Drive-by shooting at college

SANFORD — One and possibly two people were shot this morning on the campus of Seminole Community College.

Sanford Police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire en route to the campus reported one person was being airlifted from the scene by helicopter. A report to police indicated the shooting occurred outside building B, which Whitmire identified as the adult education building. Whitmire said police stopped a shooting suspect on County Road 419.

An unconfirmed report telephoned to the Sanford Herald this morning indicated two people were killed in the drive-by shooting.

BRIEFS

Wolffinger honored

SANFORD — Brevard/Seminole State Attorney Norm Wolffinger was honored recently at Florida Southern College in Lakeland, as a recipient of the Alumni Association Citation for Excellence in their profession.

A graduate from Florida Southern in 1967, Wolffinger said, "It is a humbling experience to be selected for this prestigious award."

Wolffinger presently serves as president of the Florida Prosecuting Attorneys Association.

No basis for complaint

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Office has completed an investigation for grand theft of over $100,000 filed by the Seminole County school board. They have concluded that there is no basis for the complaint.

The complaint was filed on Monday by Wolfgang Halbig, security coordinator for the district. It concerned the removal of fill dirt from a piece of property owned by the school district on Lochwood Road near Oviedo.

The property was purchased from Condev Properties and there was an agreement that the company could remove fill dirt from the property. The agreement stated the removal would not exceed the existing grade of the land.

According to Halbig, so much dirt was removed that the property had become a wetland and therefore, was damaged extensively.

Deputy Alan Tyrell concluded there was no basis for the criminal complaint after he investigated the situation. The sheriff's office has closed its investigation.

Eslinger to address PTA

SANFORD — Sheriff Don Eslinger will speak tonight at 7 to Seminole High School Parents-Teachers Association at the high school. His presentation will focus on the culture of teen nightclubs and the RAVE parties that are held at the clubs. An undercover video made by CCIB will be shown.

The program is the last in the series of six Teen Life presentations given at the six county high schools.

Next month, a second series of PTA meetings will begin on response of law enforcement and the judicial system to teenage problems in Central Florida.

Firefighters ratify contract

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — After five years of trying, Seminole County firefighters Wednesday ratified their first contract since unionizing.

The one-year union contract was approved by a vote of 108-14 during two days of voting.

Felix Benitez, secretary-treasurer of the Seminole County Professional Firefighters said the membership overwhelmingly approve the contract. Out of the 202 firefighters represented by the union, 122 cast ballots in the two days of voting.

The contract is retroactive to Oct. 1, 1994 and provides firefighters a $2,912 raise while lieutenants will receive $2,562.

SANFORD — Lenny "The Crusher" Sutton and OT Mike "Mad Dog" Taylor are practicing their most vicious snarls and their most ferocious body slams.

They're also stocking up on Ben-Gay and looking into chiropractic care plans.

Mad Dog and The Crusher will be taking on "Playboy" Donny Brook and "Crazy" Kyle Keller in a special challenge match at a Central Florida Wrestling (CFW) match that will benefit Sanford Middle School.

Sutton, an assistant principal at the school, and Taylor, the school resource officer, are taking on the professional wrestlers in order to raise money for the school.

The match is part of the CFW "Wrestling Event of the Century" that will take place in the Sanford Middle School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday.

Scavenger hunt, boat trips: Zoo benefits

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two special events have been planned by the Central Florida Zoological Park this weekend. Saturday's involves a boat, Sunday's deals with motorcycles.

Saturday, cruises on the St. Johns River will benefit the zoo. The fundraiser is being conducted through the cooperation of St. Johns River Cruises and Tours. It will be the fourth consecutive year of these river trips.

Two cruises are being offered Saturday. One beginning at 11 a.m., and the other at 1:30 p.m. Other cruises may be available depending on the advance reservations.

Zoo Marketing Director Andrea Farmer said last year was the first time for the double cruise, with the event bringing in over $1,000 for the zoo.

