INTRODUCTION

It is an honor and privilege to serve as Nevada's 17th Secretary of State as we publish the 2016 Edition of the Political History of Nevada. Compiling an accurate and relevant historical reference of the Silver State's elections and previous public servants was very important to the office and those who contributed to this significant effort. Since its pamphlet form was first published in 1910 by Secretary of State William Douglas, the Political History of Nevada has evolved into a collection of facts and interesting accounts of Nevada's political past. In this book, we build on previous editions published by former Secretaries of State William Douglas, Malcom McEachin, John Koontz, William Swackhamer, Frankie Sue Del Papa, and Dean Heller; including information from Nevada's territorial beginnings through the 2016 election, which was one of the most interesting and contentious election cycles in our country's history.

When I took office in January of 2015, I wanted to know more about the Secretaries of State that served before me. With that in mind, we created the Secretary of State Photo Galleries that are proudly displayed in our offices in Carson City and Las Vegas. These photos are included as a fitting tribute to those Secretaries and their immeasurable service to our great State. You may discover that you recognize the names of many long-time Nevada families that were dedicated public servants and who have left a permanent impression on over 150 years of statehood.

Enjoy this 2016 Edition of the Political History of Nevada. We hope you find it not only a resource but also an educational and enlightening account of the Nevada's elections and political trends, as well as a memorable tribute to those who have served our great State.

In compiling the information contained herewith, I must acknowledge first and foremost the tireless efforts of the Legislative Counsel Bureau (LCB), starting with H. Pepper Sturm, retired Deputy Director of the Research Division, who was committed to the project from the beginning. His successor, Michael J. Stewart, was absolutely invaluable to the team, taking on each and every detail and laying out the vision for the twelfth edition. With the assistance of Michelle L. Van Geel, Administrator of Publications, they spent countless hours not only working on the actual publication but attending meetings with various members of the Secretary of State team over a period of almost two years. Special thanks also must be given to Vance A. Hughey, former Chief Principal Research Analyst; Kennedy, Design and Production Specialist; and Maysha Watson, Editor of Publications. Teresa Wilt, Legislative Librarian, and Danielle Mayabb, Assistant Librarian, contributed a significant amount of time converting the previous version of the document into the current version. Keeping all the facts and figures accurate and updated is a massive undertaking, and I am grateful for their hard work. The LCB has also spearheaded the effort to make the book available online so that it can be updated every two years. For this twelfth print edition, we are grateful for the participation and professionalism of the Silver State Industries Printing Shop. We appreciate the wonderful job that they did.

Other members of the working group included Alan Glover, former State legislator and retired Carson City clerk, who offered his expertise and unique perspective as he guided this project from start to finish. His stories alone offered the team an even better understanding of how events played out over the years and made assembling this book an enjoyable experience for everyone involved. We are thankful to Emerson Marcus, Nevada National Guard State Historian and technical sergeant of the 152nd Airlift Wing in Reno, who has a great passion for the subject matter. His chapter, “Nevada: A Brief Historiography,” sets the tone for this edition as it looks at the growth of Nevada through the eyes of the writers who have sought to record various periods of our history. Special thanks also must be given to all of the contributors: Patricia D. Cafferata; Edan Strekal; Michael S. Green, Ph.D.; William D. Rowley; and Sean Whaley, as well as Marty Bibb and Mike Archer, who authored the dedications—all of whom are great storytellers and were willing to share their observations with our readers.

This book would not have been possible without the work of the former Secretaries of State who took on the task of publishing the previous editions of the Political History of Nevada. They set the groundwork for this project and contributed to the content included in these pages. The Secretary of State Photo Gallery would not have been possible without the contributions of the Division of State Library, Archives and Public Records; the Division of Museums and History; the University of Nevada, Reno—Special Collections Department; the James D. Minor family; the Malcom McEachin family; Tim Stenger; and Silver State Industries. Special thanks are given to Jennifer Russell for leading the efforts in creating this tribute to our previous Secretaries of State.

Taking on responsibility of this significance requires a great team, and I am thankful for Scott Anderson, Chief Deputy Secretary of State, and all of those who assisted with this endeavor in the Secretary of State's office. I would like to give special thanks to Wayne Thorley, Deputy Secretary for Elections, who was tasked with updating historical facts and figures and putting them in a format that we could understand and appreciate. His participation was essential to the publishing of this edition.

I am grateful to all those who contributed to this edition, without whose efforts the Political History of Nevada would not have been possible.

DEDICATIONS

This edition of Nevada's political history is dedicated to two legislative giants. One a Republican and one a Democrat, their length of service in the State Senate and State Assembly exceeded that of any others in Nevada's 152-year history.

William (Bill) J. Raggio (1926-2012) served 38 years in the Senate from 1972-2011, and Joseph (Joe) E. Dini, Jr., (1929-2014) served 36 years in the Assembly from 1966-2002. Both Reno Republican Raggio and Yerington Democrat Dini earned well-deserved State, national, and international reputations and were widely respected for their skill in politics and dedication to their constituents.

Combined, their legislative service spans every decade from the 1960s to the 2010s, lending to their expertise in halting attempts by others to change facts and to inaccurately recall legislative history for personal gain.

Prior to legislative sessions being limited to 120 days, when the process bogged down near adjournment, Joe Dini and Bill Raggio were essential. They could break logjams on unresolved issues and bring consensus in a form that could win approval from a majority of their fellow lawmakers.

In the crucible of those final moments, these two undisputed legislative leaders met often, one-on-one, with each making his points. There were, at times, spirited exchanges—occasionally conducted in Italian, their native tongue—in an effort to hammer out agreements. Those meetings concluded upon encountering the gathered throng of news reporters, legislators, and others, and neither criticized the other. Bill Raggio and Joe Dini respected Nevada, the process, and each other too much to allow that to happen.

Assembly Speaker Joe Dini and Senate Majority Leader Bill Raggio.

Also included in the dedication section is Carole Vilardo, President of the Nevada Taxpayers Association, who retired in 2016. Her contributions to Nevada over the last few decades are worthy of our recognition.

BILL RAGGIO

By MICHAEL ARCHER

No legislator in the annals of Nevada history left a larger footprint on the political landscape of the State than Bill Raggio. A product of the old school of Nevada politics, Bill was a Republican conservative by philosophical orientation—but he was no ideologue. Former Nevada Governor and U.S. Senator Richard Bryan, a Democrat and colleague of Bill's in the State Senate during the 1970s, once described him as a pragmatist who recognized early on that compromise was not an act of betrayal or surrender but the only way in the legislative process to achieve results for his constituents. "What was best for the State of Nevada," Bryan added, "was always Bill's guiding star." Indeed, no one loved Nevada more than Bill Raggio.

William John Raggio, Jr. was born in Reno (just a few hours short of Nevada Day) on October 30, 1926, a fourth-generation Nevadan and descendant of immigrants from northern Italy who arrived penniless but, by hard work and thrift, saved enough to become successful landowners. These values, along with an abiding respect for the country that provided such a golden opportunity, were passed along and instilled in Bill as a boy growing up during the Great Depression.

He developed self-sufficiency, leadership skills, and a strong sense of civility through his active participation in scouting, eventually earning the prestigious rank of Eagle Scout. Along with a sharp intellect and natural curiosity about all things, Bill's character was well established by the time he entered Reno High School in 1940.

After graduation, and with World War II still raging, Bill entered officer training and was commissioned as a Marine Corps second lieutenant. Upon his release from active duty in 1947, he entered the University of Nevada majoring in political science. After graduation, he married his high school sweetheart, Dorothy Brigman, and moved to San Francisco where Bill attended the University of California's Hastings School of Law. Upon his admission to the State Bar of Nevada, Bill and Dorothy returned to Reno where he established a private practice.

Bill soon accepted an offer to become an assistant district attorney for Washoe County and, in 1958, was elected to the office of District Attorney, a position he would hold for the next 12 years. His tenure was extraordinarily busy and often dangerous, as he simultaneously prosecuted in cases of some of the most heinous crimes ever committed in Nevada—several cases drawing national and international news coverage.

Bill reinstated the use of the grand jury in Washoe County to rid Reno of widespread corruption in its city government and police department, as well as the local hoodlums who were bribing officials in those organizations. But all of this came at a personal cost, with the lives of Bill and his family disrupted by threats of violence to the point where trusted police sentries kept watch on the Raggio home often for weeks at a time and frequently escorted his three children to school for their protection.

Because of his reputation as a tough, fearless, and highly competent district attorney, Bill's peers nationwide honored him in 1967 as "Outstanding Prosecutor in the United States," and subsequently elected him president of the National District Attorneys Association.

As his popularity grew, Bill set his sights on the Governor's Mansion in Carson City and, by early 1970, polls showed him holding a wide lead over any other potential challenger. It would have taken a stroke of exceedingly bad luck to prevent him from becoming Nevada's next governor; yet such misfortune soon befell him when President Richard M. Nixon decided to take a personal interest in Bill Raggio's political career. Bill was soon under intense pressure from the President, Vice President, and other members of the Administration, as well as State and national Republican Party leaders, to postpone his dream of the governorship and run for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Democrat Howard Cannon.

Loyal to his party, even in the face of a decision he knew to be misguided, Bill ran a hard campaign despite being saddled during the race with a faltering national economy and negative political fallout from several highly unpopular decisions the President made, including the invasion of Cambodia. In the end, Nixon betrayed Bill for the sake of political expediency by cutting a deal with Cannon—ensuring his reelection. "It was the biggest mistake of my political life," Bill later said. "The White House pulled the rug out from under me, after they had persuaded me to run."

He had given up his job as district attorney to campaign and, now deeply frustrated with having been so awed by the President's attention that he failed to trust his own political instincts, Bill had reached the low point in his professional career. Yet he would rebound within a few months, partnering in a prestigious Las Vegas law firm and, in 1972, after rekindling his love of public service, Bill Raggio was elected to the Nevada State Senate.

Once there, he spent long hours learning his job, impressing colleagues with his dedication and work ethic. Within just two sessions he had not only moved from the back bench but was chosen as Senate Minority Floor Leader. Republicans would remain as the minority party for another 14 years and, throughout most of that time, Bill was a member of the Senate Committee on Finance where he carefully studied the intricacies of the State budget and became widely admired for his prodigious intellect and extraordinary retention, even among those who did not share his conservative political views.

In 1987, when Republicans won the Senate, Bill became Majority Floor Leader and Chair of the Finance Committee, guiding that governing body over most of the next two decades with a willingness to listen and consider the needs and opinions of others. His charisma, patience, and sense of fairness—balanced, when he felt it necessary, with an intimidating presence and an occasional calculated fit of temper—steered colleagues to acceptable compromises and kept the Legislature functioning.

Bill's longevity in these legislative posts was all the more remarkable because of the dramatic political power shift from Washoe to Clark County during his tenure. Despite southern Nevada legislators comprising a significant majority in the Senate, northerner Bill remained in leadership positions largely due to his cleverness and experience, which allowed him to play the political game like an accomplished chess master—always several moves ahead of his rivals.

He also benefited from having built a good working relationship with his Democratic counterpart in the State Assembly from rural Yerington, Speaker Joe Dini. Though they shared the same heritage, Raggio and Dini were nothing alike. Where Raggio was dazzlingly charming and manifestly clever, Dini was low key and contemplative, an incarnation of the quiet westerner who said little, but when he did everyone listened. Of Raggio, Dini once said, "He's a class act. Because there is not a lot of politicking going on, we can sit down and work out our problems, get past the issues, play it straight up."

Bill credited Joe, who had been in the Legislature six years longer than he had, with teaching him never to put his name on too many bills. "I put my name on 30 bills one year," Bill said, only to find "Joe held every one of them" to leverage for his own aims. Raggio quickly mastered the technique of using parts of legislation being proposed by others—often those in the other house or party—to artfully quilt together what he wanted in the end, once telling a reporter, "I have nothing with my fingerprints on it."

About such craftiness, Lorne Malkiewich, longtime Director of the Legislative Counsel Bureau, said, “Dini and Raggio loved the game, but they loved Nevada more, and that was always the bond that brought them together at the end of session to reach the final agreements.”

Among Senator Raggio’s many accomplishments were a change limiting legislative sessions to 120 days and the formation of the Nevada Economic Forum to help avoid last-minute budgetary chaos. However, Bill was most proud of his prominent role in the creation and passage of the Nevada Education Reform Act, which strengthened school accountability, adopted higher measurable statewide standards in academic subjects, and increased classroom technology. It was one of the most complex and controversial pieces of legislation ever to challenge State lawmakers, but Bill was able to lead them through that maze with his encyclopedic knowledge and talent for synthesizing a discussion down to its essence.

Raggio was also an ardent supporter of Nevada’s colleges and universities. Students at the University of Nevada, Reno, campus are reminded of this daily by the looming presence of the William J. Raggio College of Education Building. In Clark County, his contribution as an outstanding role model for those entering the legal profession is seen in his name on the largest classroom facility at the Boyd School of Law. Bill considered himself a “traditional Republican,” who championed a friendly business environment and small, but competent, government; with both those goals advanced by excellence in the State’s system of higher education.

He also strove to keep taxes low but understood that circumstances change and increases were sometimes necessary. During the 2003 Legislative Session, Bill, who by then had been widowed for several years, married Dale Checket, a ray of sunshine amid the dark clouds of discord forming between him and what he termed “far right” conservatives within the Senate’s Republican caucus. This split was largely the result of Bill’s decision to join Republican Governor Kenny Guinn and over two-thirds of the Legislature in voting for a tax increase to keep Nevada schools open. It was a tough choice, Bill later said, but necessary because Nevada’s children deserved teachers, books, and decent classrooms “like those of us had who came before them.”

This internal political rift widened and, during the 2008 Republican Primary Election, the Tea Party faction ran their own candidate in a heated, but ultimately unsuccessful, campaign to oust the incumbent Raggio. Rather than discounting these challenges, Senator Raggio embraced them as an opportunity to remind his fellow lawmakers that they were elected “not just to serve Republican or Democrat constituents, but in the best interest of all the people of Nevada” and that inflexible political positions, pledges, and narrow, overly simplistic answers for solving the broad and complex issues facing the State were an abdication of their duty to thoughtfully vet information and make informed decisions.

During the 2010 election for Nevada's U.S. Senate seat, Bill was among more than 200 prominent Republicans in the State who endorsed Senator Harry Reid against his Tea Party opponent. Nevertheless, it was Bill who quickly became the lightning rod for ire when Reid won reelection. Two weeks later, the Republican Senate caucus stripped Raggio of his leadership position. On January 5, 2011, Senator Bill Raggio announced the end of his 56-year-long career in public service, citing health reasons. He died just over a year later as the result of a respiratory illness.

Throughout his 38 years of service—the longest service of any senator in Nevada history—Bill had overcome his share of tragedy, including the deaths of his wife Dorothy and son Mark and several serious, sometimes life-threatening, health issues. Nevertheless, he pressed on resolutely in his sworn duty to the citizens of the State, never losing his keen wit and polished humor.

Bill had delighted in cultivating an almost comical personal image of a grumpy penny-pincher; yet he was actually a person of intense compassion, loyalty and anonymous generosity. His personal records contain hundreds of notes and letters thanking him for some act of kindness or monetary help. It would be impossible to count the number of flowers and cards, calls of encouragement or congratulations, visits to sick beds, and words of condolence or eulogies Bill provided over the years, or to imagine where, among the demands of his personal and professional life, he found the time and the energy to be there for so many people.

Though his values came to be derided by some as too quaint to survive in the increasingly cynical and acrimonious arena of modern American politics, Bill Raggio chose not to change—nor would his principles have allowed him to. One evening, as his political life was coming to a close, he spoke to an audience of young people in Reno, quoting one of his favorite essayists, John Henry Cardinal Newman:

The true gentleman has no ears for gossip or slander and interprets everything for the best. He is never mean in his disputes, never takes an unfair advantage, never mistakes personalities or sharp sayings for arguments. He observes the maxim of the ancient age that we should ever conduct ourselves towards our enemy as if he were one day to be our friend.

Senator Bill Raggio, Nevada's most significant statesman and lawmaker, remained a "true gentleman" to the end.

JOE DINI

By MARTY BIBB

First elected to the Nevada State Assembly in November 1966, Joe Dini served longer in Nevada's Assembly than any other person. His remarkable career spanned from the 1960s to the 2000s, a crucial time when the State's population exploded from 400,000 to 2 million and the program needs of the Silver State grew exponentially.

Speaker Dini was truly one of a kind, known for his intelligence, legislative skill, preparation, and strength of character, all of which were balanced with a genuine concern for people and a patient, reserved demeanor seldom seen in the political arena.

When he was elected Speaker for a fourth regular session in 1991, Joe Dini eclipsed a record set by Lemuel Allen of Churchill County nearly a century earlier (1899). By the end of his career, Joe Dini had served eight regular sessions as Speaker, including one in 1995 as Co-Speaker with Republican Lynn Hettrick when Democrats and Republicans each held 21 Assembly seats.

Joe Dini's legacy is far greater than the length of his legislative service. It is summed up by 14 words engraved on a brass plate on the oversized gavel behind the Assembly Speaker's rostrum. The plaque reads, "In Perpetual Honor of Joseph E. Dini, Jr., Speaker of the Nevada State Assembly."

When he first sought the District 38 Assembly seat in 1966, Joe Dini pledged to serve the people of the district with "honesty, skill and dignity." In the mid-1990s, Carson City's daily newspaper the Nevada Appeal endorsed Joe Dini for reelection, terming him "Nevada's first statesman."

He was designated Speaker Emeritus by a 2001 Assembly Resolution. Legislative action in 2005 added Joe's name and photo to the Assembly's Wall of Distinction citing his integrity and fairness.

A first generation Nevadan, Joe Dini was born to Italian immigrants. His father, Giuseppe (Joe) Dini, came to Nevada from the Lucca Province of Italy in the early 1900s settling in Yerington. Joe's mother, Elvira Castellani, arrived later from Lucca. Giuseppe and Elvira married, and Joseph E. Dini, Jr. was born on March 28, 1929.

As a youth, Joe excelled in school. Too young to serve in World War II, he began developing his work ethic at various jobs in Yerington. At 13, the friendly youngster worked for the local market, driving their truck delivering grocery orders and meeting people throughout the region. He was salutatorian of his high school class, then enrolled at the University of Nevada. There Joe earned a Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration and joined Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. In 1990, its national fraternity named him an outstanding alumnus.

While an undergraduate at Nevada, Joe met his future wife, Jeanne Demuth, a nursing student. Just before their wedding day, Joe was a passenger in a car involved in a terrible auto accident. The vehicle's brakes failed, leaving him seriously injured and hospitalized for months at Washoe Medical Center. Before being released, Joe summoned a priest, and he and Jeanne were married at his hospital bedside in 1949.

Upon graduation, he went to work for a Reno accounting firm. The couple's first son, Jay, was born in Reno, then the young couple moved to the pastoral Mason Valley where sons George, David, and Michael were born.

Joe Dini's father had opened the Wooden Shoe Tavern in Yerington in 1933 upon the repeal of Prohibition. Joe joined him in the business and, in 1960, purchased Dini's Lucky Club from him.

Soon after, he began his lifetime of public service modestly enough as chairman of the swimming pool district board. A self-described "not too mechanical" chairman, he packed a toolbox to work daily. Over lunch hours, Joe could regularly be found repairing the pool's operating system or replacing rogue sprinkler heads in the adjacent park.

Local leaders urged him to seek higher office; so, in 1966, Joe Dini sought and won the Assembly District 38 seat he would hold continuously until his 2002 retirement from the Legislature. He won reelections in landslide proportions but rejected repeated efforts to recruit him to seek higher office including Nevada's governorship and the U.S. House of Representatives. Instead, Joe honed his legislative skills on major issues affecting his largely agricultural district, water chief among them. Today, water remains a vital issue for Assembly District 38 and the State of Nevada.

In the 1970s, Congress mandated creation of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (TRPA), a bi-state effort to oversee Lake Tahoe. Joe Dini and respected State Senator Spike Wilson were chosen to represent Nevada in delicate rulemaking negotiations with two California legislators.

Widely regarded as Nevada's most knowledgeable lawmaker in the area of water law, Speaker Dini was later named chairman of the prestigious Water Policy Committee of the Western Legislative Conference, a position he held for six years. In 1990, he testified before the U.S. Senate during the crucial negotiated settlement involving distribution of the Truckee River's waters. He played lead roles in re-establishment of the much needed State of Nevada Division of Water Planning and the Carson Water Subconservancy District.

Among Joe Dini's other top legislative priorities were education, economic development, budgets, senior citizens, veterans, health care and, cultural preservation. He played a key role in the creation of Nevada's community college system and the State's medical and law schools.

A 2002 Act of Congress honored him, naming Yerington's postal facility as the "Joseph E. Dini, Jr. Post Office." His efforts in foreign trade matters affecting Nevada saw Joe honored with the Friendship Medal of Diplomacy by Taiwan in 2000.

In 2004, the Joe Dini Jr. Library and Student Center at Western Nevada College in Carson City was dedicated in his honor. Joe also worked on behalf of K-12 education as a major supporter of adoption of the Nevada Plan to stabilize education funding. Always the champion of rural schools and local control in education, he successfully fought efforts to consolidate rural county school districts.

A half century after he began his legislative career, many improvements to the everyday lives of Nevadans exist through his efforts to create State parks, better and safer highways, improved recreational support facilities including the Northern Nevada Fish Hatchery, and more.

Speaker Dini strongly supported his wife Jeanne in her fierce advocacy for improvements to Nevada's system of rural and urban mental health care. Today Sparks' Dini-Townsend Psychiatric Hospital serves the mental health needs of northern Nevadans by offering rapid screening and stabilization of individuals in acute psychiatric crisis. It is jointly named for him and former State Senator Randolph Townsend.

Perhaps no single legislative challenge demonstrated Joe Dini's tenacity more clearly than his bill, Assembly Bill 42 of the 1987 Legislative Session, creating the Northern Nevada Veterans Cemetery in Fernley.

There was widespread recognition of the need for a veterans cemetery in Nevada. However, budget constraints and southern Nevada's population boom led to calls for it to be located in Boulder City. Joe Dini also saw the crying need for a cemetery for veterans in northern Nevada—residents there could have to travel as many as 500 miles to Boulder City.

The significant costs for constructing a second cemetery posed a seemingly insurmountable roadblock, so Joe rolled up his sleeves and worked around it.

Without fanfare, creatively and quietly he lined up strong support among veterans groups, media, and others including the construction and development sectors. He obtained commitments for substantial donations of goods and services to fund the desert-themed veterans cemetery in Fernley so important to northern Nevadans.

For Joe Dini, moving Nevada forward was the measuring stick of his service.

A passion for Nevada led him to reach out across the aisle to Republican lawmakers and to legislators from all parts of Nevada. In 1985, Jack McCloskey of Hawthorne, dean of Nevada newspaper editors and a Republican, editorialized about him, saying, “Joe Dini of Yerington was like a searchlight at the legislative session clearing the fog.”

As Speaker, Dini took genuine joy in mentoring young State legislators, as evidenced by the legion of future leaders whose lives he touched. They include Nevada governors, congressional representatives, and U.S. Senators.

His advice to them was to do their homework and listen to all sides and positions on legislation before taking a position. Failing to do so, he cautioned, would result in a loss of credibility by “flip-flopping” or by taking the wrong side of an issue.

Former Governor and U.S. Senator Richard Bryan said, “Joe was the legislative equivalent of a grand master of chess.” Senator Bryan added:

In all probability Joe will be the last Speaker from rural Nevada. It is a tribute to the respect which he enjoyed, that his Democratic colleagues in the State Assembly elected Joe Dini Speaker on seven occasions. Making that achievement more impressive is the fact that it occurred at a time when the majority of Assembly members were from Southern Nevada.

Governor Brian Sandoval said, “As a first-term assemblyman in the minority party, I worked hard to develop a thorough understanding of the legislative process. When I visited Speaker Dini to discuss the issues, he welcomed me into his office and shared his wisdom, which I greatly appreciated.”

Joe Dini respected the legislative process and expected others to do the same. You could count on the fingers of a hand the times he lost his cool. During one particularly contentious floor session, several unruly Assembly Members failed to observe protocol as he gavelled the Assembly to order. Joe simply laid the gavel on the Speaker’s rostrum, turned, and quietly began walking out of the chamber. Before he reached the door, a complete hush fell over the Assembly. You could have heard a pin drop. A couple of minutes later, as he approached the rostrum, the members came to order on their own.

Speaker Dini embraced spirited debate but wouldn't tolerate a lack of respect for parliamentary procedure or lawmakers who were not good to their word.

In the 1980s, at 2 a.m. on the last day of one session he angrily gaveled the session to a one-minute recess. It seemed the chairman of a committee had broken his promise not to hear a particularly bad bill and tried to slip it through the Legislature at the twelfth hour. That chairman never again chaired a committee, served only one more term, and then lost his reelection bid.

Joe Dini's life was turned upside down in early 1994 when his wife, soulmate, and greatest supporter, Jeanne Dini, died. Joe struggled through the summer, the reelection cycle, and the 1995 Session.

For years as Speaker, Joe had worked professionally on a daily basis with respected and nationally recognized, long-time Nevada Assembly Chief Clerk Mouryne Landing who herself had lost a spouse a few years earlier. The two had a mutual respect for each other, found love, and were married in late 1995, living happily together until his death in 2014. Mouryne's service as Chief Clerk for many years earned her a place on the Assembly's Wall of Distinction.

During his legislative career, Speaker Dini built a reputation as a workhorse. He relished long days filled with committee hearings and even multiple, daily draining floor sessions. Joe often worked late in his office, arrived early the next morning, and was always familiar with and prepared for the rigor of all the day's bills.

On the weekends during legislative sessions, he returned to Yerington and worked at the Lucky Club. On occasion, Joe could be found in the restaurant refilling coffee cups for customers, his constituents. Many of them in truth wanted the inside scoop about what was happening at the legislative session in Carson City as much as a coffee warm-up. It was just another way Joe made sure he never lost touch with his people.

Speaker Joe Dini's impressive record of legislative accomplishments focused on the short-term and long-term needs of the people of Nevada. His innate reserved nature was his calling card.

For decades, in Nevada and beyond, Joe Dini was referred to as "Mr. Speaker." Perhaps more important to him was that the people of his State and district simply called him Joe.

CAROLE VILARDO

By EMERSON MARCUS

Carole Vilardo spent her career as an unbiased champion of fair tax laws in Nevada. After teaming up with former Nevada State Senator Ann O'Connell in the mid-1970s in the pursuit of tougher shoplifting laws, Vilardo joined the Nevada Taxpayers Association (NTA) in 1986. During her tenure with the Association, Vilardo earned a reputation as an impartial watchdog; approachable with a knack for explaining complex tax laws in a clear manner. Additionally, Vilardo authored and edited numerous NTA publications and worked on several committees and commissions in both northern and southern Nevada throughout her career.

Vilardo retired from NTA in 2016 with an honorary dinner at the Gold Coast Casino in Las Vegas attended by lawmakers from both sides of the political aisle, reporters, lobbyists, and many other Nevadans.

Vilardo, who often donned elegant hats and never lost her New York accent, left an indelible mark on Nevada. Her work over the course of the last four decades helped shape Nevada tax law today and will be felt for decades to come.

This edition of the Political History of Nevada is dedicated to that work.

She doesn't normally play politics at all. She is there to give you the facts. She has very strong private feelings, but she is a person of her word and when she tells you she will do something, she will do it. In politics, you don't always find somebody without an agenda like that.

—Former Nevada State Senator Ann O'Connell

Legislators trusted her. The press trusted her. Editorial boards trusted her. The public benefited from her expertise. Without her as a tax policy watchdog, special interests would have slipped in language for their own benefit.

—Jane Ann Morrison, Las Vegas Review-Journal

Vilardo was respected for her knowledge and dedication, but she became beloved because she was always willing to take time to help, whether to impart knowledge or to mentor a newcomer . . . so many Nevada laws would be worse, so many statutes would exist that should not if Vilardo had not been ever-vigilant.

—Jon Ralston, Reno Gazette-Journal

Ms. Vilardo has demonstrated true commitment to Nevada, exemplifying what it means to fight for the greater good of our great State . . . I ask my colleagues and all Nevadans to join me in thanking Ms. Vilardo for her years of service, and I wish her well in all of her future endeavors.

—United States Senator Dean Heller

PRESENT CONSTITUTIONAL OFFICERS AND DUTIES

Governor Brian Sandoval

The Governor is the highest-ranking constitutional officer in Nevada, and serves as the State's Chief Executive. He is responsible for coordinating the work of all State agencies, recommends the budget to the Legislature and serves on many State boards and commissions.

Brian Sandoval was elected the 30th Governor of Nevada in 2010 and re-elected in 2014. In 2005 he was appointed United States District Judge for the District of Nevada and in 2002 he was elected Attorney General of Nevada. He has previously served as chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission and in the Nevada Legislature.

His accomplishments as Governor include work to make Nevada the most veteran and military-friendly State in the nation, transforming Nevada's approach to economic development, expanding health care coverage, implementing new innovative gaming policy and leading the effort for an unprecedented investment in and modernization of Nevada's public education system.

During his inaugural legislative session, Sandoval transformed Nevada's approach to economic development by moving the duties directly under his authority and created the Governor's Office of Economic Development. During Sandoval's tenure, GOED successfully partnered the State with cutting-edge companies, technology innovations, and helped develop new industries across the Silver State.

The Governor has also directed regulation and innovation for gaming policy. By setting the pace and standards through pioneering legislation and State policy he identified the potential within the industry for interactive gaming, skill-based games and other developments in an evolving industry.

The hallmark of the Governor's administration is his vision for transforming and modernizing Nevada's education system. An unprecedented investment to reform Nevada's education system was enacted in 2015 that will provide targeted programs to boost student achievement and equip students and teachers with the tools for success as innovators, job creators, and leaders of the new Nevada economy.

During the 2015 Legislative Session a comprehensive plan to provide additional support to military veterans and their families through educational, employment and healthcare services was signed by the Governor. In addition to these policy changes, he also pursued substantial funding for veterans initiatives including State-match funding for construction of the Northern Nevada Veterans Home.

The Governor has held several national positions during his tenure, including the chairmanships of the Western Governors Association, the Education Commission of the States and the Council of State Governments. He also serves as a member of the Governors for the National Governors Association (NGA) and will serve as the Chairman of the NGA in 2018.

The Governor is married to Kathleen, his wife of 26 years, who is the Director of Operations for the Children's Cabinet and has three children, James, Maddy, and Marisa.

Lieutenant Governor Mark Hutchison

A third generation Nevadan, born and raised in Las Vegas, Lieutenant Governor Mark Hutchison is a husband, father and grandfather, constitutional lawyer, and business owner. He has a strong sense of commitment and dedication to Nevada and is deeply honored to represent the Silver State.

Mark was raised in a modest blue-collar family and is the product of Nevada's public education system. After he graduated from Bonanza High School, Mark earned his business administration degree, Phi Kappa Phi, from the University of Nevada, Las Vegas and received his law degree, magna cum laude, from Brigham Young University. Following law school, Mark clerked for a judge on the U.S. Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Indiana. Mark then worked for a national law firm until returning to Nevada and founding his own law firm in 1996 with his good friend, John Steffen. Today, Mark is the senior partner at Hutchison & Steffen, one of the largest law firms in the State, employing nearly one hundred Nevadans. Mark has been widely recognized by his peers and clients as a skilled and effective lawyer. As a result, Mark has been a key figure in some of Nevada's most significant governmental disputes at the intersection of law and politics.

On November 4, 2014, Mark Hutchison was elected to serve as Nevada's 34th Lieutenant Governor. Prior to running for lieutenant governor, Mark had a long history of public service. Mark served on the Nevada Commission on Ethics for six years, two of which he chaired the Commission. Mark also had the pleasure of serving in the Nevada State Senate (Senate District 6) to which he was elected in 2012. In addition to his service in the public sector, Mark served as a member of numerous non-profit and community organizations, some of which he is still active in today.

Mark was sworn in to office on January 5, 2015. As Lieutenant Governor, Mark is a member of Governor Brian Sandoval's cabinet and serves as President of the State Senate. Mark is the chairman of the Commission on Tourism, Vice-Chairman of the State Board of Transportation, a member of the Board of the Governor's Office of Economic Development, and a member of the Executive Budget Audit Committee. On November 17, 2015, Mark was appointed to the Governor's Commission on Homeland Security. Mark also serves as a member of the Board of Directors for the Public Education Foundation and as co-chair of What's Next Nevada?

When not focused on his duties as Lieutenant Governor or at his law firm, Mark is focused on his family. Mark and his wife Cary have been married for thirty years and together they have six children and four grandchildren. Mark enjoys doing just about anything with his family and has spent many enjoyable years coaching the athletic teams of his children and their friends. When he can, Mark continues to help the football team at Palo Verde High School where his youngest son still plays. Mark and his family are also active in their church. During his limited free time, Mark enjoys running, collecting leatherback books, and writing.

Secretary of State Barbara K. Cegavske

Barbara Cegavske was elected to her first term as Nevada Secretary of State in 2014 and assumed office on January 5, 2015. With more than 33 years of combined public service and small business experience, Cegavske brings a unique blend of business acumen and legislative expertise to the Secretary of State's office.

Cegavske entered public service in 1996 when she was elected to serve in the Nevada Assembly representing Clark County District 5 for three consecutive terms. In 2002, Cegavske ran for and successfully won a State Senate seat for Clark County District 8. She served three full terms before assuming the role of Secretary of State.

During her time in the Nevada Legislature, Cegavske assumed leadership roles as Co-Assembly Assistant Minority Floor Leader, Assistant Assembly Minority Whip, Senate Minority Whip, and Senate Assistant Minority Leader. She also chaired the Senate Committee on Legislative Operations and Elections for three legislative sessions and was vice-chair of the Senate Committees on Human Resources and Education; Human Resources and Facilities; and Legislative Affairs and Operations. In all, Cegavske served in 9 regular sessions and 13 special sessions of the Nevada Legislature.

As a daughter of small business owners, Cegavske rolled up her sleeves and pitched in with her siblings after school and during summer vacations to help the family business. Her introduction to the free-market system proved to be valuable first-hand knowledge when she and her husband Tim became owners of a 7-Eleven franchise. Over the course of 13 years, the Cegavskes faced daily challenges but also experienced the rewards of employing fellow Nevadans and contributing to the State's economy. They also learned about onerous regulations that placed burdens on their business and disincentives for a business to be able to grow and thrive.

Born and raised in Minnesota, Cegavske has been a proud Nevadan for the past 40 years. She has two sons, Adam and Bret, who graduated from UNR and UNLV respectively and are raising their own families in Las Vegas. Cegavske and her husband are the proud grandparents of six grandchildren.

Attorney General Laxalt aims to boost his Office's capacities to be an indispensable resource for the State and a leader of the law enforcement community. The Office is committed to ensuring the safety of Nevada's communities, and partners with other law enforcement agencies throughout the State to discuss emerging trends and identify the most effective role it can play in providing assistance and support.

Laxalt was sworn in as Attorney General in January, 2015, making him the youngest in the country. As a former Lieutenant in the United States Navy, he previously served his country as a Judge Advocate General. His experiences in the Navy reaffirmed his commitment to supporting the military, and propelled him to initiate the Office of Military Legal Assistance, a first-of-its-kind Attorney General-led program that partners with private sector attorneys to offer our military communities access to pro bono civil legal services.

Laxalt graduated from the Georgetown University Law Center, and worked in private practice solving problems for a wide array of Nevadans and their businesses. He has also served on the Board of Trustees for Catholic Charities of Southern Nevada, the largest private social services in the State. ### NEVADA: A BRIEF HISTORIOGRAPHY

State Historian, Nevada National Guard

The Political History of Nevada is the quintessential reference book of Nevada elections and past public servants of this State.

Journalists, authors, politicians, and historians have used this official reference for a variety of questions. In 1910, the Nevada Secretary of State's Office first compiled the data. The Office updated the data 30 years later in 1940 "to meet a very definite and increasing interest in the political history of Nevada," and has periodically updated it since. This is the first edition following the Silver State's sesquicentennial, and the State's yearlong celebration of 150 years of Statehood in 2014.

But this brief article will look to examine something other than political data. It's more about the body of historical work concerning the subject of Nevada's political history—a brief historiography.

A short list of its contributors includes Dan De Quille and Mark Twain; Sam Davis and James Scrugham; Jeanne Wier and Anne Martin; Richard Lillard and Gilman Ostrander; Mary Ellen Glass and Effie Mona Mack; Russell Elliott and James Hulse; William Rowley and Michael Green.

Their works stand out as essential secondary sources of Nevada history.

For instance, Twain's Roughing It (1872), De Quille's Big Bonanza (1876) and Eliot Lord's Comstock Mining & Mines (1883) offer an in-depth and anecdote-rich—whether fact or fiction—glance into early Nevada and its mining camp way of life. Other sources on the State's early history include "mug" histories—or snapshots—providing brief biographies and narratives of counties, events, and groups. Published by Thompson and West and compiled by Myron Angel, History of Nevada (1881) is one of the earliest and most referenced, but others include Thomas Wren, A History of the State of Nevada: Its Resources and People (1904); Sam P. Davis, editor, The History of Nevada (1913); and former Nevada Governor James Scrugham, editor, Nevada: A Narrative of the Conquest of a Frontier Land (1935).

During the first half of the twentieth century and the post-World War II era, historians produced more long-form narratives about the past. Many sought to explain the political trends of the State. For example, Mary Ellen Glass' Silver and Politics in Nevada: 1892-1902 (1969) sought to explain the three-decade-long Republican dominance and the rise of the Silver Party in the 1890s through the arguments of the “Free Silver” movement, which handed Nevada’s presidential votes to Populist candidates such as William Jennings Bryan and eventually created a Silver-Democrat fusion steered by Senator Francis Newlands.

This crumbling of the old system—the Comstock mining barons and the power of the South Pacific Railroad—gave way to progressive reforms after the turn of the century. From 1904 to 1914 reformers adopted a series of laws at the Nevada Legislature and at the voting booth: the referendum (1904); direct primaries (1909); initiative and recall (1912); expansion of the role of the State government in the regulatory powers of the Public Service Commission (1911), and suffrage for women (1914). These reforms succeeded in changing Nevada, but many historians argue the progressive wave that swept the nation affected the Silver State less than other western states such as Oregon and California because of its transient male population and mining camp culture.

Following the roaring 1920s and into the Great Depression, Nevada developed and expanded a tourism industry in Reno and Las Vegas. Countless journalists and many authors wrote about this unique economy in the Silver State. In his book Desert Challenge (1942), Richard Lillard claimed Nevada rather boldly and successfully created new revenue streams through easy divorce, gambling and as a tax haven, popularly referred to as the “One Sound State,” but Nevada remained “in new terms, a real, not a figurative, frontier,” given its aridity and emphasis on vice economy.

For Jeanne Wier, the longtime director of the Nevada Historical Society, these changes and gambling economy highlighted the “mystery of Nevada,” where “the daily habits of more stable and permanent population” successfully co-existed with the State’s rising gambling industry. She added: “This conservatism and stability bracketed with a constant holiday spirit, constitutes what has been called the ‘mystery of Nevada.’”

This discussion on the “mystery of Nevada” permeates the ongoing historiography—or history of the history—in Nevada. Modern day historians often describe Nevada as a peculiar sibling in the family of states. For many, this invokes slogans such as “Independent like Nevada.” The State’s grit in the arid Great Basin—“East of Eden and West of Zion,” as historian Wilbur Shepperson once described Nevada’s position in the American West—sets Nevada apart, neither the diverse thriving economy of California nor the cultural uniformity of Utah. According to Shepperson, “Nevada, in its own peculiar way, has transcended its environment.”

Several authors have railed against this uniqueness. As the Silver State turned from progressivism to a loosening of regulations on divorce and gambling in the early 1920s, suffragist Anne Martin called Nevada a “Beautiful Desert of Buried Hopes” in The Nation magazine’s series “These United States.” Martin, president of the Nevada Equal Franchise Society in 1914 when Nevada voters passed suffrage for women, became disenchanted, calling Nevada “a vast, exploited, undeveloped State with a meager and boss-ridden population.”

Additionally in 1966, Gilman Ostrander titled his history of the State, Nevada: The Great Rotten Borough 1859-1864, using a term out-of-state lawmakers employed during the mining depression of the 1880s and 1890s to expose Nevada's small population with equal representation in the nation's capital. Martin and Ostrander, progressives and liberal thinkers of their time, often opposed the State's pro-business and reactionary machine politics.

In the 1960s, literature on Nevada history grew. James Hulse's Nevada Adventure (1965) and Effie Mona Mack's Here is Nevada: A History of the State (1965) expanded the scope of Nevada studies following the State's centennial. Russell Elliott's History of Nevada (1973) further added cultural and social topics: religion, education, labor, women's history, and histories on Native Americans in the Great Basin. Along with this expanded study came more attention to the study of political structures through the application of the new discipline of political science. Eleanore Bushnell's The Nevada Constitution: Origin and Growth (1968) and Don Driggs' Nevada Politics and Government: Conservatism in an Open Society illustrated this advancement in this field. Michael Bowers' The Sagebrush State: Nevada's History, Government, and Politics (2002) builds on that area of study.

Additionally, a long list of biographies exist that tell the stories of Nevada's key political figures: Jerome Edwards' Patrick McCarran: Political Boss of Nevada (1982), Elizabeth Raymond's George Wingfield: Owner and Operator of Nevada (1992), William Rowley's Reclaiming the Arid West: The Career of Francis Newlands (1996) and Michael Archer's recent biography A Man of His Word: The Life & Times of Nevada's Senator William J. Raggio (2011). Other illuminating sources include the Nevada Historical Society Quarterly (first published in 1957 and available online).

This brief historiography only scratches the surface of the important library of Nevada historical studies.

In a state accustomed to volatility—the boom and busts of the mining camp and the recent recovery following the housing crisis of the Great Recession—Nevadans remain optimistic today about the future. As Nevada allures diversified businesses in energy development and a digital information economy, there's reason for optimism in what Governor Brian Sandoval describes as the “New Nevada.”

In 1980, Hulse wrote in Forty Years in the Wilderness that Nevada history falls “neatly into three forty-year periods”: the rise and fall of mining (1859-1899); a revival of mining and the second fall as Nevada recovered following the Great Depression (1900-1940); and the rise of gambling and welcoming of defense-related and military activities to the region (1940-1980).

What will future authors of Nevada history write about the State's now-completed fourth forty-year period and the “New Nevada?” That depends on the outcome of current hopes—and the people who take up the pen and write it.

CHEERS! NEVADA STATEHOOD CELEBRATIONS THROUGH THE YEARS

By PATRICIA D. CAFFERATA, Esq.

Author and Historian

Former State Treasurer, State Assemblywoman, and

District Attorney of Lincoln, Lander, and Esmeralda Counties

On October, 31, 1864, President Abraham Lincoln, with the stroke of his pen, admitted Nevada to the Union. Territorial Governor James Nye, campaigning for the U.S. Senate in Unionville in Humboldt County, learned via a telegraph line near a mining camp that Lincoln signed the proclamation declaring Nevada a state. When he announced Lincoln's actions to his friends, they quickly raised their glasses to toast the grand occasion. This marked the first of many celebrations of Nevada's admission to the Union. Ever since, Nevadans marked this milestone in their history with grand shindigs every 25 years, including the 150th anniversary—or sesquicentennial—in 2014.

25: Silver Birthday of the Silver State

On November 1, 1889, an article in Carson City's Morning Appeal described Nevada's first quarter century of existence. The column stated that the State joined the Union when "the Republic needed the sinews of war and Nevada's silver provided the sinews." The reporter expected that the high price of silver during the State's early years promised a bright future for its residents.

Alf Doten, the celebrated Comstock newsman, arranged a special banquet at the Capitol Rotisserie in Virginia City for the Pacific Coast Pioneers, those who had been on the West Coast since 1850. Later, he bragged that the food was sumptuous, and no empty seats were found around the table. Congressman Horace Bartine and F. M. Huffaker, the former Storey County district attorney and superintendent of schools, addressed the crowd on this auspicious occasion. Other old timers recalled their adventures since 1864, sang old favorites tunes and warmly recalled "when they looked to fill their pockets with that yellow dust, in the days of the Forty-nine."

That afternoon another event marked the State's anniversary at the university in Reno. Instructor Kate Tupper opened the program warbling her own lyrics to the tune of Hail to Columbia. One of her stanzas included: "Hail Nevada! Sun kissed land! Hail the heroes, dauntless band!"

Frank Norcross, a student who later graduated in the first university class and years later served as a justice of the Nevada Supreme Court, spoke about Nevada's birth and reminded his audience that the North and South were in full battle in the Civil War when Nevada became a state. He stated that President Lincoln needed another state loyal to the Union, not the Confederacy.

During his speech, Norcross pointed out that the Nevada Territory not only contributed soldiers to the Union cause, but also raised at least $200,000 for those wounded in the war with a clever election bet. In Austin, Nevada, storekeeper Reuel Gridley, a Democrat and Confederate sympathizer, bet Union supporter Dr. H.S. Herrick that the Democratic nominee would be elected mayor in the April 1864 election. If a Republican was elected and Gridley lost the bet, he agreed to carry a 50-pound sack of flour for a mile down the main street marching to the tune of “Old John Brown.” If Herrick lost and a Democrat was elected, he had to carry the sack marching to the tune of “Dixie.” Gridley lost the bet, and Herrick trimmed the flour sack in red, white and blue ribbons and stuck American flags to the bag before he gave it to Gridley to carry.

As he proceeded down the street, onlookers cheered and steam whistles blew. Gridley delivered the flour to Herrick with great flourish. Then, after much discussion, the crowd proposed to put the flour up for auction repeatedly selling it to raise money for the Sanitary Commission, the forerunner of the Red Cross, to benefit the Civil War wounded. After a large sum was raised, Gridley traveled to other Nevada towns and other states to auction the flour sack off to raise as much money as possible for the soldiers. Ultimately, he raised about $275,000 for the Sanitary Fund. Today, the famous Gridley sack is housed in the Nevada Historical Society’s collection of artifacts.

50: Golden Celebration in 1914

Governor Tasker Oddie proclaimed October 31, 1914, as the semi-centennial of Nevada’s statehood. To celebrate the occasion, Nevada Historical Society Director Jeanne Wier arranged a four-day celebration in Reno to mark the State’s 50th birthday.

The events began with a parade followed by the Pageant of Nevada History at the university’s Mackay Athletic Field. Bands from the Stewart Indian School and the University of Nevada provided music for the play. Three hundred men, women, and children from kindergarten to high school starred in the show.

The pageant depicted the State’s development with Native Americans playing the roles of their ancestors in the “early age” of the State. A later scene in the play reenacted the sale of the Gridley sack of flour in Austin. After Wier’s pageant, she arranged for a costume ball in the university’s gymnasium. To pay for the celebration, Wier charged 25 cents to attend the pageant and 50 cents for the dance.

On Friday, public school exercises were held in the afternoon. Wier suggested the students study some Nevada poems, such as, “Washoe, The Humboldt Desert” by Pacific Coast poet John Ridge; “The Lure of the Sagebrush” by Sam Davis and “To the Sierras” by California poet J. J. Owen. She also proposed the lesson plans include studying the national poem “The Flag” and the song “America.”

In 1917, the State published a 48-page hardbound book describing Wier's program and the details of Nevada's semi-centennial celebration of statehood.

75: Diamond Jubilee in 1939

In 1933, Governor Fred Balzar signed the bill designating October 31 as Admission Day, but the law failed to create the day as an official State holiday. Recognizing the significance of remembering the State's past, Balzar requested the residents observe the day celebrating the admission of Nevada into the Union.

In 1939, the Legislature appropriated money for the celebration and approved the bill establishing October 31 as Nevada Day, an official State holiday. The Legislative Committee on State Publicity passed Assembly Bill 283 appropriating $5,000 to celebrate the new holiday, the State Assembly and Senate passed the bill, and Governor Edward (Ted) Carville signed it. The act created a three-person committee appointed by the governor to plan the celebration. The committee members served as volunteers and were charged with determining the best way to publicize and remember the State's diamond jubilee.

