Father figures

As children, it's obvious that we need our fathers.

We rely on our fathers (whether we want to admit it or not) for just about everything. And if a father is doing his job correctly, we rely on them for helping put a roof over our heads, for discipline, for leading us in what is right and wrong, for teaching, for correcting and for acting in a way that is an example to mimic.

As an adult, I realize that even now, I depend on my father still for quite a bit. He is the first one I call when anything and everything happens. He's the one I call when my furnace acts up, when my lawnmower fails to start or I have car problems. He's the one whose phone rings when there's a project around the house I know I need help completing because I am hopelessly talentless when it comes to working with my hands. He's the one I consult in all matters automotive and construction, because his mind is filled with knowledge that I am even now just beginning to tap into. Since I became a homeowner nearly two years ago, I think I've learned more from him about these things than in my first 30 years. As I write this, there's a power washer that we are planning on working on together in the garage. That will certainly be a learning experience.

THE MINOR DETAILS
ADAM MINOR

Watching him work is fun to watch. He always has a way to fix anything, even when anyone else thinks it's broken. His creativity when it comes to fixing, building or making something out of nothing is impressive. I will always be in awe of that.

But it's not just all things construction that impresses me about my father — it's his capacity for kindness, his heart to help other people and his humble attitude. So many times, he has gone out of his way to help other people, and it's a quality I want to mimic in my own life and show my own son as an example to follow.

As we look ahead to Father's Day this weekend, my mind drifts to my own role as a father, what I've learned from my own father, and how similar I am with my son to how my father was with me growing up. He was always more than willing to access his goofy side with my brother and me, rough housing with us and making us laugh. For me, I see shades of my father in the way I have fun with my kids.

The other night, working late on deadline (I'm talking middle of the night/wee early hours of the morning late), I heard the door to my son's bedroom creak open, and footsteps begin to stumble down the hallway toward where I was working at the dining room table, where I work at a makeshift work station (until someday I finish off my basement and make me an office!). It was my son, bleary eyed, and on the verge of tears. He was obviously tossing and turning, and just woke up from a nightmare of some sort. "You OK, buddy?" I asked, taking off my headphones, saving what I was working on and meeting him where he stood.

He merely looked up at me through half-closed eyes, a frown across his face, and lifted his hands toward me, wanting me to pick him up and hold him to comfort him. Of course, I obliged. Holding him as he calmed down, I whispered in his ear. "I got you," I calmly said. "Daddy's got you."

He needed me in that moment. He needed his Daddy to comfort him. He needed me to make everything that was going on in his head better. I walked him back down the hallway and into the bedroom, gently laying him back on his bed. He was already asleep. I kissed him on the head, and snuck out, wondering how many times I myself snuck out of that very bedroom when I was a child and sought out my Dad to comfort me when I was scared. It was probably more than I remember.

In a way, at the end of the day, I don't think there will ever be a day where I don't need my Dad. Obviously, our relationship has grown and changed over time, but in some ways, I'll always need him. I wouldn't have it any other way.

Putnam voters OK town budget

PUTNAM — After passing the education budget several weeks ago, Putnam's taxpayers have thrown their approval behind the general government budget as well, effectively putting an end to budget season in the town.

Residents filed in for the second Town Meeting to vote on the budgets in 2016 on Monday, June 6, where they overwhelmingly approved a $4.8 million town budget along with a debt payment of $465,794, a library budget of $543,236 and a capital budget all through a paper ballot that came out to a 34-4 vote in favor of the spending plans. The turnout was much lower than the first Town Meeting on May 11, where a 79-8 vote approved a $17 million education budget despite requests from the Board of Finance to send all budgets back to a public hearing due to what members saw as discrepancies found in the published budget compared to what was approved by the Board of Finance prior to the May meeting.

Much of the Town Meeting focused on the town's use of

The story of Pappajion Studios

Some of you have family photos that bear the inscription "Pappajion Studios."

If you are unsure what time period they are from, the following might help.

"Pappajions Are To Make Home in Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. George Pappajion and children of High Street, left today for Philadelphia, Pa., where they will make their future home. For many years Mr. Pappajion was proprietor of a photograph studio, making a host of friends through his artistic work and obliging, generous disposition. He has also been interested in the development of refinements for the motion picture camera and had fitted a special studio for this work in the Evergates building shortly before it was destroyed by fire. Soon after this misfortune he sold his business to William Fisher. Associated with him in the studios was his brother, Alex Pappajion, who has been in Killingly." (Windham County Transcript 1/9/36)

I decided to see how long the Pappajions had been in the area by checking Natalie Coolidge's Killingly Business Encyclopedia. Born in Greece in November 1888, according to the 1930 Windham County Transcript Fall Supplement Mr. Pappajoin established his Danielson studio in October, 1917. Beginning in 1923 he also operated a second studio in Boston but after six years discontinued that establishment due to the volume of work in this area. Entries indicate that the Pappajions did not remain in Philadelphia, and George returned to Danielson. In September 1945 he announced the addition of two returned veterans to his staff--Howard R. Cooley and Paul A. Gareau. Cooley and Gareau purchased the studios; Howard R. Cooley became the sole owner in 1952. Alton E. Withington predated Pappajoin and Cooley.

I'm sure many of you have family photographs from these local studios, which is one of the reasons that I have included so much. The above information may make it easier to date them. Pictures of your ancestors are some of you most cherished family possessions. Have you taken the time to identify the individuals so that the next generations know who these family members are and how they were related? With a group photo, photocopying the picture, numbering the people, and listing the names underneath is a good way to start. Note family relationships, especially since females will have different surnames. You may not think this is important, but believe me it is! Killingly Historical Society member Frank Aleman has been cataloguing the Wells collection (Madeline Wells and family from East Killingly), and working with many unidentified photos has proved quite a challenge. Fortunately I've been able to use my Ancestry subscription to help make genealogical connections.

Another tip for helping identify photos. Suppose you have an individual photo of an unknown person. First, check through the group photos to see if the person appears in one. Spreading photos out on a table can help you recognize persons that you might miss. Good luck. Feel free to stop at the Center if you think that we can assist you.

The 1936 Transcripts contained a column entitled "People's Pulpit." The one containing a letter from Dan Braman about an old sawmill in Attawaugan quickly caught my attention since Society member Bernie Mitchell now lives on the property. Braman wrote that a picture of an old sawmill on a calendar evoked many fond memories of the sawmill... "The picture was just as I remembered (or positively think I remember) the old saw mill that, years ago stood on the bank of the Five Mile river, right near where it flowed under the wooden bridge on the Dayville road leading down the hill out of the village of Attawaugan [now Route 12]. It was at the left of the road going toward Dayville and up on the river bank of the Attawaugan side of the stream...Mr. Bassett, years ago lived in the house that was at the foot of this hill in Attawaugan, on the same side of the road as was the saw mill and not far up towards the village. He later moved to Danielsonville (as we then called it) and Charles Young moved into the house.

"It is not so much the mill itself, that tugs at the memory strings, but more, it is the fun we had running and tumbling over the logs in the yard; watching the saw go up and down as the log on the carriage was moving slowly along into it, and the big pile of saw dust under the mill grew bigger and bigger. Oh! I almost forgot to speak of the pitch that we would scrape off the ends of some of the logs (my memory is a bit hazy as to the kind of timber) and try to use for chewing gum; but just forget about that boys and girls, for if you must have gum, and I know you think you must, why, Wrigley's is better, but don't throw any kind of chewing gum out on the sidewalk, for not to my knowledge has there, up to now, been anything found that will readily remove it from the bottom of shoes that walk on it.

"That is all, and I guess enough about the old saw mill, but I want to tell you that later a new, more up to date one with circular saws and run by team was built over across the road but further back in the lots. It was even back of where the old grist mill stood, for Attawaugan once (if not now) had a real grist mill. My! How clean and warm the meal was as it came up from the grinding, also how fascinating to watch the big grinding stone going around and around and the man who ran the mill (we called him the miller) was so busy taking out the toll (part of his pay, if not all of it for grinding the corn was made in kind, that is, he was given some of the grain he was grinding instead of money) and tying up the bags of meal. I wonder if I am wrong in saying that both of the saw mills and also the grist mill have been completely removed, and again as I drive through that way, I miss or seem to miss the little blacksmith shop that stood just across the bridge as you leave the village. It was at the right of the road, on the Dayville side of the river. Mr. Myers, I believe, was the blacksmith at the time I have in mind. The wooden bridge has since been replaced by a modern structure (this is in line with other improvements in the progressive town of Killingly) and much water has flowed under the since the years around 1880." Dan Braman (WCT 2/27/36).

The 1855 map of Killingly gives E. Burlingame as the owner of the Attawaugan sawmill at that time. Extracts in the Killingly Business Encyclopedia noted that Ezekiel purchased a small gristmill in 1852 and four years later erected a much larger one. The 1861 Windham County Business Directory lists both saw and gristmills. Augustus Bassett operated the gristmill during the 1860's and much of the 1870's. Blacksmith Myers left Attawaugan in 1882 and commenced working for the Quinebaug Company. Bernie Mitchell said that no trace of the mills now exists.

Coderre Golf Tournament breaks records

PUTNAM — Despite overcast conditions and intermittent showers, the spirits of the 144 golfers in the Putnam Rotary Club “Ronald P. Coderre” Golf Tournament were not dampened, as the tourney enjoyed yet another successful year, exceeding previous records. According to tournament chairman, Sean McNerney and bookkeepers Elizabeth Buzalski and Peter Benoit, the proceeds should exceed $38,000.

“We’re very excited about the way the entire tournament played out. From registration to the final award, all the golfers were provided a first class experience. This is the Club’s biggest fund-raiser and were pleased with the support we receive from the community,” said Chairman McNerney.

On the links the competition for the top spot was hotter than a firecracker on the Fourth of July. Right to the wire four foursomes battled for the honor of being crowned 2016 RPC champion. The foursome of Deb, Jim and Ryan Dandeneau and Brad Rabor eventually emerged with a one-stroke victory, posting a 12 under par score of 59 on the par 71 Connecticut National Golf Club layout.

Three foursomes were close behind at minus 11 with scores of 60. Finishing second by virtue of matching cards was the group of Brandon Carita, Jason Ringe, Eric Livingston and Gary Rudman. The show place foursome was Steve Bucknam, Bill Slaney, Richard Boyes and Buzz King.

The other foursome with an identical score of 60 was Ed Desaulnier, Armand Gaudette, Dick Baribeault and Ron Jones, who were crowned the Net Champion with a score of 40.75. They were followed, in second place by the group of Jim St. Jean, Dan Bellerive, and Rob and Tim Gosselin at net 41.5. Third place net went to the group of Jeff Simpson, Jack Mooney, George Lachapelle and Paul Burgess at 42.75 net.

In the closest-to-the-pin contests on the five par-3 holes the winners were, Rene Barbeau (Hole #4), Bruce McLeod (#7), Larry Guglieta (#9), Jason Ringe (11) and Gary Rudman (#15). The foursome captained by Mike Meehan captured two of the four prizes in the Skins competition. They had Skins on the par-3, 4th hole with a birdie and on the par 5, 18th hole with an eagle. The other Skins were won by the Dandeneau foursome with an eagle on the Par-4, 2nd hole and the foursome captained by Eric Whittenberg, which posted an eagle on the par-5, 6th hole.

Prior to the tournament, Rotary Club President Delpha Very presented the tournament’s top award, the Ace in the Hole award, to Northeast Connecticut Dental Associates, represented by Dr. Jeff Simpson and Dr. Jack Mooney, for its support of the event over the years. This year Northeast Connecticut Dental Associates was a Tent Sponsor.

“I’d like to thank all of our sponsors, golfers and volunteers for their support of our tournament. In particular it’s a pleasure to present the Closest-to-the-Heart Award to our good friends the folks at Northeast Connecticut Dental Associates. The Putnam Rotary Club is very thankful for all in our community who support the many functions of our organization,” said Very.

The proceeds of the tournament go to support the 14 scholarships of $1000 each that are distributed to high school seniors in the Club’s five towns of Putnam, Thompson, Wood stock, Pomfret and Eastford. The club also distributes and additional $20,000 to local non-profits and supports international projects of Rotary International.

