WHY JARRETT BAY

There's a long tradition of craftsmanship in custom Carolina boat building. Since 1986, Jarrett Bay Boatworks has carried that tradition onto increasingly higher levels of excellence. From the start, the goal of founder Randy Ramsey was to build superior boats using superior methods, and materials applied with the same care as his forebears. But Ramsey also envisioned higher speeds, better handling, sleeker looks, and the highest degree of finish. That vision is realized every time a new Jarrett Bay is launched.

It's not just that marine plywood, fiberglass and epoxy have been substituted for juniper planking, caulked seams, and galvanized fastenings. Other builders construct cold-molded boats. The Jarrett Bay difference lies in utilizing the properties of these materials to their very best advantage so that the sum is greater than the whole.

The Jarrett Bay difference lies in continually evolving the form of a sportfishing yacht; in envisioning what it could be, instead of simply rendering the same boat again and again.

Few ventures are as demanding and complex as building a large sportfishing yacht. It requires the coordination of a wide range of specialties, from engineering and propulsion to interior designers and painters, to weldors and electricians. That's just to get it to run right and float on its lines. To achieve true excellence requires a group of professionals, each committed to doing the very best work possible. It requires people like the family of highly skilled craftsmen at Jarrett Bay. People steeped in the tradition of Carolina boatbuilding.

A BETTER BOAT

Jarrett Bay's family of master craftsmen work their magic touch to ensure that every boat is not only a work of art, but also a solid seaworthy vessel that will provide decades of reliable use.

The strength-to-weight ratio of the cold-molded hulls Jarrett Bay builds makes them far superior to boats built using other techniques.

Most active sportfishermen eventually graduate from production boats to a custom boat as they search for the ultimate fishing platform. Many custom buyers are attracted to the larger cockpits and dock appeal offered by the clean exterior styling.

Others like the fact that custom boats generally are faster, burn less fuel and are more stable as a fishing platform than a comparable production model. Plus, you get the added bonus of pleasing hull harmonics that come from a "wood" boat, which many anglers feel brings more fish to the transom.

BUILT ON TRADITION

In his youth, Jarrett Bay founder Randy Ramsey dreamed of running a fishing boat off the sometimes treacherous southern Outer Banks. He realized that dream taking out his first charter at age 18. Shortly thereafter, Randy began gathering skilled colleagues with similar aspirations and the group soaked in as much tutelage as possible from local builders such as Myron Harris and Ray Davis, as well as sportfish legends Omie Tillet and Roy Merritt.

Since those early days, it has been nothing less than an unrelenting pursuit for Randy to build the perfect boat. With such resolute intent, it should come as no surprise that Jarrett Bay boats deliver the most confidence-inspiring offshore ride in the business.

RUGGED CONSTRUCTION

In the tradition of Carolina construction, safety, durability, and confidence are built into your Jarrett Bay. Our method is an epoxy-composite process, generally referred to as cold-molding.

The answer to why a Jarrett Bay is such an exceptional sea boat lies in the harmonious balance of all elements. The shapes on the running surface, the distribution of displacement, our excellent weight ratio, the low center of gravity and more. They are all related, play off one another, and play lesser or greater roles depending upon the speed at which you are running and the sea state you find yourself in at any given moment.

Our lower center of gravity gives the feeling from the helm of being at the center of all axes of the boat's motion. You are one with it, not just riding it.

Visit our facility and talk to us about our innovations, durability and safety. We invite you to see firsthand what makes a Jarrett Bay the most solidly seaworthy boat you can own.

PEAK PERFORMANCE

There are many factors that contribute to a boat's speed and efficiency. Primary among them is the weight-to-horsepower ratio. Our build method not only produces a stronger boat, but also one that's as much as 30 percent lighter than other sportfishing boats. That means you can expect economical cruising speeds and top-end speeds that other builders simply cannot achieve.

Our hull design is a refinement of shapes and lifting surfaces, optimized to enhance that stellar power-to-weight ratio, and ensure you can maximize your time on the water. Plainly speaking, it is designed to let the water flow past with as little resistance as possible. From a hydrodynamic standpoint, our running bottom provides a great balance between providing ample planing surface and delivering the best angle of attack. The volume is distributed differently than most boats, with most of it concentrated amidships. Considered highly unique, our design was proven super-efficient in the test tank at the prominent Marin Institute in Holland.

Bottom line: Less money spent on fuel & more on fun while you own your Jarrett Bay boat.

WE BUILD DREAMS

You've reached a position in life where your boating experience and hard work have paid off. You know exactly what you want in a sportfish and have the means to attain it. If you simply wanted a boat, you wouldn't need us.