Long-time District Court Judge Clark Guild, the general chair of the celebration, suggested the Reno parade be moved to the State capital in Carson City—a brilliant recommendation because more than 42,000 people, including 3,000 Native Americans, participated and enjoyed the three-day celebratory spree.

100: Centennial Birthday in 1964

Nevada's centennial was a yearlong celebration with special emphasis on the eight days leading up to Nevada Day in 1964. The Centennial Commission led by Tom Wilson began planning the activities in 1961. Many of Nevada's 17 counties created committees to prepare celebrations of the State's first 100 years.

Kicking off the start of the observance, Washoe County held a special lighting of the newly designed and installed Reno Arch on New Year's Eve. During the year dedicated monuments commemorating the State's 100th anniversary of statehood. Around the State, local governments and community groups scheduled and held various activities, such as pageants, television shows, bowling tournaments, fashion shows, fireworks, Indian festivals, and Pow Wows and a variety of other events. For example, in September, Bill Stead instituted the National Championship Air Races. The air show featured a cross-country race from St. Petersburg, Florida, military displays, pylon races, and acrobatic championships.

In Carson City, the townsfolk were invited to sample a gigantic cake in the shape of Nevada. The governor's wife, Bette Sawyer, used the sword of Henry Blasdel, Nevada's first governor, to cut the cake.

In 1964, one of the other main events was the Nevada Day Parade with 230 entries—the largest ever at the time. Actors from the show Bonanza—Loren Greene, Michael Landon and Dan Blocker—led the parade riding horseback as grand marshals. Governor Grant Sawyer presented “Adoption” plaques to the Bonanza television show cast. An estimated 70,000 people lined the main street in Carson to watch the procession of floats, marching bands, and other entries.

The federal government also recognized Nevada's 100th birthday by issuing a stamp that was released in Carson City on July 22, 1964. The stamp depicted a view of Virginia City with the shape of Nevada on the right side.

125: Quasquicentennial in 1989

Governor Richard Bryan appointed a committee to decide the events for celebration with Secretary of State Frankie Sue Del Papa as the chair.

In 1998, a major change in the Nevada Day celebrations occurred. The people voted to advise the Legislature that they would like to hold Nevada Day on the last Friday in October rather than on October 31. The Legislature agreed and voted to change the law making the last Friday in October Nevada Day, the official State holiday. The parade is now held on the last Saturday, so that the high school students from across the State can travel on Friday to be in Carson City for the parade the following day.

150: Sesquicentennial in 2014

As had been done in previous statehood celebrations, Governor Brian Sandoval appointed a planning committee in 2012 for the State's Sesquicentennial. Kathleen (Neena) Laxalt and Bob Brown served as the co-chairs of the committee. The committee met during the year and established a timeline for the celebration and proposed several projects, including the refurbishment of Nevada's historical roadside markers, a commemorative book, and legislation authorizing Sesquicentennial license plates to help fund the celebrations' activities.

In 2013, the Governor appointed a 13-person Sesquicentennial Commission with Lt. Governor Brian Krolicki as the chair of the Commission. No general fund moneys were appropriated for the planning committee or the Commission.

The Commission struck four different medallions at the Nevada State Museum in Carson City during the year. The designs featured the sesquicentennial logo, a miner, a big horn sheep, and a clever combination of the Las Vegas, Reno arch and Wendover Will signs.

Additionally, the Commission set aside up to $165,000 to refurbish the historical markers nearby highways across the State. Among other events, the Commission added a plaque to the Nevada State Veterans Memorial explaining the monument; a bronze relief of President Abraham Lincoln's head created by sculptor Benjamin Victor was hung in the State Senate chambers in the Legislative building; and two time capsules were buried in Carson City and Clark County with identical mementos reflecting the State's history.

Sandoval's wife reenacted Bette Sawyer's cutting of the Nevada shaped birthday cake, but she used Governor Charles Stevenson, the fifth governor's sword. The cake measured 21-feet long and 13-feet wide and weighed about 1,300 pounds.

For the first time, the residents celebrated Nevada Day with parades in Carson City, Las Vegas, Virginia City, and Elko. In Carson City, Kay Winters, widow of the late rancher JohnD Winters, a member of a pioneer Nevada family, served as the grand marshal of the parade. Sandoval followed her and led the 200 entries in the parade of marching bands, mounted groups, county floats, vehicles, commercial entries, and others.

On May 29, 2014, the U.S. Post Office issued a Forever Stamp of Fire Canyon in Nevada's first State park, the Valley of Fire. The dedication took place in the Smith Center for Performing Arts in Las Vegas with Sandoval, Krolicki, U.S. Senators Harry Reid and Dean Heller, stamp artist Ron Spears from Reno, and others in attendance.

Nevada's statehood celebrations aren't simply a day off work—they present a time to remember and learn about the State's history. These major celebrations also presented an opportunity to create new events that will later become part of the State's history. Additionally, events such as the National Championship Air Races and major parades are examples of the traditions established during statehood celebrations. Every year—and especially every 25 years—Nevadans are reminded of Lincoln's role in establishing the State and of all the important events that have occurred in Nevada since 1864.

THE “FIRST FRIEND”: THE POLITICAL BOND OF RONALD REAGAN AND PAUL LAXALT

By EDAN STREKAL

Often referred to as “the First Friend,” Paul Laxalt’s friendship and professional relationship with Ronald Reagan was well known and widely publicized. Laxalt, a longtime Republican public figure in Nevada, became a notable and highly visible player on the national political stage beginning in the mid-1970s. The son of Basque immigrants, Laxalt rose through Nevada’s political ranks to become the State’s twenty-second governor in 1967. Later, in 1974 he became the first Basque-American ever elected to the U.S. Senate serving until 1987. His tenure in office was marked by a dedication to conservative politics and his friendship with Ronald Reagan.

In 1950, after being discharged from the U.S. Army and receiving his law degree from Denver University, Laxalt returned to his hometown, Carson City, and ran for District Attorney of Ormsby County, defeating longtime incumbent, Dick Waters. After one term, Laxalt resigned in 1954 and practiced law for the following nine years.

Though Laxalt claimed that he was never overly influenced by partisan politics of either persuasion, he ran on the Republican ticket for lieutenant governor in 1962 against former congressman, Berkeley L. Bunker. During a campaign rally in Las Vegas, Laxalt’s running partner, Republican gubernatorial candidate Rex Bell, suffered a massive heart attack and died. Republican leaders across the State encouraged Laxalt to consider taking Bell’s place, but he declined and remained in the race for lieutenant governor. Laxalt’s family and volunteer-run grassroots, “shoe-leather” campaign in the “cow counties” coupled with ambitious radio and television ads aimed at Las Vegas (where he had very little name recognition) helped him to easily defeat Bunker. Laxalt served one term as lieutenant governor, under Democratic gubernatorial incumbent, Grant Sawyer from 1963 to 1967.

In 1964, Laxalt entered a tough race for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Howard Cannon. In one of the closest U.S. Senate elections ever, Cannon defeated Laxalt by 48 votes, which immediately raised suspicion of election fraud.

Meanwhile, Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater was competing on the national stage with Lyndon Johnson for the presidency. It was against this backdrop that Laxalt’s unique personal and political friendship with Ronald Reagan began. The two met at a 1964 Goldwater campaign event in California where Reagan gave his notable “Time for Choosing” speech. Two years later, each was elected governor of their respective neighboring states, Nevada and California.

In 1966, Laxalt challenged Governor Grant Sawyer on a platform that promoted cooperation with the federal government on issues of investigating corruption and organized crime in Nevada’s gaming industry. Laxalt defeated Sawyer by nearly 6,000 votes. As governor, Laxalt backed corporate ownership of gaming operations in Nevada (including Howard Hughes’ purchase of multiple hotel-casinos in Las Vegas). Additionally, Laxalt, in collaboration with Reagan, was integral in establishing the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency (TRPA) to protect and conserve Lake Tahoe. During their governorships, Reagan and Laxalt frequently visited back and forth between Sacramento and Carson City, occasionally meeting for skiing at Lake Tahoe.

After his governorship, Laxalt’s political activity was minimal. He focused his attention on his family, building and opening the Ormsby House hotel-casino and practicing law. He maintained occasional contact with Barry Goldwater, Richard Nixon, and Ronald Reagan, but that was the extent of his political dealings during that time. In 1973, however, U.S. Senator Alan Bible announced his plans to retire. In February 1974, Laxalt announced his candidacy, and easily won the Republican primary to face off against Democrat Harry Reid. By late 1974, the Republican Party was suffering from fallout created by the Watergate scandal and President Gerald Ford’s subsequent pardon of Richard Nixon. Laxalt defeated Reid by only 624 votes. Given the state of the Republican Party at the time, Laxalt’s victory was considered a major triumph.

Laxalt’s ability to accomplish much in the United States Senate during his first four years was curtailed because Republicans were the minority in both houses of Congress. In 1975, Laxalt found himself a minority within the minority when he made the decision to endorse Reagan to unseat President Ford in the looming Republican primary. Laxalt was the only U.S. Senator to back Reagan—serving as the chairman of his campaign. Though this decision was largely unpopular among his colleagues, polling numbers revealed Reagan was a credible conservative candidate seemingly free of the baggage of the Washington scene.

Voters gravitated toward his charisma and genuine appeal, which paved the way for a resurrection of the Republican Party and Reagan’s election to the presidency four years later in 1980. Following Reagan’s narrow loss in the 1976 primary, Laxalt went on to work for the Ford campaign in the general election. It has been suggested that Reagan’s insurgency within the Republican Party attributed to Ford’s eventual loss to Jimmy Carter in November 1976. The events of 1976, however, laid the groundwork for the 1980 presidential campaign and marked a period of revitalization in the conservative movement in America.

During the Carter Administration, Laxalt found himself as the leading conservative critic of the new administration—most notably for his opposition to the transfer of the Panama Canal to the Panamanian government. As the 1978 congressional midterm elections approached, Laxalt was thrust into the Senate spotlight where he became the leading conservative spokesman. Though they remained the minority in both the House and Senate, Laxalt's efforts contributed to an increase of Republicans entering the Senate in 1979. By that time, Laxalt gave up trying to fashion policy and instead turned his focus to issues that would be important in the 1980 presidential election including the Family Protection Act, encouragement of the Sagebrush Rebellion, and promotion of the Republican Party for the 1980 election.

For Laxalt, 1980 was to be a significant year. Not only was he up for reelection in the Senate, but Reagan was again seeking the presidency. Since Laxalt had spent the previous two years in the inner circle of advisors working on behalf of Reagan's candidacy, there was serious speculation that he might be considered for the vice president slot. He understood that strategically for the party his selection was impracticable. Although Laxalt may have been Reagan's personal choice, the more moderate George H. W. Bush, Reagan's strongest opponent in the primary elections, was selected as running mate.

The events of 1980 were indeed pleasing to Laxalt. Not only was he reelected by an overwhelming margin over his liberal opponent, Mary Gojack, but the Republicans gained control of the Senate for the first time since 1954, and Reagan defeated Jimmy Carter by a landslide, receiving 489 electoral votes. After Reagan's election, the media began referring to Laxalt as "the First Friend." Republicans, Laxalt especially, believed that the stage was set for a "great new beginning."

In the 1982 midterm elections, Republicans maintained a majority in the Senate losing only one seat, but the Democrats cemented their majority in the House by gaining 27 seats. The gains made by the Democrats were largely a result of Reagan's unpopularity, which was brought on by a deepening recession. Voters blamed the downturn on Reagan's economic policies, but despite some national dissension, those close to Reagan, like Laxalt, believed that the prospects for reelection were bright—much brighter than they had been in 1980.

By 1984, the economy had rebounded and Reagan's popularity resurged—making him one of the most popular presidents in modern American history. As the 1984 election cycle began, Laxalt was at the zenith of his political career. He was the general chairman of the Republican Party, chairman for Reagan's reelection effort, chairman of two legislative subcommittees, and the spokesman for Republican causes. Laxalt was the intermediary between the president and his Senate colleagues of both parties. As Laxalt had done two times before in 1976 and 1980, he again nominated Reagan at the Republican National Convention, in Dallas. Laxalt and his colleagues in the Republican National Committee had begun planning for the convention as early as 1982. There was very little doubt within the party that Reagan would seek reelection in 1984. Due to an economic boom, lower inflation, reduced tax rates, decreased unemployment and a robust gross national product, Reagan and his supporters in Congress enjoyed a high degree of popularity.

Shortly after the successes in 1984, though, Laxalt privately decided it was the appropriate time to make a graceful exit from the Senate. Amidst pressure from friends, colleagues and staffers and after much self-reflection, Laxalt retreated to Marlette Lake, his Sierra Nevada refuge and decided to retire in 1987. He offered his support to Jim Santini who ran a hard campaign, but lost to then-Congressman Harry Reid. Despite losing Laxalt's seat to the Democrats, the Republicans managed to hold a slight majority in the Senate. Although Laxalt tossed around the idea of running for the presidency in 1988, and even formed an exploratory committee, he eventually abandoned the effort when he failed to raise his campaign funding goal. He remained politically active, though, helping with Bush's campaign in 1988 and acting as an advisor for Bob Dole's 1996 presidential bid. Laxalt continued to work in Washington as a political consultant and lobbyist with his business, "The Paul Laxalt Group," but maintained his ties with his home state and his beloved Marlette Lake.

Laxalt's legacy is lasting, from humble beginnings as the son of a Basque shepherd to national prominence as the best friend of one of America's most beloved and admired presidents. His independent instincts and distinctive political style enabled him to accomplish many of his goals. On August 2, 2012, Governor Brian Sandoval declared that that date should be designated as "Paul Laxalt Day" in Nevada.

NEVADA SENATORS HISTORICALLY WIELD NATIONAL POLITICAL POWER

By MICHAEL S. GREEN, Ph.D.
Professor, University of Nevada, Las Vegas

With Harry Reid's retirement from the U.S. Senate at the end of 2016, Nevada will have two U.S. Senators in their first full terms in office for the first time since Reid's first term, a quarter of a century ago. That development is unusual in Nevada's history, and a reminder of how the State gained and wielded national political power—and how Nevada does and does not fit what the framers of the U.S. Constitution intended. Nevadans often have kept their U.S. Senators in office long enough for them to gain influence disproportionate to the State's population.

The Great Compromise at the Constitutional Convention of 1787 created a bicameral Congress with a House of Representatives elected to two-year terms by the voting public and generally representing equally sized districts, and a Senate with two members from every state, regardless of size. Until the passage of the Seventeenth Amendment in 1913 for voters to choose their senators, state legislatures made the selections.

The founding fathers had no plans to create a democracy. Alexander Hamilton, one of the delegates to the convention, called the public "a great beast." Thomas Jefferson, one of the more democratically inclined founders, never contemplated African American or female voters. Accordingly, they expected the Senate to serve as a check on the House, whose members would presumably be more susceptible to popular pressure. The Senate would provide a check in a related way: by giving each state equal power in one of the houses of Congress.

But some states proved more equal than others. Nevada exemplifies this point. Since statehood in 1864, many of Nevada's U.S. Senators have wound up holding key leadership roles in the Senate. They have benefited from the Senate's long-standing seniority system, but they could not have done so if their State's voters had not kept them in office—and they have. Indeed, seven of Nevada's U.S. Senators have served for at least 20 years, and figured out how to deliver federal assistance to their State or, in turn, stop some federal actions that they and others saw as harmful. What the five who have done so have accomplished in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries speaks to the way Nevadans have made the system work for their State.

Key Pittman won his first term in 1912 and died five days after being reelected in 1940, prompting the conspiracy theory that he had been dead before winning the race (actually, he was dying). The Democrat benefited from the benevolent neglect of George Wingfield, who was the State's political and economic boss until he went bankrupt in the Great Depression and believed that Nevada benefited if it had a senator on each side of the aisle. In 1932, Pittman was one of Franklin Roosevelt's leading campaign advisers, and FDR's landslide carried Democrats to control of the Senate again after a dozen years. Pittman became chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and President Pro Tempore. Whatever Roosevelt wanted to do in foreign policy, Pittman was part of it—and that meant keeping Pittman happy. That Nevada led the country in per capita federal spending on New Deal projects was no coincidence.

In 1932, Wingfield's economic collapse, Roosevelt's coattails, and an influx of new Democratic voters helped elect Pat McCarran to the Senate on his sixth try. Once there, McCarran was determined never to leave and built a formidable political machine. He sought control of the State party and all patronage appointments. He emphasized constituent service and created scores of patronage jobs for young Nevadans who worked their way through law school by moving to Washington, D.C., then returning to Nevada to practice law and aid their benefactor. McCarran won a national reputation for his crusade against communism, which many Nevada voters supported. But, most importantly, McCarran understood power and how to get it on Capitol Hill. He maneuvered himself onto two key committees, Judiciary and Appropriations, right after his election, and eventually chaired the former and headed subcommittees on the latter. Every federal judicial appointment required McCarran's support, and he took advantage of his position to help Nevada win military bases and atomic testing, and to help Nevadans with any number of problems personal and financial. One of his patronage appointees, Ralph Denton, hoping to avoid a military assignment overseas, sought McCarran's help and wound up meeting with the chief of staff of the U.S. Army, who gave Denton a post near the Capitol and then said, "Would you do a favor for me? Now, would you keep that gray-haired old ----- off my back?" That is power.

After McCarran's death in 1954, Alan Bible, his first patronage appointee two decades before, won and stayed until his retirement in 1974. Bible was more self-effacing than his mentor, but he learned how to use the levers of power. He became close to Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, who repaid him for his support by putting Bible on Appropriations, positioning him to send federal funds to Nevada. Bible parlayed that position and his friendship with Johnson into pushing the Southern Nevada Water Project through Congress. The SNWP made it possible to pump enough Lake Mead water into the Las Vegas valley to propel the area's population and economic growth. Although Bible came from rural Nevada and lived in northern Nevada, he did a great deal to make possible The Mirage's volcano, the Bellagio's fountains, and the Venetian's gondoliers.

As a U.S. Senator from 1959 to 1983, Howard Cannon became known as "Mr. Aviation." A onetime Army flyer who often would test-fly new proposed planes himself, Cannon pushed for the expansion of Nellis Air Force Base and other military installations in Nevada. He teamed with Bible on the water bill. He and Bible also engineered a federal rebate of slot machine taxes and a major tax reduction for the State's betting operators. Cannon also fashioned the bill that led to airline deregulation, at the time creating a boom and a boon for Nevada's tourist economy.

Elected to the Senate in 1986 after two terms in the House, Harry Reid engineered an agreement on water rights issues that had vexed northern Nevadans for decades, and went on to obtain funding for airport expansions and federal projects around the State. Even before moving up to majority leader (2007-2015), he did more than any other official to block the Yucca Mountain nuclear waste repository—which Congress had approved in 1987, when Nevada had a pair of first-term U.S. Senators without the power to stop it.

Yet seniority has its limits. What also can matter are personal relationships, as Pittman's friendship with Roosevelt and Bible's closeness to Johnson suggest. Reid even suggested to a then-freshman senator named Barack Obama that he think about running for president, and as majority leader, Reid became a national lightning rod as Obama's supporter, defender, and key legislative operative.

No personal relationship between a U.S. Senator from Nevada and a leader won more national attention than that of Paul Laxalt and Ronald Reagan. Both became governors of their respective states in 1966 and worked on issues of mutual interest to California and Nevada. They became close friends in the process. Laxalt chose not to seek a second term as governor in 1970, but, as Reagan was leaving the California governor's office in 1974, Laxalt sought and won the U.S. Senate seat from which Bible was retiring.

When Reagan challenged President Gerald Ford for the Republican nomination in 1976, Laxalt, having barely begun his Senate tenure, served as his national campaign chair. Laxalt did the same in 1980, and Reagan wanted the Nevada to be his running-mate, but Laxalt said no, pointing out that being from a neighboring western state and sharing the same conservative ideology, he would add nothing to the ticket, in contrast to the more moderate George H.W. Bush. But with Reagan's election, Laxalt rejected pleas to run for the post of Senate GOP leader and instead became known as the "First Friend."

In that position, Laxalt helped Nevada. How much he did remains open to debate, for a couple of reasons. Laxalt made clear that he wanted to avoid taking advantage of a close personal friendship. Also, because they were so close, Reagan and Laxalt had no great need to correspond, meaning that they wrote little to nothing to each other about issues of importance to Nevada. But speculation continues that Laxalt helped dissuade Reagan from continuing Jimmy Carter's administration's commitment to the MX, a controversial and costly missile system proposed for southern Nevada and southern Utah. Laxalt also brought numerous Nevadans into national politics and government, including advertising executive Sig Rogich as a party image maker, Reno attorney Frank Fahrenkopf as national party chair (and he later served as the founding president of the American Gaming Association and a founder and later co-chair of the Commission on Presidential Debates), and southern Nevada politician Bob Broadbent as commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation. For a State whose image suggested that everyone who lived there was a cowboy or a mobster, it was a significant step that Laxalt made possible.

That the senators from Nevada who gained power within the Senate were Democrats is not a partisan statement so much as a reality: since 1900, Democrats have held Senate seats far more than Republicans have, and the Democratic party dominated that body so thoroughly that between 1932 and 1980, Republicans controlled Congress for only four years. Both sides have used the seniority system to their advantage, and senators from smaller states have understood its value for protecting their interests. Few states have played the game as well as Nevada.

NEVADA AND THE FEDERAL ESTATE

By WILLIAM D. ROWLEY, Ph.D.
Professor, University of Nevada, Reno

About 86 percent—or just more than 60 million acres—of Nevada’s approximate 110,000 square miles of mountainous ranges and basins remains in the hands of the federal government. Since Nevada’s 1864 admission to the Union, the omnipresence of federal land ownership forged controversies and opportunities for Nevada. Like other western states, only more so, Nevada’s rugged sagebrush-dotted lands and arid mountain sides invited only minimal private land ownership other than urban centers clustered about gold and silver mining strikes. By the twentieth century, Nevada contained the largest federal estate percentage-wise followed by: Utah, 63 percent; Idaho, 62; Oregon, 53; Wyoming, 49; Arizona, 47; California, 45; Colorado, 36; New Mexico, 32; Washington, 28; Montana, 28. Much seemingly worthless land, and certainly bad lands, offered little inducement for purchase and alienation from the public domain under the various land laws Congress passed for the sale and distribution of its public domain in the West.

Ranking first among the western public land states often draws charges that Nevada is a victim of the federal government’s determination to own the West. However, even the Nevada Constitution conspires to restrain Nevada from its proper destiny in the family states by prohibiting the State forever to claim the federal land. Congress’s 1864 Enabling Act, which authorized Nevada to make the transition from a territorial government to statehood, demanded that Nevada include in its State Constitution the words “forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands” and that such lands would “always remain at the sole and entire disposition of the United States.” While it is true that Nevada came into the Union at the end of the Civil War under the aegis of a federal government determined to assert its paramount sovereignty over the states, the restrictive disclaimer did not single out Nevada. Other states before and after the Civil War entered the Union with similar admonitions. This is to say that the federal government historically guarded its ownership of western lands.

From the republic’s beginning under the Articles of Confederation the central government owned the western lands. During the Revolutionary War, states with claims to western lands ceded them to the Confederation government. The 1783 Treaty of Paris, ending war with Great Britain, recognized the sovereignty of the United States to the Mississippi River—which entirely ignored indigenous rights. Both sovereignty over and ownership of western lands went together. In subsequent acquisitions across the continent the fusion of the two continued: Louisiana Purchase, 1803; Florida, 1819; Oregon, 1846; the Mexican Cession in 1848, which included Nevada, according to the terms of the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo (with the exception of the annexation of Texas in 1845 when Texas retained ownership of its public lands). Sovereignty, of course, was malleable and shared with the states as the federal state system expanded westward. But the central government’s ownership of acquired lands remained a constant in the midst of state making.

Soon after the Revolutionary War, the Confederation Congress approved the Land Ordinance of 1785 that devised a grid system of townships and ranges imposing rectilinear boundaries and dimensions on the land for its orderly dispersal through sale and grants from the central government. With no direct taxation power the Confederation looked to its ownership and sale of western lands as a revenue stream to support its operations into the distant future. To say the least, western land ownership was of crucial importance to the central government and remained so after the establishment of the federal system under the new Constitution in 1789.

Nevada’s environment and topography presented special problems for the sale and distribution of public domain lands. For example, the State was not at all similar to Iowa where the land was rich throughout for agricultural possibilities. By the 1830s settlers and squatters eagerly staked land claims and purchased acreage in Iowa at local land offices established by the General Land Office. This was not so in Nevada where Americans mostly clustered in mining towns with the Comstock being the most prominent and famous by the early 1860s. In 1863, Congress, in part, responded to the Nevada situation with the passage of a Townsite Act that opened the sale of town lots for purchase in a bidding process wherein lots must not be sold less than the appraised value. Also, surface ownership did not include mineral rights. Mining claims fell under the rules of local mining districts with their “local traditions and customs.” Along rivers and around other water sources ranch operations started in the territorial years (1861-1864) as squatters took up land without formal land patents or claims under any of the federal land laws: the Pre-emption Act (1841) and the Homestead Act (1862). Even when land was successfully acquired under the various land laws, the acreage usually did not extend far from water sources leaving vast adjacent sagebrush and arid spaces still in the public domain.

After the Central Pacific Railroad (later the Southern Pacific) built its route across northern Nevada to Utah in 1868 and 1869, it was the largest private land holder in Nevada with approximately five million acres of land. As a land grant railroad, the Central Pacific received from the federal government every other section of land (one square mile) in a checker board pattern 20 miles on either side of its also granted 500 feet of right of way. While it could use its land grants as collateral to finance borrowing for construction, the sale of railroad land was disappointing to say the least. The government, of course, retained its sections in the forty-mile-wide swath through the State, but it too found little success in disposing lands even in proximity to the railroad. Congress also tried with the 1893 Carey Act to give land to the State for it to sponsor and administer the irrigation of lands, but Nevada state government failed to move forward with the program.

So valueless were most Nevada lands that the General Land Office did not bother to survey them. With no rectilinear survey, there could be no identification of the school lands promised by Congress to the states. The original 1785 Land Ordinance designated section 16 and 36 of each township to be donated to the state for the support of the common schools. Nevada was entitled to over three million acres of school lands, but without a survey they could not be identified nor could they in all probability be sold after a survey. In 1880, Nevada and Congress negotiated a solution. In exchange for Nevada reducing its school land claims, Congress donated to the State 2 million random acres of public domain. The State in turn invited buyers to select land parcels, in some cases as small as 40 acres, for purchase at $1.25 an acre under generous credit terms. Buyers, usually ranch operations, chose lands around water sources and in ribbon like parcels along streams. Sale of “selected lands” proceeded at a quick pace with the consequent monopolization of water sources, largely by early ranch enterprises. Beyond land ownership adjacent to water sources the vast public domain of Nevada remained intact in the hands of the federal government to be used mostly as free open range by stock operators.

A resource open to all invited many users, but in Nevada monopolization of water sources made access by newcomers difficult and fraught with conflict, especially between cattle and sheep grazers. Water was the key to more land utilization in the view of Nevada and national advocates for the irrigation of the arid lands of the West. And while private irrigation projects brought some lands under the ditch in valleys with perennially running streams, other lands required larger investments beyond the means local enterprises. With the Reclamation Act of 1902, Congress provided national funding. Still federal reclamation projects only served a miniscule number of acres in the vast federal estate in Nevada.

During the Presidency of Theodore Roosevelt from 1901 to 1909, the first federal management of public domain lands came to Nevada with the designation of National Forests largely in the high mountain ranges running north to south in the State. About 11 percent of the State came under the management of National Forests whose administration also imposed grazing regulations limiting the number the stock, the kind of stock and season of graze. Generally, U.S. Forest Service grazing regulations favored cattle ranchers who were issued grazing permits limiting the number of stock, designating the locality of graze, and restricting the season or months of grazing from spring into the fall. Beyond the Forest Service's lands, the public domain remained open with unregulated range use causing a continuation of conflicts over water and range, especially as itinerant sheep herds moved through the state's open ranges. In 1916, Congress tried to address the public range problem by giving away more land with the Stockmen's Homestead Law that granted 640 acres of lands for ranch operations. Few applied in Nevada as the range problem persisted through the 1920s with many cattle ranchers petitioning for the expansion of the National Forest system to bring more of the public domain under Forest Service grazing regulations to protect it from roving sheep bands. In desperation, the 1931 Nevada Legislature extended state police powers over the public ranges to protect life and property, but with no administrative apparatus for enforcement.

In 1929, President Herbert Hoover's administration offered a solution to the public domain problem in the West hoping to satisfy both federal government and the states. It proposed to grant the remaining public domain to the states, but without the mineral rights. Western state governors and legislatures turned down the offer with Idaho's U.S. Senator William Borah declaring the land grant was "like handing (the states) an orange with the juice sucked out of it." As the impasse continued into the Great Depression and New Deal years, Congress passed the Taylor Grazing Act in 1934 that authorized the organization of grazing districts by local range users to regulate grazing affairs and eventually a Grazing Service to administer and oversee the operation of grazing districts. All was brought to an end by Senator Patrick McCarran in 1944-1945 when he derailed funding for the Grazing Service. In response, President Harry Truman by executive order created the Bureau of Land Management in 1946 to replace the longstanding General Land Office in the Department of Interior.

Today, two principal land management agencies administer most of the public lands in Nevada—the U.S. Forest Service in the Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Land Management in the Department of Interior. In 1976, Congress passed the Federal Land Policy Management Act (FLPMA) to give more authority to the Bureau of Land Management as it moved to comply with requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969-1970. Among other provisions, FLPMA declared that the Department of Interior was the permanent owner of the public lands. The lands would never move to the tax rolls of local governments. To soften this realization, Congress in the same year passed Public Law 94-565 for payment in lieu of taxes to compensate local governments for the land owned in perpetuity by the federal government. The law authorized payments to state and local governments from revenues collected on grazing fees and timber sales.

Still, such measures did not quell fears in some circles, especially in Nevada, over the assertion of a permanent federal ownership of public lands and the enforcement on these lands of new environmental compliances growing out of NEPA and Endangered Species Acts. In 1977, Nevada's legislature launched what became known as the "Sagebrush Rebellion" to persuade and even compel the federal government to cede the public lands to the states either through congressional action or court decisions. The movement did not succeed when federal courts ruled against the arguments and Congress did not act. Since those events of the late 1970s and early 1980s, an uneasy truce has prevailed around the permanent presence of the federal government as a manager and protector of public land resources with occasional flare ups in the form of misguided local attempts to defy federal management authority.

THE COZY HISTORY OF POLITICIANS AND THE FOURTH ESTATE IN NEVADA

By SEAN WHALEY

Journalist, Las Vegas Review-Journal

I shall not often meddle with politics, because we have a political Editor who is already excellent and only needs to serve a term or two in the penitentiary to be perfect. – Mark Twain, a Biography

Newspapers and the public officials they put under the microscope on a regular basis go together nowadays like toothpaste and orange juice, but it was not always so. While the two sides look warily at each other when the Nevada Legislature is in session every other year, there was a time when the three branches of government and the Fourth Estate had a more cozy relationship. Especially when those newspapers were owned by public officials themselves. One notable example is Vail Pittman, who served as Nevada's nineteenth governor from 1945 to 1951 while at the same time owning the Ely Daily Times. Prior to his foray into the newspaper business, another notable Nevadan and future politician, Charles Russell, served as editor of The Ely Record starting in 1929.

In their book The Newspapers of Nevada: A History and Bibliography, 1854-1979, authors Richard Lingenfelter and Karen Rix Gash noted that “Russell used the paper to further his political career, winning six consecutive terms in the Nevada Legislature, beginning in 1935.” Russell retired as editor in 1946 when Pittman bought out the rival Ely newspaper. But Russell went on to serve in Congress and later became Nevada’s 20th governor, serving from 1951 to 1959. Pittman, a Democrat, and Russell, a Republican, were political rivals, with Russell defeating Pittman twice for governor.

The importance of a newspaper’s support for a politician was made clear in 1944, when Pittman ran in a Democratic primary against Senator Pat McCarran, D-Nevada. In Jake Highton’s book Nevada Newspaper Days - A History of Journalism in the Silver State, he wrote that Pittman found he could not get his ads in the Pioche paper because the owner was a McCarran backer. “With no other in the Pioche circulation area, Pittman put out a one-issue, four-page newspaper for free distribution,” Highton wrote. But Cannon won the primary and in later years worked against his fellow Democrat when he ran for governor against Russell in 1950.

Other examples of the overlap between politicians and the press include Walter Cox, a native of Virginia City who learned the newspaper business when his father purchased the Mason Valley News in 1919 and the Yerington Times in 1932. Cox went on to serve in both the State Assembly and Senate and is known for the Mason Valley News slogan: “The Only Newspaper in the World That Gives a Damn About Yerington.” Cox also served on the Nevada Gaming Commission, the Nevada Planning Commission, and the Yerington City Council and as president of the Nevada State Press Association.

Another Nevadan who walked the line between newspapers and politics was Warren (Snowy) Monroe, publisher of the late Elko Independent who served in the State Senate. Mike O’Callaghan, who moved into the newspaper business after his stint as Nevada’s twenty-third governor from 1971 to 1979 and served as executive editor of the Las Vegas Sun, recalled Monroe in a 1988 “Where I Stand” column. O’Callaghan was also the publisher of the Henderson Home News and Boulder City News. “Snowy was also a State Senator during my years as governor and he protected Elko in both debate and print,” O’Callaghan recalled in a column he wrote when he was inducted into the Nevada Newspaper Hall of Fame. “He held the speed record driving from Carson City to Elko. Every highway patrolman knew him and several of them gave him tickets.” So much for the power of the press.

In the newspaper world of today, where profits have been hard to come by due to changes in technology and reader habits, a new breed of wealthy individuals have invested in prominent publications. In Nevada, Sheldon Adelson and his family purchased the Las Vegas Review-Journal. Elsewhere, the Washington Post is owned by Amazon.com founder Jeff Bezos, the Boston Globe was purchased by Boston Red Sox owner John Henry, and the Minneapolis Star-Tribune is owned by Minnesota Timberwolves owner Glen Taylor. It remains to be seen whether this trend will lead to a new era of newspaper owners seeking political office.

The presence of Nevada's earliest inhabitants, beginning about 12,400 years ago, is marked by many petroglyphs and archaeological sites. Baskets, decoys, and ingenious traps are evidence of the resourcefulness of these early people in a harsh and arid environment.

European explorers traveled through Nevada in the early 19th century, but it was not until 1851 that the first settlements were established. An Act of Congress created the Territory of Nevada on March 2, 1861. James W. Nye of New York was appointed Nevada's first Territorial Governor by President Abraham Lincoln later that year. On October 31, 1864, President Lincoln proclaimed Nevada's admission to the Union as the 36th state. The State's first elected Governor, Henry Blasdel, took office on December 5, 1864.

Today, Nevada is the nation's seventh largest state in land area. Several hundred mountain ranges cross its landscape, many with elevations over 10,000 feet. In contrast, the State's lowest point (along the Colorado River) is only 470 feet above sea level. From majestic mountains to desert valleys, nature has endowed Nevada with diverse and unique ecosystems.

The Nevada Legislature has honored the State's natural resources and cultural heritage with a variety of State designations described on this and the following pages.

1. State Animal (NRS 235.070)
Desert Bighorn Sheep

The Desert Bighorn Sheep (Ovis canadensis nelsoni) is smaller than its Rocky Mountain cousin but has a wider spread of horns. The bighorn is well-suited for Nevada's mountainous desert country because it can survive for long periods without water. The large rams stand about 4.5 feet tall and can weigh as much as 175 pounds.

2. State Artifact (NRS 235.085)
Tule Duck Decoy

This decoy was created almost 2,000 years ago. Discovered by archeologists in 1924 during an excavation at Lovelock Cave, the decoys are formed of bundles of bulrush (tule) stems, bound together and shaped to resemble canvasback ducks.

3. State Bird (NRS 235.060)
Mountain Bluebird

The Mountain Bluebird (Sialia currucoides) lives in the Nevada high country and destroys many harmful insects. It is a member of the thrush family, and its song is a clear, short warble like the caroling of a robin. The male is azure blue with a white belly, while the female is brown with a bluish rump, tail, and wings.

4. State Colors (NRS 235.025)

Silver and Blue

5. State Fish (NRS 235.075) Lahontan Cutthroat Trout

The Lahontan Cutthroat Trout (Salmo clarki henshawi), a native trout found in 14 of the State's 17 counties, is adapted to habitats ranging from high mountain creeks and alpine lakes to warm, intermittent lowland streams and alkaline lakes where no other trout can live.

6. State Flower (NRS 235.050)

Sagebrush

The Sagebrush (Artemisia tridentata or trifida) grows abundantly in the deserts of the western U.S. A member of the wormwood family, sagebrush is a branching bush (1 to 12 feet high) and grows in regions where other kinds of vegetation cannot subsist. Known for its pleasant aroma, gray-green twigs, and pale yellow flowers, sagebrush is an important winter food for sheep and cattle.

7. State Fossil (NRS 235.080)

The Ichthyosaur

This fossil (genus Shonisaurus) was found in Berlin, east of Gabbs. Nevada is the only state to possess a complete skeleton (approximately 55 feet long) of this extinct marine reptile. Ichthyosaurs (a name meaning "fish lizards") were predatory reptiles that filled the same ecological niche as—and quite resembled in body form—the dolphins of today, only many of them were much larger.

8. State Gemstones (1 of 2)*(NRS 235.100)

Precious Gemstone—Virgin Valley Black Fire Opal. Among the many gemstones found in Nevada, the Virgin Valley Black Fire Opal is one of the most beautiful. The Virgin Valley in northern Nevada is the only place in North America where the Black Fire Opal is found in any significant quantity.

8. State Gemstones (2 of 2)*(NRS 235.110)

Semiprecious Gemstone—Nevada Turquoise. Sometimes called the “Jewel of the Desert,” Nevada Turquoise is found in many parts of the State.

9. State Grass (NRS 235.055)*Indian Ricegrass

Indian Ricegrass (Oryzopsis hymenoides), once a staple food source for Nevada Indians, now provides valuable feed for wildlife and range livestock. This tough native grass, which is found throughout the State, is known for its ability to reseed and establish itself on sites damaged by fire or overgrazing.

10. State Insect (NRS 235.062)*Vivid Dancer Damselfly

The Vivid Dancer Damselfly (Argia vivida) is abundant in springs and ponds in all four regions of Nevada. The adult male is a rich blue with clear wings that appear silver when rapidly beating in sunlight, while most females are either tan or tan and gray.

11. State Locomotives
(NRS 235.135) Engine No. 40

The steam locomotive known as Engine No. 40 was built in 1910. Engine No. 40 is currently located in East Ely, Nevada.

12. State March (NRS 235.035) “Silver State Fanfare”

The March was composed by Gerald Willis and codified by the Nevada Legislature in 2001.

13. State Metal (NRS 235.090) Silver (Ag)

In 2013, over 8.5 million ounces of silver were produced in Nevada.

14. State Reptile (NRS 235.065)
Desert Tortoise

The Desert Tortoise (Gopherus agassizii) lives in the extreme southern parts of Nevada. This reptile spends much of its life in underground burrows to escape the harsh summer heat and winter cold. It can live to be more than 70 years old.

15. State Rock (NRS 235.120)
Sandstone

In its more traditionally recognized form as quartzite, sandstone is found throughout the State. In areas such as the Valley of Fire State Park and Red Rock Canyon National Conservation Area (both near Las Vegas), it provides some of Nevada’s most spectacular scenery. The State Capitol and the former U.S. Mint are built of sandstone.

16. State Soil (NRS 235.115) Orovada Soil Series

Orovada soils are extensive in northern Nevada, where they have an area of more than 360,000 acres. They are common soils on semiarid rangeland with sagebrush-grass plant communities. Orovada soils are arable when irrigated and are considered prime farmland. Alfalfa for hay and seed, winter wheat and barley, and grass for hay and pasture are the principal crops grown on these soils.

17. State Song (NRS 235.030) “Home Means Nevada”

In 1933, the Legislature adopted “Home Means Nevada” as the official State song. Mrs. Bertha Raffetto of Reno wrote the song to honor the State.

18. State Tartan (NRS 235.130)

Some colors of the tartan represent the following features that make Nevada a unique and bountiful State:

- Blue represents one of the state colors of Nevada, the pristine waters of Lake Tahoe, and the Mountain Bluebird, the official state bird;
- Silver represents the other state color, the official state mineral, the granite composition of the Sierra Nevada Mountain Range, and the silver country of northern Nevada;
- Red represents the Virgin Valley Black Fire Opal, the official state precious gemstone, and the red rock formations of southern Nevada;
- Yellow represents Sagebrush, the official state flower, and symbolizes the Great Basin Region of central Nevada; and
- White represents the name of this state, meaning snow-covered, which is the translation of the Spanish word “nevada.”

19. State Tree (1 of 2) (NRS 235.040)

The Single-Leaf Pinon (Pinus monophylla) is an aromatic pine tree with short, stiff needles and gnarled branches. The tree grows in coarse, rocky soils and rock crevices. Though its normal height is about 15 feet, the Single-Leaf Pinon can grow as high as 50 feet under ideal conditions.

19. State Tree (2 of 2) (NRS 235.040)

The Bristlecone Pine (Pinus longaeva) is the oldest living thing on Earth, with some specimens in Nevada more than 4,000 years old. The tree can be found at high elevations. Normal height for older trees is about 15 to 30 feet, although some have attained a height of 60 feet. Diameter growth continues throughout the long life of the tree, resulting in massive trunks with a few contorted limbs.

OFFICIAL STATE SONG

At the 1933 Session, the Legislature adopted a state song entitled "Home Means Nevada," written by Mrs. Bertha Raffetto of Reno, Nevada. Following are the lyrics of this song:

Home Means Nevada

Way out in the land of the setting sun,
Where the wind blows wild and free,
There's a lovely spot, just the only one
That means home sweet home to me.

If you follow the old Kit Carson trail,
Until the desert meets the hills,
Oh, you certainly will agree with me,
It's the place of a thousand thrills.

Chorus:

"Home" means Nevada,
"Home" means the hills,
"Home" means the sage and the pines.
Out by the Truckee's silvery rills,
Out where the sun always shines,
There is a land that I love the best,
Fairer than all I can see.
Right in the heart of the golden west
"Home" means Nevada to me.

Whenever the sun at the close of day
Colors all the western sky,
Oh, my heart returns to the desert grey
And the mountains tow'ring high.

Where the moon beams play in shadowed glen,
With the spotted fawn and doe
All the livelong night until morning light
Is the loveliest place I know.

LEGAL HOLIDAYS AND DAYS OF OBSERVANCE IN NEVADA

Currently, Nevada law declares 11 days as legal holidays and requires that all State, county, and city offices; courts; banks; savings and loan associations; public schools; and Nevada's System of Higher Education be closed on these days. These holidays are as follows:

- January 1 (New Year's Day)
- Third Monday in January (Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Birthday)
- Third Monday in February (Presidents' Day)
- Last Monday in May (Memorial Day)
- July 4 (Independence Day)
- First Monday in September (Labor Day)
- Last Friday of October (Nevada Day)
- November 11 (Veterans Day)
- Fourth Thursday in November (Thanksgiving Day)
- Friday following the fourth Thursday in November (Family Day)
- December 25 (Christmas Day)

State law also allows such a holiday for "any day that may be appointed by the President of the United States for public fast, Thanksgiving or as a legal holiday except for any Presidential appointment of the fourth Monday in October as Veterans Day." (NRS 236.015)

It has not always been thus. In 1865, the Nevada Legislature specified certain days on which the Courts of Justice would not be open, but it was not until 1931 that the Legislature declared that all public offices would be closed to commemorate a particular holiday. In 1955, the Legislature first established the list of official holidays, based on the nonjudicial days.

The nonjudicial days approved in 1865 were:

- January 1, New Year's Day
- February 22, Washington's Birthday
- July 4, Independence Day
- Thanksgiving Day
- December 25, Christmas Day
- Election Day

In 1883, May 30, Memorial Day, was added to this list. Six additional days were provided for in 1927:

- February 12, Lincoln's Birthday
- First Monday in September, Labor Day
- October 12, Columbus Day
- October 31, Admission Day
- November 11, Armistice Day
- Primary Election Day

In 1931, a bill was approved to close all public offices on November 11 for the commemoration of Armistice Day. In 1939, a similar bill was passed, declaring October 31 as Nevada Day.

Apparently, it was traditionally the practice of the Governor to declare public holidays. The 1933 Legislature formally delegated this authority to the Governor and ratified all previous holiday proclamations, but did not specifically list the holidays that were to be recognized.

In 1955, the Legislature passed the first bill that provided a list of days on which all public offices would be closed each year. Those days were January 1, May 30, July 4, the first Monday in September, October 31, November 11, Thanksgiving Day, and December 25. In addition, the Legislature recognized the authority of the President of the U.S. and the Governor of the State of Nevada to declare any additional public holidays.

This list has been amended rarely in the past 41 years. In 1969, February 22, Washington's Birthday, was added; the day of commemoration was altered to be the third Monday in February in 1971. Also in 1971, Memorial Day was changed from May 20 to the last Monday in May; Veterans' Day was changed from November 11 to the fourth Monday in October; and Thanksgiving Day was specified as the fourth Thursday in November. (These amendments were actually made by the 1969 Session of the Nevada Legislature and became effective on January 1, 1971.)

The 1975 Legislature restored Veterans' Day to November 11. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Birthday, the third Monday in January, and Family Day, the Friday after Thanksgiving, were added in 1987. Columbus Day, October 12, was on this list only once: in 1992, a legal holiday was provided to recognize the 500th anniversary of the arrival of Cristoforo Colombo in the New World. The 1997 Nevada Legislature referred an advisory ballot question to the voters to determine if Nevada Day should be observed on the last Friday in October instead of October 31. The voters supported the change, and the 1999 Legislature made the change effective in October 2000.

The Legislature also has altered the Governor's authority to declare holidays. In 1969, the law was amended to remove the Governor, thus recognizing the President as the only entity with such authority. The 1971 Legislature restored the Governor to this statute; the 1987 Legislature removed the Governor again.

In addition, the Legislature has designated certain dates as "days of observance." Although no offices are required to close, State law authorizes the Governor to proclaim the official recommendation that these days be observed by the people of Nevada with appropriate exercises and activities. Currently, such days are as follows:

- March 31, Cesar Chavez Day (NRS 236.027; added in 2009);
- The month of April, Paleontological Awareness Month (NRS 236.085);
- April 6, Tartan Day (NRS 236.055; added in 1997);
- Third week in April, Nevada Shaken Baby Syndrome Awareness Week (NRS 236.070; added in 2007);
- Last Friday in April, Arbor Day (NRS 236.018; added in 1949);
- Month of May, Archeological Awareness and Historic Preservation Month (NRS 236.075; added in 2007);
- May 1, Law Day U.S.A. (NRS 236.030; added in 1963);
- Second Sunday in May, Mother's Day (NRS 236.020; added in 1921)
- The week that begins with Mother's Day, Osteoporosis Prevention and Awareness Week (NRS 236.065; added in 1997);
- First week in June, Nevada Mineral Industry Week (NRS 236.050; added in 1971);
- June 19, Juneteenth Day (NRS 236.033; added in 2011);
- Third week of July, Nevada All-Indian Stampede Days (NRS 236.040; added in 1971);
- Third week in September, Constitution Week (NRS 236.035; added in 1989);
- September 17, Constitution Day (NRS 236.035; added in 1989);
- Fourth Friday of September, Native American Day, (NRS 236.040; added in 1989);
- First week in October, Week of Respect (NRS 236.073; added in 2011);
- Second Monday in October, Columbus Day (NRS 236.025; added in 1989); and
- December 7, Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day (NRS 236.045; added in 1995).

THE “NEVADA LINCOLN”

The so-called “Nevada Lincoln,” an oil portrait by Charles M. Shean, has hung above the speaker’s rostrum of the Assembly Chamber in the State Capitol at Carson City since the unveiling March 14, 1915, and was then moved to the Assembly Chamber in the new legislative building in 1973.

In commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the admission of Nevada into the Union, the Legislature of 1915 authorized a special committee to procure an oil portrait of Abraham Lincoln and a frame for such portrait. For these purposes, $1,300 was made available, and discretion was given to the committee to purchase the portrait painted by the artist Charles M. Shean or to procure a portrait by some other artist.

The preamble to the act authorizing purchase of an oil portrait of Lincoln says, “Both the Territory and the State of Nevada were established during the administration of President Lincoln.” This is not correct. The act of Congress organizing the Territory of Nevada was approved March 2, 1861, by President James Buchanan, two days before President Lincoln was inaugurated March 4, 1861.

On occasion, the “Nevada Lincoln” has been referred to as the original of the Lincoln bust on the contemporary 5-dollar bill. This statement also is in error. Three different portraits were considered for that purpose. One of the unsuccessful ones is now the property of the Nevada Historical Society in Reno. The presence of the “Nevada Lincoln” in its position in the Legislative Building is a constant reminder of the reverence in which the memory of Abraham Lincoln is held by the people of Nevada.

NEVADA'S CAPITOL

Built in 1870-71, Nevada's Capitol Building was constructed of locally quarried sandstone. Its silver-colored cupola dome rises 120 feet above the ground, providing panoramic views of the capital city of Carson City.

The original building was constructed for a bid of less than $100,000. Shortly after the turn of the century, an octagonal annex was added to the rear of the building to house the State Library, and later, wings were added to the north and the south ends of the building, nearly doubling its size.

In the 1950s, with the building suffering from the effects of old age, the State Planning Board developed a plan to demolish the old Capitol Building and to construct a new Capitol. However, the plan was scrapped in 1959 by legislative resolution, and in 1977 the Nevada Legislature appropriated funds for a complete rehabilitation program for the building, which included gutting the entire structure, strengthening the outer walls against earthquakes, laying a new Alaskan marble foyer, and capping the building with a new fiberglass dome, thus ensuring the Capitol Building would stand as a proud symbol of Nevada's heritage for years to come.

The State Legislature moved out of the Capitol Building and into a new building across the Capitol Complex in 1971, making Nevada one of only three states in the country with its legislature separate from the Capitol. Today, the Capitol Building houses the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Lieutenant Governor, and Controller.

TERRITORIAL AND STATE MOTTO

The 1861 act of the Territorial Legislature adopting the Nevada seal contained the motto for the Territory, “Volens et Potens” (Willing and Able), indicating loyalty to the Union and the wealth to sustain it.

When the Legislature enacted the provisions for an official State Seal in 1866, it likewise incorporated an official state motto, “All for Our Country,” in the body of the seal.

The State motto has never been changed, but Nevada once had a state slogan. In 1937, the Nevada Legislature adopted the following slogan that was to be used on all State stationery and advertising publications:

Nevada, one state without an income tax, a corporation tax, an inheritance tax, a gift tax, a sales tax. With cheap power, and liberal mining, corporation, taxation and other laws. Welcome to Nevada.

This slogan was repealed in 1951.

STATE FLAG OF NEVADA

Unlike seals and mottos that were devised early in Nevada’s history, a State flag was not provided for until after the turn of the century. Also, unlike the State Seal whose design has remained static, the basic design of the State flag has been changed significantly.

In 1905, the Legislature adopted a bill to provide the first official flag of the State of Nevada. It incorporated a design proposed by Governor John Sparks and Colonel Sylvester “Henry” Day, assistant adjutant general of the Nevada National Guard, both of whom believed a symbol was needed to honor Nevada’s rejuvenated mining industry. This act provided the following specifications:

The flag of the State of Nevada will be of blue bunting, with the following devices thereon, to wit: The word “NEVADA” in silver-colored block letters, equidistant between the top and bottom, near the top the word “SILVER” in silver color, and near the bottom, the word “GOLD” in gold color, each of which shall be in Roman capital letters, and there shall be under the word “Silver” a row of eight stars in silver color, under which and above the word “Nevada” a row of nine stars in gold color, at each end of the word “Nevada” a silver- colored star, and under the word “Nevada” a row of nine stars in gold color, under which and above the word “Gold” a row of eight stars in silver color. Each star shall have five points and be placed with one point up.

(Reproduction of 1905 Flag)

It is possible that only one flag with this first design was produced. During the 1905 Legislative Session, a banner with the proposed design was kept in Governor Sparks' office. At the Assembly's request, the flag was brought to the chambers for the members to examine. After the session ended, the Nevada National Guard purchased the flag from Governor Sparks for $30.65. The order for the purchase was issued by Adjutant General Lemuel Allen, who was also Lieutenant Governor at the time. (Mr. Allen had served in the Assembly from the 1889 Session through the 1901 Session and again in 1909.)

In 1923, Colonel Henry Day donated this same banner to the Nevada Historical Society, which restored this valuable Nevada emblem in the early 1990s. No other flag of this design is known.

Nevada's first flag had a legal lifespan of slightly over ten years. In 1915, the Nevada Legislature repealed the 1905 Flag Act and created an official flag for the State of Nevada that was distinctly different in design. Specifications for the flag were as follows:

The body of the flag shall be of solid blue. On the blue field, and in the center thereof, shall be placed the great seal of the State of Nevada, as the same is designed and created, by section 4402, Revised Laws, 1912; the design of said seal to be in scroll border, and the words "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada" to be omitted. Immediately above the seal shall be the words "Nevada," in silver-colored block Roman capital letters. Immediately below the seal, and in the form of a scroll, shall be the words "All For Our Country," in gold-colored block Roman capital letters. Above the words "Nevada" there shall be placed a row of eighteen gold-colored stars, and below the words "All For Our Country" there shall be placed a row of eighteen silver-colored stars. Each star shall have five points, and shall be placed with one point up.

(Reproduction of 1915 Flag—With one too many stars)

This second official banner was designed by Clara M. Crisler, a Carson City native and enrolling clerk for the Assembly during the 1921 and 1923 Sessions. Again, few flags were actually produced. On July 19, 1924, The Eureka Sentinel reported that two Nevada flags were on display at the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Los Angeles, California, which was probably due to Ms. Crisler's long and active participation in the Nevada Federation of Women's Clubs. These flags were borrowed from the Governor's office and appeared to be the only ones in the State at that time. An additional banner was flying on the battleship U.S.S. Nevada.

The third official flag for Nevada was created by an act of the Legislature in 1929. A movement to change the flag yet again began on June 15, 1926, when Nevada Lieutenant Governor Maurice J. Sullivan had notices published in several Nevada newspapers announcing a contest for a new design for the official State flag. The notices indicated that the 1915 design was expensive to reproduce because it required 30 to 40 different color shades and was difficult to distinguish from many other states' flags. Mr. Sullivan offered a $25 prize for the design chosen by a committee; however, he noted that the honor of having one's design chosen would outweigh the monetary award. Contestants could enter as many designs as they wanted and could submit descriptions of the designs; drawings were not necessary. The contest ran until October 10, 1926.

Early in 1927, each house of the Nevada Legislature appointed members to serve on a committee to select a design for the State flag. On January 27, 1927, Assemblyman Frank H. Winter announced the selection of a design by "Don" Louis Schellbach III, a State employee, out of hundreds submitted. At the time, it was planned that a flag with the winning composition would be flown at the upcoming inaugural ball.

The 1927 Legislature, however, did not consider a bill to establish a new State flag, as had been Mr. Sullivan's original intention.

On February 19, 1929, Senate Bill 51, creating a State flag using the design chosen in 1927, was introduced by Senator William F. Dressler. The measure passed the Senate without amendment and was sent to the Assembly.

(Reproduction of 1929 Flag)

Mr. Schellbach's design did not contain the word "Nevada." This omission was noticed by the 1929 Legislature, and Assemblyman Cada C. Boak supplied the missing word through the amendment approved by the Assembly. The amendment placed the word in a circle around the single star provided for in the design, specifically stating that "Nevada" would begin at the upper point of the star with the letter "N," followed by the other letters "equally spaced between the points of the star."

Despite Mr. Sullivan's contest and the action by the 1929 Legislature, the new flag received little immediate attention. The Sparks Tribune noted on April 24, 1936, that the U.S.S. Nevada still carried the 1915 flag and that, in fact, the new flag was practically unknown because less than six flags existed at that time, seven years after the legislation was enacted.

In 1935, the Nevada State Flag Association was formed in response to the lack of flags. The Association enlisted the American Legion of the State to provide monetary support and needlewomen of the Works Project Administration (WPA) to hand-make the flags. In 1937, a new flag was presented to the battleship, and by 1939, new flags had been produced for the University of Nevada and the Governor's Office.

"Don" Schellbach, the State flag's designer, left Nevada to work at the Museum of the American Indian in New York City in May 1927. Known as "Mr. Grand Canyon" when he died on September 22, 1971, in Tucson at the age of 83, he had worked for more than 24 years for the National Park Service at the Grand Canyon. In November 1989, Nevada legislative researcher Dana Bennett discovered a clerical error in the flag's legislation of 60 years earlier. That error compromising legislative intent was independently substantiated by former State Archives and Records Administrator Guy Rocha after examining legislative records in the State Archives. The Assembly did amend the bill to place the word "Nevada" around the star, but the Senate refused to concur in that amendment. A conference committee was established on March 19 and reported back on March 20, 1929. On March 21, 1929, the last day of the session, both houses adopted the committee report, which did not place "Nevada" in a circle. Instead, the committee agreed on the following sentence:

The word "Nevada" shall also appear immediately below the sprays in silver Roman letters to conform with the letters appearing in the words "Battle Born."

Yet, the language of the report was somehow omitted from the copy of the bill signed by the leaders of the Senate and Assembly and approved by the Governor. Consequently, the conference committee's agreement did not appear in the appropriate chapter of Statutes of Nevada 1929 nor in the corresponding section of NRS; thus, every State flag produced after the session was not in the design approved by the Nevada Legislature.

In 1991, due to finding this mistake, the Nevada Legislature changed the placement of the word "Nevada" on the State flag. The members chose to keep the word "Nevada" intact, as did the 1929 conference committee, but placed it above the sprays and in gold. The earlier action placed the word below the sprays and in silver. Following is the description of the flag currently provided by NRS 235.020:

The body of the flag shall be of solid cobalt blue. On the field in the upper left quarter thereof shall be two sprays of sagebrush with the stems crossed at the bottom to form a half wreath. Within the sprays must be a five-pointed silver star with one point up. The word "Nevada" must also be inscribed below the star and above the sprays, in a semicircular pattern with the letters spaced apart in equal increments, in the same style of letters as the words "Battle Born." Above the wreath, and touching the tips thereof, shall be a scroll bearing the words "Battle Born." The scroll and the word "Nevada" shall be golden-yellow. The lettering on the scroll must be blackcolored sans serif gothic capital letters.

Only once has a proposed State flag design failed. In the closing days of the 1953 Session, S.B. 231, which proposed a radically different design for the banner, was introduced and passed by both houses of the Legislature and sent to the Governor. According to Reno's Nevada State Journal, the measure was promoted by the Elko, Reno, and Las Vegas Chambers of Commerce who complained that the existing flag was too expensive to manufacture and, therefore, many Nevada organizations could not afford to display it. The proposal would cut the manufacturing cost from $20 to around $7 for each flag. The description of the 1953 flag was as follows:

The body of the flag shall be in three equal vertical stripes, consisting of one ultra-marine blue stripe next to the staff or halyard hem, a central stripe of pure white, and an outer stripe of silver grey. Upon the vertical centerline of the white stripe shall be centered a solid red silhouette of the State of Nevada, extending from a distance below the top of the flag equal to one-sixth of the vertical width of the flag, to a distance from the bottom border of the flag equal to one-third of the vertical width of the flag. Within the silhouette of the State of Nevada shall be inscribed in white block capital letters the words "Battle Born" in two lines contained within the upper half of the State representation. Height of the letters shall be equal to one-seventh of the height of the State representation. Within the lower portion of the center white stripe there shall be further inscribed the word "Nevada" in red block capital letters, centered upon the vertical center-line of the white stripe, the letters to be equal in height to one-seventh of the vertical width of the flag placed with the base of the letters at a distance from the bottom border of the flag equal to one half the height of the letters in the word "Nevada."

(Reproduction of 1991 and Current Flag)

However, Governor Charles H. Russell vetoed the bill. His message stated that the 1929 flag, "while, probably, . . . not an adequate display symbol for the State, . . . has a dignity which is not found in the proposed flag. Furthermore, it is my considered judgment that the proposed flag is not symbolic of Nevada." Governor Russell suggested that any new banner be proposed by a commission that conducts "a careful study made to embody true Nevada tradition into [the flag's] meaning." By the time the 1955 session convened, the earlier support for the new flag had evaporated, and the Legislature sustained the veto.

SEALS OF THE TERRITORY AND THE STATE OF NEVADA

Nevada's first seal was described in an act of the First Regular Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Nevada in 1861 as follows:

Mountains, with a stream of water coursing down their sides, and falling on the overshot wheel of a quartz-mill at their base; a miner leaning on his pick, and upholding a United States flag, with a motto expressing the two ideas of loyalty to the Union, and the wealth to sustain it. "Volens et Potens."

(Reproduction of Territorial Seal)

The Territorial Legislature also authorized the Secretary of the Territory to have general supervision over the preparation of the designing and cutting of the seal. No mention was made concerning custody of the seal by the Governor.

The first action taken toward providing the State of Nevada with an official State Seal was the adoption of a description of a design for the "Great Seal of the State of Nevada" by the Constitutional Convention in 1864. Subsequently, the convention adopted a resolution that authorized the Secretary of the Territory to procure a state seal, after the adoption of the Constitution by the people, and in accordance with the design adopted by the Constitutional Convention.

Unfortunately, the Constitutional Convention failed to incorporate this action in the Constitution. Being omitted from the Constitution as approved by the people, the action taken by the convention concerning adoption and resolution had no binding effect in legally establishing a State seal.

In spite of these expressions, no amendment was offered to alter the suggested wording of Article V, which reads:

Sec. 15. There shall be a Seal of this State, which shall be kept by the Governor and used by him Officially, and shall be called "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada."

No one has ever initiated an amendment to the Constitution altering this requirement. The seal actually is kept by the Secretary of State for the obvious reason that the Secretary, not the Governor, attests to and affixes the seal to certified copies of records and other official documents, as required by State law. Some members of the Constitutional Convention recognized the Secretary of State as the logical custodian of the State Seal; however, the situation was not clarified at the convention and has continued to this day as an impractical provision in the Constitution.

The description of the State Seal was provided by the Second Session of the State Legislature in 1866 and was identical to that adopted by the Constitutional Convention in 1864. Therefore, the official and legal provision for a State Seal dates from the action of the Legislature in 1866.

In 1875, the Legislature clarified the seal by establishing its dimensions as follows:

. . .and the size thereof shall not be more than two and three fourths inches in diameter; and when completed, shall be known as the Great Seal of the State of Nevada, and shall be used instead of the present Great Seal.

The measure, in recognition of practical considerations, also provided for access to the seal by the Secretary of State, as follows:

Sec. 2. The Secretary of State shall at all times have access to said seal, and may use the same in verification of all his official acts.

This action in 1875 gave official recognition to the problem raised by the Governor having custody of the State Seal. Since that provision is a constitutional one, the Legislature would have to initiate a constitutional amendment to change custody. Instead, legislators chose to modify the provision by providing for access to the seal by the Secretary of State. The logical aspect of its custody remained unresolved.

Further action concerning the State Seal was not taken until 1955. In that year, the Legislature amended the original 1866 law to establish a penalty for the malicious or commercial use of the State Seal. Such misuse of the State Seal constituted a misdemeanor.

The current description of the State Seal in the Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) is substantially the same as that in the original act and reads as follows:

NRS 235.010: In the foreground, there shall be two large mountains, at the base of which, on the right, there shall be located a quartz mill, and on the left a tunnel, penetrating the silver leads of the mountain, with a miner running out a carload of ore, and a team loaded with ore for the mill. Immediately in the foreground, there shall be emblems indicative of the agricultural resources of the state, as follows: A plow, a sheaf and sickle. In the middle ground, there must be a railroad train passing a mountain gorge and a telegraph line extending along the line of the railroad. In the extreme background, there shall be a range of snow-clad mountains, with the rising sun in the east. Thirty-six stars and the motto of our state, "All for Our Country," must encircle the whole group. In an outer circle, the words "The Great Seal of the State of Nevada" must be engraved with "Nevada" at the base of the seal and separated from the other words by two groups of three stars each.

Several state seals have been designed for use by State departments and agencies, and variations of the seal appear on some of Nevada's State buildings. Certain inconsistencies are noted among these seals. The most nearly authentic seal is the one that is impressed by the Secretary of State on various documents; it is quite close to the legal description. A few minor differences, however, may be observed in the pictorial portion of the seal. Some of these are quite definite, such as the reference to a "train of railroad cars" (plural), when only one car follows the engine. Others are less definite, such as the reference to a "range of snow-clad mountains," and on the seal as used there is little indication that the mountains are, in fact, wearing a mantle of snow.

THE MYSTERIOUS ORIGIN OF NEVADA'S TERRITORIAL SEAL

By GUY ROCHA
Former Nevada State Archivist

In comparing Iowa's state seal with Nevada's territorial seal, one is struck by the similarity. Is this just coincidence? Maybe. However, upon further investigation, circumstantial evidence suggests that Iowa's state seal was the model for Nevada's territorial seal.

The Iowa state seal, made official by Iowa's first state legislature in 1847, includes a soldier in the foreground, leaning on a rifle and standing in a field of wheat, holding an American flag. To the right of the soldier, in the background, smoke trails to the right from the chimney of a small cabin.

The Nevada territorial seal, made official by Nevada's First Territorial Legislature in 1861, includes a miner in the foreground, leaning on a pick and standing on a mining claim, holding an American flag. To the right of the miner, in the background, smoke trails to the right from the chimney of a five-stamp quartz mill.

Orion Clemens, President Abraham Lincoln's appointee as Secretary of Nevada Territory, presented a design for a territorial seal to the first Legislature in Carson City on October 7, 1861. After some debate and much delay, the Council passed the House Territorial Seal Resolution on November 28, 1861. Councilman Ira Luther from Genoa noted that the Territorial Seal Committee's tardiness in reporting on the seal matter was related to an unsuccessful effort to generate an original idea other than what Clemens had proposed. Governor James Nye signed the bill the following day, the last day of the legislative session.

So what has Nevada's territorial seal to do with Iowa's state seal? Interestingly enough, Orion Clemens moved from Hannibal, Missouri, to Muscatine, Iowa, in September 1853, where he operated a small commercial print shop and started the Muscatine Journal. On December 19, 1854, Orion married "Molly" Stotts in her hometown of Keokuk, Iowa.

In June 1855, the couple moved to Keokuk, where Orion bought the "Ben Franklin" Book and Job Office and employed his brother, Samuel (the future "Mark Twain"). Daughter Jennie was born on September 14.

Orion and his family left Iowa for Tennessee, Orion's birthplace, in the fall of 1857, only to return to live with his in-laws in Keokuk by 1859. In the meantime, Orion finished his law studies and became an attorney.

Despite having no documentary evidence that Clemens based the Nevada territorial seal design on Iowa's state seal, it is difficult to imagine that in all his time in Iowa as a newspaper publisher, printer, and attorney he was not familiar with the state seal. The similarity of the two seals suggests that Clemens, consciously or unconsciously, drew on the Iowa state seal as a model for Nevada's territorial seal.

Orion certainly took great pride in his creation. In a letter written by the Territorial Secretary on December 3, 1861, and kept in the Nevada State Archives, Clemens entrusted his seal design to an engraving firm. "I rely upon you to see that it is skillfully executed, both in design and engraving," wrote

Orion. “It is a bantling [a very young child] of my own, and my pride will be to have the prettiest seal in the Union.”

Orion and Mollie Clemens left Nevada in March 1866 (Jennie died in Carson City on February 1, 1864), and after a brief sojourn to California, returned to Iowa. Orion spent the greater part of his life there, dying in Keokuk on December 11, 1897.

In the end, maybe Orion Clemens’ Iowa and Nevada connections have been forever sealed.

BLOWING SMOKE: ANOTHER STATE SEAL MYTH

By GUY ROCHA
Former Nevada State Archivist

“Nevada’s first State Seal had a mistake on it,” wrote Gary BeDunnah in Discovering Nevada, a school text published in 1994. “The smoke from the train and the mill blew in opposite directions.”

There has been a long-standing belief in Nevada that the smoke from the passenger train locomotive and the quartz mill should have been blowing in the same direction on the original State Seal. Some claim the smoke blowing in opposite directions was a hoax perpetrated by Territorial Enterprise reporter Mark Twain and some of his associates.

The claim has nothing to do with the design of the State Seal as promulgated in the 1863 and 1864 State Constitutional Conventions in Carson City and officially adopted by the 1866 State Legislature. Nothing in the description, officially or unofficially, identified which way the smoke should blow.

“Nevada’s 1860s seal was executed in the pictorial heraldic style that was popular in the 19th century,” according to vexillologist James Ferrigan III.

This replaced the symbolic heraldry of the 18th century. In pictorial heraldry the focus is the center of the image, which generally contained the principal activities or aspirations of the state or territory. The smoke was incidental to the mill and would have been naturally drawn blowing out of the frame of reference. The train, a significant technology of the 19th century, was central, and assumed to be in motion, so the smoke was behind it. Hence smoke in two directions.

The fanciful story suggests that if the wind is blowing the smoke from the quartz mill smokestack one way in the foreground of the State Seal, then the smoke from the locomotive smokestack in the background logically must conform to the same wind direction. However, on the presumption the train is traveling across the viaduct at some speed, and not standing still, the smoke will inherently trail behind the train. Debate over the State Seal in the 1863 State Constitutional Convention made it clear that the speed of the train would be left to the imagination of the people. The words “very slowly” were dropped from the draft description and an amendment to adopt “rapidly” failed. Depending on which way the wind is blowing, the smoke from the mill and a moving locomotive could blow in different directions.

That was clearly the case when John Church, the first Nevada State Printer, printed the State Seal on publications beginning in August 1865—before the Legislature officially adopted the seal design on February 24, 1866. The smoke from the locomotive is blowing to the left and the smoke from the quartz mill is blowing to the right.

There is no evidence that Samuel Clemens, alias Mark Twain, had anything to do with which way the smoke ended up blowing on the official State Seal. It is true that he humorously commented on the spirited 1863 debate over what the motto would be on the State Seal: either “volens et potens” (willing and able), which was on the territorial seal designed by his brother Orion, the Secretary of the Territory; or “The Union Must and Shall be Preserved.” And, it is also true that he proposed, tongue-in-cheek, a state seal that included “a jackass-rabbit reposing in the shade of his native sagebrush, with the motto ‘Volens enough but not so d....d Potens.’”

However, despite conjecture in Nevada’s Symbols: Reflections Of The Past (1978), a school text directed at seventh graders, Mark Twain could not have collaborated with his so-called “drinking partner,” State Printer John Church, and “good friend” Alanson W. Nightingill, a delegate to the first State Constitutional Convention who served on the state seal committee, to mastermind a hoax showing winds “coming from two directions at the same time.” “There is no evidence that this is what happened,” wrote Angela Brooker, “but it only takes a little imagination to see Twain, Nightingill, and Church sitting around a barroom table plotting to play a mischievous trick on Nevada’s lawmakers.” In other words, if it didn’t happen this way, it should have!

The statement made by Brooker that “Lance” Nightingill designed the State Seal has no basis in fact. The designer remains unknown. In addition, Nightingill was not a delegate to the second State Constitutional Convention in July 1864 and, therefore, did not participate in the debate over the State Seal’s final design, which included adopting the motto “All For Our Country.”

Mark Twain, after offending some folks in Carson City and being challenged to a duel by an angry Virginia City newspaper editor, made a quick exit to California in May. Twain did not torment the second convention. The “Wild Humorist of the Pacific Slope” did not return to Nevada until October 1866 to lecture about his trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Finally, the State Legislature did not elect John Church the State Printer until January 11, 1865, some six months after the constitutional convention had adjourned. Twain was long gone and Nightingill had been elected Nevada’s first State Controller.

While there was no hoax in 1865, there did appear to be some confusion in 1915 over which way the smoke should blow. Publications in that year had state seals with the smoke blowing in opposite directions and also in the same direction. From 1917—thanks to State Printer Joe Farnsworth—to the present, the smoke from the locomotive and the mill on the State Seal blows to the left on all State publications. However, not until May 1929 did the official State Seal kept by the Secretary of State for the Governor look the same as the State Printer’s seal.

Only time will tell if blowing smoke in Nevada will again be an issue.

THE “TRESTLE” ON THE STATE SEAL

By GUY ROCHA

DENNIS MYERS Journalist

In 1979, Houston Oil & Mineral, a mining company, expanded an open-pit gold mine near Virginia City, which threatened the destruction of much of upper Gold Hill. Comstock residents fighting the mining company said the property was so historic and hallowed it was depicted on the Nevada State Seal. The basis for the claim—sometimes repeated by State politicians—is a railroad “trestle” appears on the seal, and the Crown Point Trestle on the Virginia & Truckee (V&T) Railroad had been located in upper Gold Hill until it was dismantled in 1936 and the Crown Point Ravine filled in.

Ty Cobb, a Virginia City native and long-time Reno newspaper reporter named for the colorful and controversial Detroit Tigers baseball player, helped his father tear down the engineering wonder. Cobb, in a story appearing in the Reno Evening Gazette on July 15, 1936, wrote that the Crown Point bridge, “one of the most historic structures in the West . . . is pictured on the official seal of the State of Nevada.” He repeated the claim in his article, “Nevada’s Crown Point landmark,” published in the Nevada Official Bicentennial Book (1976). Cobb confided in me (Rocha) shortly before his death in May 1997, that one of his teachers at the Fourth Ward School in Virginia City, where he graduated from high school in 1933, told him that the Crown Point Trestle was depicted on the State Seal. “When the V&T suspends operations there will go out of existence not alone the last of the glamorous passenger carrying short line railroads of Nevada,” wrote Comstock promoters Lucius Beebe and Charles Clegg in Virginia and Truckee: A Story of Virginia City and Comstock Times (1949), “but also an institution so important in the state’s economy that its representation is an integral part of the Great Seal of Nevada. The trestle remains only in memory and in reproachful immortality in the Great Seal.”

The claim is widely accepted in Nevada, but there is no truth to it. The State Seal was originally designed in 1863 during the first Constitutional Convention in Carson City, slightly modified during the second constitutional convention in 1864, and adopted by the State Legislature in 1866. The structure on the State Seal is made of stone and is more properly called a viaduct. Work on the V&T and the Crown Point Trestle, constructed of wood, did not begin until three years later in 1869.

Actually, it makes a better story this way. After all, when the viaduct was first depicted in the seal, there were no steam-powered railroads at all in Nevada. The Central Pacific Railroad did not arrive until 1868. Its inclusion by lawmakers in such an important state symbol was an act of faith in Nevada’s future, knowing the nation’s first transcontinental railroad would run through the heart of the Silver State. In fact, Nevada’s First Territorial Legislature in 1861 approved a bill granting the “Big Four” the right to build a railroad across Nevada from west to east.

And upper Gold Hill—with its elegant Gold Hill Hotel, historic Greiner’s Bend, and V&T railroad depot—survived the decline of the mining company when, with the price of gold in decline, it closed down its operations in the early 1980s.

In the beginning, the region now occupied by the State of Nevada was held by the Goshute, Mojave, Paiute, Shoshone and Washoe Indians and claimed by the Spanish Empire until the early 1800s. The northern extent of the Spanish claim was defined as the 42nd parallel in the Adams-Onís Treaty of 1819 between the United States and Spain. This north latitude line serves currently as Nevada's northern boundary with Oregon and Idaho.

Spanish explorations into this region have never been documented clearly enough to establish any European party constituting the earliest expedition into Nevada. If in fact there was some penetration, it must have been by the Spanish in the southernmost portion of our state, possibly as early as 1776.

In 1821 Mexico won its war of independence from Spain and gained control over all the former Spanish territory in the area of what is now our "South-West." Spain had done nothing to occupy or control what is now Nevada, a vast region virtually "terra incognita," having no permanent non-Indian population and considered barren, arid and inhospitable. Quite understandably, the Spanish concentrated on settlements and nominal control in the more accessible and better-known coastal regions of the Californias and New Mexico.

Mexico's control over that interior portion of Alta California, eventually to become Nevada, was hardly more than a recognized claim in the absence of occupation or counterclaim by other powers. The sparse transient population that materialized during Mexican jurisdiction was engaged in the uncertain ventures and adventures of trapping, exploring or traversing the region, and clashing with the Indians. The perilous peregrinations were seldom recorded accurately. Nominal de facto control over all of Alta California by the Republic of Mexico, relatively effective in areas now part of the state of California, was exercised through the departmental capital located first at Monterey and from 1835 on at Los Angeles. The department, or “territory” as it was sometimes referred to, extended over all of the present states of California and Nevada, most of Utah, much of Arizona, and smaller portions of Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and Baja California (see Map 1). The words “New Mexico and California” were generally understood to include the whole northern Mexico from Texas to the Pacific Ocean, although the boundaries of the two “provinces” (Nuevo Mejico and Alta California) had never been adequately defined, and the territory between their acknowledged jurisdictions was uninhabited and all but unknown.

Alta California, one of the political divisions of the Republic of Mexico, extending over all of what is now Nevada prior to the Mexican War.

The base map used to indicate Mexican boundaries is dated 1847 and entitled, “Mapa de los Estados Unidos de Mejico” by Disturnell, New York. Different editions of the Disturnell map are part of the Mexican and U.S. documents of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which awarded most of the area shown to the U.S. in 1848. Boundary lines between Mexican political divisions are approximate in some areas, having never been adequately defined. Also, in the Santa Fé-Nuevo Mejico area they more correctly represent conditions prior to Texas independence.

Before the discovery of gold in the West, the vast region between the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada, including what is now Nevada, was designated on many maps as “Great American Desert.” More restrictive terms, “Great Basin” and “Frémont Basin,” were employed to define the western portion of this “desert,” a tract lying between the Wasatch and the Sierra Nevada Mountains, most of which was located in Mexican Alta California. The “Great Basin,” an area of interior drainage by definition, named by John C. Frémont following his expeditions of the 1840s, does not cover all of the present area of the State of Nevada, since tributaries of the Snake River in the north and those of the Colorado in the south drain waters to the Pacific Ocean (see Map 2). Although technically these portions are outside the Great Basin, they have the arid climate typical of the basin, and were included as “desert” country on early maps.

The Great Basin area of interior drainage with dashed lines indicating the location of Nevada at different periods of time. Nevada as originally constituted in 1861 was almost entirely within the Great Basin as recognized at that time. Additions made in 1862, 1866 and 1867 extended Nevada well outside the Great Basin, especially the last two additions made when Nevada was a state. The outline of the Great Basin encompasses all of the land in our “West” that has interior drainage, extending into Mexico at the south. The area included is based on modern topographic surveys and contains several related basins, some of them in the south not usually included in the 19th century definitions of the Great Basin.

Apparently the first documented explorers in what is now Nevada entered that part of Alta California in the mid-1820s. Historians do not agree when and where these penetrations or crossings of our state were made. However, certainly Jedediah S. Smith, an American frontiersman, and Peter Skeen Ogden, an employee of the British Hudson’s Bay Company, were among the first, with lesser-known persons also reporting their adventures. Smith and Ogden explored the area in the 1820s. In the 1830s and ’40s, American and Mexican parties came through the southern part, with Antonio Armijo, Joseph Walker, Louis Bonneville, Kit Carson, John C. Frémont, and others contributing more knowledge of this vast, arid, intermontane area. The emigrant parties followed the trappers and explorers, with the first one crossing in 1841, the Bidwell-Bartleson group. Several others followed, including the tragic Donner Party and those unfortunates who crossed farther south and into Death Valley. However, mass migration did not start across Nevada until after gold was discovered in California in 1848. Extensive surveys for wagon roads through the central part of what is now Nevada were made in the 1850s. The Pony Express traversed Nevada between April 1860 and October 1861, ending shortly after the completion of the transcontinental telegraph.

All during its early development, that area destined to become the State of Nevada was inhabited by native people and claimed many different governments. These jurisdictions extended from Spanish, and later, Mexican control, down through the provisional government of Deseret, and the New Mexico, Utah, Nevada and Arizona territorial governments, each with varying degrees of theoretic, or de facto, control over what is now Nevada. The following sections give some insight into the gradual development of U.S. territorial government in this area.

Unorganized Territory

The great trek of the Mormon people to the fertile Salt Lake Valley in 1847 was the beginning of non-Indian settlement in the Great Basin of North America, most of which was then a part of the department of Alta California, Republic of Mexico. The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, concluded February 2, 1848, with ratifications exchanged at Queretaro on May 30, 1848, and proclaimed on July 4, 1848, resulted in formal acquisition by the U.S. of a vast tract of land from Mexico. It included what is now California, Nevada, Utah, most of Arizona, and parts of New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, and corresponded by general agreement to the Mexican administrative divisions of Alta California and New Mexico. In 1853, the Gadsden Purchase resulted in the final acquisition of Mexican territory and eliminated a dispute over the latitude line cited in the Mexican Cession of 1848, running west from the Rio Grande. This latter territory was obtained from the Mexican states of Sonora and Chihuahua (see Map 3).

From 1848 to 1850, the Congress of the U.S. failed to provide the area obtained in the Mexican Cession under the provisions of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo with organized territorial government. The occupation of a part of this area by U.S. forces had occurred as early as mid-1846. The term "Unorganized Territory" was used to indicate ownership by the U.S. without formal territorial government. To cope with this tenuous situation and provide some measure of government in the political vacuum thus created, a military government was established over the seacoast and interior valleys of part of California. The vast interior of Alta California, particularly east of the Sierra Nevada and including most of the Great Basin, was left without any effective military or territorial government.

Prior to the occupations of coastal California by U.S. forces in 1846, Mexican control over Alta California had deteriorated, due chiefly to differences between two officials responsible for the administration and protection of the department. By July 1846, formal occupation of portions of Alta California was effected by U.S. forces. A U.S. military government replaced Mexican authority, appointed local alcaldes, and retained former Mexican civil and judicial law on a temporary basis.

A month prior to the occupation of Monterey, a “California Republic” was established at Sonoma under the famous Bear Flag. The so-called “republic” consisted of not much more than proclamations and a local military organization led first by William B. Ide, then reorganized by John C. Frémont. Later that summer after the dissolution of the Assembly of Alta California on August 10, 1846, at the departmental capital, Los Angeles, Frémont was appointed military commandant of California by Commodore Robert F. Stockton. Frémont established headquarters at Los Angeles and placed the area under military rule. This first “occupation” and military government in southern California was later forced to capitulate to Mexican forces under Jose Maria Flores, who reorganized the Alta California departmental assembly in October of 1846.

The area now contained within the State of Nevada was acquired by the U.S. in the Mexican Cession of 1848 following the war with Mexico. The area was not immediately organized into territories and states and was generally labeled as unorganized territory until 1850.

United States forces regained control of southern California early in 1847. Frémont was reappointed by Stockton as military governor, this time with a seven-member legislative council that never convened. For a period of about 50 days, Frémont enjoyed some recognition throughout California as governor. It does not appear that he had occasion to exercise his authority beyond the Los Angeles district. Frémont's short tenure was not recognized by Stephen W. Kearney, who had been dispatched with an expeditionary force overland from New Mexico after its subjugation. By Kearney's authority direct from Washington, a formal military government was established in California on March 1, 1847. Monterey was proclaimed the capital, and Mexican civil law not inconsistent with the U.S. Constitution was retained. This military government was continued until California was admitted as a state into the Union without prior establishment of a territorial government.

It should be clearly understood that the temporary non-Mexican military governments in California before the formal establishment of U.S. military rule at Monterey in 1847, had no adopted constitutions or defined limits of jurisdiction, and never enacted any legislation. This included the "California Bear Republic." In view of this, also considering that none of these California-based provisional governments or the following military government established by Kearney in 1847 had any portion of what is now the State of Nevada within its administrative areas, no further examination of California governments will be made in this political history.

State of Deseret

In marked contrast to the California military governments, an understanding of the Great Salt Lake City provisional government, and the formation and operation of the provisional State of Deseret, is necessary to properly examine the succeeding Territory of Utah, which occupied the area established as the Territory of Nevada more than a decade later. The State of Deseret embodied the true elements of civil government by adopting a constitution, enacting legislation and defining its limits of jurisdiction. State of Deseret laws were adopted by the Territory of Utah, which established the first organized county government (Carson County) in what is now Nevada.

The provisional State of Deseret was preceded by a government established to provide local ordinances for the earliest settlers in the Salt Lake Valley. Mexican, and later, U.S. control, was nominal. The local government and the following provisional state were de facto governments from 1847 to 1851 in an area nominally part of the Mexican department of Alta California until 1848, in U.S. unorganized territory to 1850, and part of the Territory of Utah in 1851. For some period of time the settlements in and around Salt Lake Valley were not certain as to what nation eventually would take formal control of their area. With limitations on communication, they were unaware of formal treaty decisions and ratifications for some time after consummation. It is interesting to note that during this time of uncertainty, residents of the “valley” referred to their location as Great Basin, North America. It was natural that some local government be established since the Salt Lake Valley area was remote from the Mexican departmental capital at Los Angeles. Also, the failure to organize a military or territorial government in the Great Basin area on the part of the U.S. made this imperative.

The original government established in Salt Lake Valley was the High Council of Great Salt Lake City. On September 5, 1847, near South Pass, Wyoming, Brigham Young, leading a Mormon party east to Winter Quarters, Iowa, met one of the westward-bound companies. The following day the combined groups nominated a president, a high council and a marshal for the government of Great Salt Lake City. In the nomination message to the settlers of Salt Lake Valley, they suggested that the high council should pass such laws and ordinances as would be necessary for the peace and prosperity of the city. On October 3, 1847, the nominees were ratified in Salt Lake Valley. The high council had complete executive, judicial and legislative powers similar to informal courts that functioned in early England. The character of the authority accepted at this time had a marked effect on legislation and the administration of affairs in Utah during the next 30 years.

On December 27, 1847, the high council enacted five ordinances “in the absence of any organized jurisdiction of any Territory, for the peace, welfare and good order of our community for the government and regulation of the inhabitants of this city and valley for the time being, subject to the approval of the people.”

The high council continued to serve as a governing body until January 6, 1849, and may have exercised considerable influence for the balance of that year. Ordinances after number 36 show indication of having been passed by the Legislative Council of Great Salt Lake City. The council approved many special acts granting privileges to particular individuals, thus establishing a precedent for the legislatures of the State of Deseret and the Territory of Utah. Another designation identifying the local government is indicated by gold coins minted at Salt Lake in the name of the Great Salt Lake City Provisional Government. In 1850, coins were produced here under the name of the provisional State of Deseret.

The “council” government at Great Salt Lake City had limited jurisdiction. Their power lay principally in the Great Salt Lake Valley. There was considerable inclination toward independence in the event of an agreement between Mexico and the U.S. to retain their area in Mexico. They felt that territorial status, or preferably statehood in the “union,” offered desirable alternatives. There was some thought of organizing a judicial district in the valley under an anticipated “Territorial Government of California.”

The U.S. Congress was in no hurry to establish territorial government over the vast area newly ceded by Mexico. Apparently California was being adequately supervised by military governors appointed by the War Department. On December 11, 1848, a resolution was introduced in the Congress relative to the possibility of dividing the unorganized "Territory of Upper California," and to establish and extend a district territorial government over that portion of the territory encompassing the white settlements in the vicinity of Salt Lake. An unfavorable House committee report on January 3, 1849, caused the resolution to be tabled.

As a result of this lack of federal provision for adequate government, a memorial addressed to Congress was drawn up December 13, 1848, signatures were gathered over a period of months, and the document was dispatched from Great Salt Lake City May 3, 1849. The memorial from "residents of that portion of North America commonly called Eastern California," addressed the Congress and requested the Congress to charter "a Territorial Government of the most liberal construction authorized by our excellent Federal constitution, with the least possible delay, to be known by the name Deseret."

The provisional state derived its name from the term "deseret," meaning "honey bee," and not as one might expect from the word "desert," indicating a lack of vegetation.

Concurrent with this attempt to form a U.S. territorial government for the region, steps were taken to provide for adequate civil government of a provisional nature over the entire Great Basin. In February 1849, with the first gold-seekers still four months away from Great Salt Lake City, a notice signed by "many citizens" was made public as follows:

Notice is hereby given to all citizens of that portion of Upper California, lying east of the Sierra Nevada Mountains that a convention will be held at the Great Salt Lake City, in said Territory, on Monday, the fifth day of March next, for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of organizing a Territorial or State government. Dated at the Great Salt Lake City, Great Basin, North America, this first day of February, 1849.

A constitutional convention was organized at Great Salt Lake City, March 5, 1849, in pursuance of the public notice of February 1. A committee reported the preamble and constitution to the convention on March 8. After two days of debate and consideration, the convention adopted a "Constitution of the Provisional State of Deseret" March 10, 1849.

In an action quite independent of the convention, the council voted that the marshal give notice to the people "of the valley of the Great Salt Lake and vicinity" that a public meeting would be held Monday, the 12th day of March, for the purpose of electing and appointing officers for the government of the people in the valley. Shortly after the convention and election, the provisional de facto government was launched.

The Constitution of the State of Deseret was similar to the constitutions of most other states. Its Bill of Rights guaranteed religious liberty, and no provision was made for remunerating state officers except the governor.

The “Provisional State of Deseret” included within its jurisdiction most of what is now Nevada and Utah, large portions of California, Arizona and Colorado, and smaller areas of New Mexico, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon (see Map 4).

Dr. John M. Bernhisel left for Washington, D.C., May 3, 1849, with the memorial to Congress heretofore referred to, requesting the consideration of territorial government after the adoption of a constitution for the State of Deseret. In a letter of introduction to Senator Stephen A. Douglas, Bernhisel was identified as a duly accredited delegate of the citizens of the Great Salt Lake Valley.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution, the General Assembly of the State of Deseret met for the first time on Monday, July 2, 1849, at Great Salt Lake City. The body adopted a formal memorialization to Congress asking that the Constitution of Deseret accompanying the memorial be ratified, and that the State of Deseret be admitted into the Union, or that some other form of civil government be established. The General Assembly, meeting in joint session, elected Almon W. Babbitt delegate to Congress.

Historical Data

Boundary lines of the Provisional State of Deseret as established in the preamble to the Deseret constitution. In view of the vast uninhabited areas encompassed by the government, no attempt was made to subdivide the entire area into county governmental units. Counties indicated were for the most part limited to certain inhabited valleys.

The memorial and Constitution of Deseret were not presented to the Senate until December 27, 1849. In presenting the memorial, Stephen A. Douglas asked for admission of Deseret as a state or for establishment of a territorial government leaving the choice to Congress. In his message to Congress on January 21, President Zachary Taylor remarked that, "No material inconvenience will result from the want, for a short period, of a government established by Congress over that part of the Territory (which lies eastward of the proposed State of California)." The Administration was unsympathetic to granting the Mormons their desires and Congress was split over the slave question, thus complicating division of the Mexican cession into territories or states.

While Dr. Bernhisel pleaded his case with influentials in Washington, and Congress took no action on the seating of Babbitt, the first true legislative session of the General Assembly of the State of Deseret began in December 1849. Meetings resulted in enactment of measures regulating the militia, provided for organization of the judiciary, a revenue act, irrigation projects and roads, a University of the State of Deseret, and the location of the six original counties of Deseret. In each case these counties were confined to valleys rather than encompassing all intervening territory in a contiguous arrangement. Thus, the total area of the state was not subdivided into counties, organized or unorganized, as was the normal custom (see Map 4). Acts of the legislature were known as ordinances, a term usually associated with county or municipal government. The session adjourned early in March of 1850.

In Washington, the question of a government for Utah proceeded slowly. On April 4, 1850, the House Committee on Elections reported on its examination of the credentials of Babbitt, recommending the adoption of a resolution declaring it inexpedient to admit Babbitt to a seat in the House as a delegate from "the alleged State of Deseret." After extensive debate, the report of the committee was adopted in July 1850 and Babbitt was never seated in the House of Representatives.

By August 9, 1850, several bills calling for the organization of a territory in the Great Basin area were reported. A bill by Senator Douglas substituted the name of Utah for Deseret, and in common with other bills reduced the area to be granted territorial status from the extensive area of the Provisional State of Deseret. Dr. Bernhisel labored to prevent a reduction to the limits of only the Great Basin. He was able to obtain the following boundaries for a Territory of Utah: the 37th parallel on the south, the Rocky Mountains on the east, Oregon on the north, and the proposed state of California on the west. A compromise bill embodying proposals by Henry Clay finally passed the House on September 7, was approved by the Senate and was signed by President Millard Fillmore on September 9, 1850. This provided for the organization of both New Mexico and Utah as territories (see Map 5). On the same date, California was admitted as a state.

By the terms of the Utah Organic Act, an area representing about one-half of the Provisional State of Deseret was incorporated into the Territory of Utah. Lost was significant area south of the 37th parallel of north latitude, including what is now Arizona north of the Gila River, southern Nevada, northwestern New Mexico, and the southern California area with its Pacific seaboard. Congress did not grant the newly established territory a western frontier at the Sierra Nevada because California was admitted as a state on the same day, with a longitudinal and diagonal line running east of the mountains. When the 42nd parallel of north latitude was drawn for a northern boundary, area in the Great Basin in what is now Oregon and Idaho, and southwestern Wyoming in the Colorado River Drainage system, was lost. Areas added to the Territory of Utah not formerly within the Provisional State of Deseret were small portions of northern Nevada and northwestern Utah in the drainage basin of the Snake River (see Maps 4 and 6).

In 1850 the unorganized territory acquired from Mexico was erected into the two territories of New Mexico and Utah and the State of California. This map indicates the extent of the two territories in relation to contemporary states in our "Southwest."

The Utah Territorial Organic Act provided that a governor be appointed for four years. He could also be commander-in-chief of the militia and superintendent of Indian affairs. A two-house legislature was to meet annually and was limited to sessions of 40 days each. Judicial power was vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts and justice courts. A delegate to the House of Representatives was to be elected.

It is possible that formation of territorial government for the area would not have been approved, at least in its final form, had not President Taylor died July 9, 1850, and the presidency fallen to Millard Fillmore. Taylor was not in sympathy with the Mormon cause and was opposed to granting state or territorial government. On the other hand, Millard Fillmore's sympathy had been cultivated by Dr. Bernhisel and he was very friendly toward the Mormons. On September 20, President Fillmore named his appointees to govern Utah Territory, among them Brigham Young, Mormon Church president, as governor (1850-1858).

Contemporary with events in Washington that led to the establishment of Utah Territory, sessions of the Deseret legislature continued through the summer and autumn of 1850. These meetings were known as the Second Session of the General Assembly and the session apparently terminated October 5, 1850. The last two ordinances were passed after formal establishment of the Territory of Utah by Congress. News of the passage of the Utah Territorial Act did not reach Great Salt Lake City until October 15, and a copy of the act was not received until late November.

The Territory of Utah as related to the area of the Provisional State of Deseret and the areas eventually acquired by the states of Nevada and Utah.

On December 2, 1850, the General Assembly of the State of Deseret began its third session at Great Salt Lake City because Brigham Young was not aware of his appointment as governor of Utah Territory until January 28, 1851. Rules and regulations for the governing of both houses of the General Assembly were adopted and standing committees were organized. Eight ordinances were passed by the session in December 1850. Twenty-four additional ordinances were passed at the third session in January and February. The final ordinance was enacted by the General Assembly February 24, 1851, followed by adjournment until later in March.

Representation for both houses of the State of Deseret was based on population and apportioned among the seven counties, ranging from 9 senators and 20 representatives for Great Salt Lake County to 1 senator and 1 representative for Tooele County.

When the General Assembly of the Provisional State of Deseret met March 26, 1851, a formal dissolution of that government was initiated in view of the establishment of the government of the U.S. Territory of Utah. Two days later, in joint session, the Senate and the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of Deseret dissolved the provisional government. With no further ceremony, the Provisional Government of the State of Deseret ceased to exist.

