A Shabbat of History and Hope:

Join us on Friday, November 13 for a very special Shabbat experience celebrating the progress of the Civil Rights Movement and recommitting ourselves to the work of equality and dignity for all people.

The evening begins at 6:00 pm with Shabbat worship in the sanctuary. The service, led by Rabbi Joel and songleader Nick May, will include special songs and readings on the themes of civil rights and equality.

Immediately following worship and a brief oneg, the congregation is encouraged to join Rabbi Joel at the Gulf Power building for the world premiere of the documentary, "Who Killed Emmett Till." Part of the FooFoo Fest, this powerful documentary tells the powerful and tragic story of a 1955 murder which became one of the pivotal moments of the American Civil Rights movement.

The documentary explores not only the murder and climate in which it took place, but also the efforts by Emmett Till's family to ensure that their son's death not be forgotten and that injustice not go unchallenged.

Following the screening, Rabbi Joel and other community leaders will participate in a panel discussion on the film, the state of race relations, and the continuing struggle for civil rights.

Admission to the film is free, but space is limited. Please secure your tickets in advance by visiting:

From the Rabbi

A Family of Friends

Over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, AAA estimates that close to fifty million people will hit the nation's highways, rails, and airports, traveling at least 50 miles in order to spend the holiday with family. Others - many times the figure cited by AAA - will share turkey and stuffing with relatives who live only a few miles across town or even just down the street. While most Americans will celebrate Thanksgiving with those to whom they are bound by blood or marriage, others, as a result of choice or circumstance, will spend the holiday apart from their relatives. But that does not mean their tables will be empty. Rather in place of extended family, many will fill their dining room with a "family of friends."

For many members of the congregation, that family of friends is rooted in our Temple community. And so while Thanksgiving is not technically a Jewish holiday, it is an opportunity to pause and reflect upon how much the connections made in our local Jewish community mean and bring to our lives.

My family and I are among those who live a distance from relatives and for whom traveling for holidays and other special occasions is not always possible. Despite that, in the time we have lived in Pensacola we have never felt alone. Andrea and I are so grateful for the way the Temple community has opened its homes and its hearts to our family. As it is for so many others, Temple Beth El is the "family of friends" with whom we share holidays and life's milestones.

In recent months Temple Beth El has welcomed a large number of new families into our community. We are excited to have them as part of our Temple family.

Some of our new members have relatives in Pensacola; a few even grew up at Temple Beth El and are joining now with their own children. Others, however, are new to the area and may not yet have a local "family of friends" with whom to share. If you are hosting a Thanksgiving celebration and are able to welcome a Temple member or family to your holiday table, please contact me at 850-438-3321 or by e-mail at: rabbi@templebethelopensacola.org. Similarly, if you are searching for a group with whom to share the holiday please let me know as soon as possible. We will do our best to match hosts and guests.

As we approach the Thanksgiving holiday, let us pause to appreciate the relationships we share with family and with friends who are like family. May this sense of gratitude inspire us to keep our hearts open so that our "family" like our community may continue to grow and in so doing, grow ever stronger.

Rabbi Joel

"...let us pause to appreciate the relationships we share with family and with friends who are like family."

Shabbat Worship Survival Guide

Do you sometimes feel lost at services? Not sure when to stand up, sit down, or turn the page? Want to better understand the main structure of Friday night services?

Join Rabbi Joel on Thursday, December 3 at 5:30 for a special adult learning designed to help participants feel more comfortable during Shabbat worship. In addition to covering the "mechanics" of prayer Rabbi Joel will explain the main sections that make up Shabbat worship. A CD with Temple Beth El's most commonly used melodies will also be distributed to class participants.

For more information on this and other adult learning opportunities, please contact Rabbi Joel at rabbi@templebethelopensacola.org.

