

The Cuisine of Texas

Chicken Fried Steak

Despite its name, no chickens are harmed in the making of this dish. This Texas original consists of a piece of beef which is tenderized, given an egg wash, then covered in flour and deep fried until golden brown. It is often served with mashed potatoes, green beans and covered in cream gravy.

Barbeque (BBQ)

This Texas favorite has been on menus ever since cattle drives crossed the state. Beef, pork or chicken are cooked slowly in a "pit" until it is "fall off the bone" tender. It is served with a sauce which can range from spicy to sweet depending on where you are. Regardless, get plenty of napkins!

Tex-Mex

This is food unique to Texas. It would be impossible to consider your trip to Texas complete without trying it at least once. Tex-Mex can best be described as Mexican food with a decidedly Texan flair. Here is a short and by no means complete list, of some common items found in Tex-Mex restaurants.

Fajita

This is the most dramatic dish in Tex-Mex cuisine. Beef, chicken or shrimp are marinated, grilled, and served with onions and bell peppers on a sizzling plate. (It can be very noisy!!!) Fajitas are served with flour tortillas (similar to a crepe). You wrap the meat inside the tortilla and you may garnish it with cheese, tomato, sour cream, and hot salsa.

Taco

A corn tortilla is deep fried until crispy and stuffed with seasoned ground beef, lettuce cheese, and tomatoes or salsa.

Burrito

This is a Tex-Mex Sandwich. A flour tortilla is wrapped around a combination of ingredients. These ingredients can include, but are not limited to, ground beef, shredded beef, chicken, refried beans, pinto beans, black beans, lettuce, cheese, tomatoes, sour cream, guacamole, cilantro..you get the picture.

Chalupa

Simply put, a flat taco.

Guacamole

This is a necessary condiment at any Tex-Mex dinner. Avocados are mashed and mixed with lemon juice, tomatoes, onions, cilantro, and garlic. Guacamole complements almost everything on a Tex-Mex menu.

Enchilada

The quintessential item in Tex-Mex cuisine. Beef, cheese, chicken, or spinach are wrapped in a corn tortilla and covered with a chili, cheese, verde, or sour cream sauce.

Chips and Salsa

This is brought to your table when you are seated at a Tex-Mex restaurant. Dip the chip in a bowl full of salsa – mix of tomatoes, cilantro, chili, garlic, and onions, with some lemon or lime juice. (Usually, it is free!)

Pico de Gallo

Translated as "Beak of the Rooster" because of its color, this is a slightly spicy chunky chutney of peppers, tomatoes, onions, lemon juice, and spices.