Territory of Utah

Gradually, the newly created territorial government was organized. Brigham Young took the oath of office as governor before Daniel H. Wells, Chief Justice of the State of Deseret, February 3, 1851. The first officers appointed from other states arrived in Utah June 7, the last on August 17, 1851.

The Provisional State of Deseret existed for slightly over two years as the de facto government in the Great Basin of North America, and held three formal legislative sessions. The last to meet after the official formation of the Territory of Utah produced a criminal code and the bulk of Deseret law. It is normal to ponder on the relative importance of the work accomplished by that government and the true significance of the resolution which dissolved Deseret as a government. Some comprehension of the value of having formed this provisional government can be drawn from subsequent action taken by the Utah Territorial Government. The first legislature of the Territory of Utah convened September 22, 1851, and the laws of the State of Deseret were legalized. On the same day a second resolution was passed. A joint committee consisting of two members of the Council and three of the House of Representatives was instructed "to revise and classify the laws of the State of Deseret, which have been legalized by this Assembly, so as to apply to the territorial organization of the Territory." The laws of Deseret were thus incorporated into Utah law, and constituted a firm foundation for general law in the territory.

The establishment of the Territory of Utah in 1850, the organization of its government, and the first session of the territorial government in 1851, were contemporary with the first permanent non-Indian settlement in Nevada at Genoa. In this Political History of Nevada, detailed consideration has been given the Provisional State of Deseret and the Territory of Utah because of the fact that much of the area which eventually became the State of Nevada was once part of Deseret and Utah Territory. The laws of Utah Territory, based on those of Deseret, were in effect throughout what is now Nevada, the southernmost portion excepted, and Carson County government was established in what is now western Nevada by the Territory of Utah. From Nevada's first permanent settlement in 1851, until the establishment of the Territory of Nevada 10 years later, most of our early history is that of the western part of Utah Territory.

A primary objective of the Utah authorities was to provide food for the rapidly increasing population. An effort was made to scout for favorable locations to colonize and occupy the territory with settlements; distances did not deter them. Beginning in 1855, the hardy and industrious Mormon people settled colonies on the eastern slope of the Carson Range in areas now a part of Nevada, and as far southwest as San Bernardino. The old fort at Las Vegas was established as a trading post. Settlements were established at Franktown in Washoe Valley and Callville on the Colorado River in what is now Clark County. In Carson Valley, on rich and well-watered soil, was founded a settlement called "Mormon Station." It was good land for farming, and also on a route to the mines of California. John and Enoch Reese, Mormon merchants and traders, erected the first permanent dwelling place in Nevada in the summer of 1851.

As the population of western Utah Territory increased, it became evident that some form of local government must be instituted. A meeting called November 12, 1851, organized a provisional government. This meeting was held at Mormon Station, later renamed Genoa, in 1855. Either the people ignored the fact that they were subject to the laws of the Territory of Utah, or they considered those laws inadequate. Undoubtedly the geographical location of the various settlements in the "far west" of Utah Territory was a basic cause of unrest. Legally, Fillmore City, located in Pauvan Valley 150 miles to the south, was the seat of government for the new territory. However, early sessions of the legislature met at Great Salt Lake City because of uncompleted facilities at Fillmore. Both of these cities were over 500 miles to the east and separated from Carson Valley by some of the most formidable terrain for travel on the continent. Provisions for locating the capital of the Territory of Utah were established by joint resolutions of the Utah Territorial Legislature.

These distances, coupled with lack of attention given the settlers in the western portion of Utah by the early territorial government, might have been offset by establishment of local government in the western valleys. Among other problems, the absence of some measure of county organization had led to lawlessness and confusion concerning property rights.

The State of Deseret had not attempted to organize its vast area into counties, particularly areas without permanent settlement. Though practical at the time, the policy became inadequate when new areas attracted settlement. The original six counties of Deseret, and those created later, covered only a small part of the provisional state and were geographically defined as encompassing certain inhabited valley areas, none of which were located in, or extended into, what is now Nevada (see Map 4). This type of county organization was inherited and legalized by the Territory of Utah, which continued the practice by forming another such “valley” county in 1851.

The Millard County Act, with its county seat at Fillmore City, was an indication of the high esteem in which President Millard Fillmore, who signed the Organic Act and made possible the creation of Utah Territory, was held by the territorial legislature.

By early 1852 New Mexico and Utah territories established their original counties, these occupying the entire area of the territories (see Map 7). New Mexico counties extended east and west in much the same pattern as later developed in Utah. Some of these covered the southern portion of what is now Nevada. The New Mexico act establishing counties was based upon older Mexican divisions. The Utah act was an elaboration of the Provisional State of Deseret county divisions, expanded to encompass the entire area of the territory.

The New Mexico action on July 6, 1852, at its bifurcated first session (1851-1852), predated the Utah establishment of “total area” counties by about two months. A few days later the New Mexico Territorial Legislature went into more detail and specifically delineated the boundaries of each of the nine original counties, possibly realizing that “heretofore established and known” was not sufficient. The act established the following counties by name: Taos, Rio Arriba, Santa Fé, San Miguel, Santa Ana, Bernalillo, Valencia, Socorro, and Doña Ana. These original nine counties of the Territory of New Mexico retained their boundaries, and no new counties were established until 1860. The history of county changes by Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, in areas eventually to form and expand Nevada, is largely that of Utah county boundary changes and establishment of new counties, most significant of which was Carson County.

The Utah Territorial Act dividing that territory into counties was approved about two months after a similar action taken by New Mexico. This was the first time the entire area of Utah had been divided into county government areas.

Such action by either the Provisional State of Deseret or the territorial legislature still would have been inadequate had it been taken prior to the 1851 settlements in the “far west,” since the county seats of all of the counties where Nevada is now located were situated hundreds of miles to the east. A hypothetical example of such a problem lies in the possibility that, had not additional counties and territories been organized, to this very day, residents of Carson City, even with the assistance of automobiles and aircraft, would have to travel over 500 miles to their county courthouse at Fillmore City, Utah.

Three of the original 12 "total area" counties of Utah were attached to adjoining counties for election, revenue and judicial purposes. Apportionment of representation among the counties in the territorial legislature ranged from 12 representatives and 5 councilors for Great Salt Lake County to one representative and one councilor shared with another county by both Juab and Tooele counties.

The act of Congress establishing the Territory of Utah had provided for a two-house legislature consisting of 13 councilors and 26 representatives.

Seven of the 12 counties organized in 1852 were the first Utah counties to encompass area which is now Nevada, thereby extending technical county jurisdiction into the valleys in the western part of the territory, including Carson, Eagle and Washoe valleys. From north to south they were, Weber, Desert, Tooele, Juab, Millard, Iron and Washington. Of these, all but Desert County still exist, though much reduced in area, as counties in the present State of Utah (see Map 7). In theory, then, a form of local county government extended into what is now Nevada, including the valleys at the base of the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada and its adjoining Carson Range. Judges, whose terms were four years, were appointed by the Utah Legislature, one for Weber and Desert, one for Iron and Washington, and one each for the other three counties. Their availability in the "far west" of the territory for purposes of rendering any justice and providing a semblance of authority was another matter.

The objectives of the provisional government meeting held November 12, 1851, at Mormon Station were stated in their declaration of intentions to evolve a system by which they could so subdivide the valley as to secure to each settler his right to land taken up and improved; to frame a petition to Congress for a distinct territorial government; to create public offices; and to adopt bylaws and regulations for the government of the community. At the meeting, resolutions were adopted providing for the survey of land claims and for the employment of a surveyor; creating the offices of recorder and treasurer; limiting claims to quarter sections, and the like. The recorder-treasurer was made accountable to the committee, which had power of appointment and removal. This committee of seven was to be practically in charge of the government. A petition to Congress was read and approved.

Another meeting convened November 19, 1851, at which the petition to Congress again was read. A committee was appointed to draft bylaws. Assembling again the next day, the settlers agreed on a means of law enforcement and a court system.

Carson County, Utah Territory

During the years 1852 and 1853, the influx of people into Carson Valley made it increasingly difficult for the provisional government to handle its many problems. Hence, some of the settlers started an agitation for annexation of the area by the State of California. The capital of California was much closer to Carson Valley than Utah government centers at Fillmore City or Great Salt Lake City. The Utah government organized Carson County as a result of agitation in California for the annexation of Carson Valley. It is also probable that Utah was influenced by the desire expressed by the people of Carson for a distinct territorial government. Many of these pioneers of far-western Utah were dissatisfied with the Utah government; consequently, in November 1851, they framed a petition to Congress for a separate government. In May 1852 they hoped that they would fall under the laws of California as part of Pautah County if Congress ceded the area to the Golden State. In 1853, they petitioned California to annex them.

Word of dissatisfaction, petitions and the annexation movements were an important motivating force in the creation of Carson County by the third annual session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah.

Created on January 17, 1854, the new county of Carson extended from the California boundary to a line about 108 miles to the east; and from about 90 miles below the present northern boundary of the state it ran south some 215 miles. This was an area of over 20,000 square miles. The site of the county encompassed all of today's Douglas, Lyon, Ormsby and Storey Counties; major parts of Washoe, Pershing and Churchill Counties; most of Mineral County; the western corner of Esmeralda County; and a small portion of Nye County. Genoa became the county seat (see Maps 7 and 8).

Utah officials delayed organizing Carson County and sending officials to the western region of the territory. The Carson Valley residents once more tried to organize themselves and hired attorney William A. Cornwall to draft their own constitution for them. Very little is known about this document, which has been overlooked by generations of historians. Cornwall's constitution called for an elected three-man court, a president, secretary and sheriff to govern the valley. There is no evidence that this document was ever adopted or presented for a vote. The year following the creation of Carson County, the fourth annual session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah provided for direct representation of Carson County in the Utah Legislative Assembly. Carson County had been attached, until organized, to Millard County by the Act of 1854. This session also provided a separate judicial district for Carson County, one of three for the entire territory.

1854—Carson County created out of western portions of Tooele, Juab, Millard and Iron Counties, Utah Territory, and attached to Millard County for election, revenue and judicial purposes until organized.

Following these two actions by the Utah Legislature, George P. Stiles, U.S. District Judge, was named to preside over Carson County; and Orson Hyde, one of the 12 apostles of the Mormon church, was named by the Governor as Probate Judge. Stiles, Hyde and J. L. Haywood, U.S. Marshal for Utah, accompanied by 36 other men, reached Mormon Station on June 15, 1855. They were followed by other Mormon colonizers.

On September 20, 1855, Judge Hyde called an election to fill county offices and thus organized the county government. Mormon Station was renamed Genoa and designated the county seat. Election campaigning engendered considerable feeling between Mormon and non-Mormon candidates. The non-Mormons were dissatisfied with the election when several Mormon candidates were successful, so they proceeded to draw up another petition to Congress requesting incorporation into the State of California. On November 23, 1855, they again petitioned the California Legislature that the county become part of that state.

The fifth annual session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah (1855-1856) convened December 11, 1855, and was the first to be held at Fillmore City. Carson County was represented by Enoch Reese in the House of Representatives; there was no one from Carson County in the Council, the upper house of the legislature. This session expanded the area of Carson County by extending its territory northward for its entire width to the Oregon line, at the expense of the western portions of Weber and Desert Counties. Possibly this act was influenced by continued agitation in Carson County for annexation to California (see Map 9). The addition to Carson County included much of what is now Humboldt County and the northern portion of Washoe and parts of Pershing counties, enlarging Carson County by half again its former size.

In addition to enlarging Carson County, the same act of 1856 provided for the establishment of three new counties in areas now a part of Nevada. Two of these, Humboldt and St. Mary's, though not extending as far south as Carson County, occupied that portion of northern Nevada from Carson County across Utah Territory to our present eastern boundary line with the state of Utah (Greenwich and Washington meridian differentials excepted). They were formed from the western parts of Weber, Desert, Tooele and Juab Counties. The area of these new counties, as first created, encompassed much of the rest of Utah Territory, which eventually was to become Nevada. They included all the area north of Millard County, east of Carson County, and west of 114° longitude. The 116th meridian divided the two counties into equal areas, with Humboldt on the west. Not much is known regarding the reason for their establishment. There were no important settlements and inhabitants were few. The census of 1860 showed Humboldt County with a total of 40 persons and

St. Mary's County with 105. Obviously for this reason they were attached by a separate act (oddly enough approved two days prior to their establishment), to Tooele County for government purposes (see Map 9). The population situation in Humboldt and St. Mary's counties is further emphasized by the fact that at no time during their period of existence were they organized or were county seats established.

The western portion of the third newly created county, Beaver County, extended into what is now Nevada and was formerly the northern part of Iron County (see Map 9). Also, the same act redefined the latitudinal line between Iron and Washington Counties, producing a minor change not readily defined on contemporary maps.

The establishment of Carson County in 1854, followed in 1855 by its organization and direct representation in the Utah Territorial Legislature, represented a trend that led increasingly toward the formation of an independent political unit within the western portion of Utah Territory. This policy was fortified by the single county of Carson forming an entire judicial district through legislative action in 1855. The 1856 Territorial Session of Utah increased the size of Carson County. However, it also repealed the authorization for it to continue as a separate judicial district. Such action was the first indication of a policy of bringing the county more directly under authority of governing centers in the developed portion of the territory. This portended more restrictive acts that followed in 1857. Legislation restricting the former individuality of Carson County as a separate judicial district, and combining it quite significantly with Great Salt Lake and other counties in a single district, was associated with the January 17, 1856, County Reorganization Act.

On the same date, two companion resolutions were approved. One assigned Honorable George P. Stiles, Associate Justice, to the newly defined third judicial district. The other specified the time of holding annual district courts in the several judicial districts in the Territory of Utah. This resolution set dates and named three locations in the third district, one on the first Monday of July in the county seat of Carson County.

Special acts were approved January 17, 1856, by the Utah Territorial Legislature for Carson County. One granted to Carson County “the revenue arising from the territorial tax levied therein for the years 1855 and 1856, to be used by the county court for improvements in said county.” Apparently this was unique to Carson County. Interestingly, another illustrated the obstacles to travel in those days. A special act appropriated $1,200 “for mileage and payment of six guards from Carson county, to guard the representative from said county to Great Salt Lake City, and back again.” One other county was allowed three guards for its representative, San Pete County, to guard the representative “through an Indian country.”

When the next elections were held in Carson County, August 4, 1856, the Mormons clearly outnumbered the non-Mormons (or Gentiles as they were sometimes referred to by the Mormons). Every Mormon candidate was elected except one, the Assessor-Treasurer. The increase in Mormon population in Carson County followed a decision by Brigham Young to enlarge the proportion of Mormons by sending “colonizing” expeditions to the area from Great Salt Lake City to counter activities such as further petitions being drawn, as in 1855, for annexation to California.

With the Mormons, who arrived in 1856 from Salt Lake, came W. W. Drummond as U.S. Judge for the Third District of Utah. He held court in a barn at Mottsville. A grand jury was summoned and charged to bring in indictments against all citizens guilty of gambling, concubinage, or other minor frontier offenses. The jury, after some self-examination, adjourned, not caring to indict themselves. The jury did no better in indicting others. Judge Drummond, disgusted, returned to Washington, D.C. The probate court spent $116 to convict a man for stealing $12 in gold dust. The county court ordered the county divided into five school districts. However, the school system started coming to naught the following year, when the first school house was converted to a horse stable.

1857—Carson County attached to Great Salt Lake County, Utah Territory, for election, revenue and judicial purposes.

Other important events were transpiring in 1856, notable among these the action of armed Mormons in eastern Utah, where they drove U.S. District Judge W. W. Drummond from the bench. He fled from the territory and published scathing reports about the Mormons. The relations between the federal government and the Mormons became hostile, and newly-elected President James Buchanan sent a large military force under General Albert Sidney Johnston to Salt Lake to confront them.

Another matter also was developing in 1856, the final official action to abandon the idea of locating the territorial capital at Fillmore City. The Fifth Session was the only complete session of the legislature held at Fillmore. On two other occasions, the legislators assembled there and then adjourned to Salt Lake City. The executive and judicial offices of the territory were located in Fillmore only briefly. Technically, Fillmore was the capital of Utah only until the winter of 1856, for on December 15 of that year Salt Lake City was made Utah's capital by joint resolution of the legislature. The anticipated development of central Utah did not take place.

It is interesting to note that the Legislative Assembly adopted resolutions that had the full force and effect of an act. Such resolutions should not be confused with resolutions passed by contemporary sessions of the Nevada Legislature. These have no binding effect whatsoever. The Territorial Legislature of Utah used what they termed "memorials" for measures designed merely to express a desire on the part of the assembly.

Present and anticipated difficulties with the federal government led to new legislation early in 1857. This severely restricted the semi-independence of Carson County, Territory of Utah.

In mid-1857, due to the advance of Johnston's army into eastern Utah Territory, Brigham Young, even though relieved as territorial governor, called his followers from all parts to defend the City of Saints against the Gentiles. On July 16, 1857, P. G. Sessions began the exodus from western Carson County, taking with him 64 people. It is not absolutely clear that the departure of Sessions and his train was ordered by Brigham Young. In view of the fact that all Mormons later were definitely ordered to depart from western Utah, it appears most probable that Sessions set out in accordance with the known desires of the Salt Lake Mormon authorities. Most of the Mormons in Carson County responded to the call of their leader. Many of them left behind valuable farm land and buildings, which they sold for what they could obtain on short notice. Within two years the property was worth many times what these Mormons received because of the discovery of the fabulous Comstock Lode. The departure of the Mormons resulted in the almost complete depopulation of the Truckee Meadows and Washoe and Eagle Valleys.

The setback of local county government as a county attached to Great Salt Lake County sparked renewed activity by the factions who were pressing for even greater local autonomy than full county government. The attachment of Carson County to Great Salt Lake County was a particularly unacceptable situation in view of the fact that the two counties did not form a contiguous territory. This required residents in Carson Valley to travel over 500 miles to inspect the official county records (see Map 10).

Before the remainder of the Mormons departed for Salt Lake, a serious effort was made to persuade Congress to authorize and organize a new territory out of portions of Utah, California and New Mexico. The initiatory step was made at a public meeting held at Gilbert's saloon, Genoa, August 3, 1857. There, a committee of arrangements was appointed to prepare for a mass meeting ordered for August 8 at Genoa.

Resolutions adopted at this meeting based the demand for a territorial government on rapid increase of population; dangers threatening from Indians; absence of all law to restrain the vicious and to protect the upright; and the need for greater security of lives and property. It was provided that a memorial be drawn up to submit to the U.S. authorities reasons for this movement toward a territorial government. James M. Crane was selected, authorized and appointed by the citizens of the proposed territory "to visit the federal capital, to represent the interests, wants, and views of the people to the President of the U.S., and to both Houses of Congress." Crane, a native of Virginia, was the former editor of San Francisco's California Courier, a lecturer, outspoken advocate of state's rights and regional self determination, and author of The Past, The Present, and the Future of the Pacific (1856). Crane moved to Genoa in western Utah Territory at the behest of William M. Ormsby, the driving force behind the territorial initiative.

The meeting appointed 28 men "to manage and superintend all matters necessary and proper in the premises" and empower them, as a committee, to fill all vacancies and to increase their number when necessary. Particular members of the committee were assigned to the following districts: Honey Lake Valley, Eagle Valley, Carson Valley, Willow Town, Ragtown, Twenty-six Mile Desert, Humboldt Sink, Walker River and Valley, Hope Valley, and Lake Valley.

The memorial drawn up to accompany these resolutions repeated what was noted in the second paragraph above relative to the need for a territorial government, and added further details with certain other reasons for the granting of a new government:

In the winter time the snows . . . frequently interrupt all intercourse . . . between the Great Basin and the State of California, and the Territories of Oregon and Washington, for nearly four months every year. During the same time all intercourse and communication between us and the civil authorities of Utah are likewise closed.

Within this space of time, and indeed from our anomalous condition during all seasons of the year, no debts can be collected by law; no offenders can be arrested, and no crime can be punished except by the code of Judge Lynch, and no obedience to government can be enforced, and for these reasons there is and can be no protection to either life or property except that which may be derived from the peaceably disposed, the good sense and patriotism of the people, or from the fearful unsatisfactory, and terrible defense and protection which the revolver, the bowie knife, and other deadly weapons may afford us.

. . . The distance between the Great Salt Lake City and the innumerable fertile valleys which lie along the eastern spurs of the Sierra Nevada, where the most of the population of this section reside, is nearly 800 miles, and over this immense space there sweep two deserts. On this account no intercourse or communication of a legal or political nature is or can be held with the civil authorities of Utah. The only authority acknowledged in this part of Utah Territory, by any class of people, is that which the Church of the Latter-day Saints. . . . exercises over its votaries and disciples. Neither they nor the Gentiles appear to look to the Territorial Government of Utah for any statutory laws . . . .

. . . Nearly one half of the country . . . has but two Justices of the Peace and one Constable, and while no one even respects their authority, there are not perhaps fifty men in the whole country who know or care to know who they are or where they live. Should they attempt to exercise any authority, they would be regarded not as intermeddlers but intruders. Nearly the whole region . . . was once erected into a county called "Carson" . . . but for some reason or reasons unknown to your petitioners, the . . . Legislature [of Utah] has abolished the county organization and has established in lieu of it an election precinct . . . in which nobody votes for an officer, and nobody cares to vote.

It has been noted that the Genoa meetings of August 3 and 8 were called after the departure of the first group of Mormons for Salt Lake. On September 5, 1857, the Conover Company Express arrived in Washoe Valley, bearing a dispatch calling in the Mormons en masse from western Utah. On September 26 the remaining Mormons, 450 in all, started for Salt Lake in obedience to the order. Western Utah was now largely in the hands of Gentiles and apostates from the Brigham Young theory of Mormonism, and was without settled institutions of any kind.

The desire for stable government persisted. On October 3, 1857, Mr. Crane addressed a meeting of the people at Honey Lake Valley. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the actions taken at Carson Valley and approving Mr. Crane's selection as the delegate of the proposed new territory. The creation of a new territory was advocated by the newspapers of California, and the California Legislature and Governor John B. Weller endorsed such a proposal the following year.

Utah Governor Alfred Cumming, successor to Brigham Young, received his appointment from President Buchanan July 11, 1857. It was hoped that the appointment of a non-Mormon would partially satisfy the restless "Gentiles" in Carson Valley. The new governor commissioned non-Mormon John S. Child Probate Judge to reorganize Carson County local government. This was the first step in reorganization, though elections and formal action re-establishing the local organization of Carson County by the Utah Territorial Legislature did not materialize until more than a year later. During this volatile period, one of the actions taken at the seventh annual session of the Legislature of the Territory of Utah again changed the capital of the territory, at least technically, from Salt Lake City to Iron County.

In Washington, the House Committee on Territories, chaired by William Smith of Virginia, reported favorably on a bill creating Nevada Territory on May 12, 1858; however, the bill was not taken up on the floor of the House of Representatives during the 35th Congress. Support for establishment of a new territory waned with the peaceful resolution of the "Utah War." At the same time, most southern congressmen opposed creating any new territories that would become states outlawing slavery.

In an attempt to reorganize local government in Carson Valley, Judge John S. Child called for an election to be held October 30, 1858. When the returns were counted, the votes of four of the six precincts were thrown out because of alleged fraudulent voting. Perhaps one of the underlying reasons for the voiding of so many votes was that the anti-Mormon ticket had been defeated for most of the offices. The anti-Mormons were determined to prevent control of the local government from falling into the hands of Mormon sympathizers.

Previous to the election, and in the absence of courts, a committee of citizens had hanged "Lucky Bill" Thorington of Carson Valley for murder, the condemned man's guilt not being clearly established. This vigilante exercise of judicial functions by the followers of William Ormsby created a division of sentiment in western Utah.

The eighth annual session of the Legislature of the Territory of Utah took formal action re-establishing the territorial capital at Great Salt Lake City. The Legislature was to meet in Parowan, Iron County. However, apparently no meetings were held there, certainly no complete session.

In 1859, the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah reactivated Carson County and provided that the county extend over its former enlarged area (north to the Oregon line). In addition, the counties of Humboldt and St. Mary's were to be attached thereto (see Map 11). With these attached counties, the new extent of the governmental jurisdiction of Carson County included all of the area that was shortly to be established as the Territory of Nevada, excepting the southeast portion, the whole extending even farther by one degree of latitude to the east.

Genoa was established as county seat for Carson County, a point not covered in former legislation. The original act of 1854, which organized Carson County, provided that the probate judge was to locate the county seat. A few days after the passage of the Reorganization Act for Carson County, the following act provided that Carson, Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties were organized into one judicial district.

A companion measure approved on January 21, 1859, assigned the Honorable John Cradlebaugh, Associate Justice, to the Second District. Another act of the same date reinstated a representative from Carson County in the Utah Territorial Legislature. Humboldt and St. Mary's received no direct representation at any time, since at one time or another for governmental purposes, they were attached either to Carson or Great Salt Lake Counties.

1859—Carson County reorganized and no longer attached to Great Salt Lake County, Utah Territory. Humboldt and St. Mary’s Counties attached to Carson County for election, revenue and judicial purposes.

Through no fault of his own, Judge Child had failed to satisfactorily reorganize Carson County. Many of the county’s residents favored a separate territorial organization. For their own purposes they were ready to use the popular feeling against the Mormons of eastern Utah. A mass meeting was called for June 6, 1859, at Carson City, the purpose of which was to take such action as would most likely reopen the territorial question.

The meeting of June 6 apportioned Carson County into voting precincts and called an election for July 14 to choose a delegate who would represent the proposed territory in Washington. It provided for a convention to convene at Genoa July 18 to count the votes for delegates and to give the successful candidate his credentials, and to take such other action as emergency demanded. The meeting further called for a nominating convention of regularly appointed delegates from the various precincts to meet at Carson City June 20. The sole purpose of this convention was to place in the field candidates from whom to choose delegates to the Genoa Convention to be held on July 18.

The convention of July 18 remained in session nine days. James Crane was re-elected delegate over his opponent Frederick Dodge, western Utah Indian Agent, in a closely contested election marked by charges of fraudulent voting on both sides. The convention determined upon separation from Utah:

. . . Such has been our patient sufferings, and such is now the necessity for dissolving all political relations [that] we deem it not only our right, but also our duty, to disown such a government, and such a people, and to form new guards for our future security.

They have denied to the Judges of the United States a right to try in their courts the violators of the law, when such violations were numerous.

They have conferred upon Probate Judges the sole right to select juries in civil and criminal cases, in violation of all law and precedent. They have also given to said Judges, and Justices of the Peace, absolute jurisdiction in all civil and criminal cases.

We have for the last two years invoked Congress to erect for us a Territorial Government, and that body has been deaf to our appeals.

Therefore, believing in the rectitude of our intentions and believing the time has arrived, we make known and declare our entire and unconditional separation from eastern Utah.

To provide for and secure our future protection, we pledge to each other our sacred obligations, to erect for ourselves a Territorial Government, founded upon the Republican principles of the Constitution of the United States, and that we will maintain and defend it to the best of our ability. And we look to the support and protection of the Federal Government, and our fellow citizens in every part of the Union.

Having decided to form a provisional government and secede from Utah Territory, the convention framed a constitution, which was submitted to the people on September 7, 1859. On the same date, an election was ordered to fill the offices created by the Constitution. No election returns were preserved. Apparently Isaac Roop was elected governor, for he served as such. None of the other officers elected ever served. A newspaper clipping found in Governor Roop's scrapbook indicated that the majority for the constitution was about 400 votes. Further, John J. Musser, President of the Convention and Chairman of the Board of Canvassers, certified that a large majority of the votes were in favor of the constitution, and that Roop was elected governor by a large majority. This "provisional" government was not recognized by the federal government, and thus was similar to the provisional government of 1851 as far as its authority was concerned.

After the foregoing election, Probate Judge Child attempted to re-establish the authority of the probate court by giving notice of a term commencing September 12, 1859, at Genoa. The only business was the appointment of a coroner and the granting of a divorce. The courts of Utah encountered continuing difficulties in Carson County. The U.S. Court fared no better, and the area remained in a state of political turmoil.

The great increase in population that followed the discovery of the Comstock Lode with its fabulous content of silver and gold in June 1859 made it imperative that effective government be restored to Carson County.

Judge Child made a further effort to reorganize Carson County by dividing the County into ten precincts and calling an election for October 8, 1859. Only three of the ten precincts opened the polls. Governor Cumming, anxious to aid reorganization, forwarded commissions to the successful candidates but said that a legal investigation would probably have to be made, since there was no authority for calling the election. Judge Child urged certain of the men elected to take the oath of office. None cared to qualify, so the attempt to organize failed and the county continued without a proper corps of officers.

John Cradlebaugh, District Judge assigned to western Utah (Carson County), arrived in Genoa in August 1859. A grand jury congratulated him for having organized a court of justice "under the immediate protection of the United States flag." He had the good wishes of the people, but "the so-called laws of Utah Territory . . . proved to him an insurmountable barrier," in the minds of the people, and probably in fact.

Besides the mining districts there were three different governmental jurisdictions attempting to operate in Carson County, none of them successfully. They were the federal government under Judge Cradlebaugh, the Utah Territorial Government represented by Judge Child, and the Nevada Territorial government with its Governor Isaac Roop.

Crane, who was re-elected congressional delegate, died September 26, 1859, and another election was called for November 12 to fill the vacancy. John J. Musser was chosen to take Crane's place. He left Carson City for Washington, D.C., December 12.

On December 15, 1859, the provisional legislature, elected the preceding September, met at a private house in Genoa. A committee of three was appointed to draft a memorial to Congress to expedite the organization of the new territory. In his message, Provisional Governor Roop noted recent discoveries of mines and the resultant influx of law-abiding men from California, and advised against further activities on the part of the provisional government. He urged his followers to rely on Congress for relief from their numerous evils, and to support the laws and government of the U.S. Only four members of the legislature were present. However, Governor Roop continued to exercise some authority until Congress officially created the Nevada Territory in 1861.

On January 18, 1860, the ninth annual session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah (Chapter XIX) elected the following officers associated with Carson County: William H. Broomfield, District Attorney for the Second Judicial District; John S. Child, Probate Judge for Carson County; and William C. Campbell, Notary Public for Carson County.

In the absence of any workable government, Judge Child urged the people to avail themselves of such laws as were operative, by electing officers to execute them.

Carson County was entitled to one member in the Utah Legislature and on August 6, 1860, Carson residents elected John C. James as their representative, along with several local officers.

On September 3, following the election, Judge Child held the first session of the county court in three years. On September 19 the court, in session at Genoa, authorized the expenditure of $750 to complete repairs on an old structure used as the courthouse. It was in the upper part of this building that Judge Cradlebaugh held his first U.S. District Court, access to his room was through the front door by means of a ladder from the street.

Mr. Musser, delegate to Washington, failed to obtain legislation creating Nevada Territory in the first session of the 36th Congress. The year 1860 was an important presidential election year, and the congressmen were attempting to finish their business before the party nominating conventions. The discovery of the Comstock Lode and the mineral discoveries at Aurora; the subsequent increase in population; the settlers' need for public safety after the Pyramid Lake War; and the impending break between the North and the South were factors in the successful drive for separate territorial status the next year. The residents of Carson County helped in the movement by signing petitions that were sent to the California Legislature requesting the support of its members. The two U.S. Senators from California, William Gwin and Milton S. Latham, introduced the Nevada territorial bill in Congress. A compromise Senate measure passed both houses and was signed by President Buchanan, one of the last acts of his administration, on March 2, 1861.

The 10th Annual Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah (1860-1861) was the last session to enact laws and pass resolutions affecting Carson County, since shortly after it adjourned the Territory of Nevada was established. The first act passed at this session assigned justices to the judicial districts. The Second District was composed of Carson, St. Mary's, and Humboldt Counties in western Utah Territory. The next month, two additional acts were passed with specific reference to Carson County, less than two months prior to separation of the area from Utah Territory.

On the same date an act was approved "Concerning Surveys of Mining Claims in Carson County." The act was a lengthy one for those days, containing six sections and covering such matters as "Aggrieved party may apply for an order of survey."

Two days later approval was given by the governor to an act passed by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah "To Incorporate Virginia City." Common to such incorporations, this was a long act covering 19 sections at law. Highly significant was the fact that a large measure of local government thereby was granted to the city, which had become the focal point of population influx into Carson County. Side notes in the margin of the act identify the nature of the legislation as follows: Name and style, Powers, Area, Trustees, Officers; meetings. Quorums, Absentees, Duties of Trustees, Vacancies, Powers, Jail, Justice (of the) Peace, Constable, Fees, Other Officers, Powers of Justice (of the) Peace, Taxes, Bond, Accounts current to be published, Ordinances, Trustees to qualify, Election, Trustees may contract debts; issue scrip, and Qualifications of voters. These titles suggest the degree of self-government granted in the Incorporation Act.

On the same day that Virginia City was incorporated, an act was approved establishing Carson City as the county seat for Carson County, Utah Territory. This action moved the seat of government for western Utah Territory (Carson, Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties) from Genoa to the city that eventually was to become the governmental center for both the Territory and State of Nevada. The effective date of the act was March 1, one day prior to President Buchanan's signing of the congressional bill establishing the Territory of Nevada.

Several other special acts relating to Carson County were passed and approved, indicating the attention being paid to the "far west" portion of the territory by the Utah Legislature. Only one other county was recognized by a special act at this session, an organization act for Summit County. However, all of these acts and the assistance they were to Carson County by way of authorization and appropriations came too late to stem the tide for a separate territorial government.

A few weeks prior to the establishment of the Territory of Nevada, the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Utah enacted legislation that redefined the northern boundary of Carson County as extending to the Oregon line. This extension had been made in 1856. Possibly it was felt that since the county had been disorganized and then reorganized with counties attached to it without a definition of the boundaries, some re-statement of the matter was desirable. Also, this 1861 act specifically mentioned the employment of Greenwich longitude, a point not heretofore covered, thus eliminating possible conflict with Washington longitude, much in use at the time.

The same 1861 Western County Reestablishment Act provided for the extension of Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties through the complete latitudinal extent of Utah Territory. The act mentions their southern boundaries as California, though an extension southward to the limit of the territory gave no common boundary for St. Mary's County with California, and only a partial boundary for Humboldt County. The southern boundaries for these counties was actually the Territory of New Mexico (see Maps 11 and 12).

While St. Mary's County was extended south to the limits of the territory, its longitudinal extent was reduced from two degrees to only one degree of width.

It is interesting to note that the Legislative Assembly was following a pattern for the division of western Utah Territory into counties, the exact reverse of the system employed for eastern Utah Territory. Rather than counties with an east-west extension, common to most original Utah counties, the formation of Carson County followed a north-south extension, and Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties followed that policy.

The redefined county boundaries for the western part of Utah Territory were in effect from January 18, 1861, to March 2, 1861. On the latter date Congress organized western Utah into the Territory of Nevada. Carson and Humboldt Counties were no longer a part of Utah, and Carson was not defined as a county division for the new territory. However, St. Mary's County continued as a county of Utah Territory, since its area was not included at this time in the Territory of Nevada. The government of St. Mary's County was a questionable one because it was attached for governmental purposes to Carson County, a de facto government for a few months in Nevada Territory (see Maps 12 and 13).

1861, January—San Juan County created out of northern part of Rio Arriba County, New Mexico Territory. Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties, Utah Territory, extended south through Millard, Beaver, Iron and Washington Counties to New Mexico. St. Mary's County reduced in width by one degree. Greasewood, Desert, Tooele, Shambip and Juab Counties extended westward.

The 1860-1861 Legislative Assembly of the Territory of New Mexico created a new county in the area soon to become a part of the State of Nevada. Apparently the legislature of New Mexico was laboring under the handicap of a lack of accurate maps and information about the western portion of that territory. At the time, the latitudinal position of the San Juan River was shown by various maps in several locations that varied considerably as to its location north and south. Some maps showed most of the lower course entirely in Utah Territory, others indicated the entire course within New Mexico Territory. In reality, the lower course of the San Juan River was not in New Mexico Territory, and its most southerly bend was not very far below the northern New Mexico line. When New Mexico Territory created the county San Juan, it was in reality a narrow strip of territory extending far to the west and across what is now part of southern Nevada (see Map 12).

The Territory of Nevada

All things come to those who wait. Congress passed and, on March 2, 1861, President Buchanan signed, "An Act to Organize the Territory of Nevada." Two days later Abraham Lincoln became President of the U.S. On March 22 the President commissioned James W. Nye of New York as Governor and Orion Clemens of Iowa as Territorial Secretary of Nevada. The Territorial Governor arrived at Carson City July 8, 1861, via the Isthmus of Panama. Secretary Clemens came by overland stage accompanied by his young brother Samuel, who was to become the immortal Mark Twain poking fun at the world, including the territorial politicians.

As was the case with many of Lincoln's appointments, Nye was selected in part for patronage reasons. It seems that Nye, a former Whig political leader in New York, had stumped the Midwest for Lincoln in the 1860 election and was being rewarded for his services. However, Governor Nye had also served as Police Commissioner of New York City, and Lincoln needed a strong chief executive to ensure that Nevada Territory remained loyal to the Union. Orion Clemens was chosen to be Secretary of the Territory because of a political connection. Orion had studied in the St. Louis law office of Edward Bates, who later became President Lincoln's Attorney General.

"An Act to Organize the Territory of Nevada," approved by President Buchanan on March 2, 1861, established at the outset the boundaries for the new territory as follows:

. . . beginning at the point of intersection of the forty-second degree of north latitude with the thirty-ninth degree of longitude west from Washington; thence, running south on the line of said thirty-ninth degree of west longitude, until it intersects the northern boundary line of the Territory of New Mexico; thence due west to the dividing ridge separating the waters of Carson Valley from those that flow into the Pacific; thence on said dividing ridge northwardly to the forty-first degree of north latitude; thence due north to the southern boundary line of the State of Oregon; thence due east to the place of beginning . . . (See Map 2)

1861, March—Organization of Nevada from Carson and Humboldt Counties, Utah Territory.

Three important facts established by this organic act have led to an unusual amount of confusion regarding the boundary lines of Nevada. First, it will be noted that the act employed the term “longitude west from Washington.” Full numbered degrees west from Washington do not coincide with full numbered degrees west from Greenwich. A difference of approximately two miles, depending on the latitude, exists between Washington and Greenwich longitude, Washington longitude being farther to the west. Secondly, as originally constituted, Nevada Territory was relatively narrow and lacking, by two degrees, one-third of its longitudinal width, eventually attained by 1866 (see Map 13). A third reference has produced the most confusion. The act specifically mentioned the western line as a “dividing ridge,” which, by definition, is the crest of the Sierra Nevada. However, it should be pointed out that such a boundary line was contingent on the following action as provided in the first part of the act:

... Provided, That so much of the Territory within the present limits of the State of California, shall not be included within this Territory until the State of California shall assent to the same by an act irrevocable without the consent of the United States . . .

The State of California never legislated to “assent to the same.” This left the western boundary line for the newly-created Nevada Territory identical with the eastern boundary line of the State of California as established in 1850. Congress, realizing that California existed as a sovereign state and thus could not have territory taken from her, made the provision to establish the “intent” of Congress. No time was set as to when California should “assent.” Presumably this could be done even at this late date in history, an action not likely to be taken by it.

The area taken from Utah Territory to form the new Territory of Nevada was exactly coextensive with Carson and Humboldt counties of Utah Territory as they existed on the date the Territory of Nevada was created, Washington and Greenwich longitudinal differences notwithstanding (see Maps 12 and 13).

Among other things, the act provided for a governor who “shall commission all officers who shall be appointed to office under the laws of said territory,” as well as a “secretary of said territory” to “record and preserve all the laws and proceedings of the legislative assembly all the acts and proceedings of the governor,” and to transmit copies of the laws and executive proceedings to the President and Congress. The secretary was also “to execute and perform all the powers and duties of the governor” when the governor was absent from the territory. In this capacity the Territorial Secretary acted much the same as would a Lieutenant Governor.

In the act, a legislature was provided, consisting of a council and house of representatives. The council had 9 members and could be increased to 13. The house had 13 members and could be increased to 26. Term of office for the council was two years; for the house, one year. Apportionment of legislators was based on population for both houses of the territorial legislature.

Under the act, the governor was to “cause a census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the several counties and districts of the territory to be taken.” This was done in July 1861, by Henry De Groot, and showed a population of 16,347, not including Indians. The governor was also to “declare the number of the members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties or districts” was entitled, and to set the time and place for the conduct of the first election. The time and place for the meeting of the first legislative assembly was to be established by the governor with a limit of 60 days, subsequent sessions being limited to 40 days.

The governor was granted authority to organize and appoint officers for the territory and to establish districts, until a legislative body could establish counties and provide for their organization.

The Organic Act provided that “judicial power of said territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and in justices of the peace.” It will be recalled that, at the time, an adequate court system was sorely lacking in Carson County. The supreme court was to consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, and the territory was divided into three judicial districts.

The following territorial officers received their appointments from the President of the U.S.: governor, secretary, chief justice, associate justices, attorney general, marshal and a surveyor-general. Annual salaries were as follows: governor, $1,500 and $1,000 as superintendent of Indian affairs; and supreme court justices and the secretary, $1,800 each.

The territory was authorized to elect a delegate to Congress and the governor was to establish the time and places for the conduct of such election. The governor also was to define the judicial districts, appoint judges to them, and establish the times and places for holding court sessions.

Territorial officers were James W. Nye, Governor; Orion Clemens, Secretary of Territory; Benjamin B. Bunker, Attorney General; John T. Lockhart, Indian Agent; Perry G. Childs, Territorial Auditor; John H. Kinkead, Territorial Treasurer; S. C. Gallagher, Governor's Private Secretary; John W. North, Surveyor-General; Butler Ives, Deputy Surveyor-General; John F. Kidder, Chief Clerk; Julius E. Garret, Assistant Clerk Surveyor-General's Office; George Turner, Chief Justice Supreme Court; Horatio N. Jones, Associate Justice; Gordon N. Mott, Associate Justice; and J. McC. Reardon, Clerk.

The district courts were organized as follows: First District, Gordon N. Mott, Judge; David M. Hanson, Clerk; and Dighton Carson, District Attorney. Second District, George Turner, Judge; Alfred Helm, Clerk; and Marcus D. Larrowe, District Attorney. Third District, Horatio N. Jones, Judge; Alfred James, Clerk; and E. B. Zabriskie, District Attorney.

The following were later appointed probate judges: Chauncey N. Noteware, Douglas County; A. W. Oliver, Humboldt County; William Haydon, Lyon County; E. C. Dixson, Ormsby County; and L. W. Ferris, Storey County.

First Territorial Legislature

Governor Nye ordered that an election be held by districts, counties not yet being established, to select the legislators and a delegate to Congress; also, that a legislative session should assemble at Carson City October 1, 1861. The session convened on that date and ended November 29, 1861, lasting 60 days, as provided in the Organization Act of Congress.

In the election held in August 1861, John Cradlebaugh, the former federal judge, was elected as the first territorial delegate to Congress.

The first statute passed by the people of Nevada, as represented in the first session of the Nevada Territorial Legislature, was "An Act adopting the Common Law of England," which was signed by Governor Nye October 30, 1861. Nevada's original nine counties were established by an act approved November 25, 1861, replacing the temporary districts formed for census and election purposes. The nine counties, in order of their mention in the act, were Esmeralda, Douglas, Ormsby, Washoe, Lyon, Storey, Lake, Humboldt and Churchill.

Among other actions taken at this first session of Nevada's Territorial Legislature was "An Act to Prohibit Gambling," which provided that persons who were involved with games of chance were guilty of a felony and subject to imprisonment for two years and a fine of up to $500.

Early action was taken to designate a seat of government for the newly-established territory. The legislators chose Carson City, which had been designated the new county seat for Carson County by the Utah Territorial Legislature earlier the same year.

The Legislature provided for an election to be held “on the second Tuesday in January, A.D. 1862, at which there shall be elected all territorial, county, and township officers authorized by the laws of this territory, and not otherwise provided for”; thus it provided for actual organization of the county governments in particular. In a separate act, boards of county commissioners to consist of three members were established for each organized county. The Nevada Militia was provided for in a lengthy 84-section act.

To provide for county representation in following territorial legislative sessions, an act was adopted stipulating that the several assessors in the counties enumerate their white inhabitants and transmit these “census” returns to the governor. Authority was given to the governor “to apportion the number of the members of the Legislative Assembly, to be elected in each county, according to the number of inhabitants as shown by the returns of the county assessors.” Another act provided for annual sessions of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Nevada to “convene on the second Tuesday in November of each year.” The first session also increased the size of the Territorial Legislature to 13 councilmen and 26 representatives, as provided for in the Organic Act.

An act approved November 29, 1861, divided the territory into three judicial districts, the first to embrace Storey, Washoe and Lake Counties; the second, Ormsby, Douglas and Esmeralda Counties; the third, Lyon, Churchill and Humboldt Counties. The same act provided county seats for the several counties as follows: Esmeralda County, Aurora; Douglas County, Genoa; Ormsby County, Carson City; Washoe County, Washoe City; Storey County, Virginia City; Churchill County, Buckland’s; Humboldt County, Unionville; Lake County, (decision of voters); and Lyon County, Dayton.

Territorial officers and local county and township officers were designated by this first session of the Territorial Legislature as follows: for the territory, in addition to top officials appointed by the president, were a treasurer, auditor and ex officio librarian, superintendent of public instruction, delegate to Congress, members of the Council, members of the House of Representatives, and an attorney for each judicial district; for each county, a county clerk and ex officio auditor, sheriff, tax collector, assessor, treasurer, recorder, county surveyor, county school superintendent and three commissioners; for each township, a justice of the peace and ex officio coroner and a constable. District attorneys and probate judges were to be nominated by the governor and confirmed by the legislative council. Territorial officers not appointed by the President were to be appointed by the governor, with confirmation by the legislative Council. Road supervisors were to be elected in the road districts of the territory.

Territorial officers appointed by the governor, county officers and members of the legislative Council were to hold office for two years. Members of the House of Representatives and township officers were to hold office for one year. The governor was authorized to appoint a number of notaries public to hold their offices at the pleasure of the executive.

Many other acts of this first territorial session were lengthy, some running to six and seven hundred sections, and laid a firm foundation of law on which the future was to build. The first Nevada Territorial Session ended November 29, 1861, and shortly thereafter the Utah Territorial Legislature convened for its 11th annual session (1861-1862). An examination of some Utah county organization is continued at this point in recognition of the fact that eastern Nevada areas which were attached to Nevada in 1862 and 1866 were still under the jurisdiction of Utah.

By act of the Utah Territorial Legislature, approved January 17, 1862, the boundaries of all counties in the territory were completely redefined. Since Carson and Humboldt Counties had been lost in forming the Territory of Nevada, March 2, 1861, no mention of these is made. Likewise, no reference is made to St. Mary's County, its area absorbed by other Utah counties (see Maps 13 and 14). Contemporaneous almost to the day with Utah county changes, New Mexico acted as follows: San Juan County of New Mexico Territory, which extended into what is now part of southern Nevada, had been established in 1861. Possibly in recognition of the difficulty in geographically locating San Juan County, the next session abolished it.

Prior to the Second Session of the Nevada Territorial Legislature, Congress, at the urging of Territorial Delegate John Cradlebaugh, provided for an extension of the Territory of Nevada eastward at the expense of Utah Territory. The addition was made July 14, 1862, extending Nevada Territory to include what had formerly been St. Mary's County of Utah Territory (see Map 15).

As last defined by legislative act January 18, 1861, the total area of St. Mary's County was precisely coextensive with the area attached to the Territory of Nevada in 1862 (Washington and Greenwich longitudinal differentials notwithstanding). At the time of this extension of Nevada Territory, St. Mary's County had been out of existence for several months (see Maps 13, 14 and 15). This new eastern boundary line fell slightly west of the present location of Wells, and incorporated into the Territory of Nevada an area of 18,325 square miles where both Elko and Eureka, Nevada, are now located.