“It’s another successful tournament in the books for the Putnam Rotary Club. It couldn’t happen without our supporters and our many volunteers. Plans are underway for next year as we strive to improve this event,” said McNerney.

Working with McNerney on the organizing committee were Peter Benoit, Elizabeth Buzalski, Fred Chmura, Aileen Witkowski, Doug Porter, President Very, Charles Puffer, Jonathan Tremblay and Marc Archambault.

CORRECTION

The Villager would like to correct a few issues in the labeling of several photos as part of its coverage of the Marianapolis Prep School Graduation in the June 10 edition. On page 16 a photo is identified as Isabella DiNoia of Thompson. This photo is actually of Caitlin Walsh of Thompson. Also on page 16 of that issue, Marianapolis Service Award winner William Lafiandra was improperly identified as Yoshimasa Fujikawa. On page 17, the photo identified as Caitlin Walsh is actually Deanna Rapp of Oxford, Mass.

Rotary announces Paul Harris Awards recipients

Jo-Ann Chenail

Tim Kettle

KILLINGLY — The Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary is pleased to announce that Tim Kettle and Jo-Ann Chenail are their 2016 recipients of the prestigious Paul Harris Fellowship award.

The Paul Harris Fellowship is the highest honor Rotary bestows upon a person. Eligible recipients are community minded professionals recognized for their outstanding contributions and exemplify the highest ideal in Rotary, “Service Above Self.”

This honor accompanies a donation of $1000, in the recipient’s name to the Rotary Foundation’s Annual Program’s Fund, which supports Rotary International’s worldwide programs.

Though being a member of Rotary is not a prerequisite of achieving this honor, this year’s recipients are both members of the Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary and are being honored not only for their service through the club but by the many ways they have given back to the community of northeastern Connecticut over the years.

Tim Kettle is the Executive Director of Northeast Placement Services in Woodstock. As one of the newest members of Rotary he has made an indelible mark through his enthusiastic service to the club’s efforts toward community service. Tim gets involved in every function and project and was the originator and chairperson for the “Some Enchanted Evening”, a prom for persons with developmental disabilities held last October as a special service project of the Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary club. Tim will serve as the clubs President Elect for the 2016-17 year. Tim gives from the heart and spends his time serving many local service organizations in the area in addition to Rotary and his own non-profit organization.

Jo-Ann Chenail is the Vice President Branch Administrator and Business Development Officer for CNB a Division of Bank ESB. Jo-Ann has committed herself to the ideals of Rotary for many years including being the Treasurer of the club for many years. She serves on several community boards and you will see Jo-Ann involved in supporting just about every charitable event in the community.

Both Tim Kettle and Jo-Ann Chenail are very deserving of this esteemed honor. The event will take place on Thursday, June 30, at the CT National Golf Course in Putnam. Tickets are available from any Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary club member or can be obtained by contacting the Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary club through their Facebook page or by e-mail to danielsonrotary@gmail.com.

Rotaract Club hosts inaugural Cornhole Classic

THOMPSON — The Quinebaug Valley Regional Rotaract Club held its inaugural Cornhole Classic Tournament on Saturday, June 4, at The Thompson Speedway and Raceway Golf Club.

The tournament, which is the first of its kind in Northeast Connecticut, is a fundraiser to benefit the club and its non-profit partner, The Arc Quinebaug Valley, a nonprofit Human Services agency committed to supporting individuals with intellectual, developmental and other life-affecting disabilities.

"The Rotaract Club was very excited partner with The Arc Quinebaug Valley," said Rotaract President Sarah Mortensen. "We see the positive impact The Arc has on the community and are proud to support them."

Many area businesses supported the event with sponsorships and in-kind donations. Board sponsors, which received their own personalized set of cornhole boards and bags, included Artique, C & E Property Rentals, Fluid Coating Technology, Gerardi Insurance Services, Hilltop Contractors, Hometown Bank, Kaplan and Brennan Attorneys at Law, Loos & Co., and Meade Insurance Agency.

The event was also assisted by PAP Auto and the Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary Club as Score Card Sponsors, Rawson Materials as Bracket Sponsor, and The Loomis Team at RE/MAX as the "Swag" Sponsor. Materials and labor for the cornhole boards and printed items were generously donated by Eastford Building Supply, Kernel's Cornhole, Gagnon Sign, and Chase Graphics. EOE Entertainment also donated their services all afternoon, providing music for the competition.

Cornhole Classic featured 27 teams facing off in a bracket-style tournament, with the top three teams winning cash prizes. In the final round of the competition, team "Siddown" comprised of Fran Murphy and Brian Mathews took first place and a cash prize of $250. The second place team comprised of Paul Lapinski and Todd Johnson won $150 and the third place team comprised of Jeremy Rocha and Steve Lewis won $100.

The event also featured a raffle basket containing a brand new Samsung Tablet and Bluetooth speaker set, donated by the Putnam Wireless Zone. The winning ticket belonged to Tyler Gagnon, a resident of Sterling.

The Rotaract Club is a community service and professional networking organization for young professionals (ages 18 to 35) co-sponsored by the Putnam and Killingly-Brooklyn Rotary Clubs and committed to the Rotary model of "Service Above Self." New members interested in community service and professional networking are encouraged to join. For more information, visit www.qvrrotaractclub.com.

The club will make their formal donation to The Arc Quinebaug Valley later this month.

Cultural Arts Week at PCS a hit

POMFRET — This year, students at Pomfret Community School “went” to Guatemala from June 6-10.

Parents, community members, people from Guatemala, people who have visited Guatemala, and people who would like to visit Guatemala offered a rich and varied list of information about the country in docent presentations in classrooms all week. Once again the marketplace created by a volunteer cadre of parents was a major highlight of the week.

This year, for the first time, it was set up in the front foyer so all who entered PCS that day got to enjoy a foreign market along with the students. Students sampled sweet corn cake and drank sparkling mango juice, they crafted and took home their own “worry dolls” and made a toilet paper roll version of the quetzal bird. Traditional clothing was available for students to try on, musical instruments to play and authentic textiles, dolls and educational information boards added to the ambiance and student’s knowledge about the country. The week was capped off by a performance by the Intake ensemble from Stamford. The violin and marimba performance was enhanced by two Guatemalan dancers. The ensemble was very happy to accept the Art Club’s offer of the mural they painted for the marketplace as a gift, so it will now be travelling with them on their performances throughout the state.

On Wednesday, the entire school spent an hour doing silent reading. Students asked for pledge support for their reading time. All money raised will be tabulated next week and sent off to Reading Village, a not for profit literacy organization in Guatemala. The organization provides scholarships to Mayan teens to graduate from high school (only one in ten reach high school at all). In return the teens participate in leadership training and give back to their communities by promoting literacy with younger children who are not able to attend school. In this way, one generation of readers is creating another generation of readers. Making this kind of life changing difference to people in the countries we study is a wonderful piece to this wonderful week.

It takes a village to run cultural arts week. We are very grateful to Carrie Wolfe and Jen Hague, and all the parent volunteers they recruited that made the marketplace a success and for the PTO’s continuing support for the marketplace. Our docent schedulers, Katie Johnson, Elaine Nelson, Jen Kruger, Roberta Fahey, Sue Johnson, Erin Billiard, Jeannie Heroux, Jen Heller, Susan Imschweiller and Renee Holden did a great job bringing docents into the classrooms. The performance piece of the week was funded once again by the Hale Cultural Arts Fund. We are so grateful to Betty Hale for establishing this fund that brings performance experiences to our PCS students during this special week.

The final thank you goes out to our

of our wonderful docents and to the support of the faculty and staff at PCS who are willing to do whatever it takes to bring this enrichment experience to their students to help them become more informed global citizens.

WA alumna to sing National Anthem at Fenway Park

WOODSTOCK — Woodstock Academy alumna Ashley Lebeau, ‘13, has been selected to sing the National Anthem at Fenway Park on Tuesday, June 21, as the Red Sox celebrate Special Olympics night.

The game will begin at 7:10 p.m. and be played against the Chicago White Sox. Special Olympic athletes will be honored during pre-game ceremonies and throughout the evening.

“Ashley started singing the National Anthem at unified basketball home games during high school. She is absolutely a ray of sunshine and brightens the room when she walks in. Ashley is extremely inspiring because she embraces her William’s Syndrome. She and I used to visit regular education classrooms to educate others about William’s Syndrome. She is amazing because she makes her disability into an ability and that’s one of the reasons why many people love her so much,” Yori Ayotte, Ashley’s former special education teacher and coach of WA’s unified teams, remarked.

For the last seven years, Ashley has been singing the National Anthem at different venues around Connecticut including UConn, Quinebaug Valley Community College, the Opening Ceremonies for the Special Olympics Summer Games at Southern Connecticut State University, The Woodstock Academy, and many others.

Ashley is a member of the Quinebaug Valley Special Olympics Spirit Squad, and over the past 10 years has participated in Special Olympics soccer, bowling, track & field, and swimming.

WA Fine Arts Department Chair Amy Ranta commented, “I am so incredibly proud of Ashley and all she has accomplished with her singing. She is an inspiration to me and others, and living proof of what one can accomplish with a positive attitude.” Amy taught Ashley for four years during her time at The Academy.

Singing the National Anthem at Fenway Park has been Ashley’s dream for the past six years. After she was selected, her mother Karen created a video to tell Ashley that one of her dreams has come true, and she will be singing at Fenway Park. Ashley chose her brother Michael, an avid Red Sox fan, as the one person she can have on the field with her while she sings. She will be the first Special Olympics athlete from Connecticut to sing the National Anthem at Fenway Park. The programming for Special Olympics night will begin at 6:30 p.m.

PHS student appointed to national SADD Board

Jozzlynn Lewis from Putnam has earned a prestigious appointment to a National SADD teen advocacy board. Jill Spinetti, President & CEO of The Governor's Prevention Partnership, made the announcement at the Governor's Residence Reception on Tuesday, June 7, in Hartford.

HARTFORD — While many Connecticut students will be honored with end-of-year school awards, Putnam High School junior Jozzlynn Lewis has earned a coveted spot on a national teen board.

Each year, Students Against Destructive Decisions or SADD, provides an opportunity for select students to join an exciting advocacy-training program called SADD SPEAKS. SADD state coordinator for Connecticut, the Governor's Prevention Partnership, recently announced Lewis' appointment at the Governor's Residence Reception on Tuesday, June 7 in Hartford.

"Jozzlynn was one of only 15 young people from across the country who was chosen. It is quite an honor!" said Jill Spinetti, President & CEO, The Governor's Prevention Partnership (The Partnership). "This is also significant for The Partnership because this is the first time in ten years that we have had a youth from Connecticut involved in a national SADD initiative."

Lewis addressed the invited CEOs, Commissioners, and other high level officials at Tuesday's event hosted by Governor Malloy and the Partnership's Board of Directors. The Partnership also shared its new strategic plan with the attendees who generously support the non-profit organization. The plan is focused on The Partnership's mission to equip and connect community groups, business leaders and families to prevent substance abuse, underage drinking and violence among youth.

"While underage drinking has dropped 8.9 percent, that's not good enough," states Spinetti. "More than 50 percent of Connecticut's youth continue to deal with issues of drug use, family alcoholism, bullying and child abuse. We partner with SADD and exemplary students such as Jozzlynn to help children avoid all substances to ensure a healthier future."

Lewis, 17, underwent a competitive selection process which focused on her experience, leadership qualities, public speaking ability, and other criteria. She was recognized as a dynamic student leader who has also been involved in her local substance abuse prevention coalition, Putnam PRIDE, for many years, along with her mother, Cheryl Lewis. Her interest in SADD stems from seeing alcohol and substance use in her own school.

"Sometimes kids come to class under the influence," explains Lewis. "This has a negative influence on all of the students, not just the ones who use. I became involved in SADD in order to make a difference and do my part to make things better."