Costs for the river cruises are $12 for adults, $10 for seniors 60 and over, and $6 for children 3-12.

For reservations, phone 330-1612. The cruises will start at 4359 Peninsular Point, at the Sanford Boat Works and Marina.

Sunday, members of the Seminole County Harley Owner's Group hosts the third annual April Fool's Scavenger Hunt. Proceeds from the bike run will specifically benefit the American Bald Eagles at the zoo.

Participants will travel 70 miles through Central Florida in search of unique items and answers to puzzling riddles. A $100 grand prize will be awarded to the person finding the most items and correctly answering the most questions.

Bettie Sonnenberg will leave her city post Friday with plans to travel with husband, Bob.

City's land development coordinator bids adieu

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Before her days with the city of Sanford, Bettie Sonnenberg was found caring for her children David and Lynn and her husband of 36 years, Bob. Formerly an art teacher in the schools Sonnenberg discovered much of her time was spent with youth.

Later she and her husband ventured out into a medical supply business of their own. After deciding it was time to find a job in the community, Sonnenberg began to work for the city of Sanford. She recently announced her March 31 retirement as Sanford's land development coordinator.

"Tomorrow at 5:30 she's mine," Bob said this morning.

Her first job was with the utility department as the customer service supervisor. She later was transferred into building, zoning and code enforcement which evolved into her present position. "When they started code enforcement it was diversified," she said. "I worked with minimum housing and code inspection." Now as land development coordinator Sonnenberg detailed her job description. "I work as a liaison between the developers and the city," she said. "We coordinate all activities of development. When people want to develop properties they go through us."

Yet Sonnenberg has already begun planning for her retirement after 14 years of service to the city of Sanford. "I think age is what made me decide," she said. "My husband, Bob, is retired. This will give us

OUc to vacate building, continue search

ORLANDO — Nothing tried has worked, and the Orlando Utilities Commission is moving all remaining workers out of a 3-year-old office building whose odors are causing inexplicable illnesses.

"We just need to get people out," OUC General Manager Bob Haven said Tuesday about the $4.8 million building, part of a complex opened three years ago.

Previous studies of the "sick building" have pinned the smells on the carpet, mold, fungal growth and poor air circulation. OUC has installed new carpet, revamped its cooling and heating system and tried to cleanse the structure of stale air with large fans.

But the odors have persisted, triggering dozens of reactions ranging from nosebleeds to headaches.

Once the remaining 60 workers are transferred to a nearby trailer and a second non-odoriferous building, OUC will remove the carpet and inspect the concrete pad. Environmental consultants suspect mold and water beneath the carpet may be causing the problems.

"Sick building syndrome" is thought to be caused by Florida's humidity combined with air-handling problems and modern building materials.

Customer tackles fleeing bank robber

WINTER GARDEN — A bank customer chased a bank robber and tackled her in the parking lot as she tried to mount a bicycle to flee from the downtown First Union Bank.

The robbery suspect wasn't armed and was arrested by a police officer who happened to be driving by at the time of the Tuesday encounter. Officers recovered an undisclosed amount of cash and a note demanding money.

"It's great for us," said Lt. Jon Johnson of the Winter Garden Police Department. He praised the courage of the customer, who told police she didn't want to be identified. She was described as being in her 40s.

Victoria Kelly, 32, was charged with one count of robbery. She was being held at the Orange County Jail, with bail set at $5,000. She may also be questioned about a March 9 robbery of the same bank, and the same teller.

"The physical description matches the same suspect," Johnson said.

Crooks trap ATM card inside machines

MIAMI — South Florida crooks have come up with a new way to use people's ATM cards, federal prosecutors said in announcing the indictment of five people.

Prosecutors say the defendants found a way to trap an ATM card inside the machine and then extracted it after a frustrated customer had left.

Meanwhile, while the customer was still there, one of the defendants would say that the same thing had happened to him and he had to punch in his personal identification number again to extract the card.

