

MOMENTS 2016 THAT MATTER

Given the rapid pace of change in today's world and especially in healthcare, taking a moment to pause and reflect seems like a luxury. Brief by definition, a moment can be the singular most important period of time in someone's life. At Doylestown Health, we are honored to be a part of moments that matter at every stage of life and health.

In this issue, we are proud to feature stories about Doylestown Health's Richard A. Reif Heart Institute that bring into sharper focus the moments that have mattered most to Marv and Dee Ann Woodall, Steve Hirt, and Bob Ervin in their experiences with Doylestown Health. As grateful patients of the nationally-recognized Richard A. Reif Heart Institute, their personal connections to the physicians, associates, and care teams are similar to the stories many of you have shared from across our health system.

Like you, they have generously shared their time, talent, and treasure in ways that allow us to bring the most sophisticated technology, top physician expertise, and compassionate care services to the Doylestown community and beyond.

Philanthropic support has enabled us to make great strides in a number of areas, including emergency care, oncology, orthopedics, maternity, pediatrics, diagnostic imaging, stroke and cardiac care, and vascular surgery. Furthermore, these advances illustrate the importance of the multidisciplinary approach at Doylestown Health. Because of the collaborative and innovative spirit of our physicians and staff, and the resources provided by philanthropy, we are able to accomplish our mission and continue to offer the highest quality healthcare right here in our own community.

On behalf of our patients, our community and the entire Doylestown Health family, please accept my deepest thanks for your support and trust in us for the moments when it matters most.

Sincerely,

James L. Brexler
President and CEO
Doylestown Health

While the founders of the Village Improvement Association of Doylestown (VIA) were extremely forward-thinking, it's unlikely that they could have imagined the impact that their efforts have made in improving the health and well-being of our community.

Your support allows us to honor their intent to bring the highest-quality healthcare to our friends, neighbors, and colleagues right here in Doylestown—and beyond. In today's ever-changing healthcare landscape, maintaining an independent healthcare system requires extraordinary resources. I am proud that across Doylestown Health we are fortunate to have the highest-caliber facilities, leadership, physicians, associates, and support services.

Because of your generosity, we are able to move ahead with ambitious plans and projects that will have an even deeper impact on the health and well-being of our families, friends, and neighbors in the moments that matter.

Thank you for all that you do to support a bright future for Doylestown Health.

In gratitude,

LEADERS WITH HEART

MARV AND DEE ANN WOODALL

LEADERS. VOLUNTEERS. SUPPORTERS. INNOVATORS. For more than 30 years, Marv and Dee Ann Woodall have applied their personal and professional experiences to advancing life-saving technologies and life-changing opportunities at Doylestown Health. Jim Brexler, President and CEO, recently spoke with them about their continued involvement.

Q Marv and Dee Ann, what drew each of you to become so involved at Doylestown Health?

A Dee Ann: I learned about the Village Improvement Association (VIA) when we first moved to Doylestown in 1985. Although I never expected to take an active role, I was impressed by their focus on our community and providing high quality and advanced healthcare services right here in Doylestown, so people wouldn't have to travel to get the care they needed. I believed in the importance of that and over the years devoted my volunteer time to helping make that happen in various ways.

Marv: My career was spent in the pharmaceutical and medical device industry, with Johnson & Johnson companies, where I worked for 37 years. As the President of J&J's Interventional Systems (JJIS), I led our team that developed one of the most significant medical devices in recent history called balloon-expandable stents. Today, stents are essential in life-saving procedures in cardiac care and endovascular therapies to open blocked arteries. I have great interest in advanced technologies here at Doylestown Hospital, most notably in the specialties of interventional cardiology, plus vascular and heart procedures.

Q Marv, you helped pioneer the Transcatheter Aortic Valve Replacement (TAVR) procedure, which is now available at Doylestown Health's Richard A. Reif Heart Institute. How significant is it that TAVR is saving lives right here in our community?