Lewis' commitment and dedication certainly impressed the judging panel. "Jozzlynn is deserving of this high honor. Her deep desire to empower her peers and change her community will serve her well, as she works to implement policy change at the local, state, and national level," said Dawn Teixeira, SADD president and chief executive officer.

"Motivated young people are a true catalyst for social change."

"I am so very proud of Jozzlynn and her dedication to SADD, as well as her commitment to wanting to make Putnam High School and our community a safer place to learn and live," adds Lisa Mooney, School Social Worker and SADD Advisor at Putnam High School.

SADD SPEAKS (Students for Policy, Education, Advocacy, & Knowledge) is an initiative of SADD National, funded by State Farm that focuses on addressing an impaired driving issue. The participants will have a positive and lasting effect on public policy, demonstrating the power of America's young people to speak persuasively on critically important issues. They will be trained in coalition building, public speaking and advocacy skills.

This year's SADD SPEAKS delegates will develop an advocacy plan to address an impaired driving issue (distracted, drowsy, drugged or underage drinking and driving). The group will then lead the national organization's efforts on Capitol Hill and before their own state and local governments, as well as mobilize thousands of SADD students across the country.

Hanczar named Woodstock Academy Teacher of the Year

WOODSTOCK — Faculty member Gloria Hanczar has been voted the 2016-17 Woodstock Academy Teacher of the Year.

During the last 27 years at The Academy, she has taught more than 2,500 students to express themselves and appreciate art. She has served in many other ways, painting the sets for plays and musicals, chaperoning various student events, organizing art shows and competitions, and much more.

Associate Headmaster Holly Singleton introduced Gloria as the recipient of the award on Thursday, June 9, with a quote from John Steinbeck saying, "A great teacher is a great artist. Teaching might even be the greatest of the arts since the medium is the human mind and spirit." She then added, "It seems most appropriate that we define a great teacher in terms of an artist, as this year's Teacher of the Year is Gloria Hanczar!"

Nominations for Teacher of the Year were submitted by Woodstock Academy students, faculty, staff, and administration, and the community at large. The recipient was selected through a series of votes to narrow the field. As the recipient, Mrs. Hanczar will be recognized and speak during the Academic Convocation at The Academy this fall, be featured in next year's yearbook and Gleaner alumni magazine, as well as represent The Academy when all Connecticut Teachers of the Year are honored at a state-wide reception.

Two of the statements accompanying Mrs. Hanczar's nominations are included here:

"I'd like to thank Mrs. Hanczar for being a great teacher and for being so encouraging. She deserves to be the teacher of the year because she truly cares about her students and about the importance of art."

"Mrs. Hanczar is the first teacher I met during my freshman year of high school, and the first person who told me she believes I will achieve great things in the future! She believes in me and she pushed me and encouraged me to make beautiful artwork! She is the one and only person I look up to everyday and she inspires me to be an enthusiastic and excellent art teacher, just like her!"

Mrs. Hanczar's colleagues say that she is warm, friendly, and always has a genuine smile and a kind word for others. Her students are relaxed, yet understand that they are expected to meet the high expectations that have been set for them."

In response to receiving this award Mrs. Hanczar said the following in an email to her colleagues, "In the 37 years I have worked as a teacher, I have experience teaching art from the pre-K level through to the community college and university level. Teaching at the

WWE Hall of Famer tells inspirational story at KPL

KILLINGLY — You could feel the anticipation in the Community Room at Killingly Public Library on Saturday, June 4, as the crowd waited for World Wrestling Entertainment 2013 Hall of Famer Bob Backlund to walk into the room.

After being introduced by Assistant Director Claudette Stockwell, Backlund was met by applause by everyone in the audience. He came in and spent the next hour and a half telling his story of how he became a wrestler, the struggles he had to overcome in his life and how his integrity and determination led him to a path of victory. At 66 years old, Mr. Backlund is fit, flexible and enjoys making a difference in the lives of both children and adults. The crowd held young children, middle agers and older adults all riveted by his words.

A true inspirational speaker, he almost had the crowd in tears when he squatted down, addressing a special needs gentleman with words of advice on how to walk away from being bullied. He took his face in his hands, told him to never forget how special he is and to smile at the bullies and walk away. He then hugged him. Words cannot truly express the mood in the room. Everyone was touched by Mr. Backlund's inspirational words.

He then addressed a younger boy in the crowd, asked him if anyone had asked him to smoke a cigarette. The boy told him no and his response was someday someone will. You need to remember this moment and remember to make a choice about who you want to be.

Backlund is no stranger to peer pressure, as he shared his background and explained that a lot of the wrestlers were smoking, drinking and using drugs. He did not want to corrupt his mind or body in that way and he took a great deal of harassment due to his refusal to bend to their will by being "one of the guys." He triumphed though by being selected to be "The All American Boy." His life is a testament to overcoming adversity, remaining mentally and physically strong, making nutritionally correct choices for his life and choosing to be a positive role model. He is a man worth seeing in person and his book, "Backlund: From All-American Boy to Professional Wrestling's World Champion," will be a pleasure to read.

WOODSTOCK LIBRARIES ANNOUNCE FREE SUMMER PROGRAMS

WOODSTOCK — For the second year in a row, Woodstock libraries are sponsoring a "One Book, One Community" event. This is a community-wide literacy event with a goal of not only encouraging people to read, but to also take part in community events and discussions related to the theme of the book. This year, rather than focusing on a particular book, we are focusing on one author — Sy Montgomery. Sy is a nationally recognized nature writer and has written over 20 books for adults and children. Her most recent book, "The Soul of an Octopus," was the runner up for the National Book award. Her previous books have won other awards and even been turned into National Geographic documentaries! She has traveled the globe studying various animals and is a passionate supporter of protecting the Earth that we share. We hope you all participate by reading one or more of Sy's books, attending one of the nature related programs held at the four libraries in town, and by attending one of Sy's speaking events here this November! She often speaks to sold out crowds in auditoriums, but here you'll get to see her in your own back yard—for free!

Related Programs, Great for Children ages 3-99 — To tie into the One Book theme, and our summer reading theme "Wild About Reading," we are going to have some cool programs focusing on creatures of the air, land, and sea. These are great for all ages & free. If you have kids, they can also participate in our summer library passport program too. Kids can visit each of the four libraries to get a stamp in their reading passport. When they visit the 4th, they get a small prize. Visit any one of the Woodstock libraries for more information!

"Principles of Flight" at Bracken Memorial Library on Friday, June 24 at 6 p.m. Horizon Wings Raptor rehabilitation will be bringing an eagle, an owl, a peregrine falcon, and a hawk. This is sure to be an awesome program for older kids & adults!

Animal Experiences at Bracken Memorial Library on Saturday, July 9 at 10 a.m. Come meet "Dave the Animal Man" to learn about and touch 20 animals including snakes, turtles, lizards, amphibians, an alligator, and small mammals. This program is a great hands-on experience for all ages!

Come Meet Falcons And Friends! At the West Woodstock Library on Saturday, July 16 at 2 p.m. Horizon Wings Raptor Rehabilitation will be bringing two falcons, a hawk, an owl, and a turtle. Come learn all about them. Designed for ages 4 through elementary school and sure to be lots of fun! Sponsored by the Friends of the Woodstock Libraries.

Biomes Marine Biology Center/Educational Program & Traveling Tide Pool at Bracken Memorial Library on Saturday, July 30 at 10 a.m. Come learn about, and touch, lots of animals found in Narragansett Bay. Great for all ages!

Fathers' Day

On Fathers' Day, golf courses will be packed, grills will be fired up and silly or sentimental cards will be exchanged in an annual celebration of the role of fathers in the lives of their offspring.

Our fathers, present, absent, good, bad or indifferent affect us deeply. On this holiday there is time to focus on the men whose integrity, humor, self-confidence and ability to love frame how their sons and daughters view the world and themselves. Being a father has never been an easy role, but now it is more varied than ever.

I'm impressed with the engagement I see among young fathers with their children. Once it was surprising to see a man pushing a baby in a stroller or navigating a shopping cart with a toddler on board. Now I often see men with infants strapped to their chests doing errands or walking school children to class. Men are securing children in elaborate car seats and packing their lunches. The day-to-day business of raising a human being from birth to reasonable self-sufficiency is being shared, at least in certain quarters. I love watching the change. It is charming to see a man at the library chatting with his child or watch a dad fix a quick dinner for the family.

The change is quite recent. It must be the result of shifting societal values and the economy. Television, which gave us the best of all possible dads, i.e. Bill Cosby, who turned out to be a villain, painted a picture where fathers impart wisdom with self-effacing humor. Cosby, the real man is a disaster, but Dr. Huxtable, his character was a marvel of strength, patience and love. The fictitious father was a good model, who influenced our attitudes.

Fathers were once elusive people. They worked all the time, elsewhere, or if they were farmers, they worked so hard that they had little energy left to engage with their children. They either gave orders, corrections, or told you to get out of the way of something so as not to get hurt. There was something so separate about them that I can't recall the faces of the fathers of friends and neighbors. They were defined by what they did for work and the authority they represented. Now and then someone's father might tell funny stories or be willing to play games or show off his skating prowess on a frozen pond, but not often. Looking back, I can see that they were locked in to their roles whether they chose them or not.

Fathers seemed to prefer boys. I knew I was lucky that my lively, mercurial, intelligent father was especially fond of me. I read that a successful parent leads each of his children to think they are his favorites, but I was sure of it. Perhaps my brothers felt the same way. They were given bear hugs and claps on the back when they came home, but I was given kisses and warm embraces. When my father and I danced at my wedding I was delighted at his gracefulness and as happy as I had been as a little girl twirling around the kitchen.

On this Fathers' Day the burgers may be overcooked and the presents predictable, but the legacy of fatherhood in all its complex and changing ways will be celebrated again. When my son-in-law sweeps his little boy into his arms and calls him, "Bud", our grandson flashes a smile that he reserves exclusively for his father. That moment of mutual recognition is the best present of all.

You can have one too!

His eyes were sad and his face was long as he watched his friend slurp around the edges of his double scoop ice cream cone. The smell of the bubble gum and cherry flavors wafted through the hot summer air triggering his saliva glands and intense feelings of jealousy. Then came the words that were music to his ears: "You can have one too. They're giving them away free at the booth just around the corner."

We have all been there; longing for something or someone that someone else is enjoying. I was blessed that way when it came to a father. My dad was one of those faithful, consistent, and loving fathers. He provided, mentored, listened, supported and believed in me. If you had a father like that, you probably treasure your memories and that relationship. It is something to celebrate.

But not everyone was blessed with a loving father. As a child, on occasion, I had friends over who would look at the family I enjoyed with longing and jealousy. Unfortunately, when it came to good parents, I could not tell them, "You can have one too!"

Fathers' Day is one of those holidays that can be bitter or sweet. For some, the holiday is a time to send cards or take dad fishing and make sure he knows how much he is appreciated. However, many approach this holiday with regret, not having had a father who was present or nurturing. While that is a sad reality in our modern culture, there is another reality, and it can be music to your ears. It is the good news that, although you may not have been blessed with a wonderful earthly father, you can have a wonderful Heavenly Father. God has offered to be a father to all those who will respect Him for who He is.

A Hebrew Psalm describes God like this: "The LORD is like a father to his children, tender and compassionate to those who fear him." (Psalm 103:13 NLT) For many believers God has become their loving, supporting, faithful and very present Father. My Heavenly Father is the ultimate comforter, counselor and savior. He never leaves or forsakes me. He is patient and forgiving. He has prepared an eternal home for me where there will be no more sorrow, pain or death. I have a Heavenly Father – and you can have one too!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Babbitt: Thank you for supporting our veterans

To the Editor:
 Thompson's Memorial Day Parade was a wet one, yet the spirits were high. I rode, as I am no longer able to walk the mile trek in North Grosvenordale! This was my 72nd, but would have been my 75th — I missed three due to military duties. This is my last helping plan all activities related to the parade. There are many, many thanks to everyone that helped make it a success — hundreds, plus the two little girls on Main Street with their American flags and their dollies, and the four World War II vets that rode with us.

 NORN BABBITT
 THOMPSON

The cutting has to stop!