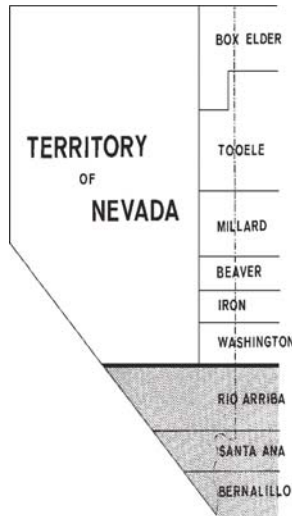

With this first addition of territory to Nevada, the development of Carson County and two other Utah unorganized counties, into a new state in the union can be traced through the following events: (a) Establishment of Carson County in 1854; (b) enlargement of Carson County in 1856; (c) attachment of Humboldt and St. Mary's Counties to Carson County in 1859; (d) extension of these attached counties to the south in 1861; (e) creation of Nevada Territory in 1861; (f) addition of area to Nevada Territory in 1862; and (g) establishment of the State of Nevada in 1864.

Second Territorial Legislature

The Second Regular Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Nevada convened November 11, 1862, and adjourned December 20, 1862, lasting the 40 days provided by the Organic Act for sessions subsequent to the first. Among the early actions taken at this session was the changing of the name of Lake County to Roop County.

Another action taken at this session provides an explanation of why no records are found for a Territorial Session of the Nevada Assembly in 1863, though annual sessions were provided for by law during the time Nevada was a territory. At the First Session in 1861, an act (Chapter LXV) provided for annual sessions to “convene on the second Tuesday in November, of each year.” At the Second Session in 1862, Chapter XVIII changed the time of convening annual sessions of the Legislative Assembly to “the second Tuesday in January, of each year.” Provision was made that the act was not to become effective until the “first day of March . . . one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.” This was necessary to prevent another session falling upon the heels of the Second Session of 1862, in January of 1863. This resulted in the calendar year of 1863 being without a session of the Legislative Assembly, creating a period of not quite 13 months between adjournment of the Second Session, December 20, 1862, and the convening of the Third Session, January 12, 1864.

The town of Gold Hill was the first municipality to be incorporated under laws of the Territory of Nevada by an act approved December 17, 1862, at the Second Session. Two days later, Virginia City, formerly incorporated under the laws of Utah Territory, was reincorporated under Nevada law as the city of Virginia.

From the eastern portions of Humboldt and Churchill Counties, the Second Territorial Session created a new county known as Lander. The act provided that the county seat for Lander County be “Jacob’s Springs, on Reese River, until the permanent location shall have been determined” by an election in the county.

Carson County records of the Probate Court were transferred to the custody of Secretary of the Territory to provide a continued validity of judicially settled conflicts from Utah to Nevada Territory. One of the last acts of the Second Territorial Session was a resolution asking California to adopt the crest of the Sierra Nevada as a western boundary for Nevada.

The Second Territorial Legislature also continued the pursuit of complete citizenship by passing “An Act to frame a Constitution and State Government for the State of Washoe,” Chapter CXXIII, introduced by Isaac Roop and approved by Governor Nye December 20, 1862. This act set the first Wednesday of September 1863 as the time of election, at which the question of state government would be voted upon and 39 delegates to a Constitutional Convention chosen.

No significant action was taken at the 12th annual session of the Territory of Utah (1862-63) affecting areas eventually to become part of Nevada. However, events were taking place to the south in an area eventually to be offered to Nevada by Congress. On February 24, 1863, President Lincoln approved the formation of Arizona Territory from the western portion of the Territory of New Mexico. The northwestern part of this new Arizona Territory eventually was to become part of Nevada, including the locale of Las Vegas (see Map 16).

First Constitutional Convention

The first Constitutional Convention was called to order by Territorial Secretary Clemens November 2, 1863, at Carson City. Its session of 32 days was presided over by John W. North, with William M. Gillespie acting as secretary. A report of its proceedings was not published until 1972 by the Legislative Counsel Bureau. There was a spirited contest over the naming of the state. The act creating the convention referred in the title, and again in the body of the act, to the “State of Washoe.” But the delegates apparently did not consider the state already branded, so Esmeralda, Humboldt and Nevada were offered with Washoe as prospective titles for the coming commonwealth. Each name received votes and a eulogy, but the name “Nevada” was approved. A list of state officers was nominated for the ensuing election of January 19, 1864, as follows:

Representative in Congress.....	John B. Winters of Lyon County
Governor .....	Miles N. Mitchell of Storey County
Lieutenant Governor .....	M. S. Thompson of Humboldt County
Attorney General.....	Henry G. Worthington of Lander County
Justices of Supreme Court (3).....	J. B. Harmon of Storey County
	M.D. Larrowe of Lander County
	Richard S. Mesick of Esmeralda County
Clerk Supreme Court.....	Alfred Helm of Ormsby County

Secretary of State.....	Orion Clemens of Ormsby County
State Treasurer.....	William B. Hickok of Lyon County
State Controller .....	Edwin A. Sherman of Esmeralda County
Superintendent of Public Instruction.....	A. F. White of Ormsby County
State Printer .....	George W. Bloor of Storey County

Of the 39 delegates to the Constitutional Convention, all but five had come from California, all but five were under 50 years of age, and all but two had been in the territory less than five years. Thus, it was only natural that the Constitution was based largely on the Constitution of the State of California, which in turn was similar to the New York State Constitution. The most important member of the convention was William Stewart, a Virginia City lawyer identified closely with leading Comstock mining corporations. Stewart fought a losing battle during the debates against the taxation article that provided for the taxation of the shafts, drifts and bedrock tunnels of mines, regardless of whether they were productive or not. He wanted taxation only of the net proceeds of productive mines. Ironically, Stewart supported the proposed Constitution on the presumption that the First State Legislature would amend the new Constitution to provide taxation only of the net proceeds of productive mines.

The Constitution was opposed by a large group of disappointed candidates who had been defeated at the Union Party nominating convention. Since the Union Party was the only important political organization in the territory, these losing candidates hoped to have another chance by defeating the Constitution and thus voiding the election of officials to serve under the provisions of the document. The Union Party split, and the mining tax provision, together with public mistrust of the ambitious Stewart's motives in supporting statehood, appear to be the main reasons why the voters turned down the proposed Constitution by better than a 4 to 1 majority.

The 13th annual session of the Utah Territorial Legislature (1863-1864) did not enact any important measures affecting areas of Utah eventually to be attached to Nevada.

Third Territorial Legislature

Several actions were taken at the Third Legislative Session of the Territory of Nevada that are of interest concerning further development of county government, incorporation of municipalities and memorials to the Congress.

This last session of the Territory of Nevada, which met January 12, 1864, and adjourned at the end of the 40 days allowed by the Organic Act, February 20, 1864, extended local governing authority to several other communities. The session passed acts incorporating the city of Austin in Lander County (Chapter LXXIII); the city of Aurora in Esmeralda County (Chapter LXXIV), previously granted a charter as the town of Aurora by the Board of Supervisors of Mono County, State of California, when the location was in dispute between California and Nevada; and the city of Star in Humboldt County (Chapter LXXV). The city of Virginia was reincorporated at this session, having been incorporated as Virginia by Nevada Territory in 1862, and formerly incorporated as Virginia City by Utah Territory in 1861. With the 1862 incorporation of Gold Hill, the three sessions of the Territory of Nevada established five incorporated cities and towns: Aurora, Austin, Gold Hill, Star, and Virginia.

An additional county was formed by the Third Session when Nye County was created out of the eastern part of Esmeralda County, reducing that county to less than half its former size (Chapter CII). Nye County was attached to Lander County for district judicial purposes. The county seat was to be located at a point selected by the voters. However, until such selection the Governor was authorized to name the county seat. The same session provided for the organization of Churchill County, one of the original nine created in 1861 and formerly attached to Lyon County for judicial, county and revenue purposes (Chapter LXII). Also, the boundary lines for Lander County (Chapter CVIII) and Lyon County (Chapter CIX) were changed at the session.

One of the original nine counties, Roop County (formerly Lake County), was attached to Washoe County for certain purposes at this last Territorial Session. Roop County was not abolished until 1883, when its area, along with the original area of Washoe County, formed one county from that date on. This 1864 attachment led to the final absorption in 1883 that gave Washoe County its unique elongated area reaching north to Oregon.

The third and last session of the Territorial Legislature made no mention of statehood, which may indicate that it had some premonition as to what was going to happen. Statehood was coming to a head. A writer on the subject said, somewhat bitterly, that "agitation continues, particularly by aspiring politicians." The determining causes were not personal, however, nor in the interests of aspiring politicians, but were reasons of state. Moderate Republican forces in Congress, recognizing presidential need for support in the 1864 election (a three-way race pitting Lincoln against General John C. Frémont, candidate for the radical Republicans, and General George McClellan, a Democrat), soon passed an enabling act that paved the way for statehood.

Second Constitutional Convention

The First State Constitutional Convention had been authorized only by the Territorial Legislature of 1862 and did not have the sanction of Congress. A statehood bill for Nevada had been introduced in Congress in 1863 and had been passed by the Senate on March 3 by a vote of 24-16 after debate, which had centered around the population of the territory. However, the 37th Congress expired at midnight the same day, and the statehood bill was lost in the House of Representatives when a motion to suspend the rules and take up the bills to admit Colorado and Nevada into the Union failed to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority.

In February 1864, Senator James Rood Doolittle of Wisconsin introduced another Nevada statehood bill. However, Nevada was not the only territory being considered for statehood in 1864. Enabling acts were also passed for Nebraska and Colorado Territories. Nevada's statehood bill was part of a national plan to secure more Republican votes for President Lincoln's reelection and for Congress to have a model constitution for the reconstruction of the southern states. The bill was passed by both houses and signed by President Lincoln on March 21, 1864.

The usual procedure for the acceptance of a new state into the union is for Congress to pass an enabling act that specifies the steps which the prospective state must follow before final admission. In the case of Nevada, the following steps were among the instructions contained in the Enabling Act: (1) the new State Constitution must be republican in nature and not repugnant to the U.S. Constitution or the Declaration of Independence; (2) there shall be no slavery or involuntary servitude, other than for punishment of crimes, without the consent of the U.S. and the people of Nevada; (3) the Constitutional Convention must disclaim all rights to unappropriated public lands in Nevada; (4) land owned by U.S. citizens outside Nevada must not be discriminated against in taxation; and (5) there must be no taxation of federal property by the State.

Until the next general census could be taken, the State of Nevada was to have one member in the National House of Representatives. Thereafter, at least one representative was guaranteed to Nevada by the Constitution of the United States. As fast as they were segregated by survey, sections numbers 16 and 36 in every township were granted to Nevada for the support of common schools. Lands were also granted to the state as sites for public buildings, including a state prison. Five percent of the net proceeds of the sales of all public lands in Nevada, subsequent to its admission into the Union, was to be given to the state for internal improvements. Nevada was to constitute one judicial district, to be called the District of Nevada.

Since the presidential elections were to be held in the fall of 1864, the Enabling Act stipulated that the President could examine the Nevada State Constitution after its ratification by the people of Nevada and decide whether or not the state had complied with the instructions of Congress. If everything was in order, the President could then declare Nevada a state without any further action on the part of Congress.

Governor Nye issued a proclamation that called for an election to be held in June 1864 for delegates to another State Constitutional Convention. The convention of 1864 was composed of a remarkably able group. A study of the proceedings as reported discloses wisdom, foresight and a power of expression that would be a credit to any parliamentary body. A chart prepared by Andrew J. Marsh, the official reporter of the convention, shows that 35 of the total membership of 39 were in attendance. They ranged in age from 26 to 64 years. Twenty were married men and one was a widower. One was a native of England, one of Canada, one of Ireland, and the rest were American born. Eleven were born in the state of New York. There were 11 lawyers (3 later became members of the Nevada Supreme Court), 1 doctor, 2 editors, 7 miners, 2 farmers and 12 of various other occupations. Thirty-three had come to Nevada from California. Politically, all were registered as Unionists, except one lonely Democrat—Francis Proctor of Nye County. In the election of 1860, 14 had favored Lincoln, 13 were for Douglas, 6 for Bell and 2 for Breckenridge. They well and truly represented the people of Nevada and the 10 organized counties of the Territory—Churchill, Douglas, Esmeralda, Humboldt, Lander, Lyon, Nye, Ormsby, Storey and Washoe.

The President of the 1864 Convention, J. Neely Johnson, previously had served as Governor of the state of California between 1856 and 1858.

(Information extracted from a chart prepared by Andrew J. Marsh)

The delegates met at Carson City on July 4 to draw up a constitution, which was very similar to the one which had been turned down by the people six months before. The name Nevada was firmly and permanently decided upon after a warm debate. The wording “all property including mines and mining property,” as in the Constitution of 1863, was changed to remove the objections of mine owners so as to read “all property excepting mines and mining claims, the proceeds of which alone shall be taxed.” There was a discussion lasting several days concerning this question, but it was inconclusive, and the wording remains to this day.

There was some objection to statehood itself. The few against it contended that the cost of state government would be too great to be borne by the limited population. This was the view of those who doubted the permanence of the mines and feared that eventually the bulk of the cost would fall upon the shoulders of agriculture. This gloomy opinion dissolved in a growing faith in mining developments and the expectation of benefit from the overland railway then being built. Loyalty to the Union was a force in favor of statehood, it being generally known that the new state was desired by and would be of strategic value to the national government at Washington. At the end of the 21-day session, July 27, 1864, the Constitution was adopted by a vote of 19 to 2.

The Constitutional Convention passed the following resolutions in order to comply with the congressional instructions contained in the Enabling Act. The original ordinance was amended in 1956 by adding the last phrase, “unless otherwise provided by the Congress of the United States!” This change was effected so that Nevada may take advantage of any future congressional action allowing state taxation of certain types of federal property. Since the federal government owns about 86.5 percent of the land in Nevada, the state is limited in its taxable resources.

Nevada’s preamble is very similar to the preamble to the Constitution of the United States, although the latter does not contain a reference to deity. The preamble is usually a short statement in general terms of the reasons for establishing a constitution.

William Stewart worked as hard for the second Constitution as he had for the first, striving to convince Nevadans that statehood was in their own best economic interest. State officials were not to be elected at the same time with the vote on the Constitution, so there would be no disappointed officeseekers to oppose the document on purely personal grounds. Finally, the voters were encouraged by a large group of citizens to vote for the Constitution and statehood so that the allegedly corrupt judiciary of the Territory could be replaced.

An amendment to the Enabling Act directed that the Constitution should be submitted to the people for ratification on the first Wednesday of September. The provisions originally stipulated the second Tuesday of October. This was done and it was accepted with enthusiasm, the vote being 10,371 for and 1,284 against. Storey County, including Virginia City and Gold Hill, cast nearly one-half the total vote and gave 5,448 for and 142 against. Out of the three territories granted enabling acts in 1864, Nevada, Nebraska and Colorado, Nevada was the only one that became a state that year.

Admission of Nevada as a State

The Enabling Act directed that the Constitution, when ratified, should be submitted directly to the President. No approval or other action was required of Congress. No authority of rejection appears in the act, though it may be assumed that such power existed. Governor Nye sent two certified copies of the Constitution to President Lincoln—one by overland mail and one by sea. On October 24, Secretary of State William Seward notified Nye that the Constitution had not arrived. Nye ordered the Constitution wired to Washington, D.C. The 16,543-word document was sent by telegrapher to stations in Chicago, then to Philadelphia and on to the U.S. Military Telegraph of the War Department in Washington two days later. The cost was $4,303.27. It was the longest telegram sent up to that time. It was costly, but the hard-earned prize well deserved the exulting gesture. A weary President gave it his approval, and, on October 31, 1864, he issued the following proclamation, declaring Nevada admitted as the 36th member of the United States of America.

By the President of the United States of America: A Proclamation

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States passed an Act, which was approved on the 21st day of March last, entitled "An Act to enable the people of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government, and for the admission of such State into the Union on an equal footing with the original States:"

And whereas, the said Constitution and State Government have been formed, pursuant to the conditions prescribed by the fifth section of the Act of Congress aforesaid, and the certificate required by the said Act, and also a copy of the Constitution and ordinances, have been submitted to the President of the United States;

Now, therefore, be it known, that I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, in accordance with the duty imposed on me by the Act of Congress aforesaid, do hereby declare and proclaim that the said State of Nevada is admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this thirty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:

WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

Frequent references are made to the effect that area was added to Nevada when it became a state. No additions of territory were made in 1864 (Maps 16 and 17), and the common error possibly stems from the fact that the Enabling Act of Congress of March 21, 1864, redefined the area to be included (U.S. Statutes at Large, Vol. 13, page 30, Chapter XXXIV). A comparison of this 1864 description with that of the smaller and original Territory as created in 1861, without consideration of the the intervening 1862 addition to the Territory, naturally would lead to the false assumption that some addition was being made in 1864. The 1862 addition did not redefine the limits of the Territory of Nevada, it only described the area to be added. When the 1862 addition is correctly appraised along with the 1861 creation, it is easily ascertained that the Territory of Nevada and the new State of Nevada were exactly coextensive at the time the form of government was changed in 1864.

Governor Nye and the territorial administration carried on for the first five weeks of statehood, since state elected officers did not enter upon the duties of their respective offices until the first Monday of December 1864.

1864—State of Nevada created from Nevada Territory. No addition made to Nevada at this time.

In the election held on November 8, 1864, the Republican and Democratic parties of the state entered full slates of candidates. As expected, President Lincoln won the electoral votes of Nevada—Frémont dropped out of the race in September—and the Republicans came close to a clean sweep of the contested offices. The Democrats won only two legislative seats—Frank Proctor of Nye County was elected to the Senate, Henry G. Blasdel was elected the first Governor of the State of Nevada, and Henry G. Worthington was chosen to be the first Member of the House of Representatives from the new state.

The First Nevada Legislature met on December 12, 1864. In joint session the members balloted for two U.S. Senators. William Stewart was elected on the first ballot with 33 out of 52 votes. However, no other candidate received a majority after a number of ballots and the Legislature adjourned. The next day the Legislature selected James W. Nye, the Territorial Governor, as the second U.S. Senator.

Thus, Nevada, with a population less than required for statehood by the Northwest Ordinance, entered the Union as the 36th state. The designation "Battle Born State" is appropriate inasmuch as Nevada's entry was a result of the Civil War and the accompanying problems.

Additions of Territory to Nevada After Statehood

Arizona Territory counties were established in 1864 following the separation of Arizona from the Territory of New Mexico in 1863. In place of the elongated portions of three New Mexico counties extending over southern Nevada, Arizona created Mohave County, a large part of which covered all of that portion of Arizona Territory attached to Nevada in 1867 (see Maps 15 and 16).

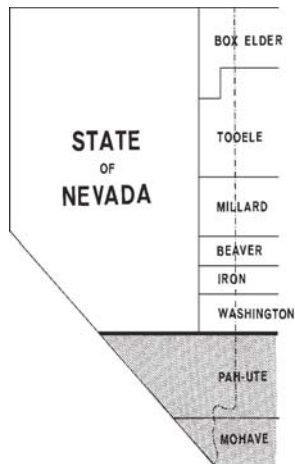

The 14th Utah Territorial Session (1864-1865) and the 15th Session (1865-1866) did not pass any significant acts affecting the area to be added to the State of Nevada in 1866. An act to establish a county of Rio Virgin in 1869 out of the western portion of Washington County, Utah Territory, was repealed in 1872 when apparently it was realized that a definition of the boundaries of the county placed most of its area in the State of Nevada.

The Second Session of the Territory of Arizona, meeting at Prescott in December of 1865, established Pah-Ute County in the area later attached to Nevada (see Map 17). The county seat, Callville, was located on what is now the Nevada side of the Colorado River at what was then the head of navigation. Shortly after the establishment of Pah-Ute County, Congress provided that Nevada could, through consent of its Legislature, acquire most of the county. This led to Arizona appeals to Congress that such authorization be withdrawn.

A resolution passed at the Third Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Arizona (1866) mentioned the Pah-Ute county seat and river port of Callville, associated with steamship navigation from the open seas into what is now Nevada above Hoover Dam.

In 1866, Congress took action again to enlarge Nevada, this authorization following the first attachment of additional area to Nevada in 1862, when still a territory. The congressional act and the events that followed have created much confusion among historians and caused mapmakers and legislatures considerable concern. This is probably due to the separate nature of the last two additions and confusion between these 1866 and 1867 additions and the former one made in 1862, along with conflicting references to the times at which these last additions became effective.

1865—Pah-Ute County, Arizona Territory, created from northern Mohave County.

This new eastern line is the same as the present eastern boundary of the State of Nevada. The area was taken from the western portions of Box Elder, Tooele, Millard, Beaver, Iron and Washington counties of the Territory of Utah (see Maps 18 and 19). The 1866 addition incorporated within the State of Nevada another area of 18,325 square miles where now are located Wells, Ely, Pioche and Caliente, Nevada. The 1866 line established by this addition gave a third definition for an eastern boundary for Nevada (1861, 1862 and 1866).

The present eastern boundary line for the State of Nevada does not fall on the 114° of longitude west of Greenwich because of the differential between Washington and Greenwich longitudes, at this latitude amounting to approximately two miles, and evidently not recognized at the time Congress employed Washington longitude for defining boundary lines. Thus we inherit the peculiar situation whereby Congress defined six full degrees of longitudinal width for Nevada, but we do not have such area secured to us, being squeezed by California on the west or Utah on the east.

The second section of the congressional act required specific action on the part of Nevada before the northwestern portion of Arizona Territory could be embraced within the State, there being no provision in the Constitution for acceptance. Although many histories and maps show the wedge-shaped section, now southern Nevada, as having been attached to the State in 1866, obviously such is not the case.

When the Third Session of the Nevada Legislature convened in 1867, Governor Blasdel included in his biennial message to the body the following recommendations relative to the congressional authorization for more territory:

Biennial Message

STATE OF NEVADA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
CARSON CITY, January 10th, 1867.

Gentlemen of the Senate and Assembly: . . .

EASTERN AND SOUTHERN BOUNDARIES

By Act of Congress, approved May 5, 1866, there was added to this State on the east all the territory lying between the 37th and 38th degrees of longitude, west from Washington, extending from the 37th to the 42d degree of north latitude, embracing 18,000 square miles, or 11,530,000 acres. This grant was anticipated and provided for in the formation and adoption of the State Constitution, and, therefore, no further action is required. A further addition "commencing on the 37th degree of north latitude at the 37th degree of longitude, west from Washington, and running thence south on said degree of longitude to the middle of the river Colorado of the West; thence down the middle of said river to the eastern boundary of the State of California; thence northwesterly, along said boundary of California, to the 37th degree of north latitude; and thence east, along said degree of latitude, to the point of beginning," was contingently made to become effectual upon the acceptance of the State, through its Legislature. This grant, connecting us as it does with the navigable waters of the Colorado River, and embracing extensive and valuable agricultural and mineral lands, is of great importance to the State, and should be promptly accepted. Looking alone to the Act of Congress, it would seem that all the action necessary on the part of the State, for a full and final acceptance of this last named cession, would be that of the Legislature in the form of an Act or joint resolution. But the establishment of boundary lines by the Constitution would seem to leave the Legislature without present authority to bind the State in the premises. In order that no misapprehension may arise from a failure to comply with the Act, I suggest the propriety of immediate legislative acceptance as therein contemplated. And in order to legally and fully extend the jurisdiction of the State over the ceded territory, I suggest the propriety of proposing and submitting to the people, for their ratification, an amendment to the Constitution conforming our southern boundary to the lines designated in the grant. . . .

H. G. BLASDEL (From Senate Journal and Appendix, Third Session, 1867)

MAP 19

1866—State of Nevada extended eastward one degree of longitude. Area taken from western portions of Box Elder, Tooele, Millard, Beaver, Iron and Washington Counties, Utah Territory.

A few days later the Legislature passed a resolution accepting this additional territory, ceded to the State of Nevada.

Later in 1867, the Fourth Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Arizona reacted to the acceptance by Nevada of part of Arizona Territory as apparently not granting de facto control to Nevada, Pah-Ute County was not abolished though most of its area was absorbed by Nevada. Arizona did not recognize the Nevada acceptance resolution as incorporating most of that county. The Arizona Legislative Assembly passed the following act moving the Pah-Ute county seat from Callville on the Colorado River north to St. Thomas, a location within the area Nevada had accepted by resolution.

Evidently Arizona's pleas to Congress fell on deaf ears. The authorization granted Nevada to absorb the northwestern part of Arizona Territory was never repealed. Apparently in recognition of Congress having failed to reverse itself on the issue, and in view of the fact that most of Pah-Ute County was lost, along with a small portion of Mohave County, to the State of Nevada, the Sixth Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Arizona, meeting in Tucson in 1871, repealed the act creating Pah-Ute County (see Maps 19 and 20).

This last addition of territory to Nevada, 12,225 square miles, was made in 1867. This area, which now contains over half of Nevada's population, includes all of Clark County, with Nevada's first and second largest cities, Las Vegas and Henderson, as well as North Las Vegas, Boulder City, Mesquite, part of Hoover Dam, a strip of southern Lincoln County, Nye County from Beatty south, and the southernmost tip of Esmeralda County.

The 1979 Session of the Nevada Legislature approved Assembly Joint Resolution No. 24 to conform the constitutional boundary of the State to its actual boundary. This measure subsequently was approved by the 1981 Legislature and was ratified by the people at the 1982 general election.

From the foregoing history of Nevada, it can be seen that the Territory of Nevada existed between 1861-1864, covering two different territorial extents. The State of Nevada, as it existed between 1864-1867, covered three different territorial extents. The five different possible sets of boundary extensions and terminology, a territory of two shapes and a state with three undoubtedly have in large measure contributed to the confusion existent today in regard to the origin and development of Nevada (see Map 21). Not only were there numerous changes after Nevada was first organized, but the foundation of Carson County, which represented the nucleus of Nevada, underwent vast modifications between 1854 and 1861 by means of various enlargements, attachments, modifications and reestablishments. The entire period from 1854 (Carson County created) to 1867 (last addition to the State of Nevada) presents a complex problem in the geopolitical history of Nevada.

Seat of Government

The original territorial capital of Utah was Fillmore City in Millard County. During the time Carson County was attached to Millard County, prior to its organization in 1855, Fillmore City also served as the county seat of Carson County. This location was about 150 miles south of Great Salt Lake City and about 500 miles east of the populated part of Carson County. So far as Carson County was concerned, the situation was not improved any when, in 1856, the capital was moved to Great Salt Lake City, Utah Territory, although Genoa had been designated county seat the year before.

1861-67—Territory of Nevada formed in 1861 from Carson and Humboldt Counties of Utah Territory. In 1862, Nevada Territory enlarged by extension eastward one degree into Utah Territory. Enlarged territory and state as created in 1864, coextensive in size. Additional extension eastward one degree into Utah Territory in 1866 by State of Nevada. Extension south into Arizona Territory to the Colorado River by State of Nevada in 1867. Nevada Territory existed in two different sizes, the State of Nevada in three different sizes.

The Utah Territorial Assembly designated Carson City the county seat of Carson County in place of Genoa, effective on what proved to be one day prior to the formation of the Territory of Nevada. The Nevada Territorial government selected the same location for the capital of the Territory of Nevada in 1861, and Carson City was designated the capital for the State of Nevada in 1864 by the State Constitution, although no Capitol building could be constructed for three sessions of the Legislature perchance the legislators decided to move the State capitol. The Capitol was completed in 1871. Carson City has thus served as Nevada's capital continuously since 1861. Nevada is among a small number of states that has had only one capital during its territorial period and statehood.

The Physical Area of Our State

Naturally, the estimates of the area of Nevada changed with each addition of land from 1862 to 1867. The table below shows the area of the original Territory of Nevada in 1861 and the area of the State after each addition was made. The estimate made after the last addition of territory in 1867 stood until 1910, after which there have existed other estimates, as explained in the following table.

Estimated total area (square miles)		Year
Territory of Nevada, original size	63,214	1861-1862
Enlarged Territory, 18,325 square miles added from Utah Territory, original State	81,539	1862-1866
First enlargement of Nevada as a State, 18,325 square miles from Utah Territory	99,864	1866-1867
Second enlargement of Nevada as a State, 12,225 square miles from Arizona Territory	112,089	1867-1910

In 1910, the estimated area of Nevada was reduced to 109,512 square miles and revised shortly thereafter with an increase to 110,690 square miles. The present figures for the State of Nevada are 110,540 square miles of total area with 109,894 square miles of land area. The figure for land area does not include the areas of large water bodies found partly or entirely within the boundaries of the State, such as lakes Tahoe, Mead, Pyramid and Walker. The land area is a fluctuating figure and subject to change from year to year in response to the ephemeral status of Nevada’s water bodies, due to variations in runoff and evaporation rates.

Boundary Lines

Nevada's western boundary line was not easily established with statehood. The establishment of Lake (later, Roop) County in northwestern Nevada aroused a boundary dispute with California. This skirmish has been called the Roop County War, the War of Injunctions and the Sagebrush War. The conflict resulted from an unusual boundary provision in Nevada's Organic Act, which virtually invited controversy with California, and the fact that geography joined Honey Lake residents with Carson Valley.

Instead of simply stating that the new territory's western boundary would be the eastern boundary of California, the Nevada Organic Act specified that the boundary between California and the proposed territory would be the "dividing ridge separating the waters of Carson Valley from those that flow into the Pacific," or the crest of the Sierra Nevada. In addition, the Act provided that "the Territory within the present limits of the State of California shall not be included within this Territory until the State of California shall assent to the same by an act irrevocable without the consent of the United States." Understandably, California never agreed to the dividing ridge as a boundary, although Territorial Governor James Nye led a Nevada delegation to persuade the California Legislature to cede the area east of the ridge to its "weaker neighbor." Apparently, there was some support within the California Legislature for the proposal, but it was discouraged by the fact that the mineral discoveries at Aurora in Esmeralda County, Nevada Territory, might lie in California. The Golden State did not wish to lose the possible tax revenues from that area.

In fact, both Esmeralda County of Nevada and Mono County of California claimed Aurora, and each named it as the seat of government for their respective counties. It was the only known double-headed county seat, with one good courthouse and two sets of county officers. In 1862, an election was held in Aurora to select officials for each of the two counties. They had separate polling places, but the same voters.

During that year, many Aurora citizens participated in the politics of both counties and states. Dr. John W. Pugh was elected to the Nevada Territorial Legislature and became the President of the Council (similar to the current State Senate). Thomas N. Machin was Mono County's choice for the California Assembly, of which he became Speaker. Both elected officials were residents of Aurora.

Although Aurora seemed to exist peacefully in both states, the Honey Lake area overlapped by Roop County, Nevada, and Plumas County, California, did not. The boundary dispute accelerated early in 1863 when officials from each of these two counties attempted to exercise jurisdiction over the same area. From injunctions issued and arrests made by each side upon the other, the conflict erupted into physical violence between the supporters of the Roop County officials and the Plumas County Sheriff, who brought a posse with him to enforce the decrees of the Plumas County courts. A couple of people were wounded in the ensuing scuffle, but none were killed. An armistice was agreed upon and a procedure established whereby each side sought the aid of its respective governor to settle the claims.

The result was the appointment of a joint boundary survey, with Surveyor-General Houghton acting for California and Butler Ives, the Territory of Nevada. The final report, accepted by California on April 4, 1864, and by Nevada on February 7, 1865, proved that the Honey Lake area was in California. As a result, the political ties that had connected those residents with Carson Valley since the 1850s were broken, although their economic ties continued. The report just as definitely concluded that Aurora was in Nevada, thus eliminating the dual county seats. Mono County moved its county seat to Bridgeport, California.

These figures provide important information about the number of people in early Nevada. However, the census figures for 1860 do not include those Indians who were not living among the general population of the territory. The Annual Reports of the Commissioners of Indian Affairs made in 1859 give an estimate of 6,900 Washoe and Paiute Indians as residents of the general area of western Utah Territory. In 1861, an estimate of Indian population residing in the Territory of Nevada was made by Mr. Warren Wasson, Acting Indian Agent, Carson Valley Agency. This estimate arrived at a figure of 7,550 Washoe and Paiute Indians for the territory. It was indicated that recognition was not made of the Shoshone population in either estimate, a large portion of which was known to be in the territory. Another estimate was made in 1861, which did consider the Shoshone population and was given as "not far from 10,000" for the total Indian population for the Territory of Nevada. This estimate was on the conservative side, since the 1870 report showed for Shoshone alone a population of 5,325.

A census taken in 1861 by Henry DeGroot enumerated the inhabitants of Nevada by 12 districts. This census was taken in order to establish a basis for a determination of representation to the Territorial Legislature. Since counties had not been formed for the territory, 12 arbitrary districts were set up as "census tracts." From these districts and based on the inhabitants enumerated, 9 districts were formed from which representatives were sent to the Legislature. The census, however, was to exclude the Indian population. The final total population figure for the Territory of Nevada by DeGroot was 16,734, which most authorities consider to be on the high side. This theory is substantiated when the federal census figure for 1860 (6,857) and the estimated Indian population (10,000) are considered as a total population of 16,857 for Indians and whites. Therefore, it is difficult to determine if the DeGroot census was accurate and excluded Indians. It is true that DeGroot took his census a year later than the federal census, and the settlement of the territory was in a progressive stage. However, it is still difficult to correlate his findings with the federal estimate for the year 1861, which was only 10,717 on July 1 of that year.

Consideration must be made of federal census figures for any period from 1860 through 1880, since the enumeration of Indians for these census years was confined to those found living among the general population. Those of reservations were excluded from federal census totals and were reported separately by the Office of Indian Affairs. The following reports on Indian population should therefore be added to the three census years of 1860, 1870, and 1880 in order to arrive at true population data for Nevada.

Year	Indian Population
1959	6,900—not including Shoshone
1861	7,550—not including Shoshone
1861	10,000—conservative, including Shoshone
1870	16,150—accurately enumerating Shoshone
1880	6,800—accurately enumerating Shoshone

The following estimates as of July 1 for each year are provided by the Bureau of the Census for Nevada’s early years. Indians not living among the general population are not included.

Year*	Population
1860	7,154
1861	10,717
1862	14,280
1863	17,843
1864	21,406
1865	24,969
1868	35,660

*Estimated July 1 of each year.

A state census was conducted in 1875 that gave a total population for the State (evidently not including reservation Indians) as 52,540. This closely correlates with the federal estimate on July 1 for that same year, which was 52,541 and did not include Indians not living among the general population.

Adjusted population figures for Nevada, adding to the decennial census totals the Indians living on reservations or otherwise not among the general inhabitants, are as follows for the three decennial census years when such Indians were excluded from population totals.

Year	Adjusted Population

Forming the State's Counties

While legislative acts and the electoral process served as the main agents of change for the formation and transformation of Nevada's counties, the process was also marked by heated debate within the press, and in one case, arson and assault.

The first Nevada Territorial Legislature established nine counties on November 25, 1861, including Churchill, Douglas, Esmeralda, Humboldt, Lyon, Ormsby, Storey and Washoe. Only Humboldt County, which existed as a county within the Utah Territory, was retained and established as a county within both the Nevada Territory and, subsequently, the State of Nevada. The largest territorial county was Esmeralda, which along with Churchill and Humboldt, comprised four-fifths of the Nevada Territory. Also included among the original counties was Lake County, renamed Roop County on December 5, 1862. Roop County was abolished in 1883 because of its very small population. Its territory was made a part of Washoe County.

Two more counties—Lander and Nye—were organized when Nevada was a territory, so that the total number of counties in Nevada when it became a state was 11. Within ten years of Nevada became a state, four more counties were organized: Elko, Eureka, Lincoln and White Pine. Over three decades passed before the organization of any additional counties.

After the turn of the century, the last three counties were created: Clark, Mineral and Pershing. In 1969, Ormsby County and Carson City were consolidated into one municipal government known as Carson City.

In 1987, the Legislature created Bullfrog County, a 144-square mile enclave within southern Nye County. The purpose of Bullfrog County was to enhance the State's ability to receive funds from the federal government pursuant to the "Grants Equal To Taxes" provisions of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act. Following a challenge by Nye County in the Nevada district court, the legislation was judged to be unconstitutional and subsequently was repealed by the Legislature in 1989.

The 17 counties of the State, with years of creation and the original and present county seats, are as follows.

County	Year of Creation	Original County Seat	Present County Seat
Carson City*	1969	Carson City	Carson City
Churchill†	1861	Buckland's	Fallon (1904)
Clark	1909	Las Vegas	Las Vegas

County	Year of Creation	Original County Seat	Present County Seat
Douglas	1861	Genoa	Minden (1916)
Elko	1869	Elko	Elko
Esmeralda ‡	1861	Aurora	Goldfield (1907)
Eureka	1873	Eureka	Eureka
Humboldt	1861	Unionville	Winnemucca (1873)
Lincoln ‡	1866	Crystal Springs	Pioche 1871)
Lyon	1861	Dayton	Yerington (1911)
Mineral	1911	Hawthorne	Hawthorne
Nye ‡	1864	Ione City	Tonopah (1905)
Pershing	1919	Lovelock	Lovelock
Storey	1861	Virginia City	Virginia City
Washoe	1861	Washoe City	Reno (1871)
White Pine	1869	Hamilton	Ely (1887)

*Carson City became a county as the result of consolidation with Ormsby County in 1969. Ormsby County was created in 1861, and Carson City always served as its county seat.

†Churchill County was not formally organized in 1864, and its intermediate county seats were LaPlata (1864-1868) and Stillwater (1868-1904).

‡Lander County also had an intermediate county seat at Austin (1863-1979); as did Lincoln County at Hiko (1867-1871); Esmeralda County at Hawthorne (1883-1907); and Nye County at Belmont (1867-1905).

Nevada's counties were named for a variety of persons or other features. The following table summarizes the naming of Nevada's 17 counties, plus the former counties of Lake, Ormsby and Roop. Other historical information also is included.

County	Named For
Carson City	Named by Frank M. Proctor, one of the founders of Carson City in 1858, directly or indirectly for Christopher "Kit" Carson, the famed explorer and guide who first entered western Nevada in the winter of 1843-1844.
Churchill	Fort Churchill, Nevada, which had been named for General Sylvester Churchill, a Mexican War hero who was Inspector General of the U.S. Army in 1861.
Clark	William A. Clark, former U.S. Senator from Montana, and the builder of the railroad line through the area.

County	Named For
Douglas	Stephen A. Douglas, former U.S. Senator from Illinois. Douglas is best remembered for his debates with Abraham Lincoln. Douglas was re-elected U.S. Senator from Illinois over Lincoln in 1858, but was defeated by Lincoln for the Presidency in 1860.
Elko	Several explanations have been offered, including an Indian word meaning either “white woman” or “beautiful.” Another explanation credits railroad owner Charles Crocker with the naming of a railroad station after elk roaming in the area and adding an “o” to form “Elko.”
Esmeralda	Esmeralda is the Spanish word for emerald. An early Nevada miner, J. M. Corey, named the Esmeralda Mining District. It is believed that Corey may have named the district after the gypsy dancing girl, Esmeralda, from Victor Hugo’s book, The Hunchback of Notre Dame .
Eureka	The ancient Greek term, Eureka, meaning “I have found it.” This term was used earlier in California and other locations.
Humboldt	Baron Friedrich Heinrich Alexander von Humboldt, a German naturalist, traveler and statesman.
Lake	Several lakes in the area, including Honey, Pyramid and Winnemucca.
Lander	Fredrick W. Lander, chief engineer of a federal wagon route through the area. He later served as Special Indian Agent in the area, and died in the Civil War in Virginia in 1862 at the rank of brigadier general. Created in 1862, Lander County sprang forth as the result of a mining boom on the Reese River, taking a considerable portion of Churchill and Humboldt counties with it. Eventually, Lander would be known as the “mother of counties” because so many were carved out of it.
Lincoln	Abraham Lincoln, 16th President of the U.S.
Lyon	General Nathaniel Lyon, who died in the Civil War in Missouri in 1861.
Mineral	The surrounding area, which is heavily mineralized.
Nye	James W. Nye, Governor of Nevada Territory and later U.S. Senator from Nevada.
Ormsby	Major William M. Ormsby, one of the original settlers of Carson City, who was killed in 1860 in the Pyramid Lake Indian War.
Pershing	General John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Force (1917-1919) in Europe during World War 1.
Roop	Issac N. Roop, the Governor of the provisional territory of Nevada, 1859-1861.
Storey	Captain Edward F. Storey, who was killed in 1860 in the Pyramid Lake Indian War.
Washoe	A small Indian tribe that inhabits the area.
White Pine	Heavy growth of pine trees in the area, thought to be white pine.

County Seats

In his thesis, “Significant County Seat Controversies in the State of Nevada,” author Stanley W. Paher writes of battles in the newspapers, threats on the lives of elected officials and possibly arson. Of Nevada’s 17 counties, all but 4 experienced serious struggles concerning their county seats. Only two seats have remained since the establishment of the Nevada Territory—Carson City and Virginia City, respectively for Carson City and Storey County. In the State, 32 cities or towns have served as county seats since 1861.

Towns desired county seats, according to Paher, because the designation brought increased status for the town through the presence of a courthouse. In addition, it brought commercial and economic advantages through administrative and judicial activities. County seat status boosted a growing town and slowed the decay of a declining community.

As a result, towns used legal and occasionally illegal methods to shift seats. History shows two cases of election irregularities and a burned courthouse. For example, Governor Tasker Oddie approved the bill creating Mineral County on February 10, 1911. When he appointed a county commission, he received an insulting letter from an irate constituent. State Senator Fred Balzar of Mina received letters vowing vengeance for his part in the division of Mineral County from Esmeralda County. His brother was assaulted in Mina. The saloon of his brother-in-law was burned to the ground. A letter sent to Senator Balzar threatened that he and his family would be killed and his home blown up after his return to Mina.

The battles concerning the removal of the White Pine County seat from Hamilton to a more desirable location may have resulted in the burning of the courthouse there in early 1885. Six men, including the sheriff, who were sleeping in the courthouse were awakened by smoke and a roaring noise. County records were not saved because the fire originated in the recorder’s office. An investigation revealed the fire was arson. The editor of the Eureka Evening Leader believed that someone burned the building to conceal fraud, since the county had been on the verge of bankruptcy. The State Legislature allocated $5,000 for building another courthouse. In 1887, White Pine lawmakers successfully pushed through the Legislature an act that moved the county seat from Hamilton to Ely, where the new courthouse was erected.

But, despite these incidents, the war over county seats was largely conducted legally through the Legislature and at the ballot box. Among the determining factors for county seats were a population shift, a desire for a central location, and the building of a railroad.

The completion of the Central Pacific Railroad removed the county seat of Washoe County from Washoe City to Reno. Unionville also lost out to Winnemucca for the Humboldt County seat because of the railroad.

The Lyon County Courthouse in Dayton burned down in 1909, and the Douglas County Courthouse in Genoa was badly damaged by fire in 1910. These disasters, coupled with the population decline in both of these communities and the growth of Yerington and Minden, contributed to the change of these two county seats.

Mining also exerted influence. All the county seats but Carson City and Genoa were milling or mining towns among the original Nevada counties formed at statehood. Mining booms helped create six Nevada counties. The rise of new mining towns caused some older towns to lose their county seat status. This is the primary reason why the county seat of Esmeralda County was moved from Hawthorne to Goldfield and the Nye County seat was moved from Belmont to Tonopah.

Much of the fighting took place in vitriolic newspaper battles that heated up as the press supported contending towns fighting for county seat status. Papers frequently agitated battles and rekindled old controversies.

The lengthiest controversy involved Lander County, which lasted more than 50 years as Austin and Battle Mountain fought a duel over the county seat that finally ended at the ballot box when the seat was moved from Austin to Battle Mountain in 1979.

Changing the county seat is accomplished within Nevada either by an act of the Legislature or by special county elections. As a result, the Legislature changed county seats 13 times while the voters cast their ballots in three special elections held at the county level. The Nevada Legislature enacted legislation on three different occasions to provide for the moving of a county seat by means of a special county election, including:

1867	Three-fifths of voters must petition a board of county commissioners, who in turn must hold a special election within 50 days.
1877	Legislature repealed the 1867 law and passed another law requiring the signatures of three-fifths of the voters, who must also be taxpayers. The board of county commissioners, upon receipt of a valid petition, must hold a special election within 60 days.
1955	Legislature repealed the 1877 law and passed an even stricter law requiring the petition to be signed by electors who are taxpayers, equal in number to at least 60 percent of the legal votes cast within the county at the last preceding general election. A simple majority is then required in the general or special election to move the county seat.

Since statehood, numerous boundary changes have also taken place among Nevada counties.

1865	Nye County northern boundary enlarged and western boundary moved about three miles eastward.
1866	Lincoln County was created out of Nye County.
1867	Lincoln County extended to the Colorado River. A small triangle of land added to southern Nye County.
1869	Western boundary of Churchill County moved to include taxable railroad property in northwest portion of county. Also changed was the western boundary of Lander and Nye Counties. Elko and White Pine Counties were created out of Lander County.
1871	Addition made to northwestern portion of Elko County.
1873	Eureka County created from Lander County while Lander County was enlarged along its western edge with land from Humboldt County.
1875	Final change in western boundary of Nye County. Lincoln and White Pine Counties enlarged with land from Nye County going to Lincoln County.
1877	Southwest portion of Elko County known as Mineral Hill Strip was added to Eureka County, which paid $1,200 to Elko County for the acquisition. The original boundary change was passed by the State Legislature in 1875, but a technical error caused the bill to be declared unconstitutional, requiring reenactment in 1877.
1881	Boundary of Eureka County extended eastward to summit of Diamond Mountain Ridge.
1883	Area in which Yerington is now located was taken from Esmeralda County and added to Lyon County. Roop County, which had unofficially functioned as part of Washoe County, was officially annexed to Washoe County.
1909	Clark County created out of Lincoln County.
1911	Mineral County created out of Esmeralda County.
1913	A new county boundary between Esmeralda and Nye Counties was established when a portion of Esmeralda County was added to Nye County.
1919	Pershing County created out of Humboldt County.
1924	The Washoe County Commission adopted a new eastern boundary by ordinance. This unilateral act of Washoe County was accepted by Humboldt and Pershing counties from 1924 until 1983, when this boundary was placed into State law.
1925	Boundary line between Elko and White Pine Counties was redefined.
1929	A new boundary between Eureka, Lander and Nye Counties was established.
1933	A portion of the western part of Mineral County was added to Lyon County.
1963	Storey County's northern boundary was established, effective January 1, 1963, to a permanent location that would not be affected by future course changes, man-made or natural, of the Truckee River.

1965	The boundaries of Douglas and Ormsby Counties and Lyon and Washoe Counties were realigned.
1967	The boundaries between Douglas and Lyon Counties and Ormsby and Washoe Counties were realigned.
1969	Boundary lines were officially established between Eureka and Lander Counties and Churchill and Lyon Counties. Ormsby County and Carson City consolidated into one municipal government known as Carson City; Washoe County boundary was changed to conform with the new Carson City boundary.
1973	Storey County's northern boundary changed from the 1963 location to the centerline of the Truckee River as it existed in 1861.
1983	Boundaries of Churchill, Humboldt, Pershing and Washoe Counties realigned to follow section, township and range lines.
1985	Boundary line between Clark and Nye Counties was realigned.
1987	Bullfrog County created out of a portion of southern Nye County.
1989	Bullfrog County abolished and Nye County boundary restored.
2001	Adjusts the boundary line in the Pahrump Valley to transfer a strip of land approximately 2.5 miles wide from Clark County to Nye County.
2005	Adjusts the boundary line between Lyon County and Washoe County to provide for the transfer of 5,100 acres of undeveloped land adjacent to the City of Fernley.

Except as otherwise noted, amendments to the United States Constitution are ratified by a vote of the State Legislature once the amendment has been proposed by the Congress. Ratification by two-thirds of the states is required for adoption.

CHAPTER 4: CAMPAIGNING, VOTER REGISTRATION, AND CASTING BALLOTS IN NEVADA

POLITICAL PARTIES AND VOTER REGISTRATION

By STEVE GEORGE

Former Public Information Officer, Secretary of State's Office

Deputy Secretary of State for Elections, Secretary of State's Office

Nevada has seen many political parties come and go over its 152-year history and was one of the primary forces behind the creation of one national political party. In total, 22 political parties have placed candidates on the ballot in Nevada, with only 4—Democratic, Independent American, Libertarian, and Republican—still having ballot access during the 2016 General Election (NOTE: voters still have the option of registering as nonpartisan).