From the President

The Pensacola Interstate Fair is packing up to leave town. Oh no!! Some of you missed the rides and entertainment! Not to worry.....Temple Beth El is here to save the day. Soon you'll be able to buy raffle tickets for your chance to be one of the first to ride our brand new elevator! Watch for upcoming details regarding raffle ticket sales for an elevator ride during a Wine, Juice and Cheese Reception just prior to a Friday shabbat service. You and your family will not want to miss this exciting opportunity!

On a more serious note, (but the raffle tickets for the first elevator ride IS serious) the elevator is just one of several improvements making our Temple more accessible. For those who are unable or find climbing stairs just too challenging, the elevator will be a welcome relief for accessing the sanctuary and other areas of our newly renovated facility. Additional lighting in the sanctuary will soon allow for easier reading during evening services. Improvements to our sound system and new microphones provide increased volume and more clarity for all. Our lower extension to the bimah and angled pews simply make for a warmer, more intimate feel during services. These additions, along with the multiple renovations, new office and social spaces and overall beautification will make for a warm, welcoming and simply wonderful place to be.

As we celebrate Thanksgiving, we must be mindful of our many blessings. Most of us tend to take so much for granted every day. I am most grateful for my family, my friends and our Temple Beth El. Please remember to join our friends and neighbors at the Interfaith Thanksgiving Service which will be held this year at Christ Church at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday November 24th.

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom, Everybody!! A big thank you to Rabbi Joel for entertaining and enlightening us at our well-attended October luncheon with his engaging talk about Menschen in the Mob. His knowledge of EVERYTHING never ceases to amaze!

And this month's luncheon, which will be at Ever'man's, will be another one of my favorite subjects - food. Come and enjoy a Jewish cooking lesson...Lori Rippes will show us how to make Challah...and a healthy lunch. Hey, my cooking skills can use all the help they can get, so I am always ready for a lesson (ok, you may have to show me where my kitchen is, but I'm willing to learn...). Watch your emails for more information.

I know all of us have very busy lives, but I am asking you all not to forget your Temple life. Not only Sisterhood, but Shabbat worship, Religion School, Social Action....or any of the many other activities we offer. When I moved here eight years ago, my life consisted of, well, of staying home and waiting for my husband to come back from work. Then I found Temple Beth El, and my life was suddenly full of friends (who soon became family to me), and spirituality, and a sense of belonging. If you just stick one tiny toe in the stream of our Beth El community, your whole body will come alive with satisfaction and fulfillment. Rabbi Joel, Janet Kahn (our Temple President), Steve Eilen (our Brotherhood President), and Marty and I are here for all of you...use us as your springboard to peace and community.

So come to our monthly luncheons, or to our Sisterhood Shabbat in January, or bingo night, or...anything that interests you. Our upcoming events are listed in the column next to this article, so just pick one and we will welcome you with open arms!! (No, I'm not going to break into a chorus of "We are the World", although I have been known to start performing when the refrigerator door opens and the light goes on!). If you haven't already done so, pay your dues and start enjoying all the benefits of being a Sister.

And remember,
Life is a Cabaret

Educator's Message: The Study of Torah Leads to Action

In a listing of important Mitzvot (Jewish responsibilities) Jewish tradition teaches, "The study of Torah is equal to them all because it leads to them all." In other words, the act of immersing ourselves in sacred texts is so empowering, it will lead us to take action.

On Sunday, November 15, 2016 we will have the opportunity for all ages to engage in Jewish learning with 500 Jewish communities around the world. For the fourth year in a row, the Pensacola Jewish Federation is sponsoring the Global Day of Jewish Learning. The program will be held at Temple Beth El and is free and open to the community. Details will be announced.

This year's theme is "Love: Devotion, Desire and Deception." Using our sacred texts, we will discuss several different examples of relationships. As Global Day founder Rabbi Adin Even-Israel Steinsaltz explains, "The men and women of the Scriptures are more than mere life portraits: they continue to live and function long after their deaths in this world. These are not ordinary historical figures but archetypes; as such, their lives are carried on and continue not only in literature and philosophy but in the lives of their descendants throughout the generations." He went on to say, "In a sense, they continue to live and also to evolve throughout Jewish history, in its psychic experiences, and as a part of the collective personality of the Jewish nation."