A Over the past many decades, I have been fortunate to work with so many dedicated colleagues, devoted physicians and nursing leadership to collaborate in the development of such transformational medical devices like stents and TAVR, which is an analogue of the original balloon-expandable stent. Our awesome TAVR team at Doylestown Hospital implemented this breakthrough, minimally invasive, procedure to replace a stenotic aortic valve, without the need for open heart surgery at the Heart Institute. To date, we have truly outstanding patient outcomes; and we've received national recognition as a leading heart care hospital in the U.S. The TAVR program here is very impressive—and extremely rare—for a community

“The Woodalls’ support of Doylestown Hospital’s advanced cardiac technology and care has created increased demand for these services. As a direct result, we are now planning a major expansion of our Heart Institute, to include state-of-the-art surgical facilities and an environment for enhanced patient comfort.”

JIM BREXLER

hospital to have this level of sophistication. Normally, this technology gets adopted only at academic centers and larger hospitals. We're providing world-class care right here in Doylestown.

Q The minimally invasive, interventional techniques you worked on are also being used to treat stroke patients here at Doylestown Hospital.

A Marv: Yes, interventional cardiologists at the Heart Institute use the interventional catheterization technologies to remove clots from the brain in stroke patients for whom technique and speed are critical. Patients are going from being paralyzed, unable to speak or otherwise debilitated to being fully functional shortly after their blood clot is removed. It's wonderful how these medical device innovations are saving lives and restoring functionality for our patients right here in Doylestown.

Dee Ann: That we offer this at Doylestown Hospital is very important. People can be treated immediately. If they had to be flown all the way to a city hospital, time would be lost, and they might not do as well.

Q Bringing leading-edge technology to the community, both in TAVR and other capabilities we've implemented, requires significant investment from community and philanthropic partners. Why did you feel that Doylestown Health was worthy of your investment?

A Marv: We think carefully about what to support and need to know that an organization can deliver on quality. When we were approached to help create the Chest Pain Center here at Doylestown Hospital, I said I would be willing to do it if the hospital was willing to get the certification first. That was essential to me as a donor. My request triggered a labor-intensive 3,000-page certification process. It focused on the "door-to-balloon" time—how fast a patient with chest pain can move from the emergency room to the catheterization lab for a stent procedure to correct a blood flow or blockage problem. They got the certification and are doing these procedures as well as any hospital I know. In fact, Doylestown Hospital's average door-to-balloon time is 57 minutes; significantly better than the national average of 90 minutes. The clinical outcomes have been excellent. Yes, we are grateful for the opportunity to have supported the Chest Pain Center several years ago.

Q You've also invested in continuing education for staff here at Doylestown Hospital. Why did you choose to do this?

A Dee Ann: We have always believed that education is essential. With Marv's support, I founded the VIA Women's Scholarship Fund many years ago. Recently we invested in the BSN 2020 initiative that provides funding for nurses to obtain a Bachelor of Science degree. The goal is for 80 percent of Doylestown Hospital nurses to earn advanced degrees by 2020. I've been a Doylestown Hospital patient and experienced firsthand how knowledge translates into exceptional care. The nurses here are extremely capable. They talk to you, listen and are very caring. It makes a difference.

Marv: Supporting BSN 2020 and other educational initiatives align with my interest in bringing advanced technology to the hospital. We can have all the technology we want here, but unless we have educated practitioners to implement it, the chances of success are minimized. So, while we support the formal education process for nurses, we also support practical knowledge from a medical technology standpoint. That means making it possible for staff members to travel to educational conferences and meetings where they can listen to enlightening scientific presentations about heart disease or other conditions. They learn what's new, what works and what doesn't work. Then they bring their new knowledge back to Doylestown Health, so we are always on the leading edge of the latest medical advances.

Q Dee Ann, from your perspective, how do the founding principles of the VIA continue to influence Doylestown Health—in particular as they relate to Doylestown Hospital?

A The volunteers have always been determined to keep Doylestown Hospital an independent community hospital. We want to remain independent. That independence, combined with our smaller size, is an advantage because we can make decisions and adopt new methods quickly. We want to hold on to that. It's part of fulfilling our commitment to providing the quality healthcare people need right here at home.

Q So, Marv and Dee Ann, have you even contemplated retirement?

A Dee Ann: Retirement is the only thing I know of that Marvin has ever failed to accomplish!

Marv: We plan to stay engaged and to enjoy living in this community. It's a wonderful place for people of all ages. The schools are excellent and the healthcare system is superb. As we get older, we appreciate the Pine Run Retirement Community and the continuum of care that the VIA has created. We're never leaving here.