The procedure for qualifying as a major political party in Nevada is found in Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 293.128, while NRS 293.171 and 293.1715 describe how a minor political party can be organized and gain ballot access.

During the early years of statehood, Nevada political offices were dominated by Republicans, perhaps as a thank you to the efforts of the nation's first Republican president, Abraham Lincoln, who used his considerable influence to help secure statehood for Nevada in 1864. The State's first two general elections in 1864 and 1866 saw the "Grand Old Party" capture all federal, State, and judicial offices.

The Union Party dominated the first four sessions of the Legislature. The Union Party was actually the Republican Party, which at its national convention in 1864, changed its name to the National Union Party in an attempt to lure War Democrats. The party's platform called for the unconditional restoration of the Union.

In 1870, Democrats won four of the constitutional offices, including governor, lieutenant governor, State treasurer, and attorney general.

In the latter 1800s and early 1900s, a new political party, the Silver Party, was formed to combat what many western states thought was a power play by European nations and eastern United States banking interests. The Silver Party was the outgrowth of many Republicans and Democrats from western states joining forces when depressed economic conditions brought about by the federal government curtailed its coinage of silver coins in 1873—popularly known as the "Crime of '73."

Although the Silver Party had a stronghold in Nevada and the State was one of the party's most prominent backers, other states with significant silver mining, including Colorado, Idaho, Utah, and other western states, also joined forces in an attempt to persuade Washington, D.C., to use more silver and thereby provide relief for the depressed market.

The Silver Party swept Nevada's constitutional offices in 1894 and 1898. An offshoot of the party, the Silver Democrat Party, remained a significant party in the State until the election of 1906. The last Silver Party representatives to hold statewide office were State Treasurer David M. Ryan; State Attorney General Richard Stoddard; and Lieutenant Governor Denver S. Dickerson, appointed acting governor following the death of fellow Silver Party member John Sparks on May 22, 1908.

The Silver and Silver Democrat parties also dominated the State's federal offices from 1894 to 1906, winning Nevada's U.S. Senate and congressional seats during that period, with Congressman George A. Bartlett being the last Silver Democrat to win an election in Nevada in 1906. Bartlett won reelection in 1908 but ran as a Democrat in that race.

Leading up to the Great Depression of 1929, the nation's two primary parties—Democratic and Republican—split the State's constitutional and federal offices, with Democrats winning a few more races than Republicans. However, following the Great Depression, Nevadans decidedly favored Democrats. From 1932 to 1995, Democrats held a statewide edge in voter registration and, as a result, won most statewide and federal races. In fact, every secretary of state in Nevada was a Democrat from the time of the Great Depression until Republican Cheryl Lau was elected and took office in 1991 (the trend actually began in 1911); every state treasurer was a Democrat from 1935 to 1983 (Republican Patricia D. Cafferata won in 1982); and every attorney general was a Democrat from 1911 to 1971, until the election of Republican Robert List, who went on to become governor in 1979.

It was not until the general election of 1990 that Republicans once again became a major factor in Nevada politics, capturing four of the State's six constitutional office races. In 1998, five of the six constitutional offices were won by Republicans, with Attorney General Frankie Sue Del Papa being the lone Democrat (she was re-elected to a third term in office that year) to win statewide office. In 2002, Republicans swept the constitutional offices for the first time since 1890.

In 2006, Democrats won four of the six constitutional offices, and two years later Democrats gained control of the State Senate, which was the first time Democrats controlled the upper house of the Legislature since 1990. Democrats held a majority of the constitutional offices and controlled both legislative houses until the 2014 General Election, the results of which were unprecedented in Nevada.

At the 2014 General Election, Republican candidates won all six constitutional office races, and the Republican Party won majorities in both houses of the Legislature (Republicans had not had a majority in the Assembly since 1985). This represented the first time since statehood in 1864 that Republicans held all the constitutional offices with majorities in both houses of the Legislature. While no constitutional offices were up for election in 2016, Democrats regained control of both houses of the Legislature.

Prior to 1910, voters in Nevada simply registered to vote without identifying their party affiliation. In 1909, the Legislature passed the Primary Election Act, which resulted in the State's first primary election in 1910. Even so, from 1910 to 1916, all candidates were listed on a single ballot and voters could make their choice for any candidate from any party.

The 1917 Legislature amended the primary election law to provide for separate ballots for each party at primary elections. As a result, for the first time in the State's history, voters had to identify their party affiliation when registering for the 1918 Election. Still, voter registration reports submitted by county clerks to the Secretary of State's Office did not separate the number of registered voters by party affiliation, as there was no legal requirement to do so. For the most part, clerks simply transmitted the total number of registered voters, often merely sending carbon copies of voter registration lists instead of compiling the total number of registered voters in their specific county.

Actual breakdowns of the total number of registered voters for each party were not reported and compiled until 1950. That year, Nevada had 83,950 registered voters: 53,050 Democrats; 26,601 Republicans; and 4,299 listed as "Miscellaneous."

Democrats continued to outpace Republicans by a wide margin for many years. By 1962, there was almost double the number of registered Democrats as Republicans in the State. That trend continued over several presidential election years. The gap between the two major parties started to close in 1972 as Republicans began to make headway. By the close of voter registration for the 1988 Presidential Election, Republican registration lagged behind Democratic registration by only 20,477 voters.

After years of playing catch-up, Republicans finally seized the lead in voter registration in Nevada in November 1995 by 1,182 voters, and by the close of registration for the 1996 Presidential Election, Republicans held a voter registration advantage of 4,211 registered voters. As the 2000 Presidential Election approached, the Republican voter registration advantage had shrunk to a mere 838 voters. However, by the close of registration for the 2004 Presidential Election, the Republican voter registration advantage was back up to 4,431 voters.

Republicans maintained their small voter registration margin over Democrats throughout 2005 and most of 2006. In December 2006, Democrats briefly overtook Republicans; however, this voter registration advantage only lasted for one month. The Republican voter registration advantage continued until April 2007 when the Democrats took a 217 lead in active registered voters, a lead that has not reversed as of today. At the close of registration for the 2008 Presidential Election, the Democrat's voter registration advantage over Republicans grew to over 100,000 voters. A similar margin between registered Democrats and registered Republicans has persisted throughout the 2012 and 2016 Presidential Elections. Due to the relatively small margin between registered Democrats and registered Republicans in Nevada, the State has been considered a battleground state for the last several presidential elections.

Voter registration in Nevada for the 2004 Presidential Election topped the 1 million mark for the first time in the State's history, and in November 2016, active voter registration in Nevada hit 1.5 million voters statewide. As of December 2016, there were 1,505,957 active registered voters in Nevada.

Since the early 2000s, the share of registered voters identifying themselves as members of the two major political parties has declined. In December 2000, 83 percent of registered voters belonged to either the Democratic or Republican party. By December 2016, this number dropped to 73 percent. Over this same time frame, the number of voters who have registered as nonpartisan has more than doubled and, as of December 2016, sits at 314,374, or 21 percent of active registered voters. Combined with minor party voter registration numbers, at the end of 2016, over 27 percent of voters in Nevada did not belong to either of the two major political parties.

The 22 political parties that have been active, at least at some point in the State's history, include:

Citizens (C)	Libertarian (Lib)	Silver (S)
Democratic (D)	Natural Law (NL)	Silver-Democrat (S-D)
Democrat-Silver (D-S)	New Alliance (NA)	Socialist (Soc)
Emigration (E)	Peoples (P)	Union (U)

By DANA R. BENNETT

Former Principal Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Prohibition of Alcohol on Election Days

Numerous laws throughout the older Statutes of Nevada, beginning in 1869, made the sale or provision of alcoholic beverages on Election Day illegal.

Just before the turn of the century, the prohibition was expanded to prohibit the use of bars and saloons during a campaign. In 1895, the Legislature passed the first comprehensive campaign reform measure, commonly called “The Purity of Elections Law,” which included a section prohibiting the use of facilities where alcohol was sold or provided. Alfred Doten noted in his journal that the subsequent campaign in Virginia City was, as a result, “dull.”

When Chapter 293 of NRS was established in 1960, the sale or provision of intoxicating beverages on Election Day was still illegal, although only during the hours when the polls were open. The pertinent provision, NRS 293.605, was finally repealed in 1967.

People Currently Prohibited From Voting in Nevada

- Non-citizens of the United States.
- People who have not resided in Nevada at least 30 days.
- Traitors.
- Felons who have not had their civil rights restored.
- A person who has been adjudicated mentally incompetent, unless restored to legal capacity (Art. II, § 1).

People Previously Prohibited From Voting in Nevada

- African-American men; until 1870, when the national constitution was amended.
- Mormon men under a statute approved in 1887; until 1888, when the statute was declared unconstitutional by the Nevada Supreme Court. It appears that the statute was not repealed until 1909.
- Men who did not pay the $4 poll tax; until 1910, when the State Constitution was amended. When the original poll tax provision was debated during the writing of Nevada’s Constitution, an objection was made to it. Another responded that, if any voter was so poor that he could not afford to pay the tax, there were “always plenty of politicians to pay it for him the days before election, so that he should be recorded as a voter.”

- Women; until 1914, when the State Constitution was amended.
- Men who voluntarily fought against the Union or held a Confederate office; until 1914, when the State Constitution was amended.
- Native American people; until 1924, when Congress granted citizenship and universal suffrage to all Native Americans.
- People under the age of 21; until 1971, when the national constitution was amended to lower the voting age to 18 years.
- People who had participated, in any manner, in a duel; until 1978, when the State Constitution was amended.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS AND “CLOSE” ELECTION RESULTS IN NEVADA

By EMERSON MARCUS

Nevada—A Harbinger State for Presidential Elections

Presidential candidates may not covet Nevada’s six Electoral College votes like they do Florida’s 29 or Ohio’s 18, but the Silver State has been one of the most accurate barometers in the past century on who is taking the White House.

Since 1912, only one state has backed presidential election winners more often than Nevada. In the 26 general elections starting with Woodrow Wilson’s first term—the year the Titanic sank—Nevada backed only Gerald Ford in 1976 and, this last year, it supported Hillary Clinton, who received more votes than Donald Trump; but history proves Nevada’s recent presidential vote was an anomaly. Here are a few interesting statistics to consider:

- Nevada voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt four times;
- Nevada went Republican Party “red” in the 1980s and Democratic Party “blue” in the 1990s; and
- The Silver State voted for George W. Bush twice and Barack Obama twice.

As the pendulum swung, so did Nevada.

It is hard to say exactly why Nevada has so often backed winning presidential candidates throughout the past century. Perhaps it is the fact that, through most of its history, Nevada has remained a largely urban state. While other more agrarian states include more evenly dispersed populations, Nevada is open desert dotted with urban centers that may be more inclined to national political trends with, generally, a more diverse population of voters.

Ohio and New Mexico rival Nevada in president-picking accuracy. Since becoming a state in 1912, New Mexico backed the winning presidential ticket in all but three elections: Hillary Clinton in 2016, Al Gore in 2000, and Gerald Ford in 1976. That gives New Mexico an overall better percentage throughout its history than Nevada.

The Silver State only backed two of eight winning presidential candidates from 1880 to 1908. After the downfall of the Comstock Lode in the 1880s and an evolution of State politics that saw the rise of the Silver Party, which backed federal monetization of silver, the Democratic Party's populist wing saw great success in Nevada, which included Nebraska orator William Jennings Bryan. The "Great Commoner" carried Nevada three times (1896, 1900, and 1908). Prior to Bryan, Populist Party candidate James Weaver carried Nevada in 1892, the only third-party candidate to take Nevada.

Through its first three decades, Nevada was a Republican stronghold, carried by Abraham Lincoln (1864), Ulysses S. Grant (1868 and 1872), and Rutherford B. Hayes (1876). Overall, Nevada has backed the winning presidential candidate 31 times in 39 elections since becoming a state in 1864.

Even with its success, Nevada does not have the longest streak backing winning presidential candidates. That streak belongs to Ohio. The Buckeye State has backed winners in 14 straight elections—every election since Richard Nixon carried the State over John F. Kennedy in 1960 and, most recently, Trump in 2016. Thomas E. Dewey narrowly carried Ohio over Roosevelt in 1944, the State's only other time it did not vote with the winning candidate in a presidential election since 1892. Nevada had the second-longest streak in the nation at nine before voting for Clinton in 2016. Prior to that, Virginia and Colorado were tied for the third-longest streaks, having successfully picked the President in four consecutive elections. Both of these states went for Clinton in 2016.

The Closest High-Profile Elections in Nevada History

Nevada elections often include close races that are not called for days after the final ballots are cast. Some have even been overturned, as was Henry F. Dangberg's two-vote "victory" over James W. Haines in 1878 for a Douglas County State Senate seat. Haines' initial requests for a recount were denied, but he won his protest in a Senate vote during the 1879 Legislative Session. In 1898, Silver Party candidate, Reinhold Sadler, won the Nevada governorship with only 3,570 total votes, 22 more than his Republican opponent, William McMillan. A faulty Henderson voting booth overturned incumbent Arthur Espinoza's victory in the 1970 Assembly District 3 election when it was deemed 62 of his votes were meant for Robert "Hal" Smith.

Few statewide elections include the drama involved in U.S. Senate races in Nevada. Three extremely close U.S. Senate elections involved two men, with one of the elections matching them up head-to-head: Paul Laxalt and Harry Reid. Before Laxalt was elected Governor in 1966, he lost his U.S. Senate campaign against Democrat H.W. Canon in 1964 by 48 votes (67,336 to 67,288). A recount extended Canon's lead to 84 votes.

After four years as Governor, Laxalt ran for U.S. Senate again in 1974, narrowly defeating then-Nevada Lieutenant Gov. Harry Reid by 611 votes (79,543 to 78,932). Reid eventually replaced Laxalt after Reid beat Joe Santini, a Democrat turned Republican, in 1986. Reid, whose 30-year career in the U.S. Senate came to a close in 2016, entered another close race as an incumbent in 1998. That year, a recount determined he defeated John Ensign by a slim 428-vote margin (208,650 to 208,222). It is hard to say how the trajectory of the State and the nation would have changed if Reid was voted out of office before becoming U.S. Senate majority leader in 2007.

Additionally, long before Reid and Laxalt entered public life, U.S. Senator Francis Newlands, a Democrat, entered the closest battle of his political life in 1914—the first election after the 17th Amendment established direct elections of U.S. Senators. With Socialist Party candidate, A. Grant Miller, taking more than 5,400 votes that otherwise would have leaned Democrat, Newlands narrowly beat Republican candidate Samuel Platt by 40 votes (8,078 to 8,038), the greatest fight of his long-tenured political life. Three years later, in his 24th year serving as a Congressman, the 69-year-old Newlands died of a heart attack.

Nevada's Top 5 Closest High-Profile Elections

- 1898 Governor: Reinhold Sadler (Silver Party) defeated William McMillan (Republican) by 22 votes (3,570 to 3,548).
- 1912 Congress: E.E. Roberts (R) defeated Clay Tallman (D) by 69 votes (7,380 to 7,311).
- 1914 U.S. Senate: Francis Newlands (D) defeated Samuel Platt (R) by 40 votes (8,078 to 8,038).
- 1964 U.S. Senate: H.W. Canon (D) defeated Paul Laxalt (R) by 48 votes (67,336 to 67,288). The recount expanded Cannon's lead to 84 votes (66,907 to 66,823).
- 1998 U.S. Senate: Harry Reid (D) defeated John Ensign (R) by 401 votes (208,621 to 208,220). The recount expanded Reid's lead to 428 votes (208,650 to 208,222).

BALLOTS AND VOTING SYSTEMS: FROM STATEHOOD TO THE 21ST CENTURY

By DANA R. BENNETT

Former Principal Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

The Constitution of the State of Nevada requires that “all elections by the people shall be by ballot” (Art. 2, § 5), but it does not define a ballot. This provision has never been challenged. The Constitution also vests, in the Senate and Assembly, the general legislative authority of this State (Art. 4, § 1) and specifically empowers the Legislature to pass laws regulating elections (Art. 4, § 27) and “the manner of holding and making returns of the same” (Art. 2, § 6). In 1895, the Nevada Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of State laws that require voters to mark their ballots in a certain way and comply with other conditions.

A brief review of the early legal history of ballots in Nevada reveals that the Legislature has consistently exercised its constitutional authority to adopt State election laws as necessary. In its second session, the Legislature passed a law that required a voter to submit to an election inspector “a piece of paper, on which shall be written or printed the names of the persons voted for, with a pertinent designation of the office which he or they may intend to fill. Said ballot may be open or folded, as the voter may choose” (Chapter 107, Statutes of Nevada 1866). There was no requirement for an entity, such as a county, to produce a printed ballot, nor were voting booths provided. Voters simply wrote their choices on a piece of paper, probably before they arrived at the polling place, and handed it to the election inspector, who, upon verification that the person was eligible to vote, deposited it in the ballot box.

The first reference to an official ballot came in the next comprehensive election law, which was approved in 1873. Among many other provisions, this law required each board of county commissioners to proclaim the color, size, form, and texture of the ballots to be used at the election. Ballots were to be “of sufficient width to allow names to be written thereon” (Chapter 121, Statutes of Nevada 1873) but were not required to be preprinted.

Such open and vague voting laws certainly provided plenty of opportunity for voting fraud. Sam Davis, noted chronicler of Nevada history, explained that “each party had a separate ticket, and it was an easy matter to hand a man a ticket and see that he voted it.” Davis also provided the following description of voting during the early years of statehood:

In the palmy days of the Comstock there was always more or less rough work connected with politics. A primary election was frequently an affair with all the elements of a riot. Roughts were hired “to preserve order,” and other roughs and heelers engaged to keep the other side orderly. Money flowed like water on those occasions and what was usually designated as the “graveyard vote” was called into requisition by both sides.

It was thought nothing amiss to resurrect the dead and vote them by the wholesale. So long as the memory of the departed was respected by not voting him except in proper alignment with the party with which he affiliated in his lifetime, the ethics and traditions were considered as having in no way been violated.

These voting techniques were not unique to Nevada. According to another history of the State, edited by former Governor James G. Scrugham: “In fact, in almost every state of the Union up to 1890, a voter got his ballot at some place distant from the polls, marked it or had it marked for him, and was under the surveillance of partisan watchers until he placed it in the ballot box.”

During the elections of 1888, such abuse and fraud were so rampant and obvious that legislatures throughout the country began to reform their election laws to provide for a secret ballot. By 1891, most states, including Nevada, had adopted the Australian ballot system, which requires the government (as opposed to political parties or other entities) to print and distribute election ballots. A ballot is available only at the government’s official polling place and is given to a voter for a short period of time to be marked alone and in confidence, usually in a booth at the polls, but within view of election officials to whom the ballot is returned. Thus, a vote is secret, and the information cannot be used to punish or reward a voter.

Nevada’s 1891 legislation (Chapter 40, Statutes of Nevada) required each county clerk to have official ballots printed on paper provided by the Secretary of State at public expense. A watermark was to be on the outside of the ballot and visible when the ballot was folded; the mark was changed for each election. The law mandated that the ballots be numbered and also described the contents of each ballot; voters were not allowed to write in a candidate. In addition, county commissions were directed to provide private booths into which people would take their ballots for marking. Solo occupation of the booths was required, and a time limit was established at five minutes. The legislation instructed voters to mark, with a black lead pencil only, an “X” next to those names and questions for which they wished to vote, then fold the ballot and return it to the election official, who would reverify the voter’s name and the ballot’s number, note that the correct watermark was showing, and drop the ballot in the ballot box.

Finally, this measure required the printing of sample ballots to be made available to voters at each office of the county clerk for five days preceding an election. A sample ballot was also provided to each voter on Election Day, and voting instructions were posted.

Virginia City resident and prolific diarist Alfred Doten commented after the general election of 1892 that the new system had been “put into force for [the] first time and proved a grand success.”

Ten years later, the 1901 Legislature required each county commission to provide a certain number of rubber stamps that marked “X” and black ink pads for voters to take into booths for marking ballots (Chapter 100, Statutes of Nevada 1901). In 1909, the Legislature added a primary election law, which was similar to the general election provisions except that ballots were separate for each party and on different-colored paper designated by the Secretary of State. The legislation provided more directions about the size, type, wording, and style of ballot and specified the following instructions: “To vote for a person whose name appears on the ballot, stamp a cross (X) in the square at the right of the name of the person for whom you desire to vote.” The measure also included an example of a ballot and required that sample ballots be distributed to voters at least ten days before the election and published in the local newspaper.

In addition, the 1909 law defined the “method of voting” as:

Any elector desiring to vote at any primary election on behalf of any party shall give his name and address to the ballot clerk, and announce the name of the political party for whose candidates he intends to vote, the ballot clerk shall immediately announce the same.

Any challenge could be made at this time. If not challenged, the ballot clerk would hand the voter a ballot and instruct him (in 1909, all voters were male), if necessary, on the folding of it. The voter then would go to a private booth to mark his ballot with the rubber stamp, which at this time was kept in the booth. The law continued:

When a voter has stamped his ballot he shall fold it so that its face shall be concealed and only the printed designation on the back thereof shall be visible, and hand the same to a member of the board in charge of the ballot box. Such folded ballot shall be placed in the ballot box in the presence of the voter, and the name of the voter checked upon the register as having voted.

From 1911 to 1951, the Nevada Legislature passed various measures concerned with the entire election process, but the manner of voting and the description of ballots remained essentially the same. In fact, much of the language approved by the 1909 Legislature can be found in the current version of Chapter 293 (“Elections”) of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS). Some of the amendments made included the first authorization to use absentee ballots (1921) and the creation of mailing precincts (1923).

In 1951, the first measure addressing the use of voting machines in elections was approved (Chapter 136, Statutes of Nevada 1951). This bill outlined the procedure for examining, approving, and using a mechanical device to cast and count votes, and authorized county commissions to approve specific voting machines. Included in this legislation was the first written definition of a ballot. When NRS became the official compilation of Nevada laws in 1957, election laws were placed in Title 24 (“Elections”). The 1951 legislation provided most of Chapter 303 of NRS, which was titled “Voting Machines and Other Voting Devices.” In 1960, the Legislature restructured the State’s election laws, encompassing and expanding much of the language approved by earlier legislatures. In particular, the Secretary of State was given sole authority to approve voting machines. The provisions of Chapter 303 were also condensed and moved into Chapter 293 of NRS.

In 1971, the sections of Chapter 293 pertinent to voting machines were moved to a new Chapter 293A, titled “Voting Machines,” and expanded. Four years later, Chapter 293B of NRS, then titled “Punchcard Voting Systems,” was created to authorize specifically the use of punchcard systems. In 1977, Chapter 293A was repealed as part of a package of bills from an interim study on State election laws. Testimony from the Office of the Secretary of State indicated that the provisions being removed referred to “mechanical standup machines” that had been used in Clark and Washoe Counties. These provisions conflicted with the laws governing punchcard systems; their removal would streamline election laws concerning voting systems. Under this legislation, punchcard systems and other automatic voting machines were allowed. Testimony further noted that counties were in the process of moving away from paper ballots and toward mechanical systems.

By 1985, not one county in Nevada was using paper ballots in primary and general elections. That year, the Nevada Legislature greatly expanded Chapter 293B and retitled it “Mechanical Voting Systems.” Such a system was defined as one “whereby a voter may cast his vote on a device which mechanically or electronically compiles a total of the number of votes cast for each candidate and for or against each measure voted on, or by punching a card which is subsequently counted on an electronic tabulator, counting device or computer.” Ten years later, in 1995, the Legislature amended these provisions by authorizing and regulating computerized voting systems.

Nevada’s laws concerning ballots have evolved over the past 130 years as society itself has evolved. Early statutes did not specifically require the use of paper ballots because the options were few: voting could be done by voice, raising one’s hand, or marking a piece of paper. Telephones, levers, punchcards, and computers were all inconceivable. As technology has improved, voting systems and Nevada’s ballot laws have responded to those improvements. However, the lessons of early voting fraud have not been forgotten: since 1891, the Nevada Legislature has been diligent in ensuring the secrecy of the ballot and the integrity of the voting system.

VOTING MACHINES IN THE 21ST CENTURY

By RENEE L. PARKER
Former Chief Deputy Secretary of State

Updated by ALAN GLOVER
Former Carson City Clerk/Recorder;
Former Nevada State Assemblyman, 1972-1982;
Former Nevada State Senator, 1982-1985

Changes to Nevada's laws concerning ballots and voting systems were minimal before 1995, but following the discovery of voting irregularities that plagued the United States during the 2000 Presidential Election, Nevada and the nation were faced with the reality of changing voting methods or risking losing voter confidence and trust.

The 1960 Nevada Legislature delegated to the Secretary of State the sole authority to approve voting machines, thus allowing the State to remain responsive to technological advances and respond to voting irregularities in a timely manner, and enabling the State to make voting more accessible to everyone.

In 1999, 7 of Nevada's 17 counties used punch card voting systems, 9 used optical scan machines, and 1 used computerized electronic voting systems (with a punch card voting system for processing absentee ballots). During the 2000 election, many inherent problems in voting systems and processes were unveiled throughout the nation. In Florida, a vote counting controversy involving the counting of punch card "butterfly ballots" and "hanging chads" held the nation in suspense and the outcome of the presidential election in doubt for a little over a month.

While Nevada was fortunate to avoid the problem that beset many other states during the 2000 elections, the flaws and failures of voting systems and processes in other states made it clear that the issues surrounding voting were becoming more complex and the system needed to be reformed.

In response to the contentious 2000 elections, Congress passed the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) of 2002, which mandated reform of the voting process to avoid future disastrous elections similar to those in 2000 and to improve the process for voters with disabilities. Among other things, HAVA required that by January 1, 2005, every polling place across the nation have at least one Direct Recording Electronic (DRE) voting machine or system that is accessible to individuals with disabilities. Additionally, this type of touch-screen voting machine facilitates early voting, allows disabled and visually impaired voters to touch a ballot for the first time without assistance through the use of an audio component, prevents "over-votes," minimizes "under-votes," and allows election officials to offer ballots in multiple languages.

In response to the mandates of HAVA and realizing the necessity of updating voting systems and procedures in Nevada, the 2003 Legislature substantially revised the State's election laws to incorporate the mandatory provisions of HAVA into State law and to adopt state-specific guidelines to meet the federal requirements, as allowed by HAVA. The 2003 Legislature approved these changes, allowing the State to proceed with timely implementation and compliance with the federal law. In 2003, another issue concerning voting machines began receiving national attention. Surprisingly, controversy surrounding the type of DRE voting machines mandated under HAVA began to surface. Studies questioning their security and reliability because of their lack of a voter-verifiable paper audit trail became a topic of concern throughout the nation.

As the security of these machines underwent scrutiny on the national level, the Secretary of State Dean Heller started his own review of the Nevada system. During this review, two things became clear as lawsuits over voting systems were launched throughout the nation: (1) punch card voting systems were one of the least accurate and reliable methods of voting; and (2) DRE machines appeared to be one of the most accurate systems; however, many voters lacked confidence in them due to the paperless aspect. Further, while HAVA's mandate that one DRE be placed in each polling place was positive in that it would make voting more accessible to the disabled, it also could potentially create difficulties with interfacing different types of voting systems and tabulating results from different systems on Election Day.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Secretary of State began investigating the best DRE system for meeting HAVA's mandate, along with necessary changes to the process of voting in Nevada that would mitigate the interfacing and voter confidence problems that surrounded the use of DRE machines. It was determined that the first step toward reform was to move in the direction of a statewide, uniform voting system and eliminate the use of less reliable methods of voting.

The assistance of experts who verify the security of the State's gaming industry were enlisted to help. The Nevada Gaming Control Board's Electronic Services Division helped to determine the best statewide voting system. The Board's experts reviewed the two DRE machines under consideration and, while they found several flaws in one of the systems, the other, built by Sequoia Voting Systems (now Dominion Voting Systems) was declared secure.

Based on this information and after reviewing many studies and concerns about DRE machines, it was determined that electronic touch-screen machines were more accurate, reliable, and valid than punch card or optical scan machines, but that the only way to prove the accuracy of the machines and ensure voter confidence was to attach a paper trail printer to them so voters could verify their choices before casting their ballot on the machine.

In December 2003, the Secretary Heller made the decision to buy the Sequoia touch-screen voting machine—and optical scan machines for absentee voting—for all Nevada counties. Funds from HAVA were provided for 16 of the 17 counties, while Clark County provided its own funds. A voter-verifiable paper audit trail also known as VPAT, on all DRE machines was mandated in time for the 2004 General Election, and punch card voting systems were decertified in the State based on their lack of reliability. In July 2004, Nevada became the first state to certify and meet federal qualifications for the VPAT printer to be used on touch-screen DRE voting machines.

All of Nevada's counties used computerized touch-screen voting systems with voter verifiable paper audit trail printers during the 2004 election cycle and optical scan voting systems for processing absentee ballots. Thus, Nevada became the only state in the nation to use a paper audit trail printer attached to the electronic touch-screen voting machines in the 2004 election, earning national acclaim from publications such as Consumer Reports (October 2004) and The New York Times (September 19, 2004).

Nevada has continued to use the DRE touch-screen machines since 2004, experiencing few problems. The challenge in the coming years will be determining what system will be used to replace the aging DRE systems.

QUESTIONS ON THE BALLOT: INITIATIVES, REFERENDUMS, LEGISLATIVE JOINT RESOLUTIONS, AND OTHER BALLOT PROPOSALS

By MICHAEL J. STEWART
Deputy Research Director, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Various types of proposals may appear on Nevada's statewide ballot. These include initiative, referendum, questions addressing the Sales and Use Tax Act of 1955, bond issues, and advisory questions. In most cases, these statewide proposals appear on the general election ballot in November of each even-numbered year.

Constitutional Amendments Through Resolution of the Legislature

The Nevada Legislature may initiate a proposed amendment to the Nevada Constitution in the form of a joint resolution. The resolution must be approved by two successive sessions of the Legislature and by an affirmative vote of the people at the next succeeding general election.

Over the years, many significant changes to the Nevada Constitution have been approved in this manner. These amendments include granting women the right to vote in State and local elections (1914); limiting the Governor to no more than two terms of office (1970); prohibiting the taxation of food for human consumption, excluding alcoholic beverages or prepared food (1984); and repealing obsolete constitutional language. From 1950 through 2016, 129 of the 220 questions appearing on the statewide ballot were legislative proposals to amend the Nevada Constitution. Of these 129 legislative proposals, 77 were approved by the voters.

Initiative and Referendum

Initiative and Referendum (I&R)—A Brief History—The I&R process was popularized in the late 19th and early 20th centuries during a wave of Populist feelings that swept the country during that time. During the late 1890s, the Populist Party was gaining influence in the American political scene. Their platform included women's suffrage, direct election of United States Senators, and the use of I&R. In 1897, Nebraska became the first state to allow I&R for city elections and, in 1898, South Dakota became the first state to adopt a statewide I&R. Utah became the second state to adopt statewide I&R, followed by Oregon in 1902, which was the first state to place a statewide initiative measure on the ballot in 1904. By 1905, Nevada adopted its popular referendum. However, it was not until 1912 that Nevada adopted its statewide initiative process. With a few exceptions, this process remains the same today as it did in the early 1900s.

The popularity of the I&R was so great during the early part of the 20th century that by 1918, 19 of the 24 states that currently have I&R had adopted the process. Mississippi was the last state to adopt I&R in 1992. Interestingly enough, most of the states that have adopted I&R are west of the Mississippi River. Some theorize that the expansion of I&R in the West fits more with westerners' independent, populist belief system. For the most part, I&R operated quietly in the background of state politics for much of the 20th century. However, during the last three decades, it has come back into vogue. Nationwide, the popularity of I&R appears to have peaked in the 1990s; however, a large number of initiative proposals still qualify for the ballot, and a significant amount of money is spent on the process every election cycle. According to the Initiative and Referendum Institute, since the inception of the initiative in 1898, there have been more than 2,500 initiative measures on ballots in the 24 I&R states. Nearly half of these initiative measures (1,226) appeared on ballots in the last 36 years.

The Initiative Process in Nevada—The initiative is a procedure and method whereby citizens, through a petition process, place measures on the ballot proposing changes or additions to laws or state constitutions. There are two types of initiatives—direct and indirect. In Nevada, an initiative can be crafted to make an amendment to the Nevada Constitution (a direct initiative) or to change or amend an existing statute (an indirect initiative). The direct initiative involves a petition process that, if successful, goes directly on the ballot at the next general election. The indirect or statutory initiative, however, involves the input and consideration of the Legislature. In other words, an initiative proposal to change Nevada State law does not go directly to the ballot. In the indirect initiative process, a proposed initiative (if the petition has enough qualified signatures) is first referred to the Legislature.

During the 2005 Legislative Session, the Legislature passed measures requiring I&R petitions to address only one subject and matters necessarily connected with that subject. An explanation of the effect of the petition must also appear on each signature page of the petition. This legislation further required the Secretary of State to post a copy of the initiative or referendum petition, the description of the effect of the petition proposal, and the fiscal note on his or her website. Legislation adopted in 2007 provided that if a description of effect is amended in compliance with a court order, that amended language cannot be challenged.

The Nevada Constitution and various provisions in Chapter 295 (“Certain State and Local Ballot Questions”) of NRS also provide for I&R at the city and county level, although the filing, signature requirements, approval process, and time frames vary from the statewide I&R process. Finally, every election cycle, the Office of the Secretary of State publishes the Initiative & Referendum Guide, which is available on the Secretary of State’s website.

Constitutional Amendments—An initiative petition to amend the Nevada Constitution must be signed by a number of registered voters equal to 10 percent or more of the number of voters who voted at the last statewide general election. For 2016, this represented 55,235 valid signatures, which needed to be divided among Nevada’s four “petition districts” (13,809 signatures per district). Before any initiative petition to amend the Nevada Constitution may be circulated for signatures, a copy of the petition, including a description of 200 words or less of the effect of the petition, must be filed with the Secretary of State not earlier than September 1 of the year prior to the election. The petition may then be circulated for signatures until the third Tuesday in June of the following year (the election year), at which time, it must be submitted to the appropriate county election offices for signature verification. Upon completion of the signature verification process, all petitions must be filed by the county election officer with the Secretary of State no later than 90 days before the November general election (this date usually falls around the second week of August). If it is determined that the petition contains a sufficient number of valid signatures, the initiative question will appear on the general election ballot. An initiative petition to amend the Nevada Constitution must be approved in identical form at two successive elections before becoming law.

Over the years, numerous initiative proposals amending the Nevada Constitution have been considered by the voters. Key proposals that have been approved address a number of different topics, including the definition of marriage, medicinal marijuana, minimum wage, taxation, and term limits.

Enacting or Amending a State Statute

An initiative petition may also be used to enact a new statute or to amend an existing law. The same number of registered voters required to sign a constitutional initiative also is required to sign a statutory initiative. For 2016, this represented 55,235 valid signatures, which needed to be divided among Nevada’s four “petition districts” (13,809 signatures per district). Proponents must first file a copy of the petition, including a description 200 words or less of the effect of the petition, with the Secretary of State not earlier than January 1 of the year prior to the next legislative session. The petition may then be circulated for signatures until the second Tuesday in November, at which time it must be submitted to the county election offices for signature verification. Upon completion of the signature verification, all petitions to amend or create a statute must be filed by the county with the Secretary of State no later than 30 days before the start of the next legislative session.

If the petition contains a sufficient number of valid signatures, the Secretary of State shall transmit the initiative proposal to the Legislature as soon as it convenes. The Legislature must either enact or reject the petition without amendment within the first 40 days of the legislative session. Depending on the Legislature’s action, the proponents may continue the process by placing it on the ballot. If the Legislature defeats or fails to act on the initiative proposal within the first 40 days, it is automatically placed on the ballot at the next general election for consideration by the voters. Some states, including Nevada, allow the Legislature to place an alternative measure (regarding the same subject) on the ballot to be considered along with the initiative questions. If the Legislature enacts the statute proposed in the petition and it is approved by the Governor, it becomes law. It should be noted that a statutory initiative approved by the voters shall not be amended, annulled, or repealed by the Legislature within three years from the date it takes effect.

*Initiative petition to enact a new law was added to the Nevada Constitution in 1912. This table shows only those statutory initiatives that were considered by the voters following consideration by the Nevada Legislature. Statutory initiatives in 1933, 1957, and 2011 were declared void or invalid by the courts after consideration by the Legislature and were not placed on the ballot. A 1959 statutory initiative relating to Chapter 674 of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) was not placed on the ballot, as the Legislature repealed that NRS Chapter prior to the 1960 election. A 2001 statutory initiative regarding taxation and school funding was declared void before the Legislature could consider the initiative. Finally, a 2009 statutory initiative relating to the gross receipts tax from the rental of transient lodging was approved by the Legislature.

†In 1955, the Legislature considered an initiative concerning the question of public school finance. Although the Legislature did not adopt the initiative petition, salient provisions of the measure were included in a new school code enacted in the special session of 1956. However, the initiative petition had to be included on the 1956 General Election ballot, even though the issue was moot, because the Constitution does not contain any provisions to remove it from the ballot.

‡The proposed amendment to State law would have required each house of the Nevada Legislature to consider and approve twice any bill that imposes or increases a tax or assessment. Additionally, the measure would have required a period of ten calendar days to elapse between the first and second votes in each house on any such bill, with the final vote taking place at least ten days before the adjournment of a regular legislative session. The proposed amendment would have become effective only if a majority of the voters rejected the initiative proposal (1996 Ballot Question No. 11) that required a two-thirds vote of both legislative houses to pass a measure increasing a tax, fee, assessment, rate, or public revenue.

Geographic Distribution Requirement for Initiative Petition Signatures

Until the early 2000s, Nevada was one of ten states to require a “geographic distribution” signature requirement, whereby signatures for initiative petitions had to be gathered in 75 percent of Nevada’s counties (13 out of 17 counties). In a challenge to this provision, a federal judge agreed with plaintiffs who argued that requiring the collection of signatures in different areas of the State gave added weight or influence to voters’ signatures in rural areas and diminished the relative weight of voters’ signatures in urban centers. In making his ruling, the federal judge relied heavily upon an earlier Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruling declaring unconstitutional similar signature requirements in Idaho.

The 2005 Nevada Legislature discussed and debated the geographic distribution requirement following the federal ruling. In response, the Legislature approved Assembly Joint Resolution No. 1 (File No. 8, Statutes of Nevada 2005) of the 22nd Special Session, which proposed to remove the provisions in the Nevada Constitution that were declared unconstitutional. Since the long-standing, geographic-based signature requirement was deemed unconstitutional, petition signatures were able to be gathered in any combination of counties for the 2006 election cycle.

The 2007 Legislature then approved a measure setting forth a new formula for the 2008 election cycle, whereby a statewide initiative or referendum petition was to be signed, in total, by a number of voters equal to 10 percent of total votes cast in the last general election. In addition, that 10 percent was required to consist of signatures from each county in proportion to that county's percentage of the State's population. This method was also challenged and ultimately rejected by the courts following the 2008 election cycle.

The current statewide petition signature requirement was set forth in Senate Bill 212 (Chapter 460, Statutes of Nevada) of the 2009 Legislative Session. The bill required the Legislature to create petition districts from which signatures for a petition for initiative must be gathered. The bill defined "petition district" to mean a congressional district until July 1, 2011, at which time the Legislature was to establish petition districts for the period after that date. In 2011, the Legislature confirmed, with the passage of S.B. 133 (Chapter 320, Statutes of Nevada), that it wanted to continue using congressional districts as petition districts. Today, an initiative petition must be signed by a number of registered voters equal to at least 10 percent of the voters who voted in the last preceding general election divided equally among Nevada's congressional districts.*

The Referendum Process in Nevada

A referendum typically allows citizens to register, through a vote of the people, their support or disapproval of a current law or statute. In some states, the referendum is advisory in nature and does not create or abolish any laws. However, in Nevada, a referendum is binding and serves to either "set in stone" a particular statute (except by another vote of the people) or render a law or resolution void.

The first day a statewide referendum can be filed is August 1 in the year prior to the next election. In order to qualify for the ballot, a statewide referendum must be signed by a number of registered voters equal to 10 percent or more of the number of voters who voted at the last statewide general election divided equally among the petition districts. The petition may be circulated for signatures until the third Tuesday in June of the following year, at which time it must be submitted to the appropriate county election office for signature verification. If there are enough valid signatures, the referendum to approve or disapprove a current state law shall be placed on the general election ballot.

*On March 14, 2012, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed a lower court's ruling that Nevada's geographic distribution signature requirement (by congressional district) does not violate the Equal Protection Clause or the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Current Initiative and Referendum Issues and Concerns—Pros and Cons

Opinions concerning the I&R process vary widely. While many view the I&R process as a fair way for citizens to actively and directly influence the law making process, others believe that I&R diminishes the political strength and traditional power of legislative bodies. In recent years, others have also observed that I&R has become a popular method for well-financed special interests to pursue their agendas in State and local politics. Advocates for I&R argue that the use of the initiative process is positive—it means that citizens are using it as a tool to implement new laws and reforms that the Legislature is unable or unwilling to enact. Meanwhile, critics of I&R counter that the process asks voters to make simple “yes” or “no” decisions about complex issues without expert analysis or the benefit of consideration by an elected body of competing needs and other impacts. Opposing interests, some believe, are often not fully contemplated in the initiative process.

On the other hand, proponents argue that the I&R process not only results in policy changes but also increases citizen involvement with government—people are not only more aware of policy issues but are also more likely to vote. Finally, the I&R process has brought forth a number of concerns in recent years. Some state legislatures seem to be struggling to find ways to: (1) prevent fraud in the signature gathering process; (2) disclose information about who pays for initiative campaigns; and (3) add flexibility to the process to accommodate more debate, deliberation, and compromise.

Amendments to the Sales and Use Tax Act of 1955

The Sales and Use Tax Act, approved by the Nevada Legislature in 1955, established a 2 percent State tax on retail sales. Its approval was challenged by referendum the following year, but Nevada’s voters approved retention of this law and tax. Because of the subsequent referendum approval, the 2 percent rate and exemptions thereto may not be changed without voter approval.

Between 1956 and 2016, 30 proposals were submitted to the voters to change or create exemptions to the tax. Twelve of these proposals were approved, all of which concern specific tax exemptions.

The Nevada Legislature later added two separate taxes on retail sales to help defray costs associated with the provision of public services in a rapidly growing state—the Local School Support Tax (1967) and the City-County Relief Tax (1969). Each tax now is levied at 2.25 percent. Because these two taxes were established by legislative action, without a referendum of the voters, they may be changed at any time by the Legislature.

Bond Issues

State law allows the Legislature to approve directly the issuance of State bonds for specific public purposes. Alternatively, the Legislature may refer such bond questions to a vote of the people. State bonds may be issued in any amount that is not contrary to the limit of indebtedness imposed by the Nevada Constitution (2 percent of the assessed valuation of the State). Unless a proposal comes under a constitutional exemption provided for the protection of Nevada's natural resources, neither the Legislature nor the people may approve a measure that would cause the State to exceed the 2 percent debt limit.

Between 1950 and 2016, nine separate bond issues were referred to the voters, seven of which were approved. For example, the voters in 1984 approved the issuance of up to $10 million in State general obligation bonds for constructing and expanding public libraries around the State. In 2002, voters approved the issuance of general obligation bonds, not to exceed $200 million, in order to preserve water quality, restore and improve parks, and protect open space, lakes, rivers, wetlands, and wildlife habitat.

Advisory Questions

The Legislature may, by law, submit a nonbinding advisory question to the voters. The procedure only has been used twice since 1950. In 1978, the concept of an Equal Rights Amendment was rejected by a majority of the voters. In 1997, the Legislature referred a ballot question to voters relating to Nevada Day being observed on the last Friday of October instead of October 31. Voters, by advisory vote, supported the change with a vote of 214,653 to 193,875. Therefore, the 1999 Legislature changed the law with an effective date of October 2000.

“NONE OF THESE CANDIDATES”

By ROBERT E. ERICKSON

Former Research Director, Legislative Counsel Bureau

The 1975 Nevada Legislature approved a bill that gave voters the option of voting for “none of these candidates” for all public offices elected statewide.

This option appears on both primary and general election ballots for the offices of United States President and Vice President, United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, State Controller, and Justice of the Nevada Supreme Court.

State Assemblyman Don Mello sponsored the 1975 legislation to stimulate voter turnout by providing an alternative to voting for candidates who are either not popular or little known. Another goal of the measure is to allow voters to express dissatisfaction with the quality of candidates or the nature of election campaigns. Its provisions, which are found in Nevada Revised Statutes 293.269, require that the actual candidate receiving the most votes is elected or nominated, regardless of the number of votes cast for “none of these candidates.” In 2014, “none” finished first in the Democratic primary for Governor, garnering 29.96 percent of the total vote, while the top actual candidate tallied 24.77 percent.

In general, the “none” line on the ballot has attracted greater support in primary than general elections. It has been suggested that voters may feel freer to cast such ballots in primary elections when candidates are being nominated rather than when offices are actually filled. For example, “none of these candidates” finished first, with 47.3 percent of the vote, against two candidates in the 1976 Republican primary for Representative in Congress, which was a statewide office at that time. In 1986, “none” again finished first, against five candidates, in the Democratic primary for State Treasurer. “None of these candidates” also may influence highly contested statewide races that are decided by only a few votes. For example, in the 1998 contest for U.S. Senator, incumbent Harry Reid (D) was reelected to that office over challenger John Ensign (R) by 428 votes as compared to 8,125 cast votes for “none.”

A June 2012 lawsuit challenged the constitutionality of the Nevada law. The U.S. District Court subsequently agreed with plaintiffs and struck down the law. In September 2012, the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued an emergency stay preventing implementation of the district court’s order, thus allowing the “none” option to remain on the 2012 General Election ballot. In July 2013, the Court of Appeals dismissed the earlier lawsuit, thus retaining “none of these candidates” as a valid provision in Nevada State law.

Although “none of these candidates” has not been the top vote-getter for an office in the general election, it has been a popular option in certain races. In 1994, for example, “none” garnered 89,235 votes (24.1 percent of total) in the election for Supreme Court Justice, Seat C.

Although other states have expressed interest in the alternative of “none of these candidates,” Nevada is the only state to have enacted it into law.

RECALL OF PUBLIC OFFICERS

By PATRICIA D. CAFFERATA, Esq.

Author and Historian

Former State Treasurer, State Assemblywoman, and

Deputy Secretary of State for Elections, Secretary of State’s Office

The purpose of a recall election is to remove an elected official from office before the end of the official’s term. The recall process was added to the Nevada Constitution in 1912 (Article 2, Section 9). Nationwide, 19 states plus the District of Columbia permit the recall of state officials, while 29 states allow for the recall of local officers (some sources place the number of states that allow for the recall of local officials at 36). In Nevada, both State and local officials are permitted to be recalled. Representatives in Congress and United States Senators are not subject to the State’s recall laws, according to the U.S. Constitution, must be expelled by their colleagues to be removed from office.

In Nevada, most public officials may not be subject to a notice of intent to recall within the first six months of their term. The lone exception is State legislators, who may have a notice of intent filed against them following the first ten days of their first legislative session. If an unsuccessful recall election is held, the same public official cannot be subject to another recall effort during his or her term of office, unless those seeking a recall pay for the cost of an additional special election (Article 2, Section 9). However, should a recall attempt fail due to a lack of valid petition signatures, another notice of intent may be filed at any time.

The process to recall an elected official in Nevada is difficult, at best. Before gathering any signatures, a “committee for the recall of a public officer” must first file a notice of intent with the proper filing officer—the Secretary of State (for statewide and multi-county offices), County Clerk/Registrar of Voter (for county offices), or City Clerk (for city offices). The filing officer informs the recall committee how many valid signatures (registered voter who resides in the jurisdiction: State, county, district, or city) are necessary for the recall petition to be deemed sufficient, with this number being equal to 25 percent of the number who actually voted in the jurisdiction the office represents at the election in which the officer was elected.