To the Editor:
 In April, the Thompson Board of Education put forth a budget that enabled the district to maintain last year's staffing levels without further cuts. It also asked for minimal financial assistance in two badly understaffed areas — the paraprofessional ranks and social services.

The last few years have had a devastating effect on student services, educational opportunities and the future growth of our schools. More than 40 positions have already been cut (mostly teachers), educational programs have been eliminated, valuable course offerings discontinued and extracurricular activities suspended. Many of our classes are now the largest they have been in more than a decade and yet, some are calling for more cuts.

Everyone agrees that the Thompson student population over the past few years, like most towns in Connecticut, has declined, but difficult corresponding adjustments have already been made and the trend of declining student population is starting to reverse. We also have more than 150 students (not included on the school rosters), attending alternative schools and outside programs away from our campus. These are students to whom we also have educational and financial responsibility and must provide services such as transportation, nursing and social help, tuition and special education.

But placing all that aside for a moment,

How did we get here?

To the Editor:
 Let the games begin.
 Republican vs. Democrat. Right vs. Left. Male vs. Female. Professional businessman vs. professional politician. Pompous narcissist vs. self-serving egomaniac.

In any other venue this would be comical. Think WWF. However, this is the election for the most powerful person on the planet. How in the world did America wind up in this predicament?

As the Washington landscape has become more polarized, each side has growing contempt for the other, which has led to the nomination of a candidate that represents an anathema to the other party. This can't come as a surprise. The last eight years have shown the "my way or the highway" attitude (perfected by the House Republicans) has poisoned the inner workings of Washington fueling the extremism fires.

Still we are left with a choice. But either way a significant portion of the population will be dusting off passports and making their way north to Canada. We'll need to ignore the person and listen to how each candidate would run the country. Mr. Trump has been the most vocal and here are just some of his sound bites.

"I will build a great, great wall on our southern border, and I will make Mexico pay for that wall." Of course, Mexico is under no obligation and starting a trade war would be a disaster for our own economy. "...we're better off if Japan protects itself...we're better off, frankly, if South Korea is going to start to protect itself," suggesting that these countries and others start developing nuclear weapons. Just what the world does not need, more atomic bombs. "It's freezing and snowing in New York—we need global warming." It's flooding in Europe, record heat waves are rolling across Asia, coral reefs are being wiped out. Mr. Trump is not listening to scientists. The man is yet to be officially nominated and has already alienated many of our allies. Britain has already debated barring him from entering their country.

And of course there are the more personal quotes. Regarding women, "You know it really doesn't matter what the media write as long as you've got a young, and beautiful, piece of [expletive deleted]." Regarding our POWs (in this case John McCain), "He's not a war hero, I like people that weren't captured." And regarding himself, "The beauty of me is that I'm very rich" and "My IQ is one of the highest and you all know it! Please don't feel so stupid or insecure it's not your fault."

He has proposed having a religious litmus test to decide who can enter the country (ban all Muslims). He has tried to take down the Pope. He has suggested that a judge must recuse himself if he is of a different cultural background than the litigant.

One can go on.
 Ms. Clinton, of course, carries her own baggage. She can be accused of carpet bagging when she became Senator for the State of New York, her evasions regarding the Bengasi killings and the incompetence in the matter of her classified emails. Still her policies, though prone to a wobble here or there, are sound and she more importantly carries a resume of experience to run her Presidency.

Mr. Trump on the other hand has no political experience and proposes to run the government as he would a business. This will not work. Our government has checks and balances and succeeds when two sides compromise. The Donald could not just say to a Senator he is not pleased with "You're fired!" America is not a dictatorship and he can't enter Washington as Caesar entered Rome.

Many will approach the election as choosing the lesser of two evils. Certainly these are two of the most reviled candidates to step on the national stage. But in the end, and as many senior Republican leaders responsibly have decided, picking Mr. Trump would be irresponsible disaster (especially to the GOP itself). This is why there is one clear winner — Hillary.

For those that think otherwise, cheer up. At least Canada has universal healthcare.

O.C. White of Worcester produced machinist lamps with swing arms during the early 20th century that bring strong prices today. Carts that were used to wheel goods between stations in a factory are being repurposed and finding their way into homes as coffee tables or stands. With brick factories being transformed into apartment buildings, some of the signs and other objects that were once part of the factories are now being used to adorn the walls.

Pieces for storing items are also popular. Metal storage bins that held baskets for factory workers, parts bins and other vintage industrial metal storage units are highly sought after. Wooden storage bins also appeal to designers and those looking to furnish homes or businesses. Octagonal wooden carousels held triangular shaped drawers that were stenciled with the types of screws they held. We sold 2 of these at past auctions and they fetched prices in the high $100's each. Printers' cabinets, map, blueprint and chart cabinets are some of the other wooden storage pieces buyers crave. Many industrial machine parts are repurposed. Artists and designers use machine gauges, cogs, gears and other parts to create decorative pieces. Steampunk is a genre of science fiction that uses Victorian era clothing, industrial parts and other pieces that may have been scrapped to create futuristic designs that some say were inspired by Jules Verne and H.G. Wells. Repurposing of old parts has created a niche market for these old industrial pieces.

Other antiques from the Second Industrial Revolution that took place during the late 1800's and early 1900's and later are also in demand. Country store pieces like spool cabinets, display cases, advertising signs and almost anything else with old advertising on it is desirable. Prices can range from hundreds to thousands of dollars. Decorators and collectors appreciate Americana and the nostalgia of old advertising pieces of all kinds.

Transportation related items are also coveted by collectors, dealers and designers. Vintage gas pumps, automobiles, motorcycles, advertising signs and other accessories continue to maintain strong interest and prices. Nautical items like brass ship telegraphs, brass diving helmets, compasses, ships' clocks and steering wheels are just a few of the many items collectors desire. Engine bells, whistles, paymasters' desks, lanterns and signs are just a few types of railroad memorabilia that are still on track with collectors.

Four reasons why people spend too much

You understand the basic financial concepts of budgeting, saving, and monitoring your money. But this doesn't necessarily mean that you're in control of your spending. The following reasons might help explain why you sometimes break your budget.

FINANCIAL FOCUS
JIM ZAHANSKY
INVESTMENT ADVISER

1. FAILING TO THINK ABOUT THE FUTURE

It can be difficult to adequately predict future expenses, but thinking about the future is a key component of financial responsibility. If you have a tendency to focus on the "here and now" without taking the future into account, then you might find that this leads you to overspend.

Maybe you feel that you're acting responsibly simply because you've started an emergency savings account. You might feel that it will help you cover future expenses, but in reality it may create a false sense of security that leads you to spend more than you can afford at a given moment in time.

Remember that the purpose of your emergency savings account is to be a safety net in times of financial crisis. If you're constantly tapping it for unnecessary purchases, you aren't using it correctly.

Change this behavior by keeping the big picture in perspective. Create room in your budget that allows you to spend discretionary money and use your emergency savings only for true emergencies. By having a carefully thought-out plan in place, you'll be less likely to overspend without realizing it.

2. REWARDING YOURSELF

Are you a savvy shopper who rarely splurges, or do you spend too frequently because you want to reward yourself? If you fall in the latter category, your sense of willpower may be to blame. People who see willpower as a limited resource often trick themselves into thinking that they deserve a reward when they are able to demonstrate a degree of willpower. As a result, they may develop the unhealthy habit of overspending on random, unnecessary purchases in order to fulfill the desire for a reward.

This doesn't mean that you're never allowed to reward yourself—you just might need to think of other ways that won't lead to spending too much money. Develop healthier habits by rewarding yourself in ways that don't cost money, such as spending time outdoors, reading, or meditating. Both your body and your wallet will thank you.

If you do decide to splurge on a reward from time to time, do yourself a favor and plan your purchase. Figure out how much it will cost ahead of time so you can save accordingly instead of tapping your savings. Make sure that your reward, whether it's small or big, has a purpose and is meaningful to you. Try scaling back. For example, instead of dining out every weekend, limit this expense to once or twice a month. Chances are that you'll enjoy going out more than you did before, and you'll feel good about the money you save from dining out less frequently.

3. MIXING MOOD WITH MONEY

Your emotional state can be an integral part of your ability to make sensible financial decisions. When you're unhappy, you might not be thinking clearly, and saving is probably not your first priority. Boredom or stress also makes it easy to overspend because shopping serves as a fast and easy distraction from your feelings. This narrow focus on short-term happiness might be a reason why you're spending more than normal.

Waiting to spend when you're happy and thinking more positively could help shift your focus back to your long-term financial goals. Avoid temptations and stay clear of stores if you feel that you'll spend needlessly after having an emotionally challenging day. Staying on track financially (and emotionally) will benefit you in the long run.

4. GETTING CAUGHT UP IN HOME EQUITY HABITS

Do you tend to spend more money when the value of your assets — particularly your property — increases? You might think that appreciating assets add to your spending power, thus making you feel both wealthier and more financially secure. You may be tempted to tap into your home equity, but make sure you're using it wisely.

Instead of thinking of your home as a piggy bank, remember it's where you live. Be smart with your home equity loan or line of credit—don't borrow more than what is absolutely necessary. For example, you may need to borrow to pay for emergency home repairs or health expenses, but you want to avoid borrowing to pay for gratuitous luxuries that could put you and your family's financial security at risk. After all, the lender could foreclose if you fail to repay the debt, and there may be closing costs and other charges associated with the loan.

Creative multipurpose tips

In today's economy it's important to get the most use out of the products you buy. Thanks to some creative repurposing, many ordinary items can do double duty all around the house. Read on for some unusual uses for everyday things.

TAKE THE HINT
KAREN TRAINOR

And remember readers, send in your best tips and you'll be in the running to win Dinner for Two at the Public House!

Bamboo Skewers: Not just for shish kabob or fruit arrangements, a package of inexpensive wooden skewers come in handy! Use them to test the doneness of cakes; to easily turn doughnuts and other foods when deep frying; and insert into cake layers to invisibly stabilize a crooked confection. Wooden skewers are also in the workshop. To camouflage a narrow nail hole, dip the end of a skewer in white glue, push it into the wall, break it off and paint over. The most creative use of all? I once caught my niece using one of the wooden sticks as a hands-free Oreo dipper. She just stabbed the middle cream and dunked the whole cookie into milk!

Aluminum Foil: Hate to iron? Place a sheet of tinfoil under the ironing board cover (above the foam but below the cloth) to boost the heat of the iron and get the job done more efficiently and quickly! Run out of steel wool pads? Crumple up a ball of tinfoil and use to clean pans (not non-stick). And did you wonder why grandma had a sheet of tinfoil taped behind the radiator? The shiny surface reflects the heat and boosts the warmth.

Vodka: Is your potpourri losing its scent? Toss in a capful of vodka and mix it up to renew fragrance in the dried flower mix. Want your fresh flowers to last a bit longer? Simply add a few drops of vodka along with a teaspoon of sugar to the water in the vase. The vodka kills bacteria, extending the life of the blooms. And you can whip up an effective air freshener with vodka. To do: In a spray bottle, mix together six ounces water (distilled if possible), one ounce of vodka, and your choice of essential oil (about 20-30 drops). Shake up and spray!

Dental Floss: Hanging a picture and don't have any wire? Doubled up dental floss is strong enough to substitute on lightweight pictures; Are photos stuck together? Instead of pulling apart, lessen the risk of damage by gently shimmying the floss between the photos to pry them off. Swaging holiday greenery? Green mint dental floss serves as a strong (and invisible) tie to wind around garlands to hang down stairways or along a mantle. And unflavored dental floss can also be used to truss a turkey.

Dental floss even works as a quick fix for restringing beaded jewelry. And if you happen to snap your fishing line, a length of dental floss can serve as a temporary substitute.