One of the five would then look over the shoulder of the person while the PIN was being entered, prosecutors said. After the customer had left, the card would be extracted and the PIN used for withdrawals.

Up to $23,000 had been robbed from people's accounts this way, the federal indictment said.

The five indicted are Jorge Rangel, 28; Pedro Tapia, 30; Alexis Pino, 35; Jose Guidino Hernandez, 23; and Grossmela Molina, 22, all of Sweetwater in Dade County.

The money was taken from ATM machines from Jan. 10-Feb. 27, the indictment said.

Jury selection continues in Zile trial

WEST PALM BEACH — Questioning continued in an effort to seat a jury in the first-degree murder trial of Pauline Zile, accused of plotting to cover up the beating death of her 7-year-old daughter.

After three days of questioning by attorneys, 40 prospective jurors were to return today for more questioning from a total of 190 called in. Most have been turned away because of the intense publicity the case generated in South Florida last fall after Mrs. Zile reported her daughter missing at a Fort Lauderdale flea market.

Circuit Judge Stephen A. Rapp has not ruled on the motion to change the trial's location because of pre-trial publicity, among numerous pending motions filed by the defense.

Mrs. Zile, 24, is accused of concocting a story that her child was abducted so as to disguise the girl's beating death a month earlier at the hands of her husband, John. They kept the child's body in a closet for four days before burying it.

John Zile led investigators to the body buried in a shallow grave in Tequesta. Both Ziles are charged with first-degree murder and several counts of aggravated child abuse. He is awaiting a separate trial.

Rapp set pre-trial motions for Friday.

Keep on truckin'

Truck will shock the airwaves at air show

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — When Ken High goes for a drive in the 1957 Chevy truck, he needs a lot of room. The truck has three times the power-to-weight ratio of an F-14 Tomcat fighter plane, and often races with flying aircraft during airshow performances.

The Super Shockwave Jet Truck will be one of the features in Airshow Orlando this Saturday and Sunday at the Central Florida Regional Airport in Sanford.

High, 33, is from Baxter Springs, Kan. He has been with Lea Shockley's jet truck demonstration team since December, 1992. The present truck featured in the exhibition was completed in May, 1993.

It is equipped with two Pratt & Whitney jet engines which put out 25,000 horsepower.

It is capable of speeds up to 300 miles per hour.

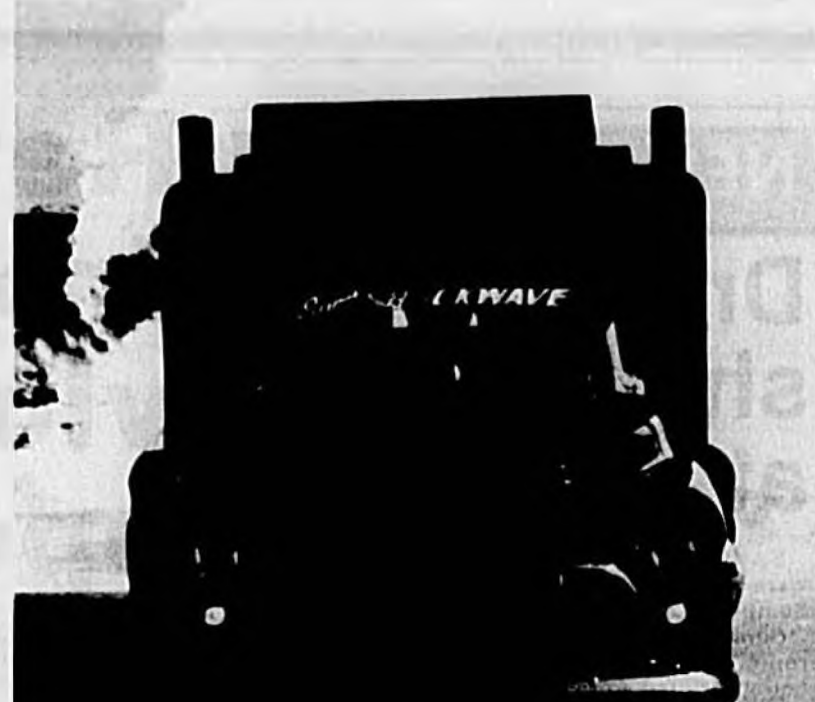

Just one run at an airshow or other demonstration, generally uses approximately 80 gallons of diesel fuel to move the 5,000 pound truck.