The 25 percent standard has varied over the years. Originally, the 25 percent threshold was based on the number of voters who voted in the last general election for a Supreme Court Justice within the particular jurisdiction. Believing that number was too easy to reach (due to the fact that many citizens did not vote in Supreme Court races), in 1970, by a vote of the people, the mark was established as 25 percent of the voters who cast a ballot in the preceding general election. The benchmark was again changed in 1996 to 25 percent of the people who voted in the general election at which the official was elected to office.

All recall petition documents must be turned in at the same time within 90 days of the filing of the notice of intent to recall, even if an insufficient number of signatures are contained on the documents. Failure to turn in all documents in a timely manner is punishable as a misdemeanor. Once the petition is turned in, the signature verification process outlined in Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 293.1276 through 293.1279 is followed and the results are submitted to the appropriate filing officer.

Following the filing of a notice of intent to recall, qualified citizens who wish to appear on the ballot as a candidate for that office should a recall election be held may begin collecting valid signatures on a nominating petition. As with the recall petition, a minimum valid number of signatures equaling at least 25 percent of the number who actually voted in the jurisdiction the office represents at the election in which the officer subject to recall was elected must be obtained on the nominating petition for the candidate to gain ballot access.

In Nevada, if a recall election is held, there are three possible results: (1) the recall is unsuccessful and the elected official retains his or her office; (2) the recall is successful, the elected official is removed from office, and a vacancy in the office is created; or (3) the recall is successful, the elected official is removed from office, and a candidate who appeared on the recall ballot is duly elected to fill that position.

If there are no other candidates nominated, the special election ballot will include the public official's name and office and the words "For Recall" and "Against Recall." Voters choose one or the other. A simple majority vote is needed to recall the officer. If a recall election is successful and no other candidates appear on the recall election ballot, the appropriate governing body appoints someone to fill the vacancy until the next general election.

If there are other candidates who have qualified for the recall election, the ballot will include the public official's name and office and the other candidate(s) name. The words "For Recall" and "Against Recall" are omitted; voters simply choose for which candidate to cast their ballot. Again, a simple majority vote is sufficient.

Although many notices of intent to circulate recall petitions have been filed in order to initiate the recall process in Nevada, a sufficient number of valid signatures is rarely collected to qualify for recall election. As an example, between 2007 and 2016, more than 45 notices of intent to recall were filed in this State. Of those, only four recall petitions resulted in an election being called, with a total of one elected official actually being recalled by the voters.

No statewide elected official has been subject to a recall election in Nevada. However, voters have used their recall right to remove local elected officials from office in 15 of Nevada's 17 counties (the 2 counties in Nevada that have not had a recall election are Carson City and Churchill). Based on history, the public officials most susceptible to successful recalls in Nevada are school board trustees, city council and town board members, general improvement district and local board members, and sheriffs, with school board trustees the most likely to be removed from office and sheriffs the least likely.

According to incomplete records from the Secretary of State's Office, Ken Ellsworth, Sheriff of Pershing County, is the only elected official in Nevada to have faced two recall elections. At a 1976 recall election, Ellsworth was retained, but in 1977, he was voted out of office during a special election held as a result of a recall effort.

The following is a list of recall election results from 1927 through 2016. This list is by no means complete. It is the best list that could be compiled from available records.

CAMPAIGN PRACTICES

By DALE A.R. ERQUIAGA
Former Chief Deputy Secretary of State

Updated by RENEE L. PARKER
Former Chief Deputy Secretary of State

Deputy Secretary of State for Elections, Secretary of State's Office

During the Silver Party's rise to prominence in Nevada in the 1890s, an emerging progressive movement pushed a comprehensive political reform and regulatory act in the 17th Legislature. In 1895, lawmakers adopted "An Act to promote the purity of elections by regulating the conduct thereof, and to support the privilege of free suffrage by prohibiting certain acts and practices in relation thereto, and providing the punishment thereof." This law was quite rigid and strict compared to Nevada's current campaign practice laws.

For example, under the "Purity of Elections Law," a candidate had to have five persons who would accept, in an affidavit, that they would be responsible for the financing of a candidate's campaign. Today, candidate campaign finance committees are no longer required by law and most candidates administer their own finances during their campaigns. Also under the Silver Party's Purity of Elections Law, extensive reports naming amounts and contributors were mandatory and neglect was punishable not only by misdemeanor penalties but forfeiture of office upon conviction. If it could be established that a candidate's reports were indeed lacking prior to the issuance of a certificate of election, the law provided that no certificate was to be issued. Exact detail in the accounting of all expenditures and contributions was specifically provided for in the act. Today, a candidate need only be specific about those contributions received in excess of $100, and specific penalties for noncompliance are not stated.

An example of the minute details demanded by the Purity of Elections Law law is found in Section 10 of the act: "Every bill, placard, poster, pamphlet or other printed matter having reference to an election or to any candidate, shall bear upon the face thereof the name and address of the printer and publisher thereof, and no payment therefor shall be made or allowed unless such address is so printed." Prohibitions and penalties were specifically detailed throughout the act. It was unlawful for a person or for someone through another person to promise a certain appointment of office; present gifts; receive gifts; advance money; pay room and board; aid in the evasion of arrest; or induce another to vote for any particular person.

Limitations on the spending of campaign funds included in the Purity of Elections Law suggest a certain naive frugality among the Silver Party legislators.

If the term of office for which the person is a candidate be for two years or less, five percent of the amount of one year's salary of the office; if the term be for more than two years and not more than four years, four per cent of the amount of one year's salary for the office; if the term be more than four years, three percent of the amount of one year's salary of the office.

Computing spending limitations for today's candidates based upon the Purity of Elections Law and modern salaries, a candidate for governor would be permitted to spend only $6,000 on his or her campaign. Using the same formula, a legislative candidate for the Assembly would be restricted to a mere $450 for his or her campaign. In contrast, spending by an individual candidate today for major statewide office routinely exceeds $1 million, while spending by a candidate for State Senate or Assembly can exceed $500,000.

The fate of the Purity of Elections Law was much the same as that of the Silver Party. After a modest amendment to raise the spending limitations in 1897, the Legislature, during the 19th Session in 1899 passed the following: "An Act of the Legislature of the State of Nevada entitled An Act to promote the purity of elections by regulating the conduct thereof and to support the privilege of free suffrage by prohibiting certain acts and practices in relation thereto and providing for the punishment thereof approved March 16, 1895, is hereby repealed." (Approved March 21, 1899.)

In 1975, campaign contribution and expense reporting requirements were added back into State law. Then Secretary of State William D. Swackhamer became responsible for designing the campaign reporting forms and administering the Nevada Campaign Practices Act, just as his office had always administered the State's election laws. Essentially, the campaign laws required that candidates report how they raised and spent money during a campaign. Three reports were required. The law required that candidates disclose the name and address of persons who contributed in excess of $500 (the second highest reporting threshold in the nation at that time). Later regulations, adopted in 1993, extended this disclosure requirement to include the name and address of persons paid more than $500 for campaign expenses. Attempts to lower the reporting thresholds and more closely regulate the campaign spending of political parties and legislative caucuses were met with defeat. A 1996 constitutional amendment resulting from a citizens' initiative petition and sweeping legislative reform spearheaded by Secretary of State Dean Heller in 1997 took the issue further. Reporting thresholds were lowered to $100, political party activities were regulated, and new caps were established.

During the late 1990s and early 2000s, additional campaign practice reforms were adopted, including an annual contribution and expenditure report in addition to reports during the election cycle; reporting of contributions in excess of $10,000 by candidates who receive the contributions in any year before the general election; reporting of in-kind contributions; categorization of expenditures; reporting by ballot advocacy groups; reporting by persons or groups of persons who initiate or circulate certain statewide petitions if they receive or expend in excess of $10,000 to support such activities; and registration of nonprofit corporations that solicit contributions or make expenditures designed to affect the outcome of an election or ballot question. In addition, the campaign finance reporting laws were amended to strengthen the Secretary of State's ability to enforce them by adding civil penalties for failure to file or filing late.

In 2007, the Nevada Legislature passed Senate Bill 548 (Chapter 483, Statutes of Nevada), which requires that certain published statements that expressly advocate for the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate contain a disclosure of who is responsible for publishing the statement. In 2011, the Legislature approved a bill that requires all campaign finance reports be filed online with the Secretary of State's Office. The 2011 Legislature also made changes to the campaign finance reporting dates so that five individual reports are now required by each candidate throughout an election year. Additionally, the 2011 Legislature gave the Secretary of State more authority to investigate alleged violations of the Campaign Practices Act.

During the 2013 and 2015 Legislative Sessions, the Legislature adopted various minor changes to the State's campaign finance laws, including requirements for former elected officials and candidates to dispose of campaign funds after a certain amount of time. Provisions have also been added to the law to address specific circumstances that have been used to circumvent reporting requirements, such as prohibiting persons from making, assisting in making, or accepting contributions in the name of another person, and restrictions on persuasive polling. More substantive changes have been discussed, such as real-time reporting of contributions and disclosure of beginning and ending balances, but these reforms have not been approved by lawmakers as of 2016.

ETHICS AND ACCOUNTABILITY IN GOVERNMENT

By YVONNE M. NEVAREZ-GOODSON, Esq.
Executive Director, Nevada's Commission on Ethics

The Nevada Ethics in Government Law set forth in Chapter 281A ("Ethics Law") of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) establishes a statutory code of conduct governing conflicts of interest for Nevada's elected and appointed public officers and employees (except judges). The Nevada Legislature has declared that public office is a public trust to be held for the sole benefit of the people (NRS 281A.020[1][a]). In particular, the Nevada Legislature has recognized the close ties between government and private life and enterprise to trigger conflicts of interest between public duties and private interests (NRS 281A.020[2][a]). Thus, the Ethics Law establishes guidelines for the appropriate separation between the roles of persons who are both public servants and private citizens to enhance the people's faith in the integrity and impartiality of public officers and employees (NRS 281A.020[2][b]). To promote, interpret, and enforce the Ethics Law, the Legislature created Nevada's Commission on Ethics (NRS 281A.200).

The early 1970s marked a trend in the enactment of government ethics laws at the state and local levels. At the time of Nevada's original enactment of the Ethics Law in 1975, approximately 16 other states had established statutory codes of conduct intended to prohibit government corruption in systems otherwise marred with historical unwillingness by state and local prosecutors to prosecute political corruption, primarily inhibited by political and/or partisan pressures. The public became distrustful of government, and modern jurisdictions began establishing independent and bipartisan commissions to enforce ethics laws.

The earliest legislative enactments focused on money and secrets as the main infringement of the public trust, wherein the public believed money bought political action and public business was conducted behind closed doors. In other words, the laws reflected concerns about pecuniary conflicts of interest and transparency in government decisions at all levels of government. By tackling these issues, the legislatures sought to dispel the public's suspicions and beliefs that cronyism and corruption accompanied the democratic system. Nevada joined these efforts in 1975 with the Ethics Law and has consistently revised the provisions governing conflicts of interest since the law's enactment. In fact, most, if not all, states and several local government jurisdictions have, by now, enacted similar conflicts of interest statutes and established independent, bipartisan boards or commissions to enforce the provisions.

Notably, Nevada has specifically recognized a strong citizen-based form of representative government. Most of Nevada's State and local government policymakers are:

. . . "citizen Legislators" who have other occupations and business interests, who are expected to have particular philosophies and perspectives that are necessarily influenced by the life experiences of the Legislator, including, without limitation, professional, family and business experiences, and who are expected to contribute those philosophies and perspectives to the debate over issues with which the Legislature is confronted. (NRS 281A.020[2][c])

Consequently, the Commission on Ethics must balance the legislative intentions to prohibit conflicts of interest while simultaneously appreciating the personal life experiences for which certain public officers are elected to represent the public.

Any effort by a public officer or employee to realize personal gain through public office constitutes a violation of the public's faith and integrity of government on behalf of the represented public. Although the part-time nature of most elected and appointed public offices in State and local government cannot escape the inevitable encounter with private interests, the public expects and demands open, transparent, and accountable government. The Ethics Law and the role of the Commission model efforts by each jurisdiction in the nation and the federal government to ensure fair and independent actions by government representatives.

The Nevada Legislature has identified three types of personal interests that trigger conflicts of interest under the Ethics Law: (1) significant pecuniary interests; (2) the private interests of certain persons to whom the public officer or employee is related or affiliated (e.g., familial, household, business, or employment); and (3) the acceptance of gifts and loans. A public officer or employee making any decision in an official capacity that may affect a private interest has a conflict of interest subject to the Ethics Law. A public officer has a duty to avoid such conflicts, and the Ethics Law establishes necessary boundaries, duties, and prohibitions governing such conflicts, primarily through appropriate public disclosures of private interests.

The Ethics Law has evolved since 1975 to satisfy various constitutional challenges and clarify the standards of conduct applicable to public officers and employees. The Ethics Law originally focused on financial disclosure statements and has broadened to its current provisions, which include prohibitions against improperly using or abusing government authority, access, resources, subordinates, or other information to benefit a private interest described above (NRS 281A.400). Furthermore, public officers and employees are prohibited from entering into certain contracts with government agencies (NRS 281A.430). The provisions of NRS 281A.410 and 281A.550 limit representation of private clients in certain government activities and prohibit certain private employment after leaving public service. Finally, several other provisions prohibit the acceptance of gifts, favors, and other forms of compensation (NRS 281A.400) or honorariums (NRS 281A.510) and causing government expenditures to support or oppose ballot measures or candidates (NRS 281A.520).

Finally, the Ethics Law provides significant guidance requiring formal disclosures of conflicts and proper abstentions (NRS 281A.420). Such disclosures formerly included requirements to file with the Commission on Ethics certain financial disclosure statements listing various private financial interests; however, the Nevada Legislature moved the financial disclosure statement provisions under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of State in 2011. Under the Ethics Law, the disclosure provisions require a public officer or employee to disclose the full nature and extent of any pecuniary interests, including the acceptance of a gift or loan or other private commitments that are reasonably related to matters under consideration in an official capacity. Such disclosures must be made to the public and/or supervisor, as relevant. Abstention (or delegation) is required where official government action would materially affect the private interest.

Nevada's Commission on Ethics performs three main functions:

1. Educate public officers and employees regarding the provisions of the Ethics Law;
2. Interpret and provide guidance to public officers and employees under the Ethics Law regarding their past, present, or future conduct (advisory opinions); and
3. Investigate and adjudicate third-party ethics complaints against public officers and employees.

Although the Commission's primary mission is outreach and education, achieved through training and advisory opinions, the enforcement arm of the Ethics Law requires the Commission to investigate and adjudicate allegations of misconduct, resulting in the public censure of a public officer or employee for nonwillful violations and the imposition of civil penalties for willful violations of Ethics Law. The Commission also has the duty to refer certain public officers and employees for removal from office and/or disciplinary action, as appropriate (NRS 281A.480).

LOBBYING PRACTICES IN NEVADA

By CAROL M. STONEFIELD

Chief Principal Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Legislative agents or representatives, commonly known as lobbyists, represent various organizations, interests, and causes before the Legislature. Like the news media, they are important to the legislative process as sources of information, channels of communication between constituents and their representatives, and major protagonists in efforts to influence legislation. They frequently point out concerns in bills, suggest amendments, provide valuable testimony and, in general, assist the Legislature in assessing the merits of proposed legislation.

The activities of lobbyists in Nevada are controlled by the "Nevada Lobbying Disclosure Act" (Chapter 218H of Nevada Revised Statutes [NRS]), which was originally adopted in 1975. The law requires lobbyists to register with the Director of the Legislative Counsel Bureau (LCB) and provide certain information about themselves and the groups or individuals they represent. The provisions of the Act exempt from these requirements members of the media, elected officials of Nevada who confine their activities to matters directly related to their elective office, employees of the Nevada Legislature, employees of State and local government, and constituents of individual legislators who contact their own legislator. The lobbyist registration fees for a legislative session are $300 for a paid lobbyist, $100 for a lobbyist representing only nonprofit organizations, and $20 for an unpaid lobbyist. There is no lobbyist registration fee for an unpaid lobbyist who is a veteran.

A lobbyist must file a report each month during a legislative session and within 30 days after the close of a session concerning his or her lobbying activities. Each report must include the total expenditures for the month and, if the lobbyist had expenditures of $50 or more during the month, the report must itemize expenses in connection with any event hosted by an organization that sponsors the registrant; expenditures for entertainment, gifts, and loans; and other expenditures directly associated with legislative action. With the exception of expenditures associated with a function to which every legislator was invited, the reports must identify the legislators on whose behalf the expenditures were made. Data on each lobbyist's personal expenditures for food, lodging, and travel expenses or membership dues are not required in the monthly reports. Violation of the Act is a misdemeanor.

Revisions enacted by the Legislature in 2015 require lobbyists to disclose expenditures made for educational or informational meetings, events, or trips provided to legislators, public officers, and candidates. The Legislature also revised the definitions of "expenditure" and "gift" as those terms relate to reporting by lobbyists and public officers. A lobbyist shall not knowingly or willfully give any gift to a member of the Legislative Branch or a member of the legislator's family, and a member shall not accept any gift from a lobbyist. This prohibition applies whether or not the Legislature is in session.

Other sections in NRS also address improper influence exerted upon legislators. For example, any person who interferes with the legislative process is guilty of a gross misdemeanor. Any person who improperly obtains money or other things of value to influence a member of a legislative body in regard to any vote or legislative action also is guilty of a gross misdemeanor. It is a misdemeanor to misrepresent any fact knowingly when testifying or otherwise communicating to a legislator, though witnesses are absolutely privileged to publish defamatory material that is relevant to a proceeding. Moreover, both the giving of a bribe to a legislator and receiving a bribe are crimes against the legislative power and are subject to severe punishments under the law. Although lobbying activities are customarily prohibited on the floor of both chambers, lobbyists may appear before any committee of the Legislature.

Upon leaving office, some legislators have chosen to become lobbyists. To slow down this practice, known as “the revolving door,” the Legislature enacted legislation in 2015 to prohibit any former legislator from receiving compensation to lobby before the Legislature for a period beginning when the legislator leaves office and ending at the adjournment of the next regular session. Exemptions are provided for a former legislator if lobbying is a duty of the individual’s full-time employment and the former legislator does not act as a lobbyist for any other employer or client.

OPEN MEETING LAW

By JENNIFER RUEDY

Principal Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

JERED M. MCDONALD

Senior Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Nevada’s first Open Meeting Law (OML) was enacted in 1960 and is codified in Chapter 241 (“Meetings of State and Local Agencies”) of Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS). The purpose of the OML is set forth in NRS 241.010:

In enacting this chapter, the Legislature finds and declares that all public bodies exist to aid in the conduct of the people’s business. It is the intent of the law that their actions be taken openly and that their deliberations be conducted openly.

In the years following the Watergate scandal, Nevada strengthened its OML making it one of the strongest open meeting laws in the United States because there are so few exceptions to the general rule that all meetings of public bodies must be open to the public. In 1977, the Nevada Legislature approved a comprehensive OML as a tool to require public bodies to operate openly. The few statutory exceptions for certain entities from the OML include the Legislature, certain meetings of the State’s Commission on Ethics, the Nevada Commission on Homeland Security, and committees appointed by the Chair of the Commission. Exceptions also exist for student expulsion hearings by school boards, certain labor negotiations, and investigative hearings of the State Gaming Control Board. The 2015 Legislature authorized a board of hospital trustees of a county hospital to hold a closed meeting to discuss: (1) providing a new service or materially expanding an existing service; or (2) acquiring an additional facility or materially expanding an existing facility.

There is not extensive case law interpreting Nevada’s OML. However, the Office of the Nevada Attorney General has enforced the OML since its inception, and the Attorney General continues to ensure that the people's business is done openly by providing the public, public bodies, and legal practitioners with the Nevada Open Meeting Law Manual (Manual) and official Attorney General Opinions interpreting Nevada's OML. The most recent issue of the Manual was published in January 2016. The Attorney General convenes a task force in between legislative sessions to review the OML, and its work has often resulted in bill draft requests to the Nevada Legislature. Over the years, the Legislature has made changes to the OML to ensure transparency and public accessibility while adapting to new technology, such as allowing participation in public meetings via telephone or video conference.

In 2001, Nevada's OML was amended to provide a limited exemption for communications between a public body and its legal counsel on potential or existing litigation. Attorney-client discussions are not considered meetings and, therefore, no notice or agenda is required. However, according to the most recent edition of the OML Manual, a public body may only take action on potential or existing litigation matters in an open meeting. In 2005, the Legislature made several significant changes relating to closed meetings, including allowing a person who is the subject of a closed meeting to waive closure of the meeting and requiring a public body to honor such a request. Meetings may not be closed to discuss the character, conduct, or competence of an appointed public officer or a person who serves at the pleasure of a public body or as a chief executive or administrative officer. This includes county and city managers, school district superintendents, and university and college presidents.

In 2013, the Legislature amended the OML to clarify that any other provision of law which: (1) exempts a meeting, hearing, or proceeding from the requirements of the OML; or (2) otherwise authorizes or requires a closed meeting, hearing, or proceeding prevails over the general provisions of the OML. Assembly Bill 433 of the 2007 Legislative Session also clarified when certain bodies may meet in closed session and also clarified that any meeting of a public body closed pursuant to a specific statute may only be closed to the extent specified in law. In the 2009 Session, S.B. 267 clarified that workshops and public hearings on proposed regulations by State agencies, as required by Chapter 233B ("Nevada Administrative Procedure Act") of NRS, are subject to the provisions of the OML. Assembly Bill 59 of the 2011 Legislative Session also clarified that proceedings of a public body that are quasi-judicial in nature are subject to the OML. Exceptions to this provision are meetings of the State Board of Parole Commissioners when acting to continue, deny, grant, or revoke parole of a prisoner.

Finally, Senate Bill 70 of the 2015 Legislative Session revises the laws related to public meetings by: (1) defining a working day as every day of the week except Saturday, Sunday, and legal holidays, even if an agency has a four-day workweek; (2) requiring a public body to certify in writing its compliance with the requirements for minimum public notice for each of its meetings; and (3) requiring a public body to approve the minutes of a public meeting not later than 45 days after the meeting or at the next meeting of the public body, whichever occurs later. The bill also requires a public body to include on its agenda the name of a person who may be the subject of any type of administrative action by a public body, including administrative actions that are not adverse to a person, such as, for example, the appointment of the person to a position.

The OML recommends corrective action for violations of the law to mitigate the effect of a violation. For example, improper notice can be corrected by rescheduling the meeting. The law states that actions taken in violation of the OML are void, and complaints alleging violations may be brought by private citizens or the Attorney General. Any member of a public body who knowingly violates the open meeting statutes, or wrongfully excludes a person from a meeting, is subject to misdemeanor criminal sanctions (up to six months in jail and/or a fine of not more than $1,000). Moreover, a member of a public body who is convicted of a violation of the OML must vacate his or her office.

Assembly Bill 59 of the 2011 Legislative Session also made several changes and additions to provisions relating to OML violations. The measure added a civil penalty of not more than $500 for any member of a public body who participates in an action in violation of the OML with knowledge of the violation. The action may be brought by the Attorney General in any court and must be commenced within one year of the action in violation of the law. Assembly Bill 59 also clarified that the Attorney General shall investigate and prosecute any violation of the OML and is authorized to issue subpoenas when investigating OML complaints. A public body that is subject to an investigation by the Attorney General is required to include on its next agenda an acknowledgement of the Attorney General's findings and conclusions relating to a violation of the OML. In 2013, A.B. 65 amended these provisions by stipulating that the Attorney General may decide not to prosecute a public body's violation of the OML if the body takes corrective action within 30 days of the alleged violation and the corrective action takes place in a public meeting for which the item has been clearly agendaized. The corrective action is deemed to be prospective.

On March 24, 2015, the Washoe County School District Board of Trustees voted to hire Traci Davis as its new superintendent, but the possible action was not clearly posted on its agenda. Despite the violation of the OML, the Attorney General did not pursue prosecution because the Board took immediate corrective action during the same meeting. Instead, the Attorney General levied a $500 fine against the board, for which the individual members were individually liable for approximately $71; however, the fine would be waived if the Board did not have any further violations of the OML during the following year.

In 1998, the Nevada Supreme Court prohibited serial gatherings among members of a public body designed to reach a consensus on a particular issue outside an open meeting (Del Papa v. Board of Regents of the University and Community College System of Nevada, 114 Nev. 388, 1998). In 2001, the Nevada Legislature passed A.B. 225, which amended the term “meeting” in NRS 241.015 to include:

. . . any series of gatherings of members of a public body at which:
(I) Less than a quorum is present at any individual gathering; (II) The member of the public body attending one or more of the gatherings collectively constitute a quorum; and (III) The series of gatherings was held with the specific intent to avoid the provision of this chapter.

This definition was amended in 2013 (A.B. 65) to include “whether in person or by means of electronic communication” to address potential serial gatherings in an electronic setting, such as e-mail.

The Nevada Supreme Court was faced with this again in Dewey v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of Reno, 119 Nev. 87 (2003). In this case, the Court ruled that although each member of the public body met with city staff in individual private briefings, the public body did not violate Nevada’s Open Meeting Law because a quorum was not present at any one meeting and there was no evidence to indicate that serial communications occurred among the members of the public body to share information received at the briefings. As a result, members of a public body may meet in private, and they can even lobby each other for votes, but they may not pass on information obtained from one member to other members that total a quorum.

In Sandoval v. The Board of Regents of the University, 119 Nev. 148 (2003), the Nevada Supreme Court considered a different issue. In this case, the Court interpreted NRS 241.020 and the amount of clarity required by a public body in stating its agenda. The court ruled, “Nevada’s Open Meeting Law seeks to give the public clear notice of the topics to be discussed at public meetings so that the public can attend a meeting when an issue of interest will be discussed.” Id. at 153. By this ruling, the Court established the clarity required for a public body’s agenda, and the Office of the Attorney General uses this standard in its interpretations of Nevada’s OML.

Finally, in Dehne v. City of Reno, 222 Fed. Appx. 560, 562 (9th Cir. 2007), the Ninth Circuit Court of appeals weighed an individuals’ first amendment right to free speech regarding a willful disruption of a public meeting. The court found that a person who willfully disrupts a meeting to the extent its orderly conduct has been made impractical may be removed from a meeting. The removal of the individual does not violate the Constitution provided that the individual is sufficiently disruptive and is not removed because of his or her expressed views.

Nevada's OML continues to be an issue of primary concern among various public bodies in state and local government. While it will continue to evolve, the OML will always ensure that the people's business is conducted in public forums and with public input.

Conclusion

John F. Kennedy once said, "If we are strong, our strength will speak for itself. If we are weak, words will be of no help." Actively encouraging accountability in Nevada government through strong enforcement of ethics, lobbying, and open meeting laws continues to be a priority to ensure both the confidence of the public and the retention of its trust.

WOMEN IN NEVADA POLITICS

By DANA R. BENNETT

In 1914, Nevada's all-male electorate extended the right to vote to the female citizens of the State. This was not, however, the first year in which women were involved in Nevada politics. Although women could not vote, they were involved in a number of political activities between Nevada obtaining statehood in 1864 and 1914. Of course, after being allowed to vote, women's political participation increased, especially as candidates for elective office at every level of government.

Early Political Activities

Many Nevada women were as politically active as they could be without voting or running for office. One political arena in which women participated was the State legislature. A famous early lobbyist was Hannah K. Clapp who successfully elicited the support of the Territorial Legislature (1861-1864) to establish the State's first private educational institution. Other women lobbied the Legislature for suffrage and other issues of interest to women and children. Occasionally, these women were allowed to give speeches to the legislators while they were in session. Although they were not allowed to be elected members of the State Legislature, women were involved in other official capacities, beginning when the 1877 Assembly elected Mary E. Wright of Storey County to be a copying clerk.

Women were also involved in local politics, especially school boards. In 1889, the Constitution of the State of Nevada was amended to allow women to serve as school superintendents and school trustees, which were locally elected positions at the time. The records are incomplete, but it appears that women around the State immediately ran for school office. In 1890, women were elected to superintendent positions in Elko and Humboldt Counties and to trustee offices in Lander and White Pine Counties.

For reasons that are unknown at this point, a few women ran for school trustee before the constitutional amendment was approved and at least two women were successful: Helen Bain was elected to Humboldt County's Gold Run District school board in 1882, and Mrs. Lewis was elected to Nye County's White River District board in 1888.

In 1899, the Nevada Legislature approved an appropriation for an important improvement to the Capitol that clearly indicates that women were actively involved in the administration of the State. The General Appropriation Act for the 1899-1901 Biennium included a $300 allocation "for constructing and furnishing a ladies' toilet in the Capitol Building."

Suffrage

The most prominent early political arena for Nevada women was their battle to obtain the right to vote. The Nevada Legislature first addressed that issue when it approved the first step toward a constitutional amendment in 1869; however, the required second approval attempt failed in 1871. Suffrage remained a legislative issue during at least 12 of the subsequent sessions, until the voters approved the constitutional amendment in 1914. Rarely did this discussion take place without women's participation. They gave formal speeches, submitted petitions, organized rallies, and lobbied legislators.

Between legislative sessions, women were active in clubs and activities that supported suffrage and other issues of interest, such as the prohibition of alcohol. Many of these activities took place in the public arena.

As with any political debate, there was opposition to suffrage as well. Women were politically active on that side of the issue, too. The Nevada Association of Women Opposed to Equal Suffrage was led by Emma Adams, wife of former Governor Jewett Adams.

Despite such opposition, 60 percent of the State's voting men approved the amendment. The question was approved by the voters in 12 of the State's 16 counties; it failed in Eureka, Ormsby, Storey, and Washoe Counties. As a result, Nevada women obtained the right to vote six years before the national constitution was amended, but later than women in 8 of the 11 western states.

However, the Legislature was not finished with the issue of women's enfranchisement. In 1927, a bill was approved that specifically authorized married women to register to vote under their own first names and not their husbands'. Such women were required, however, to use the designation "Mrs." Twelve years later, Assemblywoman Luella K. Drumm (D-Churchill) sponsored a successful bill to remove that requirement.

Women in Elected Office

After obtaining the right to vote, women began to run for offices throughout Nevada.

Federal Offices—One of the most famous female candidates for a federal office from Nevada is Anne Martin, who ran as an Independent for U.S. Senator in 1918 and 1920. She received a respectable number of votes but came in third in a field of four candidates during both general elections. No other woman sought this office until Maya Miller entered and lost the Democratic primary in 1974. It was 60 years before another woman's name was on the general election ballot for U.S. Senator: Mary Gojack was the Democratic nominee in 1980. Another 20 years passed before Kathryn Rusco, a member of the Green Party, appeared on the general election ballot in 2000. In 2010, Sharron Angle was the Republican nominee, and in 2012, Shelley Berkley was the Democratic nominee.

Until 1982, Nevada's Congressional Representative was a statewide office. During the 40 years previous to that change, only four women attempted to win this seat. They were all unsuccessful.

Nevada's Congressional District No. 2, was created after the decennial census of 1980 showed that the population had reached a sufficient number for a second congressional district. At the first election for its representative (1982), only women were candidates in the general election. Republican Barbara F. Vucanovich won that election and was re-elected at each subsequent election until her retirement in 1996. During this 16-year period, numerous other women candidates entered the primary and general elections for both congressional seats; however, only Vucanovich was successful. Vucanovich was the first woman elected to a federal office from Nevada, and with seven terms, the State's second longest-serving Congressional Representative. (Democrat Walter S. Baring served 10 terms, 1949-1953 and 1957-1973.)

In 1998, Shelley Berkley (D) was elected to Congressional District No. 1. She served continually in that office until 2012, when she ran and lost her bid to become a U.S. Senator.

Congressional District No. 3 was formed after the 2000 decennial census, and Congressional District No. 4 was added following the 2010 decennial census. Between 2000 and 2014, at least one woman appeared on the ballot in every general election for at least one of Nevada's congressional districts. In 2008, Dina Titus (D) was elected to represent Congressional District No. 3. She lost her bid for reelection in 2010, but was elected to Congressional District No. 1 in 2012 where she is still serving.

Statewide Offices—After passage of the State constitutional amendment, female candidates quickly emerged for statewide offices. In 1916, the ballot for the general election included several women as candidates for the University of Nevada's Board of Regents, which were statewide offices until 1958. Edna Baker, a Republican, defeated a Democrat and a Socialist, both women, with 44 percent of the vote; thus becoming the first woman elected to a statewide office.

Baker did not run for re-election, but she was not the last woman elected to the Board of Regents. Before the regents became district-specific positions in 1957, two other women were elected: Eunice Hood in 1918 and Anna H. Wardin in 1938 (beating incumbent George Wingfield). After becoming district-specific offices, women candidates were more successful in obtaining regent seats: four women have represented the rural areas of the State between 1960 and 1996; and 12 have represented Clark County districts between 1962 and 1996. Only one woman, Frankie Sue Del Papa, has represented a Washoe County district. She was elected in 1980 for one six-year term.

The offices that are more commonly recognized as statewide offices are also called the constitutional officers: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, Treasurer, and Controller. Women have been candidates for each of these offices, and have been successful in winning all but one of the offices.

Between 1970 and 2014, 17 women appeared on the primary or general election ballots for the office of Governor. The first woman to survive a primary election battle and appear on the general election ballot in a gubernatorial election was Republican Shirley Crumpler in 1974. The first Democratic woman to win a primary election and appear on the general election ballot was Jan Laverly Jones in 1998. She did not win, and to date, no woman has yet won this seat.

The first constitutional seat to be won by a female candidate was Treasurer: Republican Patty D. Cafferata was successful in 1982. Since then, two other women have run for Treasurer, with one being elected. Kate Marshall, a Democrat, served two terms as Treasurer, having been elected in 2006 and reelected in 2010. The first woman on the general election ballot was Clara Cunningham, a Republican who sought the office in 1926.

The office of Controller has had a few candidates; in 1918, Grace M. Wildes lost the Democratic primary as did Mary Sanada 76 years later. Cherie Fields, a Libertarian, was the first woman to be on the general election ballot for this seat, doing so in 1978. In 1998, two women faced each other on the general election ballot. Republican Kathy M. Augustine defeated Democrat Mary Sanada. Augustine was reelected in 2002. Democrat Kim Wallin was elected Controller in 2006, and she was reelected in 2010.

In addition, few women have sought the Attorney General position. The first woman to run for the office was Democrat Frankie Sue Del Papa, who won in 1990, 1994, and 1998. The only other woman to be elected as Attorney General was Democrat Catherine Cortez Masto who won election in 2006 and reelection 2010.

In 1962, Democrat Maude Frazier was appointed to Lieutenant Governor, a position she held for six months until the 1962 election (in which she did not run). In 1990, Republican Sue Wagner became the first woman elected to this post. The second woman elected was Republican Lorraine Hunt in 1998. In 2002, she was reelected, beating Democrat Erin Kenny in the general election.

The earliest female candidate to run for Secretary of State was Republican Louise S. Ellis, who lost in 1918. The first woman elected to Secretary of State was Frankie Sue Del Papa, winning in 1986. The second was Republican Cheryl Lau, elected in 1990. The third woman elected as Secretary of State was Barbara K. Cegavske in 2014.

During the first half of the twentieth century, other offices were also elected statewide, such as Superintendent of Public Instruction, Inspector of Mines, Superintendent of State Printing, and Surveyor General. By 1973, these offices had become appointive or abolished. The only one of these offices held by a woman was Superintendent of Public Instruction. In 1937, Mildred N. Bray was appointed to fill the empty office. She was re-elected in 1938, 1942, and 1946, but was defeated by Glenn A. Duncan in 1950.

Female candidates also appeared on the statewide ballot as presidential electors. Until the presidential election of 1952, voters chose presidential electors, rather than voting directly for the candidates. Beginning with the presidential election year of 1916, at least one woman was chosen as an elector from Nevada in all but one (1928) such election until 1952.

Legislative Offices—The first woman to run for the State Legislature was Jean Dwyer from Washoe County. An Independent, Dwyer came in last in a field of 22 candidates for the Assembly in 1916. Two years later, the first woman was elected to the Legislature: Assemblywoman Sadie D. Hurst, Republican from Washoe County.

In the 65 years between 1916 to 1981, only 42 women were elected to the State Legislature. In the following 33 years, however, the voters' interest in female candidates rose dramatically. Beginning with the 1982 election, 71 women have been elected to legislative office. In the 2015 Session, exactly one-third of the Legislature was female: 16 women were chosen to represent their neighbors in the Assembly; 5, in the Senate.

Like their male counterparts, the women who served in the State Legislature came from all parts of the State, both major political parties, and various occupations. Only Douglas County has not been represented by a woman. Over half of the female legislators have been Democrats. For the 2015 Session, there were 12 Democratic and 11 Republican women. The most common occupation listed has been businesswoman. Other well-represented occupations include teacher, rancher, and housewife. A prospector, a nurse, and an orchestra director have also served. Interestingly, unlike the male legislators, few attorneys are found in the female ranks. The first female attorney in the Assembly served in 1921 (Ruth Averill, R-Nye). In the Senate, the first female attorney was elected in 1992 (Lori Lipman Brown, D-Clark).

In recent decades, women have held many leadership positions in the Legislature, as detailed in the following chart.

Women have also been integral to the Legislature’s staff. The first woman to serve as Secretary of the Senate was Vivian Rickey, elected for the 1926 Special Session. The first female Chief Clerk of the Assembly was Theresa Loy, elected in 1969.

Judicial Offices—Female candidates were successful relatively early in the bids for Clerk of the Supreme Court, an elected position until 1959. In 1926, Eva Hatton (R) beat the incumbent and served until her defeat in the 1934 election. Hatton was the first woman to beat a male incumbent in a statewide race. Margaret Brodigan (D) was appointed early in 1938, was re-elected in 1938 and 1942, and left office after losing in 1946.

Women were not successful as early in their bids to become judges. The first woman elected District Court Judge in this State was Miriam Shearing in Clark County (1983). The first women elected as District Court Judges in Washoe County were Deborah A. Agosti and Robin A. Wright, both elected two years later. In 2011, two women were appointed to judgeships in rural Nevada. Kimberly Wanker was a District Court Judge for Esmeralda, Mineral, and Nye Counties, and Nancy Porter was a District Court Judge for Elko County. Both women subsequently were re-elected in 2012. In 1992, Shearing became the first woman seated on the State Supreme Court, and in 1997 Shearing became the first female Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court.

Local Offices—Since 1914, numerous women have run for, and won, various county and city offices. Many have been appointed to fill open seats; a few have won re-election. As has been the case with executive, legislative, and judicial races, the number of women running for and winning local offices has risen exponentially in the past 20 years.

Based on the data available, the following tables note the first women to hold certain local offices.

Women's Involvement in Politics

In addition to political involvement as voters and elected officials, countless women have served and continue to serve as campaign workers, officials' staff, party leaders, lobbyists, grass roots organizers, election board members, and registrars of voters—paid and unpaid contributors to Nevada's political process. Before obtaining the right to vote, women were somewhat involved in the process; currently, they are integral to Nevada politics.

Federal and Statewide Office Holders

CHAPTER 5: FEDERAL AND STATEWIDE OFFICER HOLDERS

An Act of Congress created the Territory of Nevada on March 2, 1861. James W. Nye of New York was appointed Nevada's first Territorial Governor by President Abraham Lincoln later that year. On October 31, 1864, President Lincoln proclaimed Nevada's admission to the Union as the 36th state. On November 8, 1864, Nevada participated in its first presidential election as a state and supported the incumbent president.

The following table shows the persons who were elected and served as presidents and vice presidents of the United States since Nevada was admitted to the Union, and indicates whether those persons carried Nevada.

FEDERAL OFFICERS

Like all states, Nevada is entitled to two United States Senators. The first two United States Senators from Nevada were chosen for short terms, and their time was decided by lot. Senator Stewart drew a four-year term, while Senator Nye drew a two-year term.

Senators were chosen by the Nevada Legislature until the election of 1914, when popular election replaced this method of selection as a result of passage of the Seventeenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. However, at the general elections in 1908, 1910, and 1912, candidates for the State Legislature were bound by a ballot measure entitled "Choice for U.S. Senator," which essentially pledged any legislative candidate to elect that senatorial candidate who received the largest number of popular votes, regardless of party affiliations.

From 1864 until 1982, the State also had only one Representative in Congress. A second congressional seat was added in 1982, based on population figures from the 1980 census; a third and fourth congressional seat were added following the 2000 Census and 2010 Census, respectively.

A vacancy in the office of U.S. Senator is filled by appointment made by the governor. A vacancy in Congress can only be filled by election.

*Worthington was elected to fill the unexpired portion of the 38th Congress ending in March 1865. Since he served in the later months of that session, he was not eligible for the 39th Session except by reelection. Republicans chose Ashley for nominee after a notable contest. From March 4, 1865, to Ashley's election, Nevada had no representative in Congress.

THE STATE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

Territorial Officers

Under Nevada's Organic Act, officers for the Territory of Nevada were appointed rather than elected. The key positions in the Executive and Judicial Branches were appointments made by the President of the United States. The Territorial Governor, in turn, made additional appointments—some terminating with the first session of the Legislative Assembly, others by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. The Territorial Governor called for the first elections and established the first apportionment of the Territorial Legislature. Copies of proceedings and laws enacted by the Territorial Legislature were transmitted to the President and Congress.

Officers After Statehood

The Nevada Constitution provides, in Article 5, that the “supreme executive power of the state shall be vested in a chief magistrate,” the Governor. Article 5 also provides for the popular election of a Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Controller, and Attorney General. At various times in our history, the Constitution also required the direct election of a state printer (or superintendent of state printing), inspector of mines, surveyor general, superintendent of public instruction, and state mineralogist. In addition to legislative and judicial officers, other state offices include university regents and members of the State Board of Education.

The first state officers assumed their positions on December 5, 1864, their terms extending to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January of 1867. The time of inauguration to new terms is the first Monday in January following the elections. Terms of State officers are four years, except for justices of the Supreme Court (six years), university regents (six years), and State Assemblymen (two years).

Election to the office of Governor is limited by constitutional amendment such that no person may be elected more than twice. At the general election of 1996, voters imposed term limits on the other five constitutional officers to two terms as well. Members of the State Board of Education are already limited to three terms.

All State elective offices, except that of Governor, can be filled by appointment in case of vacancy. A vacancy in the governorship is filled by succession as follows: Lieutenant Governor, Senate President Pro Tempore, Speaker of the Assembly, and Secretary of State.

The Nevada Judiciary

THE JUDICIARY

By ROBIN SWEET

Director and State Court Administrator

Administrative Office of the Courts

With assistance from Supreme Court staff

At the time the government for the Nevada Territory was being formed, the First Territorial Legislature passed “An Act adopting the Common Law.” The State Constitution, in turn, accepted the laws of the Territory, subject to amendment, repeal or expiration (Art. 17, Sec. 2). Nevada Revised Statutes 1.030 states, “The common law of England, so far as it is not repugnant to or in conflict with the Constitution and laws of the United States or the Constitution and laws of this state, shall be the rule of decision in all the courts of this state.” This meant the first Nevada courts would not be making decisions in a vacuum, but would follow the long line of judicial precedent established in England and largely carried to the new United States.

Following passage of a constitutional amendment by the voters in November 2014, Article 6, Section 1 of the Nevada Constitution currently vests the judicial power of the State in a court system comprised of the Supreme Court, the court of appeals, the district courts and justices’ courts. The Legislature also has established municipal courts as courts of limited jurisdiction in incorporated communities.

Justices’ courts are also courts of limited jurisdiction, staffed by justices of the peace and hearing only civil matters of less than $10,000 in value, misdemeanor criminal matters, preliminary felony and gross misdemeanor matters, and landlord-tenant disputes.

The district courts are trial courts of general jurisdiction that hear civil matters above $10,000<sup>1</sup> in value; felony and gross misdemeanor criminal matters; family law matters; juvenile issues involving crime, abuse, and neglect; and appeals of misdemeanor cases.

The Supreme Court is the court of last resort, primarily reviewing appeals from the decisions of the district courts. The Supreme Court must consider all appeals filed from the trial courts and, as a result, it is one of the busiest appellate courts in the United States. The Supreme Court will consider writs of certiorari from the decisions of the court of appeals. The Supreme Court also oversees Nevada’s entire legal system, establishing rules governing court procedures and practices and the ethical and professional conduct of judges.

The justices also have authority over Nevada lawyers, supervising admissions into the State Bar of Nevada, and approving rules of conduct and discipline. Justices have the power to create commissions and task forces to facilitate the administration of justice. Along with the Governor and Attorney General, the justices serve as commissioners on the State's Board of Pardons to review sentences for convicted criminals and alter the sentences if appropriate.

The Supreme Court and Court of Appeals publish their opinions in the Nevada Reports. Decisions of the lower courts are not published.

Supreme Court justices, court of appeals judges, district court judges, and justices of the peace are elected to six-year terms, assuming office on the first Monday in January after their election. The Governor fills mid-term vacancies of Supreme Court justices, court of appeals judges, and district court judges by appointment from nominees submitted by the Commission on Judicial Selection (established by constitutional amendment in 1976, Art. 6, Sec. 20). Appointments are effective the day the appointee takes the oath of office. Appointees must run in the next general election to retain their seats. Justices, judges and justices of the peace can be removed from office by impeachment, legislative removal, or by the Commission on Judicial Discipline, which was established by constitutional amendment in 1976 (Art. 6, Sec. 21).

Originally, the Supreme Court consisted of three justices, the chief justice and two associate justices, with staggered terms two years apart. The Legislature could increase the number of justices to five, which it did in 1967. The chief justice is the justice most senior in commission; that is, the justice most senior in the current term being served, not the justice with the most years on the bench. If two or more justices' commissions bear the same date, the chief justice is chosen by lot unless there is an agreement to split the duties, as has been done in recent years. The Supreme Court chief justice appoints the court of appeals chief judge.

An amendment to Article 6, Section 2, of the Constitution in 1976 permits the Legislature to increase or decrease the number of justices and allows the creation of panels if the Court consists of more than five justices. In 1999, the Supreme Court was increased to seven members and two 3-justice panels were created. The chief justice is not a member of either panel, but sits when a panel member must recuse himself or herself from a case. The panels hear most appellate cases, although the most important cases are decided en banc (before all seven justices).

En banc and panel sessions of the Supreme Court generally are held in the State capital and Las Vegas, although the Court may hold arguments at other locations in the State. The Supreme Court has presided over sessions in Elko, Ely, Fallon, North Las Vegas, Pahrump, Reno, Tonopah, Virginia City, Yerington, and Winnemucca.

The Court has had chambers in several locations in Carson City since Nevada was admitted to the Union on October 31, 1864. Initially, the court shared quarters with other State offices on the second floor of Abraham Curry’s Great Basin Hotel at the corner of Carson and Musser Streets. (That location later became the site of the Carson City Courthouse. The historic building is now used by the Nevada Attorney General’s Office.) The Supreme Court moved to the newly constructed Capitol Building in 1871, where it remained until a Supreme Court and Library Building was constructed across Carson Street in 1937. (The “Library” was the Nevada State Library, an Executive Branch agency whose Law Division became the Supreme Court Law Library in 1973.) This structure at 198 South Carson Street (next to the old Carson City Courthouse) is also currently used by the Nevada Attorney General’s Office. In 1992, the Supreme Court moved to its current building at 201 South Carson Street, between the Capitol Building and the Nevada Legislature.

Before Nevada became a state, residents were served by a territorial court system. On March 27, 1861, President Abraham Lincoln appointed three justices to the Territorial Supreme Court. On July 17, 1861, Territorial Governor James Nye assigned each to a judicial district to serve also as circuit court judges. The Territorial Supreme Court rendered 88 decisions, which were never formally reported. Chief Justice George Turner was commissioned by the Legislature to have them published, but Governor Blasdel vetoed the funding bill. Chief Justice Turner took the majority of the opinions with him when he left the State and they are considered lost.

In 1910 the Supreme Court decided these two constitutional offices could not be consolidated, State v. Douglass, 33 Nev. 82.

