was quite garish, in contrast with the dark tone of Amadeus. I heavily drew inspiration from my dad's own collection of leather-bound books, which is ultimately what inspired the gold foil and pattern on the cover of the book, which stands in stark contrast to the book's gruesome contents. The star pattern on the cover is derived from one of Mozart's most famous Operas: "The Magic Flute" (pictured bottom right), which is similarly present on the poster created for the movie.

Initial Process

Typographic Movie Script Book

- Pagination
- Sketches
- Type Collage
- Type Exploration

[He gives a high pitched giggle.] AARASHAHARA	[Shocked, she strikes at him. In the same moment the music starts in the choir and down. We hear the opening of the doors made for Thierens Wind Instruments. E.]	You little bitch! You little bitch!	SHAM	Sheet music (Overhead for Thierens Wind Instruments)
My music! They've started without me! [He leaps up, disheveled and unsteady and runs out of the room.]	[Silber's wanders in, concerned and disgust.]	That was Mozart!	The giggling dirty minded creature I just saw crawling on the floor!	3 INT: SILBER'S MINE ROOM - LATE AFTERNOON - (795)
Originals? Yes, no. He doesn't make copies.	A piece. [He puts out his hand and rubs up the parchment from the table. He opens it. He looks at the music. He is crushed.]	There are originals? Yes, no.	Antoinette! It was another! It was - it was beyond belief.	Sheet music
There was just one and only drafts of music.	Yes they showed me one picture of one kind. Not one.	He'll simply put down music already finished.	Page after page of it, a y of he was just taking dictation.	Sheet music
And music finished as no music is ever finished.	Display one note, and there would be destruction.	Display one phrase, and the structure would fall.	And black that I meant it.	Sheet music
It was done to me. That would had been in the Archbishop's palace had been an accident.	I was diving through the cage of those over whose ink strokes an absolute beauty.	Two minutes on earth.	as for as I was able.	Sheet music (That tells from the Man in C Minor) 108

[Continuous notes, perhaps]	Is it any good?	[A pause.]	It is anticlimax.
INT: SILBER'S APARTMENT - BED ROOM - NIGHT - (795)	[Silber stands, his eyes shut, looking in distress. He opens them and sees Christ across the room, staring at him from the wall.]	From now on, we are enemies.	4 You will. Because you chose for your instrument a heart!
And give me for reward only the dollar	to acquire the best nation.	because you are unjust	under
Why? Why? Why?	Why add to your misery by confiding in me? You didn't kill him.	I did. No, you didn't.	I poisoned his life. I poisoned his life.
He was, who should you want all Vienna to believe you a martyr?	Is that your purpose?	No, father. From now on.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.

5 INT: A GROTTO ROOM NEXT DOOR - NIGHT - (795)	[Tom, watched by a highly nervous group, begins a walled prayer. He ignores the noise as much concentration and closes his eyes.]	[There he begins to play the flute to which they descend, in the most absence ever imaginable, redoubtly repeated. The music is the very essence of beauty.]	Another one! Give me another one! Play it like Chuck! Bring it, Antonio! Bianchi! I don't like him! Another one!	Play before.	Now that is a challenge. That is a challenge.	Play it like Chuck! Bring it, Antonio! Bianchi! I don't like him! Another one!	Play before.	Now that is a challenge. That is a challenge.	Play it like Chuck! Bring it, Antonio! Bianchi! I don't like him! Another one!
That was not Mozart laughing, father. That was God.	That was God.	God laughing at me through that -	that obscure gaggle!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!	Go on, black man. Laugh. Laugh!
One day, I will laugh at you.	Before I leave this earth, I will laugh...	at you.	6 INT: CUSTALIERI'S HOSPITAL ROOM - MORNING - (823)	without pity.	He destroyed his beloved.	rather than let a musician die who got the smallest share to his glory.	He doesn't care. Understand that.
Why add to your misery by confiding in me? You didn't kill him.	I did. No, you didn't.	I poisoned his life. I poisoned his life.	But not his body? What difference does that make?	God cares nothing for the man He desires and nothing either for the man He sees.	He looks distant as he'd when He'd finished with him.	and there him away.	Like an old.
He was, who should you want all Vienna to believe you a martyr?	Is that your purpose?	No, father. From now on.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart without thinking of me.