Here are some additional multipurpose ideas:

- Have extra roof shingles? Stow a few in your trunk during winter weather. If you get stuck, wedge the shingle under the tire for traction.
- Need to clean a grout stain? Saturate a cotton ball in bleach and place it on the stain until it fades out.
- Or place a few drops of essential oil on a cotton ball and put in your car ashtray or other niche to discreetly refresh the whole car.
- Save plastic newspaper sleeves. The long bags protect shoes from other clothing when packing a suitcase.
- Wet boots from winter weather? Stuff newspaper inside your shoes and they'll dry out faster.
- Newspaper also works to prevent odors in thermos bottles between uses. Just pack crumpled newspaper into the bottle before closing to store.
- Stuff Styrofoam packing peanuts into a bean bag chair to puff it back up without spending a dime!
- Repurpose grass clippings into old, musty dresser drawers. Close the drawer and in a few days it will smell fresh.
- Spray some no stick cooking spray on your snow shovel to help heavy, wet snow from sticking to it.

ROGERS, HORN HONORED AS EAGLE SCOUTS

POMFRET — On Sunday, May 22, the Boy Scout Eagle Court of Honor honoring Ethan Rogers and Allen Horn IV was held at the Pomfret Audubon Center.

The Eagle Scout Award is the highest rank in Scouting. To become an Eagle Scout, Ethan and Allen had to advance through the ranks, which included Scout, Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class Scout, Star Scout, and Life Scout. To complete these requirements, they had to complete approximately 100 tasks while advancing through the ranks. The Eagle Award is the culmination of these efforts and includes a community service project. Ethan's project entailed blazing a fishing trail and river access at the Pomfret Boy Scout campsite along the Quinebaug River in Pomfret. The trail is approximately 0.25 mile long with three benches, mulched trailhead, and trail markings. Materials generously donated by Hull Forest products, Eastford Building Supply, and Graphics Unlimited. Allen's project constructed a 24-foot long elevated wooden and composite material bridge spanning the Hampton Brook at the CT Audubon Society at Trail Wood - Edwin Way Teale Memorial Sanctuary. Materials generously donated by Chace Lumber along with the use of reclaimed composite decking.

Approximately 75 people attended the ceremony and reception including Boy Scout Troop 26, State Sen. Tony Guglielmo, State Rep. Mike Alberts, First Selectman Craig Baldwin, former First Selectman Maureen Nicholson, JN Webster Scout Reservation Director Pat Boyd, Woodstock Academy Headmaster Christopher Sanford, family, and friends.

Prior to the Eagle Court of Honor, Ethan and Allen were invited to the Pomfret First Selectman's meeting and presented Excellence Awards and Town of Pomfret Constable Badges.

PUTNAM — Seventy students crossed the stage (plus one absent graduate) on June 11, as Putnam High School celebrated the Class of 2016, the 139th graduating class of the school. While the ceremony was short and sweet, lasting about 50 minutes, the evening proved to be an emotional one of celebration, reflection and hope for the future as graduates celebrated their accomplishments with family and friends and prepared for the next stage in their lives after four years at Putnam High School.

Myriah Morris celebrates her graduation with her grandmother Alice outside of Putnam Middle School following Putnam High School's graduation ceremony.

Student of the Year Shelby Grilo was not only honored for her dedication to her class, but later in the evening she also presented her self-penned "Ode to the Class of 2016."

Paraprofessional Pamela Geremia was honored by the Class of 2016 in Putnam as employee of the year at Putnam High School.

Putnam High School graduate Marcus Lewis performs a dab as he crosses the stage.

Graduates move their tassels from one side of their caps to the other, the traditional sign of moving from high school student to graduate.

Putnam High School graduate Joseph Ionkin poses for a photo with a few potential future Putnam graduates, his sisters.

Bruce Thomas

POMFRET — Interfaith Human Services of Putnam played host to the Bell Tower Spring Classic Bike Ride. The charity ride shoved off from Most Holy Trinity Church last Saturday, June 11, and bicyclists could travel on routes of either 62 miles, 30 miles, or 15 miles. Proceeds from the event benefitted the Daily Bread Food Pantry, the Diaper Bank of Northeast Connecticut, and NUZU Clothing Closet.

Friday's Child

Dominic is a sweet and sociable 3-year-old Caucasian boy who loves to laugh, smile and run as fast as he can. Dominic also enjoys playing with his toys and spending time with his foster family. He is diagnosed on the Autism spectrum and has global developmental delays. Because of Dominic's small size and his developmental delays, he presents in many ways as a much younger child. He continues to make steady progress and is working hard to overcome his challenges and increasing his ability to communicate. At his daycare Dominic's teacher reports that he has made connections with some of his classmates and even says he is like "brothers" with one of the other children.

Dominic would do best in a home where there are two parents with or without other children. The family should have an understanding of Autism and global delays as well as be able to celebrate all of Dominic's daily successes!

Who Can Adopt?

Can you provide the guidance, love and stability that a child needs? If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ singles and couples.

The process to adopt a child from foster care requires training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you, and if so, to help connect you with a child or sibling group that will be a good match.

To learn more about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or toll free 800-882-1176) or visit www.mareinc.org. The sooner you call, the sooner a waiting child will have "a permanent place to call HOME."

Officials preparing budget for third referendum

BUDGET

June 9.
While the town's $7.1 million General Government budget passed by a vote of 779-536, the Board of Education's budget of $18.2 million fell by 13 votes in a 667-654 decision. Voters also approved a capital improvement item that returned to the ballot after failing in the first vote with a 724-593 decision, approving utilizing $373,000 to pay for costs accrued to clean up two oil spills on town properties.

First Selectman Ken Beausoleil spoke with The Villager about what's next, and noted that a reduction was made to the education spending plan by the Board of Finance immediately following its failure.
"The Board of Finance made an adjustment to the Board of Education budget. The Board of Finance took $20,000 off the school side," said Beausoleil. "That was the complete adjustment that they made. They left the municipal side alone. With the vote being so close they had a difficult choice for what adjustment they needed to go with."

The new number brings the total combined budgets to $25.3 million with a proposed 26.06 mill rate, a 1.26 mill jump for the town.
With both budgets in Thompson being forced back to the polls, should either of them fail at any budget referendum, Ken Beausoleil said the same rule does not apply to the capital improvement question that was on the ballot, and that vote will stand. It's a good thing too, as Beausoleil revealed that this allocation was needed to cover bills already accrued by the town with the plan to have that money reimbursed through insurance and other means.

"The town has incurred debt that has come from the remediation of the highway garage and the school with the oil spills. Those bills are due and we have to pay them," said the first selectman. "We will attempt to recover those costs."
The new budget plan will be heavily discussed in detail on June 20 at 7 p.m. at the Thompson Public Library with the third referendum to take place on June 28. Taxpayers will decide on June 20 if that referendum will run from noon until 8 p.m. or all day, from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m. Details on the budget and a presentation of the revised spending plans can be found on the Thompson town website as well.

Budget approved at second Town Meeting in Putnam money from the Ash Landfill fund in order to fund capital projects within the town. The budget approved on June 6 shows $2.9 million in revenues in the Ash landfill account which selectmen believe could continue for many years into the future as long as the money borrowed is paid back. Despite opposition from selectmen Doug Cutler Jr. and Roy Simmons, who argued that while the purchases planned for the town are essential borrowing from the ash landfill account was the wrong way to pay for them, taxpayers unanimously approved the $220,000 capital appropriation with $185,000 being used to purchase a public works dump truck and another $35,000 to be used for a pickup truck for the Recreation Department. Cutler argued that the town already has money put aside for the vehicles and that he didn't see the need for Putnam to have to "pay itself back" with interest when the town has the funds to pay for the vehicles out of pocket. Selectman Scott Pempek and Mayor Tony Falzarano disagreed with Cutler and Simmons with the Mayor calling it a good way to get things done.

Following the Town Meeting the Board of Finance set the mill tax rate at 17.04, an increase of .62 mills. The General Government Budget approved on June 6 was a $262,107 increase, a little under 5 percent, over the current fiscal year and totaled $5,871,714 when factoring in all the expenses that were approved during the meeting. The education budget approved in May totals $17,356,367, a $420,000 increase, or 2.5 percent, over the current fiscal year.

PAWS CAT OF THE WEEK: KATIE

This is Katie! Katie is a big, beautiful tortie girl with a delightful white mustache and, as you can see, super long whiskers!
Katie is around seven years old, but don't let her age fool you. She is full of loving energy and very playful! She's just less likely to tear apart your house, than some of her younger shelter-mates.
When Katie first came to the shelter she was very sad and confused by the change. Upon meeting the volunteers on a more one-on-one basis, she showed her true colors and became very happy and affectionate. Her time in a cage is taking its toll now. The volunteers can tell she is becoming depressed again. She doesn't understand why she's here and wants nothing more than to be out of her cage, and in a loving home.

Katie is a big lady who adores being petted. She'll cuddle with you for as long as you'll let her! If you're looking for a new family member who is full of affection and won't tear up your house, Katie is waiting for you.
Katie is in great health, up-to-date on vaccines, tested negative for FIV/FeLV and has been spayed.
If you would like to adopt Katie and see how deeply loving this sweetheart can be, please call the PAWS shelter at (860) 480-1104.

Organizers of Particle Accelerator were honored for a decade of raising awareness for suicide and depression at Saturday's 10th Annual Particle Accelerator concert in Putnam's Rotary Park. The opening act for the 10th anniversary of Particle Accelerator, ghost cat!, led by Cory and Kerensa Hammerschlag, helped kick off a rainy event, but the group offered a great mix of acoustic new grass, folk and Americana.

The Particle Accelerator Wall of Angels, depicting tributes to countless victims of suicide and the illnesses and trials that led to those actions, has been a staple of Particle Accelerator for many years as a reminder of the losses suffered in the region and a way to remember those who, for one reason or another, saw suicide as their only escape.

PUTNAM — Hundreds of local residents and families came out to Rotary Park Saturday, June 11, for the 10th Annual Particle Accelerator: A Day of Music and Hope, an annual benefit concert that raises awareness for suicide and depression and funds for United Services.

The free, all day music festival featured 18 bands playing music of all genres and for all ages. The concert began at noon and continued until 11 p.m. Despite a rainy start, hundreds of residents attended the festival throughout the day.

Putnam residents Gary and Karen Osbrey, owners of WINY Radio, said they were honored to serve as this year's honorary chairpersons.

"Karen and I consider it a privilege to serve as honorary chairs of Particle Accelerator," said Gary Osbrey. "Any family can be touched by suicide and mental illness and we believe it is important to remove the attached stigma and to introduce open and honest dialogue which will hopefully result in people seeking and receiving the help they need and deserve."

The festival started in 2007 by family and friends of Putnam resident Jack Young Jr., who died by suicide on his 27th birthday that year.

Event organizer Grace Young, mother of Jack Young Jr., said when she and other family members and friends started the event in 2007 they "never expected it to get this big."

"I think Jack would be pleased with this legacy," Grace Young said.

The annual benefit concert has two main goals, organizers said. The first is to raise funds and awareness to support United Services, Inc., one of Connecticut's most comprehensive private, non-profit behavioral health centers, providing mental and behavioral health education, prevention, treatment and social services to the children, adults and families of northeastern Connecticut since 1964.

"As we mark the 10th year, we are grateful to event organizers Jack and Grace Young and Eric and Sandy Gould, who work with United Services throughout the year to put on this important public awareness event," said United Services President/CEO Diane L. Manning.

Organizers said this year's event raised more than $8,500 for local Mental Health First Aid trainings, a public education initiative that helps the public identify people in the midst of a mental health crisis more readily and get them the resources and professional help they need before they harm themselves or others.

The second event goal is to provide information and support for depression and suicide prevention, while promoting music and civic engagement as a healthy alternative to drug and alcohol abuse among young adults.

Locally, United Services has seen a 241 percent increase in its adult outpatient mental health services since 2007. John Goodman, Director of Development and Communications for United Services, said the agency attributes that increase partially to the awareness raised by Particle Accelerator.

"We're grateful to the Town of Putnam, our sponsors, and all of Northeastern Connecticut who have been strong supporters in this decade-long effort to break through the stigma of mental illness," said Goodman. "Local families, businesses and community leaders have decided not to wait for state or federal action, and have come together to speak with one voice to help save the more than 40,000 lives lost to suicide each year, using music and art to remind everyone that there is help, and there is hope."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, suicide was the 10th leading cause of death for Americans in 2014, with 42,773 suicides reported.

