LEARNING WITHOUT BOUNDARIES

Common areas. Makerspaces. Libraries and hallways. Today's students are learning together, working in groups and interacting with instructors. New tools and teaching methods enable learning to happen anywhere, at any time. For campuses to evolve, they must encourage and support a community of learning through meaningful connections between students, faculty, and administrators. HON's furniture is designed to support the shift in how people learn and foster connections that help students, faculty, and administrators succeed.

ATTENTION, PLEASE

Two critical factors affecting a student's learning are focus and engagement. In lecture settings where students are typically more passive participants, HON furniture delivers the comfort students need, enables focus, and supports multiple learning styles. Casters quickly transform a space from attentive to collaborative. Stacking chairs and nesting tables maximize footprints and support varying class sizes and layouts. HON gives educators the versatility and comfort needed to keep students alert and involved.

GROUP CLASSROOMS

AMP UP THE ENTHUSIASM

As instructors evolve their teaching techniques to prepare the next generation for careers, the classroom has adapted to reflect real world settings. Active learning spaces move beyond conventional in favor of a dynamic, interactive style that teaches the skills that employers value. Mobile whiteboards, integrated technology, and versatile tables work together to support group participation, technology presentations and hands-on instruction.

MAKE WAY FOR MAKING

Learning through the process of making puts an emphasis on tinkering over lecturing. Today's students are getting more real-world experience creating solutions, exploring new ideas and deconstructing things in makerspaces. Supporting these kinetic hands-on activities requires a different set of tools, such as adaptable storage, tables and mobile whiteboards that bring students closer to their work. HON takes pride in creating practical makerspaces that prepare our next generation of workers.

A photograph of a modern library interior. The space is multi-level, featuring a mezzanine level with yellow chairs and tables. The ground floor has a wooden floor, white walls, and a large staircase. There are several tables and chairs, including blue armchairs and white tables with green chairs. Bookshelves are visible on the walls, and a large circular light fixture hangs from the ceiling. A purple diamond shape is overlaid on the left side of the image, containing the word "LIBRARIES".

LIBRARIES

GO AHEAD, TALK IN THE LIBRARY

Shhhh! Don't tell this generation that libraries are solely places for quiet reflection and whispering. Study breaks between classes. Evening collaborative work and social interaction. Individual study to prepare for exams. Libraries now support a variety of activities throughout the day with spaces ranging from comfy lounges to individual workstations to group settings. This requires integrated power for charging devices, presentation aids to transfer knowledge, and most importantly, arrangements that help students accomplish more, alone and together.

MEDIA LABS

JOIN THE MOVEMENT

The movement toward multi-functional computer labs requires a shift in furniture selection. Gone are the days of long rows of tables supporting monitors. Adapting to this new age of technology integration, campuses are now supporting a variety of learning styles, including individual focus, peer-to-peer learning, group work and guided instruction. With students spending extended time in media labs, institutions are also considering how students can be more active during computer work to improve their comfort, focus and well-being.

COMMONS

THE RHYTHM OF LEARNING

Studies show that nearly 90% of learning happens outside the classroom, making common areas, hallways, and other gathering places vital to the learning process. Comprised of change-of-pace lounges, varying-height tables, chairs and stools, these spaces provide a comfortable place for people to put their feet up, huddle up and power up. HON's versatile collection of commons furniture is designed to help students and faculty meet, focus, relax and accomplish more.

DINING HALLS

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Meals are no longer the only thing served in dining halls. For every entrée ordered, there's a side of group study and collaboration. These magnetic areas attract students and faculty with a mix of table settings that can be pulled together to support a variety of interpersonal studies. Understanding that durability and cleanliness are critical, HON places an emphasis on scratch-, stain-, and spill-resistant laminate finishes and seating with durable fabric selections and wipeout areas that can be easily cleaned. Whether grabbing a bite or getting the group together, cafés and dining halls are becoming the most popular campus hot spots.

MORE PRODUCTIVE OFFICE HOURS

A well-designed faculty space supports an instructor's need to focus on private work, as well as meet with students and colleagues. This requires desks that accommodate any layout and give guests the worksurface space they need to communicate effectively. Comfortable guest and task seating welcome visitors and put everyone at ease. Because office space is at a premium, vertical storage solutions help maximize footprints. With HON, you can create a space that fits your campus, culture and personal workstyle.

HARDER WORKING SPACES

Administrative areas are the information center of a campus. These dynamic individual and teaming spaces support the day-to-day business of a university, which requires a lot of organization and easy access to active and archival storage. Pull up a chair. Have a discussion over a shared worksurface. Instantly gain access to the files needed to resolve an issue. That's how a well-run administrative area stays ahead of the curve.

AT A GLANCE

LEARNING COLLECTIONS

HON saw today's evolved learning space coming years before it arrived. We did it by understanding the most effective teaching methods, then investigating how smarter spaces could enhance learning. So we designed affordable chairs, tables, lounge, desk and storage collections that were more in tune with both teacher and student needs. That provided great versatility and encouraged stronger collaboration. When your facilities can do all that, you'll achieve a higher level of learning.
