"The Ironslok helped us solve both the problems of accessibility and safety by giving us a secure way of mounting a set of "irons" directly next to a jump seat in the cab of ladder 7.... I would recommend PAC's Ironslok mounting system to other fire companies looking for a safe, effective and secure way to mount their "irons"."

TESTING AND CERTIFICATION

A variety of PAC products are tested and certified to meet and exceed the NFPA 1901 9G impact standard.

PAC's NFPA Compliant products have been Tested and certified at the Akron Rubber Development Laboratory, Akron, Ohio.

For a list of our 9G Certified Products or a copy of PAC's Certificate of Compliance, please contact us at 888-514-0083.

MILITARY GRADE B SHOCK TESTING

To service the equipment mounting needs of the United States Military, it was necessary for PAC to submit the products under consideration to a very demanding testing scenario. As you might expect, the environments that the U.S. Military operates within, presents operational demands like no other industry. PAC subjected many of their products (as specified) to a rigorous and high intensity set of Shock Test requirements. The performance of these products would have to be proven under shock impacts ranging from a low end standard of 100 G-Forces, to in excess of 150 G's. These testing requirements establish the benchmark for specified usage of our products in applications ranging from Damage Control Stations onboard Aircraft Carriers and Destroyers, to tool mounting applications on Armored Personnel Carriers and Humvees. In every sequence, PAC products met or exceeded these performance standards. As a result, PAC has now become the "go to" company regarding tool and equipment mounting for the U.S. Military.