It's not all a man's truck either. The crew chief for the Super Shockwave is Nina Good, from Lowell, Mass. She performs various maintenance duties and last minute checks, and is responsible for starting the powerful jet engines at the beginning of each performance.

The Super Shockwave is scheduled for performances both days during the airshow.

The event is sponsored by the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

Gates at the Sanford airport facility open at 8 a.m., with static displays available all day. Performances are scheduled to begin at noon.

If you see this 1957 Chevy truck pulling up behind you, better let him pass. The 25,000 horsepower Super Shockwave is scheduled to be one of the attractions Saturday and Sunday at the Airshow Orlando, at the Central Florida Regional Airport.

Clinton, seeking southern votes, addresses Florida legislature

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Railing against "the Republican hit list," President Clinton is urging Southern voters to recognize how he has helped improve their lives and reject GOP attacks on his education, crime and welfare plans.

"Our way is better," he declared Wednesday in Atlanta, Georgia, native and House Speaker Newt Gingrich dryly predicted that Clinton "might decide he'd like to favor our tax cuts" after talking with sensible southerners.

Clinton hopes to bolster his sagging fortunes in the South with speeches today here and in Tampa Bay. The president arrived from Georgia on Wednesday night and wasted no time in making a political splash: He announced that the Pentagon will move its Southern Command from Panama to Miami.

The stop in Florida, a key electoral state Clinton lost in 1992, is part of a Southern swing that included a daylong economic conference in Atlanta to highlight economic growth in the South. The former Arkansas governor planned to visit Haiti on Friday, before spending the weekend in his native state.

Aides who reviewed drafts of Clinton's address to the state legislature today said he was defending education and anti-crime programs, and urging compassion in reforming the welfare system.

"He is making it clear that we should not take hits on policies that are working and are helping students go through school, mothers go from welfare to work and police getting on the streets," said White House spokeswoman Ginny Terzano.

That follows a standard White House script: GOP budget plans would undermine education initiatives like student loan programs, repeal crime-bill money putting police on streets and punish children and young women in the name of welfare reform.

To highlight that point, Clinton was meeting today with student loan recipients, former welfare mothers and police officers hired under the crime bill.

Clinton said his education reform initiative known as Goals 2000 "is one of the things on the Republican hit list. It's a classic case where their theory over shadows reality."

He also compared his program allowing college students to borrow money directly from the government to Republican plans for a scaled-back loan program. "Our way is better because it's pro-education," he said in a conference-closing speech to Emory University students in Atlanta.

Republicans argue that Clinton's social programs are rife with waste. They attribute the economic recovery in the South and elsewhere to the Bush administration and accuse Clinton of abandoning deficit-reduction policies.

Southern Command has new home, modified mission

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — The new headquarters for the U.S. military command responsible for Central and South America is perfect for the command's evolving role in diplomacy, drug-busting and democracy, officials say.

The U.S. Armed Forces Southern Command will move from Panama to new facilities south of Miami, President Clinton announced Wednesday in Tallahassee.

"They are working to promote democracy throughout the hemisphere," Clinton said. To promote cooperation with those countries, to help and defend the Panama Canal, and most importantly of all — now — to help protect the American people and the people of those countries from the scourge of drugs and illegal drugs."

The command, known as SouthCom, coordinates all U.S. military activity, including anti-drug efforts, in the southern half of the hemisphere except the Caribbean. It must leave its current base in Panama by Dec. 31, 1999, under the terms of the Panama Canal Treaty. The base would be moved to Dade County in 1998.