Whoever they see Mozart with him.	they'll have to see before with laughing.	And that's my immortality.	at last!	Our names will be laid together for eternity.
Yes, no, he doesn't make copies.	and mine on today.	At last it's better than the head which he'd planned for me, your merciful God!	Oh my son, my poor son!	Death gets me!
Pity yourself.	You were a wicked God.	He killed Mozart.	and I.	Think him, remember him every.
God cares nothing for the man He desires	and nothing either for the man He sees.	He looks distant as he'd when He'd finished with him.	and there him away.	Like an old.
no one will be able to speak of Mozart	without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart	without thinking of me.	no one will be able to speak of Mozart

Type Exploration

Since the goal was to express a movie solely through type, I wanted to make sure I was giving each of the characters a unique voice. Throughout the movie, Mozart is depicted as a quirky, somewhat uncivilized character in stark contrast to the rest of the characters.

Salieri, other Characters, and Stage Direction: Tzimmes

For most parts of the book, I wanted to find a typeface that had unique characteristics but was also characteristic of what you would typically see in a leather-bound book.

Mozart: Museo

I wanted to stick with serif typefaces throughout the book, but Mozart needed something quirker. I picked the serif typeface Museo due to its unique, bent serifs and open forms.

Once I had established the voices of the characters, I moved onto the initial design of the book based on my sketches.