Performers Saturday included: Kala Farnham, Adam Trudel, Llama Tsunami, Dragonfly Diversion, Synergy, The Papa Joe Show, Jason Bleau, The Grey Curtain, Frank Roman and the Breakwater Blues and more.

In addition to the music, the event also featured information on local resources from United Services, Putnam PRIDE (Partnership to Reduce the Influence of Drugs for Everyone), the Norwich Vet Center, and the Windham County chapter for the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI). Representatives from the Open Arms LGBT Support Group as well as SeizeTheFacts.com and Preventing Teen Tragedy also provided information and resources at the event.

Putnam's Artique studio painted four murals live during the concert, which were auctioned to support the event. Wellness tents featured yoga demonstrations, free massages and information from several local businesses.

Particle Accelerator's Wall of Angels, a moving tribute to friends and family members lost the suicide, honored 245 people this year with photos on the wall and the lighting of luminaria at dusk.

Since 2007, the Particle Accelerator concerts have raised more than $38,000 for local mental health services.

With the 2016 Particle Accelerator event ringing in the 10th year for the festival, several acts were honored for their longstanding commitment to the event. One of those acts was Papa Joe DeMaio whose band, The Papa Joe Show, continued its involvement in the event marking the tenth year for Papa Joe playing at the event.

Master of ceremonies Eric Gould announces an act. Gould and his crew worked hard throughout the day to battle through Mother Nature and put on an amazing event, as always, in the heart of Putnam.

River Mill Village cuts ribbon on new playground

housing community in the center of Thompson, and after years of fundraising, hard work and community dedication, the new playground is finally a reality. Led by Thompson Together, a group of united Thompson residents working for the betterment of the town through numerous projects and events, the new playground has been outfitted with a swing set, several playground sets and a buddy bench where kids can sit if they have no one to play with, and others at the playground can invite them to join in their fun.

Thompson Together President Beth Goldsmith spoke before cutting the ribbon and called the project a true labor of love and determination that the community has fully embraced and worked tirelessly to make a reality.

"This is celebration of the point that we've reached now. I won't say we're finished, but this is a playground that we've recreated in River Mill Village. Most remember the playground that was here back in the day. It was a metal jungle gym and tall swings that had to be removed in the 90's because they were no longer deemed safe. We were left with an empty lot of dirt, overgrown bushes and kids came here but it wasn't a real great place to play," Goldsmith said. "Thompson Together, at the suggestion of Norma O'Leary, decided that we were going to take this on as a project to see what we could do to return a playground to River Mill Village."

After years of fundraising, working on purchasing the previously private owned land and even working with the state to get assistance in funding the project the new playground has become a beautiful addition to the neighborhood and saw heavy traffic in its first official day opened to the public. Goldsmith said seeing the kids use the playground is exciting, seeing as the parents and children were consulted to determine what would be included on the site.

"Step one was to find out what the kids wanted so we brought the kids and the families together and we found out what sort of games, toys and activities they wanted to see here. With that input we worked closely with the recreation department to find pieces of play equipment that we could afford. We worked with very little money so we had to do it a piece at a time," Goldsmith said. "We did letter writing to citizens and local businesses, we went after grants and we engaged in fundraising mainly in the form of tag sales. We raised a lot of money and with that money we were able to bring what you see here today."

Goldsmith thanked the many companies and community members who played a part in making the playground a reality, including Norma O'Leary herself who was present for the big day. O'Leary told The Villager that it was a great moment for her to experience and she was even given the honor of cutting the ribbon to open the new playground.

"It's fantastic. It's just a great experience to witness this. It's exciting to go by and see the kids using it and playing. When I was a kid I had a larger area to play on and when I drove through here and saw the small area I thought we have to do something different to help them. That's why this project started," O'Leary said. "To see the kids outside and enjoying nature and the outdoors, it's very exciting. It's a beautiful area and a beautiful playground."

While First Selectman Ken Beausoleil was out of town and sent his best regards, Selectmen Shaina Smith and Steve Herbert were in attendance and each praised the project as an example of what the Thompson community can accomplish.

"This started out as a vision. That's where all great ideas are born. This area was not really esthetically pleasing but it had promise and potential. Norma O'Leary and the members of Thompson Together took a chance back in 2011 to see that the children of this neighborhood, our neighborhood, had a place to be safe, to grow and to have fun," said Smith. "As a [selectman], a town resident and a mother myself, I'm proud and honored to witness the completion of this project. It's another prime example of how compassionate, dedicated and hard working our residents are."

"I think what we see here is more than just a playground itself. We see the spirit of our town and really it's just delightful to see what our community can accomplish," Herbert added. "We see the adults who participated in doing the project and you see the proof that this is not really just another project. The kids are enjoying it, we see that today, and it's proof that this is a great initiative."

While the playground is officially opened to the public now, O'Leary said she hopes to see it actually expand. While certain safety aspects have to be taken into consideration, O'Leary hinted at the possibility of at least one more swing set being added over time to turn the current swing set into a line of regular swings and give the handicap and baby's swings their own section on the site.

Killingly Community Garden hosts annual Planting Day

KILLINGLY — The Killingly Community Garden held its 3rd Annual Planting Day Saturday, May 21. The garden is located on Westfield Avenue in Killingly. Gardeners arrived at 10 a.m. to plant their beds with plants and seeds provided by Killingly Community Garden. There were returning gardeners, students from Killingly Middle School, and beds dedicated to providing food to local charitable organizations. This is the third year of the garden and, because of generous grants from the Danielson Elks Lodge #1706, they have added an irrigation system, picnic tables, and are working on making the garden handicapped accessible. They plan to keep expanding with plans for perennial beds for things such as asparagus and even potatoes that will be available for the community. Refreshments were generously supplied by Heirloom Foods.

QUIET CORNER ROUND-UP

Lucier named DKH employee of the month

PUTNAM—Deborah Lucier, a patient account representative for Day Kimball Healthcare, has been named employee of the month by Day Kimball Healthcare (DKH). Lucier began working for Day Kimball Hospital in 1979 and has been in Patient Accounts for her entire 37-year tenure.

Today, in her role as a patient financial advisor/telephone representative Lucier has a variety of important accounting duties as well as customer service responsibilities. She processes payments, processes financial aid applications, and helps with administration of the Northeast Connecticut Cancer Fund of DKH. She also supports DKH's Development department by providing accounting support for incoming donations and assistance in the management of donor databases and mailings.

According to Amy Stewart, manager of credit and collections, "Deb has worked for DKH and in Patient Accounts for nearly 37 years. Not only does Deb bring her extensive knowledge and expertise to her position, she always brings a positive attitude and willingness to assist her co-workers and countless staff. Her commitment and dedication to DKH has been outstanding and I am proud to have her as part of our Patient Accounts team."

Debbie Cyr, payroll and accounts payable manager at DKH, echoed those sentiments at a recent gathering to celebrate Lucier's selection as Employee of the Month. "I have worked with Deb for 27 years and I can't think of one moment in time when she was not calm and kind—she really deserves this honor," Cyr said.

When asked how she feels about receiving this award, Lucier expressed that she was very surprised and honored to be chosen. She said, "I have met so many nice people in the past 37 years, throughout the organization."

Lucier was born in Putnam, and moved to Woodstock, graduating from Woodstock Academy. She has since returned to Putnam, where she lives with her husband and her son Ryan. Her other son, Kyle, along with her daughter-in-law and two granddaughters, live just down the road. She most enjoys spending time with her beloved grandchildren and says she also likes visiting Maine, being by the water, and working in the yard.

Flexer praises House passage of bill to support veterans

HARTFORD — Sen. Mae Flexer (D-Killingly) recently praised the passage of a bill to support veteran-owned businesses in the State House of Representatives.

Senate Bill 2, which will give veteran-owned small businesses additional bidding preferences under state contracting laws, earlier passed the State Senate in April with unanimous, bipartisan support.

"I am proud to have authored this important legislation along with my Senate colleagues, which does exactly what I believe Connecticut should do—support veterans when they return home," said Flexer. "As the chair of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, I am devoted to working on bills that benefit our servicemen and women, and SB 2 is an outstanding example of how we as a state can direct our economic and tax policies to better the lives of our veterans who are also entrepreneurs. We want to keep our veterans here in Connecticut, and one way we can accomplish that is by giving business and other opportunities to those who were willing to give everything for us."

Senate Bill 2 would amend section 4-59a of the general statutes to allow the Department of Administrative Services Commissioner to give a 15 percent price preference to veteran-owned micro-businesses bidding on state contracts. Currently, the DAS Commissioner is authorized to give up to a 10 percent preference to any "micro-business", which is defined as having revenue of under $3 million in the previous year. This proposal would give such small businesses that are 51 percent owned by a veteran or veterans an extra 5 percent preference, in addition to the existing 10 percent preference, when bidding.

"As the brave men and women who answer our nation's call to duty return home they are trading in their military uniforms for the uniforms of business, commerce and job creation, said Senate President Martin M. Looney (D-New Haven). "Our proposal will make it easier for veterans to start a business and grow a business here in Connecticut and makes us the most "vetrepreneur" friendly state in the nation. As policymakers, we must to use every tool in the toolbox to improve the lives of these veterans and their families and do everything we can to assure that they earn a

THE UNION ARMY MEETS TO PREPARE FOR BATTLE

POMFRET — Members of the Union Army congregated in Pomfret recently to plan for upcoming battle of Wilson Creek and the Fall of General Lyon.

The Confederates with full Calvary and full battle charge will meet the Union at a re-enactment of the 1861 battle at 22 Harrisville Road in Pomfret on July 9 and 10. The Encampment is open to the public free of charge, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Members of the New England Brigade and Liberty Grays will participate in commemorating this historical battle of the Civil War. In addition there will be a fully staffed field hospital, and other historical aspects to the weekend.

Nine6ixteen set to play at Rectory School

POMFRET — Looking for a fun way to start the summer? Relax with friends and neighbors? Listen to good local musicians? In a family friendly atmosphere?

Look no more. Mark your calendars for Saturday, June 25, 4-7 p.m.

The local band 'Nine6ixteen' of Christ Church in Pomfret will be playing at the family friendly summer kick-off party to bring folks together, celebrate the end of school and the beginning of summer, listen to some really great local musicians, give people a chance to see the new facility on the Rectory School campus, and appreciate our Northeastern Connecticut community and its assets. Talk about a win-win event.

Suggested donation is just $20, and that includes two drinks (wine, beer, and soda), and hors d'ouvres. Kids under 18 are free. Dancing to the fantastic sounds of Nine6ixteen is not required, but you'll find it hard to resist. If you haven't heard or seen them, this is a great opportunity. If you haven't seen the Seaward Pavilion (or the view from it) on the Rectory School campus, you will be impressed.

The Pomfret Democratic Town Committee is sponsoring this event, and all are invited. Highlighting local talent, local landmarks, and bringing people together is an important element of community. Set aside a few hours, and plan to join the festivities. See Pomfret in a new light, meet new neighbors, and celebrate our town. Contact Maureen Nicholson at 860-214-9755 or e-mail pomfrettdc@yahoo.com for tickets. Tickets will be available at the door.

good living—either by being employed in a business owned by another, or by starting and maintaining their own successful business."

"Retaining and attracting veteran-owned businesses is a priority for the Senate Democrats as part of our larger commitment to those who served our nation," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Duff (D-Norwalk). "Senate Bill 2 is a continuation of a multi-year focus by the General Assembly-led by the Senate Democrats—on improving the lives of our vets, supporting them in every way possible, and helping to ensure they can earn a living. Giving veteran-owned small businesses additional preference under state contracting laws is the right thing to do."

With Senate Bill 2, Connecticut will become the 12th state in the country to provide a preference or set aside for veteran-owned businesses when it comes to state contracting. New York and Massachusetts have recently enacted such laws.

Flexer praises passage of affirmative consent law

HARTFORD — Sen. Mae Flexer (D-Killingly) on Wednesday, May 4, announced that the state Senate has given final passage to a bill that requires all public and private universities and colleges in Connecticut to establish 'affirmative consent'—or the presence of permission, rather than the absence of objections—as the threshold in sexual assault student disciplinary cases on campus.

