While you were out

Turns out that we can get a lot done, even when most people are working from home.

We've made some improvements, cleaned up well, and are excited to welcome you back.

Hudson Square Welcomes You Back

There's a lot to discover—or rediscover in Hudson Square.

Returning to the office, reimagining your old routines, and reconnecting with colleagues—spending time in Hudson Square is a great experience thanks to improvements to streets and sidewalks, more public art, and lots of outdoor dining options. Plus there's an improved cycling network, so getting here is easier and safer.

Cycling to Work

With numerous bike paths and more options for bike parking, biking to Hudson Square has never been easier.

More Bike Parking

Using your own bike has become easier. With the addition of 44 new bike racks throughout the neighborhood, there are now more than 110 locations throughout Hudson Square.

Increased Citi Bike Footprint

New docks added on Spring + Hudson streets, and King + Varick streets, while the existing dock on Greenwich + Houston streets increased capacity with additional parking docks.

Outdoor Experiences

Parks

Spring Street Park and Freeman Plaza West are open with modifications to accommodate social distancing. While Freeman Plaza East is temporarily closed for renovations, it will be open again starting in the late fall.

Programming

Tuesdays and Thursdays on Little Sixth Avenue, and Wednesdays on King Street our streets become pop-up spaces with music, games and art.

Public Improvements and Public Art

Beautifying Our Neighborhood

Hudson Square Canvas

Splashes of color and art throughout the neighborhood add to the already creative identity.

Safer Pedestrian Experience

Splitter Island at Clarkson

The new pedestrian island provides a safer crossing at Varick + Clarkson streets.

Varick + Spring Streets

Art on the Gantry

We will be installing art by Shawna X on the back of the Holland Tunnel directional signage on Varick Street—adding art to unexpected spaces.

Increasing Connectivity

Hudson Street Renovation

With increased pedestrian space, a protected bike lane, and new seating and greening—Hudson Street is well on its way to becoming the grand boulevard Hudson Square deserves.

Healthier for People + the Planet

Tree Planting

50 new trees make our neighborhood more environmentally friendly and green.