Key factors in the decision were Miami's Latin flavor, multiple airlines and numerous consulates representing Latin American countries.

"This says that the Southern Command is being given a different mission — a mixture of military and diplomatic roles," said U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, a Miami Democrat.

The command will grow increasingly involved in training other nation's armies in development efforts, much like the Army Corps of Engineers does here, he said. It will also continue to develop security measures against threats to democratic governments.

In late 1989 and early 1990, the command managed Operation Just Cause, the military incursion into Panama.

Administration officials said a former U.S. Coast Guard station at Richmond Heights south of Miami would be the new SouthCom headquarters.

The Southern Command is one of five regional military commands and is part of the Pentagon's "Joint" approach to war in which a single commander can direct forces from each of the military services.

Three sites in the Miami area had been under consideration: the Coast Guard facility, Miami International Airport and Homestead Air Reserve Base. Other top candidates were Tampa and New Orleans.

The decision was cheered by South Florida officials, who concede the area is still struggling after Hurricane Andrew, persistent image problems related to crime, and the closure of two major airlines, Eastern and Pan Am.

"It's as if the U.S. government has put the seal of approval on the city of Miami," said U.S. Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, a Republican. "The Summit of the Americas got the ball rolling for us."

Gov. Lawton Chiles said: "We see SouthCom, Page 5A"

Shooting charges

Sanford police arrested two men involved in a shootout this past Saturday in front of Lake Monroe Terrace apartments. Frederick Lamar Brown, 18, of 53 Lake Monroe Terrace and Michael T. Smith, 18, of 97 Seminole Gardens, reportedly fired handguns at each other. According to the arrest reports, the shootings started when a package of drugs broke open and spilled to the ground. One man reportedly picked up some of them but refused to pay the other. Brown reportedly shot Smith in the left shoulder, and Smith is said to have shot Brown four times. Both men were arrested Tuesday and charged with attempted murder and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Forgery charge

Lake Mary police arrested Thomas Franklin Yarborough, 18, of 1921 Wimbledon Drive, Lake Mary, on Tuesday, following an investigation into the forgery of a check for $826, reported at a Lake Mary Bank on Nov. 7, 1994. Yarborough was charged with uttering a forged instrument, and forgery.

More door smashings

Two more burglaries were reported this week, in which entrance area glass was smashed open to gain entry. They follow three similar cases reported early Sunday morning. Tuesday, a front door was smashed open at a business in the 2800 block of Orlando Drive. Police said there was evidence that an attempt had been made to break open two cash registers, but nothing was taken.

Another business, in the 2500 block of South French Avenue, also had the front glass broken out. Two candy machines were vandalized with $50 in coins said to be missing and $100 in damage done.

Talking and cussing

Sanford police arrested John Christian Martin, 35, with no local address, on Tuesday. According to the arrest report, police said they received a call saying that a man had been walking around inside the business, talking to himself and swearing at customers at a business in the 2900 block of South Orlando Drive. A short time later, police received another call that a man was talking to himself and speaking profanities to customers in a business in the 100 block of East Airport Boulevard. He was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct, and resisting an officer without violence.

Lewd/lascivious

Longwood police arrested Ralph R. Roberts, 40, of 100 Cove Court, Longwood on Tuesday. Roberts was accused of acts reportedly done to a young girl between 1992 and 1994. He was charged with sexual battery, and lewd and lascivious acts on a minor.

Drug test kit available for parents

By The Associated Press

NEW PROVIDENCE, N.J. — Parents can check their children's rooms and belongings for drugs with a $20 kit that will provide them with confidential results.

Called DrugAlert, the kit can detect trace amounts of up to 30 illicit substances, including marijuana, cocaine, methamphetamine, heroin, LSD and PCP, according to its maker, Barringer Technologies Inc. of New Providence, near Newark.

The kit contains a moist pad that can be wiped across clothing, books or furniture to pick up drug residue. The pad can be mailed back to the manufacturer for laboratory analysis.