HB 5376, An Act Concerning Affirmative Consent and Consent for the Care of College Students who are the Victims of Sexual Assault, cleared the Senate on a bipartisan and nearly unanimous 35-1 vote.

The bill passed the House of Representatives in April by a sweeping margin of 138-7. The law is nearly identical to a bill that passed the Senate with the exact same support last year, but was not taken up by the House before the end of session deadline.

The bill requires that all Connecticut colleges conform to the same definition of affirmative consent in educational programming for students related to sexual assault awareness and prevention, and requires that institutions of higher education use a "yes-means-yes" standard when investigating allegations of sexual assault—the bill does not create new criminal laws or sanctions.

"I am so proud that Connecticut is adopting affirmative consent as the standard at all colleges and universities in our state. This is something that students have asked for and advocated for, and also has the strong support of organizations that work with victims of sexual assault. Students at all colleges in our state should have the same expectation of safety, and instituting a 'yes-means-yes' policy encourages students to think about how they are gaining the consent of their partner. This will also help colleges investigating claims of sexual assault to determine whether a sexual assault has occurred," said Flexer, who is Senate vice-chair of the Higher Education and Employment Committee and whose Senate district includes UConn, Eastern Connecticut

State University and Quinebaug Valley Community College.

Affirmative consent is defined as an active, clear and voluntary agreement by a person to engage in sexual activity with another person. Sexual assault is one of the most underreported, yet highest-occurring crimes in America; it is estimated one in five college women will be sexually assaulted while in college.

"I am hopeful that implementing 'yes-means-yes' is a big step toward eliminating rape on our state's college campuses, and universities across the country as this proactive approach is adopted at more institutions of higher education," said Flexer.

The bill clarifies that a past sexual relationship between two individuals does not indicate ongoing future consent. It also requires that colleges inform students of the affirmative consent standard in their awareness programming. Existing law requires that colleges offer programming on sexual assault, stalking, and intimate partner violence.

Flexer and State Rep. Greg Haddad (D-Mansfield) co-sponsored this year's Affirmative Consent legislation.

"This is an important step forward in combatting sexual assault on college campuses. Making affirmative consent the standard recognizes that all Connecticut college students deserve the same level of protection against sexual assault," Haddad said. "I'd like to thank Sen. Flexer for all of her work on this legislation. She has been a great partner and tireless advocate on this issue."

With the Governor's support, Connecticut will be the third state in the country to enact affirmative consent legislation.

Bank supports The Last Green Valley

PUTNAM — Putnam Bank has donated $1,800 to The Last Green Valley, Inc. (TLGV) in support of its Acorn Adventures and Tastes of the Valley programs.

$1,000 will underwrite the Acorn Adventures program for kids and their families to get outside and explore. TLGV’s Lead Ranger Marcy conducts popular monthly programs in search of salamanders, eagles, trout, and other natural wonders in The Last Green Valley National Heritage Corridor. This is the second year that Putnam Bank has supported Acorn Adventures, and the program has grown tremendously with Putnam Bank’s support.

Putnam Bank has also renewed its sponsorship of TLGV’s signature fundraising event, “Tastes of the Valley,” with an $800 Gold Sponsorship. Tastes of the Valley showcases talented farms, orchards, and restaurants by pairing products grown, raised and created in The Last Green Valley’s 35 towns with a variety of local chefs. This year’s event is scheduled for Sunday, September 18th at The Mansion at Bald Hill.

Putnam Bank is a community bank dedicated to providing superior products and exceptional customer service. Putnam Bank works day-in and day-out to improve both the Bank and the communities they serve. “On behalf of Putnam Bank, we are pleased to support The Last Green Valley’s programs that provide awareness of the beautiful surroundings in which we live and work,” commented Thomas A. Borner, President and CEO of Putnam Bank.

“We are grateful to Putnam Bank for supporting Acorn Adventures and Tastes of the Valley. Putnam Bank’s continued support leads the way for others to follow, and together we can make a difference,” stated Lois Bruinooge, TLGV Executive Director. “Putnam Bank’s donations will help us care for, enjoy, and pass on The Last Green Valley National Heritage Corridor.”

Registration announced for floating workshop

NEW LONDON — The 16th Annual Thames River Basin Partnership Floating Workshop will be held on Friday, June 17.

The workshop will begin at noon and end by 5 p.m. Our featured theme for this year’s workshop is the Thames River Heritage Park. We will meet at the Fort Trumbull State Park Conference Center in New London at noon. Our formal presentation will be on the creation of the Thames River Heritage Park. As the name of the workshop implies, there is an on-water component to this workshop. This year, we will be touring various Thames River heritage sites by water taxi. Stops will include Fort Griswold in Groton and the New London Waterfront District. Additional short programs on natural resource conservation themes will be presented at each stop.

The cost of this year’s workshop is $25 and includes a light lunch. The public is invited to participate. Pre-registration is required. Space is limited. Call Jean Pillo @ 860-928-4948 for more information. To download a registration form, please visit the Eastern Connecticut Conservation District website at <http://www.ConserveCT.org/Eastern>, click on Current Projects, then click on the Thames River Basin Partnership tab.

The Thames River Basin Partnership is a coalition of organizations that share a focus on natural resource conservation in the greater Thames River watershed in eastern Connecticut and south central Massachusetts.

Flexer applauds new law to protect domestic violence victims

HARTFORD — During a bill signing ceremony at the Old Judiciary Room at the State Capitol, Gov. Dannel P. Malloy put his signature to a law co-sponsored by Senator Mae Flexer (D-Danielson) that aims to protect victims of domestic violence in the days after a temporary restraining order (TRO) is issued and before it is made permanent.

“I am proud that the State of Connecticut is finally putting the safety of the victim first in cases of domestic violence where the abuser has access to firearms,” said Flexer. “Current law is the weakest at the most dangerous moments for domestic violence victims.

This change will allow the removal of firearms from the equation during the most critical time in a victim’s life—the seven days between the filing of the restraining order and the hearing to make the order permanent.”

In May, House Bill 5054 – now known as Public Act 16-34 – passed the Senate in a 23-13 vote. In late April, it passed the House of Representatives with overwhelming support, in a vote of 104-42. Twenty-four Republican lawmakers joined the majority of their Democratic colleagues in support of the legislation.

The bill is intended to protect victims of domestic violence by prohibiting the possession of firearms by anyone who becomes the subject of an ex-parte, temporary restraining order (TRO) once notice of that order has been served.

Under the law, a person served with a TRO in a domestic violence case must surrender their firearms to police within 24 hours. It will take effect on Oct. 1, 2016.

State law currently allows for up to 14 days before any firearms can be removed, which is too lengthy a period of time, because the days following the service of a temporary restraining order and the days leading up to the first court appearance are often the most dangerous time for a victim of domestic violence.

Connecticut will join more than 20 other states—including Massachusetts, Texas, Utah and New York—which have already passed legislation authorizing or requiring the surrender of firearms at the ex parte stage of the hearing (‘ex parte’ is Latin for “one party,” referring to motions, hearings or orders granted by a judge at the request of, and for the benefit of, one party only.)

In a poll released in March, Americans for Responsible Solutions found that 86 percent of Connecticut voters support closing the loophole that allows people under temporary restraining orders to legally buy and own guns. See the poll here: <http://americansforresponsiblesolutions.org/2016/03/13/cttropol/>.

Nationally, domestic violence assaults involving firearms are 12 times more likely to result in fatal violence than those involving other weapons or bodily harm, and women in abusive relationships are five times more likely to be killed if their abuser has access to a firearm.

Connecticut averaged 14 intimate partner homicides per year from 2000 to 2012, and firearms were the most commonly used weapons to commit intimate partner homicide.

Malloy officially signed the bill on May 31.

Legislative proponents of House Bill 5054, An Act to Protect Victims of Domestic Violence, praised the Senate’s passage of the legislation. The legislation, which now heads to Governor Dannel Malloy for his signature, passed the House of Representatives last week, requires firearms owners to surrender their weapons within 24 hours of being served a temporary restraining order in a domestic abuse case. Flexer leads passage of domestic violence bill HARTFORD — State Sen. Mae Flexer (D-Killingly) recently joined her colleagues in the Senate voting to pass a bill created to reduce violence against women.

House Bill 5623, “An Act Concerning Violence Against Women,” passed the Senate in a 23-13 vote. Last week, the legislation cleared the House of Representatives with overwhelming support, in a vote of 104-42.

The bill is intended to protect victims of domestic violence by prohibiting the possession of firearms by anyone who becomes the subject of an ex-parte, temporary restraining order (TRO) once notice of that order has been served.

Under the legislation, a person served with a TRO in a domestic violence case must surrender their firearms to police within 24 hours.

State law currently allows for up to 14 days before any firearms can be removed, which Sen. Flexer and other proponents of the bill say is too lengthy a period of time, because the days following the service of a temporary restraining order and the days leading up to the first court appearance are often the most dangerous time for a victim of domestic violence.

“I am proud that the General Assembly has shown the courage to pass this law as a matter of public safety,” said Flexer, who is a member of the Judiciary Committee and one of the main proponents of the bill. “The period of time after a temporary restraining order is served is the most dangerous time in a domestic violence victim’s life, and access to firearms increases an attacker’s lethality by fivefold. More than twenty other states, including Texas, give victims this type of protection. It is time for Connecticut to put victim safety first – the right to live is more important than any other right we have.”

Connecticut will join more than 20 other states—including Massachusetts, Texas, Utah and New York—which have already passed legislation authorizing or requiring the surrender of firearms at the ex parte stage of the hearing (‘ex parte’ is Latin for “one party,” referring to motions, hearings or orders granted by a judge at the request of, and for the benefit of, one party only.)

Connecticut averaged 14 intimate partner homicides per year from 2000 to 2012, and firearms were used in 39 percent of those 188 homicides, making them the most commonly used weapons to commit intimate partner homicide.

Gov. Dannel P. Malloy, who originally proposed the bill, has vowed to sign it into law.

PUTNAM MAN TO SING NATIONAL ANTHEM ON FATHER’S DAY

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — When he was a little boy Maurice “Moe” Coderre tagged along with his father, Paul, to Fenway Park and watched Ted Williams patrol left field beneath the Green Monster. Back in the day Coderre never imagined he’d set foot on Fenway’s hallowed ground. But this Sunday, on Father’s Day, he’ll step on the same turf where his boyhood hero once trod. Coderre has been invited to sing the National Anthem before the Boston Red Sox play the Seattle Mariners on June 19.

“I’m going to be thinking about all the greats that have played on that field,” Coderre said. “And I will be walking on the same field as Ted Williams, Carl Yastrzemski, Dwight Evans — the list goes on and on and on.”

Coderre is a fixture at Putnam High School girls and boys basketball games, where he runs the scoreboard clock and sings “The Star Spangled Banner” before every tipoff. He sang the National Anthem before a Pawtucket Red Sox game last year and that inspired him to audition for his dream gig. In May Coderre penned his request and sent it to the Red Sox, along with a compact disc recording of his rendition of the Anthem.

“I sent a letter to Red Sox with my recording. Maybe a week or so later I got a note that said they had received my request and they had to review it,” said Coderre, 72, from Putnam. “They said they got thousands of requests to sing the National Anthem. I said to myself, ‘Wow, that’s a lot of competition.’”

Despite the long odds he received an e-mail from Dan Lyons, the Red Sox manager of entertainment, on June 6.

“I opened it up and he wanted to know if I wanted to sing the National Anthem on Father’s Day before the Red Sox game with the Mariners,” Coderre said. “Wow, I was floored.”

The National Anthem holds special meaning for Coderre, who served in the U.S. Air Force from 1964 to 1966 and was stationed at Rhineman Base outside Frankfurt, Germany. Coderre worked in the transportation wing of the Air Force and routed young soldiers through Germany to bases throughout Europe and Vietnam. When he sings “The Star Spangled Banner” he reflects on all the soldiers who sacrificed for their country, many of whom he sent to Southeast Asia through Rhineman Base.