Initial Process

Typographic Movie Trailer

- Thumbnails
- Sketches

Initial Look

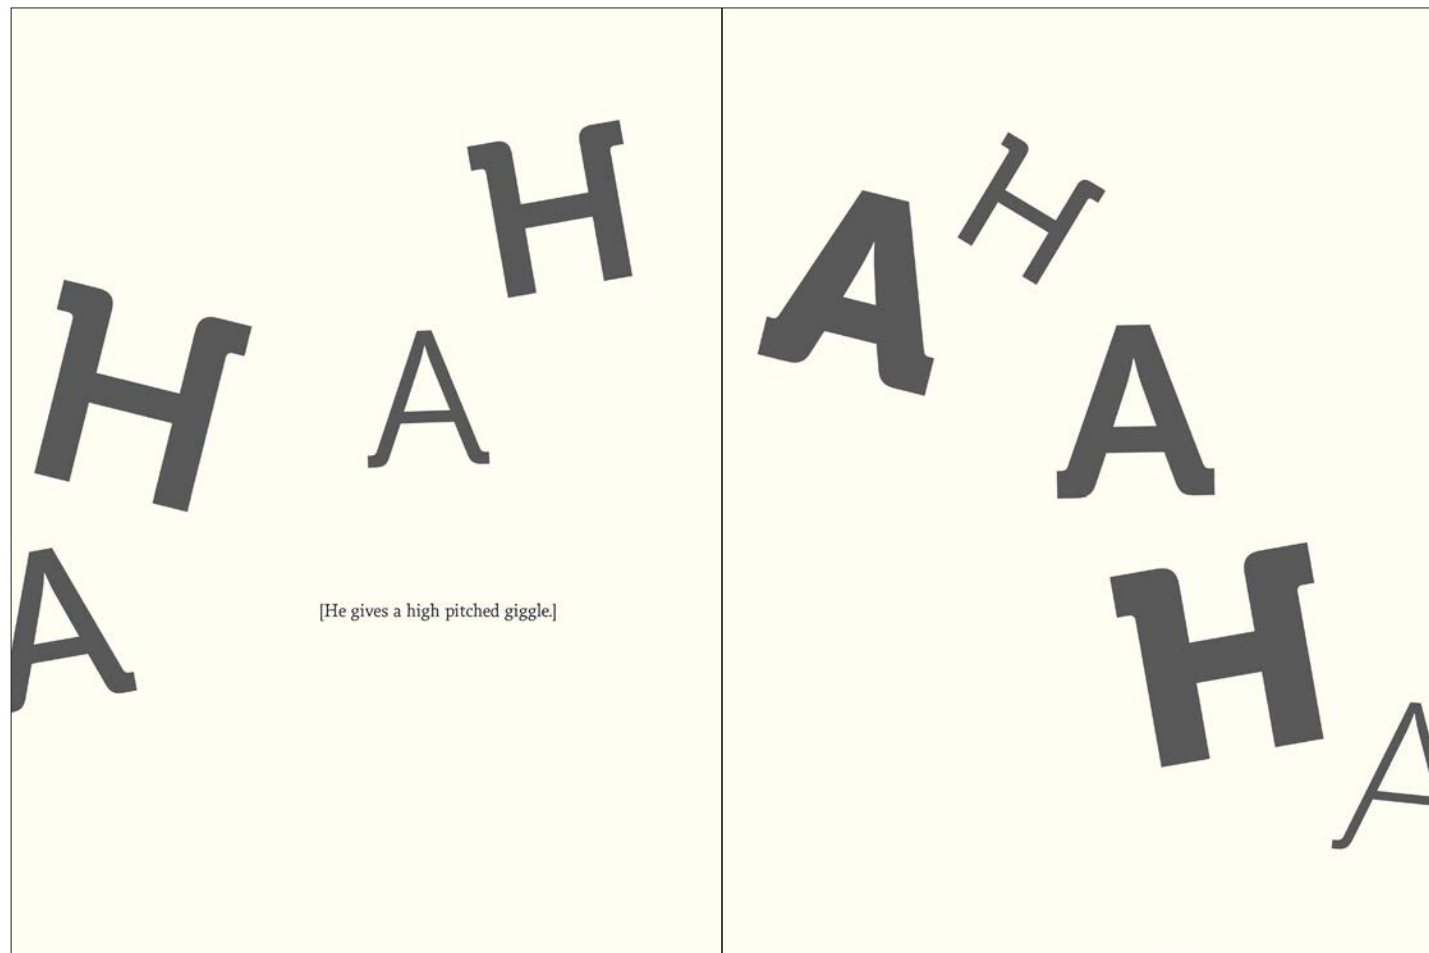

Typographic Movie Script Book

Throughout the book, I used splashes of fake blood and bloodied finger prints to express the morbidity of the story and to represent the idea that it's being told from the view of someone "with blood on their hands."

I also incorporated other elements, such as hand-drawn music notes for consistency with the time period in which the movie takes place, and burnt short-sheets to emulate a piece of paper burning upwards to convey the gravity of the most impactful, turning point in the movie.

Initial Look

Typographic Movie Trailer

For the Typographic Movie Trailer, I had to pick one scene from those I chose to depict in the book and represent it solely through type and minimal imagery. For me, the choice was clear: the turning point in the movie when Salieri throws his crucifix in the fire and swears to stop at nothing to harm Mozart.

I wanted to express fury, jealousy, and Salieri's sinister intentions. The words on the screen grow and shrink for emphasis as flames flicker in the background leading up to the big reveal.

Feedback

- Stage directions should be italicized
- Mockups need to be more characteristic
- Mockup should be with consistent with the book and tell a story
- Show book in context
- Find a mockup that makes the book look leather-bound (too expensive to print)

No feedback was received for the Typographic Movie Trailer, and no changes needed to be made. Since the feedback for the book was very direct and had minimal changes, no additional brainstorming needed to be done.

Updates

- Book mockup placed in context of home library
- Mockups adjusted to show different angles and close-ups of details (ie leather-bound book cover texture and burnt pages)
- Mockups are chronological to support the story telling
- Different pages shown to show the different types of pages/characteristics of the book
- Stage directions italicized for differentiation as suggested

Final Project