"Anyone who has been in contact with illegal narcotics will inadvertently acquire trace amounts of the narcotic," Stan Binder, Barringer's chairman and chief executive, said Wednesday.

"For instance, a cocaine user will have traces on his hands and clothing. These traces will find their way to his car, his school locker and objects in his room."

But Binder cautioned that a positive test result does not necessarily indicate a child is a drug user. Traces could be left by another person or picked up through innocent contact.

"Positive detection results simply provide one piece of information that should always be used with other observation," he said.

If Barringer detects drugs it mails the information back to the parent with advice on what to do. Parents can also get the results by phone, without revealing their names, by using a confidential code number.

Teaching what it's all about

Richard Cannon, a probation officer with the Department of Probation and Parole, spent time in a Sanford Middle School classroom yesterday telling kids what it's all about. Cannon and hundreds of other business and community leaders went into classrooms all over the county Wednesday to share their experiences with students as part of the Seminole County Teach-In '95.

Be prepared

Listed in the Sanford police incident reports: A person kicked in the front door of a home, probably with burglary in mind. It set off a home alarm system however, and other than the cost of replacing the door, nothing was lost.

Recently, an attempt was made at an intersection on Park Avenue in Sanford. Four men reportedly tried to force a woman from her pickup truck at a four-way stop street. It appeared as though they would take the truck if the woman could be removed. Yet her doors and windows were locked and she managed to escape uninjured, (although she reportedly ran over one of the men's foot when she backed out of the area).

It should show us that advance thinking and preparation can save property and even lives. This should stand as a lesson to everyone.

Naturally, not everyone can afford a home or business security system. But when there is a possibility that thousands of dollars in property might be taken in just a few brief moments, the amount seems rather low.

What everyone can do however, is to lock all doors and windows. This not only goes for homes and apartments, but vehicles as well. It should be done regardless of whether the building or vehicle is occupied or not.

No place is safe from vehicular burglaries. They have been reported in public parking lots, in carports and garages of private homes, parked at a boat ramp while the owner is out fishing, and even at church.

Whether or not an individual can obtain a burglar alarm system or not, the next closest thing is to play safe at all times.

Don't let the next home or vehicular burglary reported in the Sanford Herald be one in which you were the victim.

LETTER

Restore program

You have to ask the chaplains at the Seminole County jail for a few letters from inmates in its nurture cell and/or program.

My name is David W. Freela. I have been in the nurture cell (religious) program for the past five months. I have been the coordinator for the past two months. The nurture cell or religious program is a wonderful program and place to live while being incarcerated here at the Seminole County jail. This program has many strict rules. However, the most important one is to respect your brothers in the cell. No one in this program is on the same spiritual level. Being coordinator, it is my job to help nurture those inmates who are on a lower spiritual level by being a positive role model which I find extremely hard to do at times.

This cell has a Bible course that is mandatory for inmates who participate in this program. This course consists of 136 lessons from the New Testament books of John, Romans, Corinthians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, Thessalonians, Peter, and First John. Inmates are required to do a minimum of four lessons per day and/or 20 per week. Each lesson takes around 30 to 45 minutes for educated persons to complete and one or more hours for non-educated persons.

Religious teachings Monday through Friday from 0900 to 1030 hours with volunteer speakers and/or teachers from the local community like Pastor Elijah June and Hezekiah Ross from Sanford. Noted public speaker Richard (Dick) Mailmann from Casselberry and Brother A.B. from the Aloma Baptist Church in Winter Park. We have quiet time every day Monday through Friday also. This is conducted from 1400 to 1600 hours. This time is for religious studies only.

We also have church services on Sunday morning and Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. These services are also conducted by volunteer clergymen like Pastor James (Jim) Russo from Starlight Baptist Church in Winter Springs and the Rev. Dan Maxwell from the New Life Baptist Temple in Lake Mary.