“When I was there, and believe me, I saw a lot of Army guys that were being sent over to Vietnam. I used to think some of these guys are not coming home. Some are going to come home maimed, wounded — some of them are going to be lucky enough to come home,” Coderre said. “These were young men, some of them had their whole lives in front of them, but some of those lives were going to be snuffed out. Obviously, 58,000 people died in Vietnam so a lot of them did get killed. When I say the Anthem is for them, it’s really to say thank-you.”

He’s a grandfather now. Coderre and his wife, Pamela, have two grown sons and six grandchildren. When he was a little boy he sat with his dad in the stands at Fenway Park and looked down upon his heroes. This Sunday, on Father’s Day, he’ll be looking up into those stands — feet firmly planted on hallowed ground — head in the clouds.

“I’ll be on the field singing in front of 37,000 people,” Coderre said. “What a gift, on Father’s Day, to be singing the National Anthem at Fenway Park. I can’t believe it. You’ve got to pinch yourself. Is this real?”

Danielson tops Willimantic in home opener

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER SPORTS EDITOR

DAYVILLE — Danielson American Legion coach Jonathan Krot utilized small ball to keep Willimantic on it toes Tuesday in the Zone 6 home opener — using a pair of bunt singles to ignite a six-run second-inning rally that sparked Danielson to an 11-3 victory at Owen Bell Park. Opponents can expect more of the same this season.

“We’re definitely going to play to that a little bit. We’ve got to play team baseball. It doesn’t matter who in the order is up, hey, if we’ve got to move some guys in scoring position, we’re not going to be a team that’s going to sit around here and hit a lot of doubles and hit a lot of home runs,” Krot said. “So we’ve got to get guys in scoring position as much as we can. And one through nine in our batting order has to be able to bunt, has to do the small things that are going to make this successful.”

Trailing 3-1 going into the bottom of the second inning, Danielson used consecutive bunt singles from Eli Majek and Zach Gagnon to load the bases, Ian Burgess then scored on wild pitch, Nick Miner singled home one run, Evan Clark plated a run with a sacrifice fly, Derek Grzysiewicz singled home a run, and Ben Desaulnier’s sacrifice fly plated another run as Danielson added six runs and led 7-3 after two innings.

Danielson’s Drew Daley picked up the complete-game victory, allowing three runs in the first inning on a pair of bloop singles and a soft grounder through a vacated hole at second. Although Daley gave up four hits and three runs in the top of the first inning, he did not allow a hit over the last six innings, striking out four and walking none over seven innings. Coach Krot said Daley settled down.

“I don’t know if it was a little lack of focus or first-time jitters, they got to him a little bit,” Krot said. “What we did and what Drew did, is we settled in after that. We gave up three runs, we stayed within our plan. We got a run in the first inning and we kind of kept tacking on and Drew stayed with his plan pitching-wise and did a much better job and settled in for us and did great for us.”

Danielson leadoff hitter Nick Miner finished 3-for-4 with three runs and one RBI. Grzysiewicz finished 4-for-4 with a double and three RBIs. Gagnon went 3-for-4 with one RBI. Danielson committed just one error and was opportunistic on the bases and at the plate. The coach likely hopes small ball leads to big wins this summer and likes the energy he’s seen from his team early on.

“We’ve played a number of non-Zone games early and I think we’re playing very good right now,” Krot said. “I love this team. I love the way they’re playing. The question is ‘Can we keep doing it every single day?’ And that’s the big thing because it is a grind. We’ve got to come mentally prepared, with energy — because we only get to do it 27, 28 times a year. And we’ve got to make sure that we’re having energy and excitement every single day we get out here. But this is a great group of kids and I love coaching them.”

Tri-Town Legion has deep pitching staff

Tri-Town’s Chuck Innes pitches against New London last Sunday in Thompson.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER SPORTS EDITOR

THOMPSON — Although Tri-Town’s pitching didn’t come through in a 14-9 loss in nine innings to New

London last Sunday in the American Legion Senior Division Zone 6 home opener at Tourtellotte Memorial’s baseball field, coach John Foucault has a deep rotation and expects pitching to be his team’s strength this summer.

“It’s going to work very well for us, pitching’s everything,” Foucault said. “This is the team I’ve wanted to coach since last year. I know what we have.”

The pitching staff includes Ryan Gadoury, Chuck Innes, Alex Angelo, Nick Foucault, Jared Durand, Kyle Tyler, Jake Dutcher, and Josh Allard.

Allard was nursing a sore shoulder in the home opener, he jammed it sliding in Tri-Town’s Zone 6 road opener at New London on June 10. Nick Foucault has a tired arm from his recently concluded season with Putnam High School but is expected to be back to full strength soon.

Allard and Zach Cutler, who is rehabbing a strained hamstring, are also key to Tri-Town’s success. Both are good defensive outfielders and were on the shelf for the home opener against New London.

“Not everybody’s healthy,” Foucault said. “So my outfield is where I’m lacking right now, they’re days away from coming in.”

Tri-Town has several experienced players who graduated from high school in 2015 including Gadoury, Durand, catcher Jacob Guertin, Allard, and Tyler. Foucault expects his veterans to be integral to Tri-Town’s fortunes.

“They seem to be relaxed, it’s their last year,” coach Foucault said. “I’m very positive, the goal is to make the state tournament.”

Gadoury took the loss against New London on June 12, going five innings, allowing nine hits and nine runs, striking out three, walking six, and hitting one batter.

Innes pitched three-plus innings, allowing three runs on three hits, striking out three and walking four. Angelo finished up, going one inning, allowing two runs on one hit and striking out one. Foucault went 3-for-4 with two walks and two RBIs. Innes went 3-for-5 with a walk and one RBI.

Pieter Khoury pitched five and two-thirds innings to get the win for New London, striking out four, walking six, hitting one batter, and allowing four runs and five hits. Cooper Robinson went 4-for-6 for New London, with two doubles, two triples, and two RBIs. Tri-Town is next scheduled to play at Norwich on Friday, June 17.

TRI-TOWN 7, NORWICH 6

NORWICH — Jacob Guertin went 3-for-4 with a double and three RBIs to lead Tri-Town past Norwich on Tuesday, June 14, at Dickenman Field. For Tri-Town, Alex Angelo went 2-for-5, Kyle Tyler went 2-for-4, Ryan Gadoury finished 2-for-2 with one RBI, and Josh

Allard doubled and drove home two runs. Jake Dutcher went six and one-third innings to get the win, striking out one, walking one, and scattering nine hits.

NEW LONDON 13, TRI-TOWN 2

NEW LONDON — Tri-Town fell to London in the opening game of a doubleheader at Sal Amanti Field on June 10. Josh Allard took the loss, going two and two-thirds innings, striking out one, walking four, allowing nine runs on six hits. Tri-Town’s Chuck Innes went 2-for-3 with one RBI and Kyle Tyler doubled and drove home one run.

NEW LONDON 9, TRI-TOWN 0

NEW LONDON — Trevor Bolduc went seven innings to get the complete-game win, striking out eight, walking none, and allowing just three hits. Jake Dutcher took the loss, going four and one-third innings, striking out four, walking three, and allowing six hits.

Second row: Delpha Very, Putnam Rotary Club president and Hannah Desrosiers. Back row: PSA’s Owen Quantek receiving for Yunus Demirkol.

Rotary Club honors local valedictorians, salutatorians

PUTNAM — For more than 30 years, the Putnam Rotary Club has honored the valedictorian and salutatorian students from the area.

Jay Byrnes, who has been chairman of the committee for almost 30 years, called the event a “wonderful tradition for our club recognizing some of the most promising young adults of our area. Maybe there are even some future Rotarians in there!”

The committee each year contacts the local high schools, both public and private, for their valedictorian and salutatorian students. Byrnes said the committee has even had occasions where two students were in a statistical tie on their GPA resulting in three students from one senior class being honored.

This year, he said, the Putnam Science Academy’s one graduating senior was its valedictorian.

The honored students are invited to a luncheon meeting of the Putnam Rotary Club to share their future plans while being lauded for their academic achievements, Brynes said. In addition, The Byrnes Agency provides the plaques to be presented at the luncheon.

This year the following students were honored:

- Marianapolis

Preparatory School: Sarah Cavar, valedictorian; Hannah Listerud, salutatorian.

- Putnam High School: Hannah Desrosiers, valedictorian; Alyssa Saxton, salutatorian.

- Putnam Science Academy: Yunus Demirkol, valedictorian.

- Tourtellotte Memorial High School: Michaela Johnson, valedictorian; Christina Kopacz, salutatorian.

- Woodstock Academy: Kara Marie Heilemann, valedictorian; Peixin Yu, salutatorian.

Pomfret Senior Association announces whale watch trip

POMFRET — The Pomfret Senior Association will be heading to Plymouth, Mass., on Wednesday, July 13, for their annual whale watch.

The group gathers at the Pomfret Senior Center to carpool, leaving Pomfret at 10:30 a.m. The ship sails out of Plymouth at 2 p.m. and returns at 6 p.m. Participants will then have two hours for dinner in the area. There are many good restaurants within a short walking distance of the docks, and plenty with good seafood. This has been a very successful trip for many years and we have never been disappointed. Mark your calendar and make your reservation. Call Gail to RSVP at 860-974-0426 by July 1. Price is $28. The trip is open to all whale lovers of any age.

What are you doing for lunch the first Monday of each Month?

The Pomfret Senior Association invites all seniors in Pomfret and the surrounding area to join us. We are a group of active, enthusiastic, and dedicated seniors that have been meeting monthly for 24 years, socializing, fund raising and taking daytrips together. We are a vital support network for each other. Stop by the Pomfret Senior Center on the first Monday of each month and check us out.

The Pomfret Community Senior Center is located at 207 Mashamoquet Road (Route 44). All seniors are welcome to join and need not be a resident of Pomfret. Mark your calendar for the next meeting on Monday, July 11 (the 4th is a holiday) from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. with lunch at noon. Call Gail with any questions at 860-974-0426. Stop by the Pomfret Community Senior Center on the first Monday of each month and see what’s new!

On Saturday, June 4, TLGV led a paddle on the newly designated Shetucket River National Water Trail as part of Connecticut's Trails Day Celebration.

National recognition for the Shetucket River Water Trail

The Last Green Valley, Inc. (TLGV) is pleased to announce a major expansion of nationally-acclaimed water trails in the region. U.S. Secretary of the Interior Sally Jewell and National Park Service Director Jonathan B. Jarvis announced on June 3 that the 20-mile Shetucket River Water Trail has been designated as one of 3 new National Recreation Water Trails in the country.

"By designating these new National Trails, we recognize the efforts of local communities to provide outdoor recreational opportunities that can be enjoyed by everyone," said Jewell. "Our world-class network of national trails provides easily accessible places to enjoy exercise and connect with nature in both urban and rural areas while also boosting tourism and supporting economic opportunities in local communities across the country."

This designation was made possible due to the hard work of many partners and volunteers, including the Rivers and Trails Program of the National Park Service, CT Department of Energy and Environmental Protection, Towns of Windham, Sprague, and Norwich, Norwich Public Utilities, Wheelabrator Technologies, Friends of Shetucket River Valley, Willimantic Whitewater Partnership, Willimantic River Alliance, teachers and students from Harvard Ellis Technical High School, and volunteers from TLGV's Water Trails Committee. TLGV is working on informational kiosks and a paddle guide for the Shetucket River that will be released later this summer.

The major tributaries of the Shetucket River, the Quinebaug River to the east and Willimantic River to the west, have previously been designated National Recreation Water Trails. With the designation of the Shetucket River, we now have 87 miles of National Recreation Water Trail in The Last Green Valley.

To learn more about The Last Green Valley, please visit www.thelastgreenvalley.org or follow us on Facebook. The Last Green Valley is a National Heritage Corridor - the last stretch of dark night sky in the coastal sprawl between Boston and Washington, D.C. The Last Green Valley works for you in the National Heritage Corridor. We help you to care for it, enjoy it and pass it on!