We hope you will join us for this opportunity of community learning and engagement!

Andrea

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

My mother-in-law taught me how to make cinnamon rolls. She made them effortlessly and though I would like to think her recipe made by my hands is just as delicious, I know that they will never have the subtle soft texture of hers nor the wonderful first bite taste just warm from the oven. The cinnamon roll lesson came fairly early in our marriage. And I have had 38 years to perfect it. And though I have made my own changes over the years so as to put my personal mark on her recipe, they still just don't compare.

As most of you know, my mother-in-law passed away last month. She was 92 years old when she died. When I tell people that, they all remark that she had such a long life. And that is true. By comparison my own parents only lived into their very early 70's. But Margie was always so full of life, that it is hard to imagine that she wasn't able to surmount this final little health battle. She always told us, "you can't keep these Irish down" and she would always rebound, but sadly not this time. Logan and I were lucky enough to be with her in her final days. And we even shared a few laughs including the infamous quote about the Irish. One of her last food requests in addition to a hamburger with onions, was a Cinnabon cinnamon roll. Even she knew that would be second-rate compared to hers, but a lot quicker to come by. The recipe I am sharing this month is for you bread bakers out there. Interestingly it is written on the inside cover of a cookbook from her collection that she gave to me: Jewish Cookery by Leah Leonard. And this is a perfect resting place for her recipe; a country recipe from a country girl given to her Jewish daughter-in-law in a classic Jewish cookbook. I hope she is smiling when I start softening the yeast.

Margie's Delicious Cinnamon

Rolls
Dough:
1/2 c. milk
1/2 c. sugar
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 margarine or butter
1/2 c. warm water
2 pkgs yeast
2 eggs
4 1/2 c. flour

Dissolve yeast in 1/2 c. warm water with 1 tsp. of sugar.
Scald milk. Add sugar, salt. Margarine or butter to warm milk. Add water and eggs plus 1 c. flour. Then add yeast mixture. Continue adding flour until smooth and elastic. Beat well after each addition. Cover dough and let rise till doubled, about 1 hour.

To make the rolls:
Turn dough out on a floured surface.

Roll out to an oblong about 1/2 " thick that measures approximately 12 x 24. Spread with 1/2 stick of melted butter. Cover well with cinnamon, brown sugar and white sugar. (sorry, no measurements here-make yourself happy!) Roll lengthwise and pinch shut along long edge. Cut about 1" thick slices. In the bottom of a 13 x 9 inch baking dish, melt 1 stick butter. Stir in 1/2 c. sugar and 1/2 c. brown sugar. Spread evenly in bottom of pan. Add sliced cinnamon rolls to pan, cut side up. Cover and let rise 45 minutes-1 hour until doubled. Bake at 350 degrees until golden, about 25 minutes. Remove from oven and turn out from pan so that topping is still warm.

From Tal.....

Dear Community,

As you know, Israel, my home has faced a wave of increasing terror attacks in the last month. I can't describe in words, the feeling to be far away and to hear my friends and family describing the fear and the anxiety they feel. You are very welcome to share with me your thoughts, questions and feelings. I'm here for you!

I also want to thank you all for coming to the "Café Israel" and for being so supportive. It means so much to me! I hope that the following events of "Café Israel" (second Monday each month) will discuss the positive things in Israel. My country is so much more than wars and threats, and I want people to know it!

On November 1st, the PJF will do a memorial program for Yitzhak Rabin. Twenty years have passed since the assassination of the Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. In my opinion, it is so important to remember the murder and protecting our democratic values, whether in Israel or whether the United States! Don't miss it!

Please feel free to contact me and invite me to meet you. I want to get to know as many families that I can and be involved in your life.

I wish all of us peaceful days in which love and light will overcome darkness and hatred.