"It's wonderful how these medical device innovations are saving lives and restoring functionality for our patients right here in Doylestown."

A GRATEFUL GENTLEMAN

BOB ERVIN

AT 92, BOB ERVIN IS A GENTLEMAN who genuinely appreciates a job well done. After undergoing Transcatheter Aortic Valve Replacement (TAVR) at Doylestown Health's Richard A. Reif Heart Institute, he recognized the people and organization who cared for him so well.

Fans of the TV series “Mad Men” are familiar with the heyday of the advertising business. Bob Ervin lived it as an executive with N.W. Ayer, a worldwide ad agency headquartered in Manhattan. His career taught him the power of communication and the value of strategic partnerships. Later in life, as a trustee for hospitals and healthcare organizations, he applied this knowledge to advance quality healthcare. When he learned that he would need TAVR surgery, Bob leveraged his past life experiences to find the best hospital and doctors to perform this critical procedure. That search led him to Doylestown Hospital and the cardiac specialists at the Richard A. Reif Heart Institute.

An Advanced Valve Procedure

A minimally invasive procedure, TAVR replaces the aortic heart valve through the use of a catheter and stent, eliminating the need for open-heart surgery. TAVR is accomplished by a highly trained team of cardiothoracic surgeons, interventional cardiologists, radiologists, cardiologists, nurses, and rehabilitation professionals. TAVR also requires specially designed facilities and equipment.

Hearing is Believing

TAVR is generally available only at large university or specialty hospitals, where Bob initially planned to have his surgery. However, after attending a heart valve disease information session led by James McClurken, MD, FACS, a nationally recognized cardiothoracic surgeon practicing at the Heart Institute, Bob reconsidered. “When I heard Dr. McClurken speak, I was so impressed. He did a beautiful job with his presentation. I wanted to know more and made an appointment.” Bob later met with a team of Heart Institute surgeons and cardiologists. “I found the doctors and the experience very different from other hospitals,” said Bob. “They were so easy to talk to, listened well, were friendly and very professional and competent. I gained a lot of confidence.” Bob also discovered the hospital’s distinguished national ranking and clinical outcomes for TAVR. “That was good enough for me,” he said.

The Greatest Care

Bob’s procedure was a success, but it was the total experience that makes him smile. “I got the greatest care at each stage,” he said. “Everyone was so thorough. They knew what they were doing and the teams at every level were just wonderful.”

Dr. McClurken, and colleague Joseph Auteri, MD, FACS, who led Bob Ervin’s TAVR team, agree. “The collaboration among the Heart Institute staff is phenomenal. This is a very unique place in that we have a high level of clinical skill in specialties that are not available at most community hospitals, along with remarkable patient-centered care.”

Giving Back

Bob’s experience inspired him to write heartfelt letters of thanks to his care team, and to provide philanthropic support for hospital priorities. “I wanted to show my appreciation for everything that was done for me, and I will continue to do so,” he said. “The hospital has served the community so well, and the leadership is just as impressive as anything I’ve ever seen.”

Bob’s generosity brings the advantages of exceptional care close to home for others. “Acquiring technology and equipment is very costly,” notes Dr. McClurken. “It wouldn’t be possible for us to adopt new technologies, attract the best talent, and remain at the forefront of interventional cardiology without support from people like Bob.”

As Bob acknowledged in one of his letters, “How fortunate I am to have chosen the Heart Institute for my TAVR procedure.” Ask anyone on Bob’s care team and they would say the feeling is mutual.

“There is something that occurs which speeds recovery when you are treated so well, and I was a grateful recipient. You are so deserving of my appreciation.”

GIVING GOES FULL CIRCLE

STEVE HIRT

Steve Hirt's introduction to Doylestown Health was in 1973, when his firm was hired to generate financial support for Doylestown Hospital's move from downtown Doylestown to its current location. After decades as a consultant advising leaders in business, government, healthcare, and social service organizations, his respect for Doylestown Health is evident. "I've had the chance to work with 30 different hospitals and would not trade any of them for my experiences with Doylestown Health," he said.