Now I would like to explain what Sheriff Don Eslinger has done to this program. First, he has removed our television and VCR. Second, he has removed the receptacles and sealed the holes. The nurture cell has strict rules concerning the television. Please note our television couldn't be watched until 1800 hours. The chaplains at this facility supplied this program with religious and instructional videos every weekend. The chaplains also supplied religious music along with instructional cassettes for those inmates who are illiterate. Sheriff Eslinger has taken a six- to 9-month program and condensed it to a 30-day program. Coming from a man like myself that has been incarcerated for more than 1,100 days, a 30-day program is hardly adequate for reformation especially when you compare it to the average time a civilian spends outside committing crimes before he or she becomes an inmate themselves. To complete transformation in 30 days just can't happen. Please restore the TV, VCR and receptacles to program cells.

It's time the GOP got its guard up

The Republican Party is having the daylight kicked out of it by the Democrats and the liberal media, and it's high time it realized this and started doing something about it.

It's all very well for the GOP to point with pride to the progress that has already been made under its "Contract With America," and that it's undeniably true that building a reputation as "the party that keeps its promises" will be money in the bank in years to come. But the battle for current public opinion has been, to date, an unmitigated disaster for the Republicans, and they must shoulder a large part of the blame themselves.

It's true, of course, that it's the Democrats and their waterboys in the media who have been doing the lying about the consequences of various measures proposed in the contract. But the Republicans knew - or at least ought to have known - that this sort of thing was coming, and planned their defense (or, better yet, their counterattack). Instead, they have let the Democrats have weeks of free media time to pound them mercilessly about "starving America's children to provide further tax cuts for the rich" and similar bushwah. As a result, they are beginning to look like Max Schmeling after Joe Louis got through with him.

In a column written just three weeks after last November's elections, I noted the uproar among Democrats and in the media over Newt Gingrich's unfortunate choice of the word "orphans" to describe his proposed destination for the children of unmarried and unaffiliated teenage mothers. There were good answers to the uproar, but they wouldn't avail unless somebody whom the media would be forced to quote came forward with them.

Accordingly, I proposed "a permanent, full-time Truth Squad," designated by the Republican Party to answer Democratic and media charges fast, accurately and officially. Subsequently, I was told by Republican officials that they didn't want to waste time on defense, answering Democratic and liberal attacks. They wanted to keep on putting the truth before the American people, and let that speak for them.

Superficially, that sounded like a wise, even statesmanlike, response. I began to think that perhaps they were right, and that I had been mistaken.

Then came the proposal to close down the federal school-lunch program and turn the money over to the states to administer. As I remarked in a column earlier this month, the Democratic reaction plumbed depths I hadn't previously suspected even American politics of being capable of. President Clinton himself accused the Republicans of targeting children to pay for tax cuts for the rich.

The barrage on this subject has gone on for several weeks now, and shows no sign of abating. Why should it, when the Democrats are reaping such rich rewards from it? Public opinion polls suggest that many voters are beginning to fear that the GOP is going too far and cutting too much.

Slowly and belatedly, Republican leaders are beginning to crank up a response to the Democratic onslaught.

Why TV offers best U.S. Cabinet

Sen. Phil Gramm doesn't think Henry Foster will be confirmed as surgeon general of the United States. The senator, who recently admitted that he authorized a $175,000 donation to the anti-abortion group The National Right to Life Committee, believes Dr. Foster's values are incongruent with the American people's.

"I think people are ready for a Dr. Welby, M.D.," the Texas Republican said.

Umm, Sen. Gramm? Perhaps it's time for your medication. You see, Marcus Welby is a television character. His show was canceled 19 years ago.

But don't feel too bad about your mistake. A lot of people confused actor Robert Young with the doctor he portrayed. That's why he had to remind us on those Sanka commercials that he wasn't really qualified to dispense medical advice.

What is it with these Republicans? First Dan Quayle gets all puffed up because Murphy Brown, a fictional television character, had a child out of wedlock. Now Phil Gramm wants to nominate Marcus Welby, a fictional television character, to be our surgeon general. Next thing you know "The Love Boat"'s Gopher will be serving in the House of Representatives.