What you want is a dream that you can become a part of, that perfectly suits your fishing style as well as your lifestyle. That's where we come in.

Freed of the constraints of an assembly line, Jarrett Bay builds lightweight, rigorously engineered boats that deliver excellent speed and seakeeping abilities. The weight ratios of our cold-molded hulls deliver outstanding range too, so you can cruise farther and faster with better fuel economy — maximizing your time aboard.

TRULY CUSTOM

At Jarrett Bay our attention to detail is far more than just a catch phrase - we deliver truly custom dreams. Craftsmen, not laborers, build your Jarrett Bay. At the onset, an empty shop becomes a teeming workplace where these professionals ply their trades. As your boat goes from framing and sheathing to engine installation and systems rigging, and finally interior joiner work and final finish and fit-out, it's literally crawling with specialists, each taking the utmost pride in their work.

At Jarrett Bay, attention to detail starts with your desire for the world's finest sportfishing yacht; it is then exacted by master craftsmen, and culminates in one of the most robust, easily serviceable and truly custom boats you'll find on the water. Right down to the places most never see.

Each Jarrett Bay starts with a blank piece of paper and splashes as a true one-of-a-kind — representing her owner's interpretation of the perfect sportfishing boat.

BUILD PROCESS

It starts by getting up close and personal with our design team. We'll want to know how you intend to use the boat, where you expect to use it, and the number of crew & guests you typically have aboard. We'll press you for details about what you might have liked about previous boats, as well as those features you may not have cared for. One of the things we're very good at is helping you visualize your dreams, so this phase should be as easy as presenting us with your wish list that will ensure your Jarrett Bay is uniquely yours.

As this is going on, we'll be drawing sketches of boats and conceptions of individual features you may have mentioned. Throughout the process, you can rest assured that we will do our best to accommodate your desires, but we will never compromise your safety or the seaworthiness of your Jarrett Bay.

Once the design and layout are decided upon, the full-force of our manpower and materials are brought to bear on your project, while every part and process undergoes methodical quality control with a keen eye kept on scheduling and the final price. You'll be apprised of every step along the way, and invited to participate with as much additional input as you'd care to make. Our family of designers and craftsmen take great pride in each build, and look forward to your becoming part of our family throughout the process.

CUSTOMER DEDICATION

When you call with a problem, a question or to schedule routine maintenance, we'll give you a can-do response. After all, we expect to be doing business with you for a long time. Not only are we craftspeople working with wood and materials, but people working to always build honest and trustworthy relationships. We focus on solutions and have the depth of resources and experience to provide those solutions as quickly as possible. The same people who built your boat, are the very people who will help service it.

We're committed to a positive ownership experience. It's a big reason so many Jarrett Bay owners have built multiple boats with us.

Remember, Jarrett Bay is not just the premier builder of sportfishing yachts. Our full service yard and refit facility deals with hundreds of boats every year. Our service technicians solve more problems in a season than many builders see in a lifetime. In short, we are geared-up to provide expert and expedient service. Jarrett Bay is not just ready and willing to meet your customer service needs, we are uniquely located and equipped to do so.

COMPETITIVE PRICING

With over 85 hulls under our belts, we've done it all and we know what a project costs.

We don't underbid to get you in the door, and we don't over-outfit a boat to show off. At Jarrett Bay, you get what you want — no surprises.

However the true cost of owning a yacht isn't known until you sell it or trade it in. Its only then that you know how much you actually paid for the pleasure of boat ownership. Fortunately for you, you're considering a Jarrett Bay.

Since 1986, we have consistently built boats that sell for close to their original purchase price. In some cases, our owners have experienced appreciation, netting more for their boats than the initial outlay. And because of the Jarrett Bay name and reputation, demand for Jarrett Bay boats remains vigorous. So not only should you expect your Jarrett Bay to maintain its value, you can also expect to sell it more quickly than other boats you might be considering.

JOIN OUR FAMILY

The process of building a Jarrett Bay includes getting to know the designers, engineers, foremen, craftsmen and technicians who build your boat. So you don't just know where to call—you know exactly who to ask for.

As a Jarrett Bay owner, you'll experience a level of customer service found nowhere else in the industry. The production builders and their dealer networks are too big and complex to respond as quickly as Jarrett Bay can, and other custom builders lack the resources we enjoy as a full service yard and refit center. It is no wonder there are so many Jarrett Bay owners on their second, third & even fourth Jarrett Bay.

Like any good family, we stay connected, supportive, and ready to help, even when there's distance and time between us. Jarrett Bay owners are more than just customers, or even business partners. You become part of our family of craftsmen, owners, brokers and captains — folks who live and breathe sportfishing boats. We look forward to sharing this passion with you.