"I plan to stay involved until I can't. From a retirement standpoint, we plan to move to Pine Run. I would be extremely reluctant to pick up and move out of this community. I have such respect for the quality of healthcare delivered here. I want to always be within that service area."

to clear six blockages. An avid runner, Hirt had always exercised and ate a healthy diet. "My mistake," he laughs, "was in picking the wrong parents. Heart disease runs in my family and it finally caught up with me." Since then, he's had an additional two heart catheterizations and a stent procedure. "My experiences with the Heart Institute have been excellent," he notes. "I feel blessed and fortunate to be here."

STEVE HIRT SPENT HIS CAREER RAISING FUNDS for charitable, non-profit organizations. Today, as a grateful Doylestown Health patient, volunteer, and leader, the tables have turned—and he is the one proudly giving back.

Connecting from the Heart

For 14 years Hirt has served in the Heart Institute's Heart-to-Heart program, a volunteer group of men and women who have undergone open heart surgery or who have a spouse who has. According to Steven Guidera, MD, a Heart Institute interventional cardiologist, "Steve Hirt is a prime example of why we provide unparalleled care to the people of our community. He generously gives of his time and considerable talents to help patients facing cardiac surgery and their families be more comfortable with the healing process. The personal touch that volunteers like Steve provide truly makes Doylestown Hospital a special place."

Hirt would agree. "The value we bring is sharing our experience," he says. "We help patients see life beyond a heart procedure, and alleviate the anxiety they feel about what's ahead. Volunteering keeps you in touch, keeps you grounded and continually makes you grateful for what you've received."

Investing in the Future

Steve and his wife, Carol, were donors well before his heart surgery. "We understand the value of quality healthcare," he notes. "I have total faith and confidence in how this institution uses money, both earned and charitably contributed. It's a matter of careful management and the partnership of the VIA. They're not afraid to ask the hard questions about necessity, affordability and the best interests of the community."

Furthermore, Hirt's role as a volunteer continues to evolve. After 16 years of service as a member of the hospital's Board of Directors, he now serves on the advisory board of Doylestown Health's Pine Run Retirement Community. "I plan to stay involved until I can't," he says. "From a retirement standpoint, we plan to move to Pine Run. I would be extremely reluctant to pick up and move out of this community. I have such respect for the quality of healthcare delivered here. I want to always be within that service area."

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS

PARTNERSHIPS THAT MATTER

DOYLESTOWN HEALTH FOUNDATION IS PROUD TO RECOGNIZE the many individuals, corporations, foundations, and local businesses for their steadfast support throughout the year. Because of these invaluable partnerships, we are able to carry out our mission of improving the quality of life for those we serve.

Partnerships with our community take many forms and yield extraordinary results. For instance, working with the regional ambulance service, Doylestown Health leveraged pre-hospital protocols that have dramatically improved the speed to deliver a critical clot-busting drug with the potential to prevent permanent disability due to a stroke.

Across Bucks County, philanthropic partnerships also connect us with our closest friends and supporters throughout the year. From black-tie to the blacktop, proceeds from our signature events and fundraisers benefit the patients and families we serve. Doylestown Health Foundation is pleased to share highlights of these MOMENTS THAT MATTER.

DOYLESTOWN HEALTH GOLF CLASSIC
Over the course of the golf outing's 25 year history, over $1 million has been donated to support Doylestown Health's most urgent needs.

CIRCLE OF LIFE AUCTION
Each year the Circle of Life Auction raises more than $100,000 to benefit Doylestown Health's Cancer Institute and Doylestown Hospital Hospice.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH
The Carol and Louis Della Penna Pediatric Center provides educational outreach programs for children such as a Teddy Bear Clinic.

DOYLESTOWN HEALTH VOLUNTEERS: With Appreciation
Simply put, volunteers are the heart and soul of Doylestown Health. At any given moment, our dedicated volunteers may be found performing critical and essential duties of great value that far exceed those of a traditional volunteer. In fact, volunteers are fully integrated into all facets of our operations, from staffing information desks, to providing peer mentoring, and even working alongside Doylestown Health associates to contribute to the bottom line.

Furthermore, our 170 youth volunteers add a special dimension to our volunteer program. This year, 18 of these incredible young adults were awarded scholarships totaling $25,000!