Court of Appeals

The constitutional amendment to Article 6 to create the Court of Appeals was approved by the voters of Nevada in the General Election held on November 4, 2014. This unique court will hear roughly one-third of all cases submitted to the Nevada Supreme Court in a defunctive model, where the Supreme Court will assign cases to a three-judge Court of Appeals.

Judicial Districts and Judges

Nevada is divided into 11 judicial districts. The numbers and boundaries of those districts are not permanent and have been changed often by the Legislature to suit public convenience or fit the volume of judicial business (most recently during the 2015 Legislative Session). Until a constitutional amendment, ratified in 1976, changed their terms to six years, all district judges served four-year terms (Art. 6, Sec. 5). District judges’ salaries are set by the Legislature and paid by the State. Staff salaries, operating expenses, and facilities are provided by the counties.

Even before Nevada became a state, the judiciary sat in judicial districts. On March 27, 1861, President Abraham Lincoln appointed three justices to the territorial Supreme Court. Laws of Nevada Territory, 1861, Chapter 83, p. 289, created three judicial districts and assigned each of the justices to serve as a trial court judge in a judicial district, “riding the circuits” to sit in each of the county seats during the year. This created an interesting opportunity for conflict where the trial judges also made up the court that heard appeals for disputed cases.

Vacancies are filled by appointment by the Governor from a list of three nominees furnished by the Judicial Selection Commission. Such appointments fill the vacancy until the first Monday in January following the next general election.

Following are names of districts and terms of all district judges of Nevada. Party designation is not attempted as the early records are not clear and the offices are now nonpartisan. Terms are listed from the year the oath of office was taken through the year when the oath was taken by the successor in office, i.e., the first Monday in January of the year following the general election.

District—Counties	Name
No. 1—Storey, Washoe, and Lake	Gordon Newell Mott
No. 2—Ormsby, Douglas, and Esmeralda	George Enoch Turner
No. 3—Lyon, Churchill, and Humboldt	Horatio McClean Jones

Laws of Nevada Territory, 1862, Chapter 135, p. 180, made the following changes in judicial districts and the condition that on March 4, 1863, Jones would assume the first judicial district and Mott the third.

District—Counties	Name
No. 1—Storey, Washoe, and Roop	Gordon Newell Mott (Until March 4, 1863.)
No. 2—Ormsby, Douglas, and Esmeralda	George Enoch Turner
No. 3—Lyon, Churchill, and Humboldt	Horatio McClean Jones (Until March 4, 1863.)

There was no Territorial session in 1863.

District—Counties	Name
No. 1—Storey, Washoe, and Roop	Horatio McClean Jones (Resigned from Supreme Court August 1, 1863; replaced by Powhatan B. Locke, August 31, 1863.)
No. 2—Ormsby, Douglas, and Esmeralda	George Enoch Turner
No. 3—Lyon, Churchill, and Humboldt	Gordon Newell Mott (Resigned from Supreme Court August 11, 1863; replaced by John Wesley North, August 31, 1863.)

Laws of Nevada Territory, 1864, Chapter 38, p. 46, Chapter 102, p. 144 and Chapter 121, p. 156, made the following changes in judicial districts:

District—Counties	Name
No. 1—Storey, Washoe, and Roop	John Wesley North*
No. 2—Ormsby, Douglas, and Esmeralda	George Enoch Turner
No. 3—Lyon, Churchill, Humboldt, Lander, and Nye	Powhatan B. Locke*

*All three resigned from the Supreme Court on August 22, 1864, although apparently Turner and Locke continued their circuit court duties until the newly-elected state judges took office and Turner continued to act as Chief Justice in some capacity.

Article VI, Sec. 5, of the State Constitution, and Statutes of Nevada 1864-1865, Chapter 19, p. 112, created nine judicial districts; No. 1 had three judges, the rest one.

Statutes of Nevada 1866, Chapter 60, p. 139, created eight judicial districts with one judge each. Chapter 48, p. 131, included Lincoln County in the Fifth Judicial District.

No. 8—Esmeralda	Chase, Samuel H.* McClinton, James Giles	1867-1871

*Judge Chase was judicially declared insane May 27, 1869, and the Governor appointed McClinton to fill the vacancy on July 14, but in September the Supreme Court declared there was no vacancy and the appointment was void (State ex rel. O’Neale v. McClinton, 5 Nev. 329). Although officially ousted from office, it appears that McClinton continued to serve through the end of Chase’s term in January 1871.

Statutes of Nevada 1867, Chapter 90, p. 129, removed Lincoln County from the Fifth Judicial District and added it to the newly created Ninth Judicial District.

*Charles A. Leake was elected in 1868, and served until his death in August 1870. John D. Gorin was appointed to succeed him. In November 1870, Mortimer Fuller was elected to succeed Gorin. Lincoln County became District No. 9 while Fuller was judge.

Statutes of Nevada 1869, Chapter 40, p. 86, created eight judicial districts with one judge each, effective January 1871 except in District No. 6. If the Sixth Judicial District judge resigned he automatically became judge of District No. 8, White Pine County, and the Governor was to appoint a judge to District No. 6. This occurred, thus creating two Districts No. 8 until 1871. Chapter 94, p. 153, makes Elko the 11th Judicial District and provides that a judge be elected. There was no District No. 10.

CHAPTER 7: STATE LEGISLATURE

THE NEVADA LEGISLATURE: A BRIEF HISTORY

Updated by VANCE A. HUGHEY

Former Chief Principal Research Analyst, Legislative Counsel Bureau

In 1861, James Nye was appointed by President Abraham Lincoln as the governor of the Territory of Nevada. Exercising the executive authority granted to him under Section 12 of the Organic Act, which had been signed into law by President James Buchanan earlier that year, Governor Nye declared Carson City the site for the First Regular Session of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Nevada. During that first territorial legislative session, which convened on October 1, 1861, action was taken to designate a seat of government for the newly established territory. The legislators chose Carson City, which had been designated the new county seat for Carson County by the Utah Territorial Legislature earlier the same year. (Prior to the creation of the Nevada Territory, the area was part of western Utah Territory.)

The Territory of Nevada was an organized incorporated territory of the United States that existed from March 2, 1861, until October 31, 1864, when Nevada was admitted to the Union. When the members of the Nevada State Constitutional Convention met in July 1864 and discussed, among other matters, the question of where the seat of government of the new State of Nevada was to be located, the delegates agreed to the placement of a provision in the Nevada Constitution designating Carson City as the seat of government. This action reaffirmed the earlier decision by the Legislative Assembly. In spite of occasional suggestions made over the years to move the capital elsewhere, Carson City is the only city in Nevada to have the distinction of serving as the State's capital. Consequently, the Nevada Legislature has always convened its regular and special sessions in Carson City. However, it has not always done so in the same building.

The First Regular Session of the Legislative Assembly, as the territorial legislative body was called, was held at Abraham Curry's Warm Springs Hotel, located east of Carson City where the Nevada State Prison now stands. For nearly two months, beginning in October 1861, Mr. Curry, one of Carson City's principal founders, provided the territorial legislators a rent-free room, divided by a canvas partition separating the Council and House chambers. (It was not until Nevada became a state that these two houses were referred to as the Senate and the Assembly, respectively.) He also provided transportation to downtown Carson City, some 1.5 miles to the west, by a horse-drawn streetcar on wooden rails. As noted in Roughing It, a book of semi-autobiographical travel literature written by American humorist Mark Twain, no one in Carson City had offered to assist the Legislative Assembly:

. . . There is something solemnly funny about the struggles of a new-born Territorial government to get a start in this world. Ours had a trying time of it. The Organic Act and the “instructions” from the State Department commanded that a legislature should be elected at such-and-such a time, and its sittings inaugurated at such-and-such a date. It was easy to get legislators, even at three dollars a day, although board was four dollars and fifty cents, for distinction has its charm in Nevada as well as elsewhere, and there were plenty of patriotic souls out of employment; but to get a legislative hall for them to meet in was another matter altogether. Carson blandly declined to give a room rent-free, or let one to the government on credit.

But when Curry heard of the difficulty, he came forward, solitary and alone, and shouldered the Ship of State over the bar and got her afloat again. I refer to “Curry—Old Curry—Old Abe Curry.” But for him the legislature would have been obliged to sit in the desert. He offered his large stone building just outside the capital limits, rent-free, and it was gladly accepted.

In 1862, when the Second Regular Session of the Legislative Assembly was to convene, Mr. Curry once again came forward to help, but this time he offered to the Legislative Assembly upstairs rooms in the Great Basin Hotel. Located on the west side of Carson Street between King and Musser Streets, this building, like the Warm Springs Hotel, had been constructed by Mr. Curry. The Territory and then the State, beginning in 1864, leased the space and convened legislative sessions there until 1871 when construction of the Capitol, which had begun in 1869, was completed. The Nevada State Legislature first convened in the still-incomplete Capitol for its fourth session from January 4, 1869, to March 4, 1869.

For the next 100 years, from 1871 until 1969, the Legislature met in the State Capitol. By the early 20th Century, the Legislature had outgrown the Capitol, and the Legislature, in 1913, authorized the construction of two new wings, in part to create new chambers for the Senate and the Assembly at opposite ends of the second floor hallway. These wings were completed in time for the 1915 Session, where the Assembly met in the north wing and the Senate met in the south wing.

The tremendous increase in the population of Nevada over the next few decades, particularly during the 1960s, made it obvious that new legislative facilities were necessary, especially facilities for meeting rooms and offices for legislators and staff. In 1967, money was appropriated to construct a separate Legislative Building just south of, and across the mall from, the Capitol. Since 1971, legislative sessions have been held in the Legislative Building. In the mid-1990s, the Legislative Building was renovated and expanded to include a four-story connected addition east of the original building, adding more office space and numerous committee meeting rooms. The building also has been enhanced to accommodate many modern technologies, including videoconferencing and wireless Internet access.

The Nevada Constitution directed that the first session of the Legislature would begin on the second Monday of December 1864, and the second regular session on the first Monday of January 1866. The third regular session, which would be the first of the biennial sessions, commenced on the first Monday of January 1867. In a special election in 1889, the voters approved a constitutional amendment that changed the first day of each session from the first Monday to the third Monday in January. In 1998, Nevada's voters approved a constitutional amendment limiting each regular legislative session to 120 calendar days and changing the first day of session to the first Monday in February.

Regular sessions have been held every odd-numbered year since 1867, except for the regular session held in 1960. In 1958, the voters approved a constitutional amendment providing for annual sessions. Two years later, however, the voters approved an initiative returning to biennial sessions. Therefore, 1960 was the only regular annual session of the Legislature.

In addition to the regular sessions, 30 special sessions have been held. The first special session was convened in 1867 roughly a week after the Third Session of the Legislature adjourned sine die; it lasted 20 days. Nine bills were passed covering a wide variety of topics including taxes, sale of State lands, and public officials. Seven resolutions were passed covering topics such as the Monroe Doctrine, reconstruction measures, Ireland, and claims against the United States government.

Since 2005, the Governor has called the Legislature into special session nine times. The 22nd Special Session was convened at 3:00 a.m. on June 7, 2005, the same day that the 73rd Regular Session of the Nevada Legislature adjourned sine die, to address matters related to the Millennium Scholarship and full-day kindergarten that had not been addressed within the constitutionally mandated 120-day time frame of regular session. The 22nd Special Session adjourned sine die at 12:44 p.m. on June 7, 2005.

Other special sessions since 2005 have addressed, among other things, issues such as education funding, revenue shortfalls in the State General Fund, taxation, economic development, and class-size reduction. The three most recent special sessions convened in 2014, 2015, and 2016.

The 28th Special Session began on September 10, 2014, and ended on September 11, 2014. Governor Brian Sandoval called the special session to expand incentives for certain businesses to locate to Nevada in alignment with Nevada's economic development policy (Tesla Motors), revise provisions concerning the Economic Development Electric Rate Rider Program, limit the availability of certain insurance premium tax credits, and provide for the direct sale of electric vehicles by manufacturers in certain instances.

The 29th Special Session began on December 16, 2015, and ended on December 19, 2015. Governor Sandoval called the special session to provide incentives for certain businesses to locate to Nevada in alignment with the State's economic development plan (Faraday Future), revise provisions concerning workforce development programs, and address associated water rights applications and water service.

The 30th Special Session began on October 10, 2016, and adjourned sine die on October 14, 2016. Governor Sandoval called the special session to consider imposing a lodging tax to finance the expansion and the renovation of the Las Vegas Convention Center; provide a method to finance the construction and the operations of a National Football League stadium project or a college football stadium project in Clark County and create a Public Stadium Authority Board to manage the operations of such a facility; and authorize the Clark County Board of Commissioners to increase the sales and use tax in order to employ and equip additional law enforcement officers within Clark County.

Under the original Nevada Constitution, a special session could only be called by the Governor. At the 2006 General Election, Nevada's voters were asked to consider a proposed constitutional amendment to, among other things, change the provisions regarding special sessions of the Legislature to provide that a special session may be convened by a petition signed by two-thirds of the legislators of each house. The voters rejected the proposal in a relatively close contest (52.4 percent opposed and 47.6 percent in favor). However, in 2009, the Legislature passed Assembly Joint Resolution No. 5 (File No. 92, Statutes of Nevada), which, among other things, provided that a special session may be convened by a petition signed by two-thirds of the legislators of each house. The measure was passed again, in identical form, during the 2011 Session and placed on the ballot for consideration by the voters at the general election held in 2012. This time, the voters approved the ballot question by a margin of 54 percent to 46 percent.

Originally, the Nevada Constitution called for regular sessions to be no more than 60 days in length, and the first few legislatures remained within this time frame. In fact, no session during the 1890s exceeded 55 days. However, all but five sessions during the 20th century continued for more than 60 days. From 1909 to 1957, the sessions were officially recorded as 60 days long, even though they actually extended beyond 60 days. During these sessions, if it was determined that legislative business could not be completed by the 60th day, the Legislature would "cover the clock" and proceed as if the 60th day consisted of whatever number of hours were needed for the Legislature to complete its business. In 1958, the voters removed this limitation from the Constitution, allowing sessions to continue as long as was necessary. This amendment, while it tacitly authorized increasing the length of sessions, limited legislators' salaries to 60 days. After that period has expired, members receive per diem, but no salary.

The length of each regular session steadily increased between 1965 and 1997. From 1989 through 1997, sessions were no less than 161 calendar days—an almost threefold increase over the original length—with the longest sessions occurring in 1995 and 1997 at 169 days. These prolonged sessions generated interest among some legislators for a return to annual sessions. During almost every session since at least 1967, resolutions to amend the Constitution to provide annual sessions have either been introduced or considered, but none ultimately have been successful. Legislative records indicate that there was no formal consideration of annual sessions during the 1981, 2005, or 2007 Legislative Sessions. The effort that came closest to succeeding began in 1967 with the passage of Senate Joint Resolution No. 9 (File No. 107, Statutes of Nevada). The measure was returned to the 1969 Session where it again was passed. It was then placed on the ballot in 1970 as Question No. 5, where the voters rejected the proposal for annual sessions by a two to one margin (66.2 percent opposed and 33.8 percent in favor).

While efforts to reestablish annual sessions have been unsuccessful, the Legislature did approve Senate Joint Resolution No. 3 (File No. 104, Statutes of Nevada) of the 68th Session in 1995 and again in 1997, to establish a constitutional 120-day limit on legislative sessions. As noted above, the voters approved this constitutional amendment in 1998.

Terms of office are four years for members of the Senate and two years for members of the Assembly. An initiative proposal approved in the mid-1990s set a maximum of three terms for members of the Senate and six terms for members of the Assembly—a total of 12 years in each house. The Legislature is the judge of its own membership and may seat or unseat whomever it chooses. Over the years, the body has removed only one member and has censured few. In 2013, Assemblyman Steven Brooks was expelled from the Legislature for unpredictable behavior that included missing meetings and calling news conferences he never showed up for, as well as alleged threats against his colleagues that made them feel unsafe.

As Nevada has grown, the State Legislature has changed. During the first sessions, few bills were printed and legislators had to rely on a reading of each bill. Over time, legislators, staff, and the general public have been able to obtain printed bills and amendments quickly; huge bill books have been a common sight on each legislator's desk. For decades, for each bill on General File, the members voted by voice response to an alphabetical roll call. In 1973, the Legislature added voting machines with a display board that allowed for simultaneous electronic voting. Beginning in 1997, the Legislature utilized computers more fully. Today, each member is issued a laptop computer that provides a wide range of instantaneous electronic information, including bill text, budget information, fiscal notes, committee minutes, live audio and video feeds of committee meetings, agendas, and more—all at the touch of a finger.

Committees and staff support have also changed over the years. Early legislatures created numerous committees—for example, the First Session's Senate had 22 standing committees on December 15, 1864, and added 2 more committees six days later for a total of 24. The Assembly that year had 21 standing committees. In 1949, the Senate had 28 committees and the Assembly had 44 committees—but they rarely met. When they did meet, it was usually at a legislator's desk, in a small closet in the Capitol, or, perhaps, at a nearby tavern. By comparison, in 2015, each house had just 10 standing committees. These days, legislative committees operate according to specific procedural rules, and often meet simultaneously in Carson City and Las Vegas via videoconferencing. On occasion, arrangements have even been made for interested parties and witnesses to testify via videoconferencing from other parts of Nevada and from other states.

In the early years, there were no posted agendas and no periods for public testimony. There were no secretaries to take the minutes, no lawyers to draft bills, and no researchers to provide background information. In 1945, in response to the growing complexity of legislative business, the Legislative Counsel Bureau (LCB) was created and charged with assisting the Legislature in finding facts concerning government, proposed legislation, and various other public policy matters. Also in 1945, the Legislature established the Legislative Commission to exercise general authority over legislative issues that arise between sessions and to supervise the LCB.

In 1963, the Legislature reorganized the LCB, giving it the structure and responsibilities similar to those it has today. Nine years later, the Interim Finance Committee was added to administer a contingency fund for State agencies between sessions. Nevada's LCB—consisting of the Administrative, Audit, Fiscal Analysis, Legal, and Research Divisions—is a nonpartisan centralized agency that serves both houses and members of all political parties. Around 1971, the Research Library was established to serve as an additional resource for legislators, LCB staff, other State and local government agencies, and the general public. It serves as a repository of many of the Legislature's legacy documents, including Nevada Revised Statutes, Statutes of Nevada, various studies and reports, legislative histories, as well as minutes of legislative meetings. In 1999, the Research Division created a Constituent Services Unit to assist legislators in responding to a wide range of constituent questions and requests. Today, the Legislature is supported by a highly educated, well-trained staff including auditors, economists, lawyers, librarians, researchers, and technicians.

The Nevada Legislature has come a long way from the First Session (1864-1865) that met for 90 days and approved 147 bills out of 647 introduced. That session was conducted in a makeshift space for which both heat and furniture had to be found. The 2015 Session, 151 years later, met in a 190,000 square foot building that is well equipped to conduct legislative business. A total of 1,013 new bills—498 from the Assembly and 515 from the Senate—were considered. Additionally, 2 initiative petitions were considered, and 14 vetoed bills were returned from the 2013 Regular Session for possible reconsideration. Of these bills and initiative petitions, 556 bills were approved. The Governor vetoed 7 bills, all of which will be returned to the 2017 Session for possible veto overrides. The Governor signed all of the remaining bills; therefore, 549 bills became law.

That may seem like a lot of new laws, and perhaps it is, but a lot has changed since the days when Orion Clemens, Mark Twain's (a.k.a. Samuel Clemens) older brother, served as the first and only Secretary of the Nevada Territory. The population of Nevada has increased significantly and the complexity of life has increased as well. Fortunately, the Nevada Legislature has changed, and in recent years it has done so in a manner that takes advantage of available technology to provide easy public access to the legislative process and access to information heretofore only available in musty archives. Whether a person resides in the capital city of Carson City, one of the major urban centers of Clark or Washoe Counties, or one of the more rural areas of Nevada, the Legislature continues to serve residents of this State as it has for more than a century and a half.

Information presented in this section initially was derived from historical documents contained in the Research Library of the Legislative Counsel Bureau, with assistance by Guy Rocha, Former State Archivist. The term of office of a legislator begins on the day following his or her general election victory and ends on the day of the general election defeat or retirement from office.

CONVENTION OF 1933

HON. ALBERT L. SCOTT, Chairman
 HON. LILLIE B. CLINEDINST, Secretary

The Nevada “Repeal Convention” was held in the Assembly Chamber, Carson City, on September 5, 1933, under authorization of Chapter 179, Statutes of Nevada 1933. The statute called for county conventions to elect delegates, equaling the number of Assemblymen, to a State convention for the purpose of ratifying or rejecting the Twenty-First Amendment to the United States Constitution. The Amendment, which was to end Prohibition and its ban on alcoholic beverages, was ratified by a vote of: ayes, 39; nays, 0; absent, 1. On December 5, 1933, it was certified as a part of the U.S. Constitution by Acting U.S. Secretary of State William Phillips.

This procedure of ratification by convention was unique. All other amendments to the U.S. Constitution have been ratified by the legislatures of the several states.

<sup>2</sup>After election recount, incumbent Arthur Espinoza (D) had 2,088 votes to Smith's 2,072. Smith contested the election of Espinoza based on a faulty voting machine in the City of Henderson. An Assembly special committee verified that 62 people had voted for Smith on the faulty machine but that only 8 of those votes were recorded. On January 26, 1971, the Assembly unanimously accepted the committee's report; Espinoza conceded the election and Smith was seated.

FOURTEENTH SPECIAL SESSION—1980

The special session of 1980 began and ended on Saturday, September 13. This session lasted just over four hours, making it the second shortest legislative session in Nevada's history. Membership and officers were the same as in the 1979 Regular Session.

Governor Robert List called the special session to consider an amendment to the bi-state Tahoe Regional Planning Compact. The amendment was actually a major redraft of the bi-state compact between Nevada and California that originally had been approved in 1969.

Governor Kenny Guinn called the special session to approve redistricting plans required by law for the State of Nevada, and to reconsider matters within legislation approved during the 71st Regular Session between 12 a.m. and 1 a.m. on June 5, 2001.

EIGHTEENTH SPECIAL SESSION—2002

The special session of 2002 began on Monday, July 29, and ended on Thursday, August 1. Membership and officers were the same as those in the 2001 Regular Session with the following exceptions: Christine A. Milburn in place of Jon C. Porter, and Jesse C. Paulk in place of Mark A. James in the Senate.

Governor Kenny Guinn called the special session to consider legislation relating to medical malpractice insurance and the consideration of a cap on the amount a person can receive for damages in a malpractice action in the State of Nevada.

NINETEENTH SPECIAL SESSION—2003

The first special session of 2003 began on Tuesday, June 3, and ended on Thursday, June 12. Membership and officers were the same as those in the 2003 Regular Session.

Agreement of a tax plan to fund education and the general budget was not achieved by the last day of the 2003 regular session. Therefore, Governor Kenny Guinn immediately called a special session to consider the issue and to develop a tax plan sufficient to meet all the appropriations and other spending measures that were passed during the 72nd Session of the Nevada Legislature. A bill regarding the federal No Child Left Behind Act was approved. An impasse on budget and taxation matters resulted in the Governor dissolving the 19th Special Session—a first in Nevada history.

TWENTIETH SPECIAL SESSION—2003

The second special session of 2003 began on Wednesday, June 25, and ended on Tuesday, July 22, making it the longest special session (27 days) in Nevada history. Membership and officers were the same as those in the 2003 Regular Session.

Governor Kenny Guinn called the special session as an extension of the 19th Special Session when legislators were not able to reach consensus on a tax plan sufficient to meet all the appropriations and other spending measures passed during the 72nd Session of the Nevada Legislature. A final tax plan, a technical corrections bill, and other measures concerning business activities, gaming, and motor vehicle dealers were approved.

TWENTY-FIRST SPECIAL SESSION—2004

The special session of 2004 began on Wednesday, November 10, and ended on Saturday, December 4. Since the special session took place after the 2004 General Election, membership was the same as that in the 2005 Regular Session. Officers of the 21st Special Session were the same as those in the 2003 Regular Session with the following exception: Bernie Anderson as Speaker Pro Tempore in place of Wendell P. Williams.

Governor Kenny Guinn called the special session to consider all matters relating to the impeachment proceedings concerning State Controller Kathy Augustine. This was the first time the Nevada State Legislature considered impeachment proceedings. On November 11, 2004, the Assembly adopted three Articles of Impeachment. Controller Augustine pleaded not guilty to these Articles on November 29, 2004, resulting in several days of hearings by the Senate. On December 4, 2004, the Senate voted to dismiss the first Article of Impeachment and “not sustain” the second Article. The Senate “sustained” the third Article and approved Senate Resolution No. 5 (File No. 10, Statutes of Nevada 2004, 21st Special Session), censuring State Controller Augustine. During the 21st Special Session, the Legislature actually met on only 8 legislative days during the 25-day period.

CHAPTER 8: LEGISLATIVE REDISTRICTING

LEGISLATIVE REDISTRICTING

By BRIAN L. DAVIE

Former Legislative Services Officer, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Updated by MICHAEL J. STEWART

Deputy Research Director, Legislative Counsel Bureau

Since statehood in 1864, several original provisions in the Nevada Constitution have governed the composition of the Legislature. Article 15, Section 6 provides that “[t]he aggregate number of members of both branches of the Legislature shall never exceed seventy-five.” Article 4, Section 5 states, in part, that “. . . the number of Senators shall not be less than one-third nor more than one-half of that of the members of the Assembly.”

The first Nevada Legislature consisted of 54 members—18 Senators and 36 Assembly Members. From 1864 until 1919, the composition of the Legislature was changed 16 times—ranging from a low of 45 members (15 Senators and 30 Assembly Members) from 1893 through 1899 to the maximum of 75 members from 1875 through 1879 (25 Senators and 50 Assembly Members) and 1913 through 1915 (22 Senators and 53 Assembly Members). Many of these changes likely resulted from population increases and decreases due to “boom and bust” cycles in the mining industry and other factors throughout the State.

Two other original provisions of the Nevada Constitution provide for representation based on population for both houses of the State Legislature. Article 1, Section 13 states that “[r]epresentation shall be apportioned according to population.” Article 15, Section 13 provides that the federal decennial census “. . . shall serve as the basis of representation in both houses of the legislature.”

These constitutional provisions were routinely ignored over the years. From 1919 to 1965, the Senate was apportioned on the basis of 1 Senator from each county, and the Assembly also had at least 1 representative from each county. Throughout this period, the Nevada Senate consisted of 17 members, and the Assembly changed from 37 members in 1919 to 40 in 1931, 41 in 1945, 43 in 1947, 47 in 1951, and back to 37 members in 1961.

Article 4, Section 5 of the Nevada Constitution was extensively amended in 1950 to conform to the redistricting practice in effect since 1919. Provisions were added for equal representation of counties in the Senate, at least 1 seat for each county in the Assembly, and mandatory reapportionment of the Legislature after each decennial census. This amendment was made, however, without changing the other two original constitutional provisions that provided for representation based on population for both houses of the Legislature. These conflicting provisions remained in the Nevada Constitution until 1970.

Major Changes in the 1960s

The 1961 legislative reapportionment—based on the 1960 Decennial Census—required a drastic realignment of representation to account for the State’s rapid growth and the increased concentration of population in Clark and Washoe Counties. While the Senate remained under the “little federalism” model with 1 Senator for each of the State’s 17 counties, it became evident that only a reduction in the overall size of the Assembly would assure the best ratio of representation for the smaller counties. Therefore, a reapportionment act was adopted in 1961 to reduce the Assembly from 47 to 37 members.

Clark and Washoe Counties were given 21 Assembly Members (12 and 9 respectively), or about 57 percent of the Assembly, even though they contained about 75 percent of the State’s population at that time. The 1961 reapportionment did not accomplish a redistricting that closely reflected population, but it indicated the Legislature’s recognition that population-based apportionment was becoming a crucial, nationwide issue.

When the United States Supreme Court entered the “political thicket” of reapportionment with its landmark decisions in cases such as Baker v. Carr in 1962 and Reynolds v. Sims in 1964, the effects were felt throughout the country, including in Nevada. Following the Reynolds decision, Flora Dungan, a Democratic member of the Assembly from Clark County who served during the 1963 and 1967 Legislative Sessions, and Clare W. Woodbury, M.D., another Clark County resident, filed suit in federal district court to challenge Nevada’s apportionment scheme. With the Legislature scheduled to meet in January 1965, the court ordered the convening of a three-judge panel in June 1965 if the Legislature failed to act in the regular session to adopt a reapportionment plan under the “one man, one vote” guidelines.

The 1965 Nevada Legislature adjourned without taking appropriate action. Six measures relating to reapportionment were introduced, but only one was passed—a resolution, similar to those passed by many other state legislatures, asking Congress to propose an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to allow one house of a state legislature to be apportioned on factors other than population. Such an amendment was introduced in Congress but was defeated in the U.S. Senate.

Therefore, the federal court heard the case of Dungan v. Sawyer and found Nevada's apportionment scheme to be invidiously discriminatory and unconstitutional. The court noted the failure to act by the 1965 Legislature and cited various population disparities. Among other things, it pointed out that fewer than 8 percent of the State's population controlled more than 50 percent of the Senate. The court ordered Governor Grant Sawyer to call a special session for reapportionment and set a deadline for the submission of a constitutionally valid plan.

The 1965 Special Session was convened on October 25 and adjourned on November 13, 1965. The session was characterized by anger, attacks on the U.S. Supreme Court, hostility, and dismay. At least 20 plans were introduced to reapportion the State, and a final plan was adopted, which created numerous multi-member districts in both houses and increased each chamber by 3 seats—20 members elected from 13 districts in the Senate and 40 members elected from 16 districts in the Assembly. In the Senate, Clark County had 8 members; Washoe-Storey Counties, 6 members; and the rural counties, 6 members. The Assembly had 16 members from Clark County, 12 from Washoe-Storey Counties, and 12 from the rural counties.

On March 21, 1966, the three-judge panel of the federal district court reluctantly ruled that the adopted plan was constitutional and approved. The court noted that the greatest variation from the average district population in the Senate plan was 21.2 percent and that 49.7 percent of the population was required to elect a majority of Senators. The greatest variation in the Assembly plan was 22.4 percent, and 46.8 percent of the population was required to elect a majority of Assembly Members.

The court was not particularly concerned about the maximum deviations since they were caused by one small county district in each house. The plan was approved on the basis of other statistical tests, such as the population majorities and variance ratios, which just came within the limits established by previous court cases in the nation. The court noted, however, that the adopted reapportionment plan “. . . is not the fairest and best plan that the Nevada Legislature could possibly enact.”

Greater Acceptance in the 1970s

Redistricting in the 1971 Session of the Nevada Legislature was characterized by greater acceptance of population-based apportionment and the establishment of single-member districts in the Assembly. The primary advocate of single-member districts was Frank Young—a three-term Republican Assemblyman from Clark County—who is credited with accomplishing this change through careful preparation, energetic campaigning among his colleagues, and parliamentary skill.

The Senate resisted this change and retained multi-member districts largely because that system protected incumbents in both Las Vegas and Reno who lived in close proximity to each other. Incumbent protection was another major characteristic of the 1971 redistricting effort. Under the new single-member district system in the Assembly, this factor resulted in some odd boundaries that were reminiscent of the more traditional partisan gerrymander.

The 1971 redistricting plan retained the same composition of the two houses—20 members in the Senate and 40 in the Assembly. For the first time, however, Clark County gained majority representation in both houses. Clark County had 11 Senators and 22 Assembly Members; Washoe County had 5 Senators and 10 Assembly Members; and the rural counties were reduced to 4 Senators and 8 Assembly Members.

While the 1971 redistricting plan more closely reflected the State's population distribution, it contained some large disparities. The greatest ratio of disparity between the largest and smallest districts was 28 percent in the Senate and 38 percent in the Assembly. These disparities and the retention of multi-member districting in the Senate resulted in further lawsuits.

Two court cases were filed—Stewart v. O'Callaghan and Millsbaugh v. O'Callaghan. They were consolidated by the U.S. District Court because they dealt with the same issues. The case was heard in December 1971, and a decision was rendered on May 18, 1972. The court noted the unique demographic and geographic problems between the rural and urban areas of the State and essentially upheld the plan. A correction was ordered to be made between two Assembly districts that resulted from a staff error in the allocation of population. In addition, the court ordered the 1973 Session of the Nevada Legislature to correct population deviations among five rural Assembly districts and two rural Senate districts it found to be beyond tolerable limits.

The court also upheld the use of multi-member districts in the Senate, indicating that they are not inherently unconstitutional unless it is shown that they “. . . operate to dilute or cancel the voting strength of any segment of political grouping.”

The 1973 Session made the appropriate adjustments to the rural districts. The largest ratios of disparity consequently were reduced to 17.6 percent in the Senate and 21 percent in the Assembly.

Lack of Conflict in the 1980s

In contrast to the earlier redistricting efforts, the 1981 reapportionment of the Nevada Legislature was relatively free of conflict. Key legislators from the major urban and rural areas worked with their colleagues to resolve differences between district boundaries. The politics of incumbency again was the major factor in the development of plans. No court challenges were discussed or filed pertaining to any of the redistricting plans adopted by the 1981 Nevada Legislature.

General agreement occurred early in the session to increase the size of the Legislature by 1 Senate and 2 Assembly seats—to a total of 21 and 42, respectively—to account for population growth in Clark County. The Senate made a determined and successful effort to limit multi-member districts to no more than 2 members, in contrast to the 1971 redistricting which included one 7-member Senate district in Clark County.

The final plan resulted in 12 Senate and 24 Assembly seats in Clark County, 5 Senate and 10 Assembly seats in Washoe County, and 4 Senate and 8 Assembly seats in the remainder of the State. With only a couple minor exceptions, each Senate district comprised two Assembly districts. The greatest ratios of disparity between the largest and smallest districts were 8.5 percent for the Senate and 10.2 percent for the Assembly.

Computers and Controversy in the 1990s

The redistricting of the Senate and Assembly in the 1991 Nevada Legislature was controversial with partisan and regional concerns. The margin between the majority Democrats and minority Republicans in both houses was close enough under the circumstances to preclude one party from adopting its own plan without making compromises. Although controversy existed over proposals in almost all areas of the State, some of the most difficult and serious redistricting problems were focused on Washoe County, which had to deal with the loss of 1 Senate and 2 Assembly seats to Clark County due to population growth disparities. In addition, the redistricting task became increasingly sophisticated with increased data provided from the census, the advent of computer mapping techniques, and the development of a computer redistricting application.

The plan adopted by the 1991 Session retained the existing aggregate number of 63 members in the Senate (21) and Assembly (42). The overall range of deviation for the 42 single-member Assembly districts was 4.55 percent, and the range for the 16 Senate districts (11 single-member and 5 multi-member) was 2.6 percent. Under this plan, for the first time, all Senate districts in the State outside of Clark County were single-member districts. In Clark County, 5 of the 8 Senate districts were multi-member (two-member) districts. The 1991 plan provided for 13 Senators and 26 Assembly Members from Clark County, 4 Senators and 8 Assembly Members to serve most of Washoe County, and 4 Senators and 8 Assembly Members to represent the remainder of the State and a portion of southern Washoe County.

In contrast with previous redistricting plans in Nevada, only 6 of the 16 Senate districts were completely nested, or coterminous, with the boundaries of Assembly districts. Of the nested districts, 3 were in Clark County, 2 were in rural Nevada, and 1 was in Washoe County. Of the 10 Senate districts that were not completely nested with Assembly districts, 5 were in Clark County, 3 were in Washoe County, and 2 were in western Nevada.

Of the 42 Assembly districts, 26 were nested completely within the boundaries of a Senate district (14 were in completely nested Senate districts, and 12 were in non-nested districts). Portions of the remaining 16 districts were allocated among 2 or more Senate districts.

Growth and Challenges as Nevada Enters the 21st Century

The redistricting task of the 2001 Legislature was particularly challenging due to several factors including population growth, communities of interest, and split party control between the two houses. As shown by the 2000 Census, Nevada experienced astounding population growth during the 1990s. The State grew by nearly 800,000 residents during the decade—an increase of 66.27 percent. The population of Clark County alone grew by almost 635,000 people, resulting in Clark County representing 68.85 percent of the Nevada's total population by 2001.

The Legislature also considered changes that would affect certain communities of interest. For example, the population of Nevada's Hispanic community more than tripled during the 1990s to nearly 20 percent of State's total population. Also, faster population growth in the urban parts of the State, particularly in Clark County, resulted in fewer legislative districts in rural Nevada, where four counties actually decreased in population.

In addition, Democrats controlled the Assembly and Republicans had the majority in the Senate, so compromise was an essential and difficult part of the process. Each house concentrated on developing the boundaries of its respective legislative districts. Therefore, the redistricting plan did not incorporate nesting of the Senate and Assembly districts. Debate continued throughout the session on whether to add seats, and the size of the Legislature was not settled until late in the process.

Due primarily to controversy over the composition of the new, third congressional district, the Legislature was not able to conclude redistricting during the 120-day regular session. As a result, Governor Kenny Guinn called a special session in the week following the close of the regular session for the purposes of finishing redistricting and addressing a handful of other specific topics.

The plan adopted in the 2001 Special Session preserved the size of the body at 63 members—21 in the Senate and 42 in the Assembly. The overall range of deviation for the 42 single-member Assembly districts was 1.97 percent, with an average population per district of 47,578 persons, while the deviation for the 19 Senate districts (17 single-member and 2 two-member) was 9.91 percent, with an average population of 95,155 residents. The Senate continued its recent trend toward reducing the number of two-member districts in Clark County from five to two in the 2001 plan.

The Senate plan shifted 1 seat from northern Nevada to Clark County to adjust for greater population growth in southern Nevada. The plan consisted of 12 Senate districts (14 seats) wholly within Clark County, 5 districts in Washoe County and other more urbanized parts of western Nevada, and 2 rural districts. The Central Nevada Senatorial District consisted of all of Churchill, Esmeralda, and Mineral Counties, portions of Douglas, Lyon, and Nye Counties, and a portion of northern Clark County. The even larger Rural Nevada Senatorial District made up about two-thirds of the land area of the State and was larger than 34 U.S. states.

The Assembly plan shifted 3 different seats from northern and rural Nevada to Clark County to adjust for greater population growth in the south. The plan established 29 Assembly districts wholly within Clark County, 6 districts entirely within Washoe County, and 7 districts that included the remaining counties in the State, some of which contained less populated parts of Washoe County.

Minor boundary revisions to certain legislative districts were made in the 2003 Legislative Session to reduce the need for many mail-only precincts in Clark and Washoe Counties and Carson City. These changes only affected certain precincts where 50 or fewer persons resided.

To the Courts in 2011

The redistricting task of the Nevada Legislature, following the 2010 Census, was particularly complex and challenging during the 2011 Session due to its inherent political nature and the State's significant and diverse population growth.

Major Factors—In the 2010 General Election, Nevada's voters elected a Republican governor who also was the State's first governor of Hispanic origin. Both houses of the Legislature were controlled by the Democrats and, unlike in the 2009 Session, the membership margins between the two major political parties were closer and neither house had a veto-proof majority.

Despite some minor population declines in the last three years of the decade, Nevada grew by over 700,000 residents—an increase of 35.1 percent.

Clark County alone grew by over 575,000 people to represent 72.3 percent of the total State population. With legislators facing significant budget and revenue constraints, there appeared to be little desire to increase the size of the Legislature, which meant a greater percentage of Senate and Assembly districts would shift to southern Nevada to account for the notable population growth in Clark County.

The increased influence of communities of interest also had an impact on the redistricting process. For example, the population of Nevada's Hispanic community more than tripled during the 1990s and nearly doubled throughout the first decade of the 2000s. Persons of Hispanic or Latino origin comprised more than 26.5 percent of Nevada's total population in the 2010 Census.

Legislative Activity—At public hearings both before and during the 2011 Session, the Legislature heard from dozens of parties regarding the redistricting process. To facilitate public involvement and understanding of the process, the Legislature provided public work stations for mapping in both its Carson City and Las Vegas offices and included comprehensive information on its website, which featured a dedicated reapportionment and redistricting webpage for fact sheets, historical data, informational items, meeting announcements, reports, and submitted plans.

The Nevada Legislature, however, was unable to complete the legislative and congressional redistricting process during the 120-day regular session. Two redistricting measures, Senate Bill 497 and Assembly Bill 566, were approved by the Legislature, generally on party-line votes, on May 10 and May 25, 2011, respectively. Both bills were vetoed by the Governor and returned to the Legislature. No attempts were made to override or sustain those vetoes during the regular session. When Governor Brian Sandoval indicated that he would not call the Legislature into special session for redistricting, the task fell to the courts. Apparently anticipating such an outcome, both major political parties had filed lawsuits early in the process in Nevada's First Judicial District Court in Carson City.

Special Masters—Following a number of judicial briefs, motions, hearings, and pleas, District Court Judge James T. Russell, in the First Judicial District case, Guy et al., v. Miller, appointed three Special Masters to accomplish redistricting. The court-appointed Special Masters were: Thomas R. Sheets, an attorney with a private law firm in Las Vegas who had various, previous governmental experience and appointments; Alan H. Glover, the elected County Clerk/Recorder for Carson City; and Robert E. Erickson, the retired Director of the Research Division of the Legislative Counsel Bureau (LCB). Technical assistance to provide demographic information and computer program assistance were requested of and furnished by certain employees of the LCB.

The court's order on redistricting to the Special Masters, among other things, established strict criteria including precisely equal population for the congressional districts; and for the legislative districts, not more than a 2 percent deviation for any district with a goal to have 0.05 percent deviation or less. Other specified criteria included compact and contiguous districts (no irregular shapes), consideration of communities of interest, and the boundaries of political subdivisions, avoiding contests between incumbents, and the nesting of Assembly districts within Senate district boundaries.

As directed by the court, the Special Masters held public hearings in Las Vegas and Carson City on October 10 and October 11, 2011, respectively. Their report and completed plans were submitted to the District Judge on October 14, 2011. Following certain changes requested by the court and accomplished by the Special Masters, an order adopting and approving the Special Masters' report and redistricting maps as modified by the court was filed on October 27, 2011. An addendum to the October 27 order to facilitate the transitional period was filed on December 8, 2011. When no appeals were filed to these court orders, they and their redistricting plans were considered to be adopted.

Characteristics of Plans—Due to the State's population growth, Nevada was apportioned another representative in the United States Congress. The Special Masters created a four-district congressional plan that deviates from the ideal population of 675,138 by only one person in one district. The plan establishes four distinct geographical districts as follows: northern Nevada (No. 2), central Nevada and northern Clark County (No. 4), Las Vegas Valley urban core (No. 1), and southern Clark County (No. 3). The urban core district includes a Hispanic or Latino population of almost 43 percent. Except for Clark County, Lyon is the only county that is divided in the congressional plan (between Districts Nos. 2 and 4).

The Special Masters' legislative plans retain the size of the body at a total of 63 members, with 21 Senators and 42 Assembly Members. For the first time in Nevada's redistricting history, all districts in both houses are single-member and two Assembly districts are perfectly nested within each Senate district. The overall range of deviation for the Senate districts is 0.8 percent, with an ideal population per district of 128,598 persons, and the deviation for the Assembly districts is 1.33 percent, with an average population of 64,299 residents.

The plans shift 1 Senate seat and essentially 3 Assembly seats from northern Nevada to Clark County to adjust for greater population growth in southern Nevada. The Senate plan consists of 15 districts wholly within Clark County, 4 districts in the Washoe County/Carson City area—1 of which includes 5 counties in western Nevada—and 2 rural districts. One rural district, which includes over 37,000 square miles, consists of Churchill, Douglas, Lyon, and Storey Counties. The other rural district, which encompasses over 60,000 square miles, consists of Elko, Eureka, Lincoln, White Pine, and parts of Nye and northern Clark Counties.

The Assembly plan includes 30 districts wholly within Clark County, 8 districts in the Washoe County/Carson City/western Nevada area, and 4 Assembly districts within the 2 rural Senate districts.

Minority populations have significant influence in a number of legislative districts. Five Senate and nine Assembly districts have majority or substantial percentages (40 percent or more) of Hispanic or Latino population, ranging from 40 to 68 percent. Two Senate and four Assembly districts have significant percentages of Black or African American population, ranging from 19 to 31 percent. And, two Senate and five Assembly districts have significant percentages of Asian population, ranging from 17 to 26 percent.

The following tables demonstrate the increasing size of legislative districts and the development of population equality over the past five decades among State legislative districts through redistricting.

CHAPTER 9: ELECTION RESULTS

STATE ELECTIONS

Over the course of Nevada's history, the State has remained fairly balanced in its political leanings. In 39 presidential campaigns, the Republican candidate won the State 21 times, the Democrat nominee 17 times, and the Populist Party contender once. In 31 of those presidential races, Nevada backed the eventual winner. Of 25 U.S. Senators to serve Nevada in Washington, D.C., 12 have been Democrats and 13 Republicans, with 2 of those Republican Senators also being elected as a member of the Silver Party as well. Nevada has been represented by 38 Congressmen or Congresswomen, 20 Republicans, 18 Democrats, 3 of which may have run as a member of the Silver-Democrat Party. Thirty men have held the position of Governor in Nevada: 14 Republicans, 11 Democrats, and 2 each from the Silver and Silver-Democrat parties (NOTE: James W. Nye served as acting Governor of Nevada without party affiliation before the State's first election in 1864).

PRIMARY ELECTIONS IN NEVADA

The "direct primary system," as adopted by the Legislature of 1909 (Chapter 294, Nevada Revised Statutes), is a method of selecting party candidates by direct action of the voters. The system does not affect independent candidates who, as always, may enter the elections by petition. Primary elections are held on the first Tuesday in September prior to the general elections. The returns on all State primaries to date are listed before the results of general elections.

ELECTION RESULTS:
GENERAL AND SPECIAL ELECTION RESULTS, 1864-2016
WITH PRIMARY ELECTION RESULTS, 1910-2016

The “Margin of Victory” columns in the following tables show the number of votes by which the prevailing candidates won election. In certain races, more than one candidate can secure an office. In those instances, the margin of victory of each winning candidate is calculated by determining the difference between the number of votes for that candidate and the number of votes received by the person among the losing candidates who had the highest number of votes. Where a candidate ran unopposed, no margin of victory is shown.

Since the 1976 elections, voters in Nevada have had the option to vote for “None of these candidates” for any statewide office or for President and Vice President of the United States. Only votes cast for the named candidates are counted in determining nomination or election to these offices (see Nevada Revised Statutes [NRS] 293.269), and in calculating the margin of victory.

Apparently, the foregoing amendments were submitted by mistake in some counties, as none of the three had (in 1878) passed the Legislature twice, as required by the Constitution. The first two passed the 1877 and 1879 Sessions and finally were approved at the 1880 election. The third passed the 1875 Session but was lost at the 1877 Session.

<sup>3</sup>An initiative measure which repeatedly came before the Legislature. It involved the question of public school financing. The 1955 Legislative Session did not adopt the initiative petition but took from the petition the salient provisions in regard to public school financing as recommended in the "Peabody Report," and enacted those provisions into law. Later it was discovered that, by reason of certain bond provision defects in the amendments to the public school laws enacted in 1955, it would be necessary to hold a special session of the Legislature to remedy those defects. Accordingly, the Governor called a special session of the Legislature which convened in February 1956. At that special session an entirely new school code was enacted, which again embodied the salient provisions of this initiative measure. The initiative petition nevertheless, under the law, had to appear on the ballot.

<sup>4</sup>Proposed amendment of Article 11, Sec. 1, of the Constitution, making the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction an appointive office rather than an elective office. Also, would authorize the Legislature to prescribe the manner of appointment, the term of office, and duties of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

<sup>6</sup>Proposed amendment of the ordinance of the Constitution. The amendment authorizes the Legislature to tax government property, if Congress should so provide.

<sup>7</sup>Proposed amendment of Article 9, Sec. 2, of the Constitution, preventing any moneys collected by the Nevada Industrial Commission from being used in any other manner or for any other purpose than those specified.

<sup>8</sup>A referendum measure to retain or repeal the Sales and Use Tax Act. A "yes" vote retains, a "no" vote repeals.