Oh sorry, I forgot. "The Love Boat"'s Gopher ALREADY served in the House of Representatives.

Well, I suppose giving public offices to fictional characters has its upside. The nonreal don't eat or sleep, allowing for low salaries and long working days. And since they don't have lives of their own, the president would never have to worry about their writing tattletale books if they're fired - or, rather, written out of the script.

And with the recent foibles of the president's staff, he really can't do much worse. A few suggestions:

SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Mike Brady, father on "The Brady Bunch"
Pro: Is an architect; believes in adoption; designed a home that houses six kids and is always spotless.

Con: Crucial government plans could be misplaced when Greg converts Mike's den into his groovy, strobe-lit pad.

SECRETARY OF ENERGY

Fred Flintstone
Pro: Could show modern folks how to run cars with their feet and play records with birds' beaks.

Con: Spotted orange tunic probably made from endangered - nay, extinct! - species.

SECRETARY OF EDUCATION

Donna Martin of "Beverly Hills, 90210"
Pro: Is a virgin; can afford a college degree.

Con: Would demand excusal from policy meetings on "bad-hair" days.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Perry Mason
Pro: Never loses a case.

Con: Might prompt Newt Gingrich to break down and say, "So what if I offed a few orphans. It was for my country's good!"

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR

Samantha Stephens of "Bewitched"
Pro: Could restore natural resources and dispose of toxic waste with a twitch of her nose - countless billions saved over the years.

Con: Questions still linger over the mysterious transformation of her husband from Dick York to Dick Bargar in 1969.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Roseanne
Con: Has kissed a woman; sister had a baby out of wedlock.

Pro: Would tell the Serbs she's gonna kick some butt if they don't shape up.

Some of this, that and the other

Welcome my friends, welcome to the United States of Everybody ... a land of plenty. A land where criminals - past, present and future - seem to have more rights and privileges than you do. And you're the hardworking, churchgoing, taxpaying grunts who are footing all the bills ... past, present, and ohhh - my aching-back ... future.

Yes, sir 'n' mam, a land where illegal aliens seem to have more rights and privileges than you do. And ... one more time, you're the hardworking, churchgoing, taxpaying grunts who are footing all those bills too ... yesterday's, today's and that ever present ... tomorrows.

Yup, by golly! A land where the honesty and integrity of American business in action is served up on a platinum platter on an almost daily basis for all to see, to tak, tak, tak all over the landscape and to file away in that ever growing "ain't it just awful what they're doing" category.

Oh my gracious, by now you must have realized that this week's column is one of those some of this and some of that and some of something else type that covers a multitude of sin - theirs, not ours. The last time we did this, some of you good folks told me you had a riot of fun and laughter reading it. Let's do'er agin'.

It's been reported in the news media that the "Feds" are about to execute a convicted and condemned murderer. First one in some 32 years or so. Wow! At this rate we can dispose of 3-4 every hundred years. We sure are making gigantic strides of progress.

Also in the media was a report that Gov. Chiles has signed one more death warrant. Wunnerful - wunnerful, but we - the good guys 'n' gals - are falling behind faster 'n' faster.

Thinking back over a few weeks of news reporting, it seems that the bad guys are knocking off the good guys 'n' gals 3-4-5 per week. Darn near every week too. Prorated up to an annual basis that just might total somewhere around 250 good guys 'n' gals that aren't around anymore ... plus or minus ... every darn year.

If the governor signs a death warrant every four years ... and if that warrant actually produces an execution ... it looks as though the score would be 1,000 for the bad guys and one for the good guys 'n' gals. Seems to me that there is something very very wrong with that score. What do you think? Why don't you tell your elected representatives? All of them.

Let's go shopping. I just did. Bought some cold cereals. Damn near had a heart attack. Just discovered that a pound, plus or minus an ounce or two, of cold cereal has approached the price of a T-bone steak in cost. Couldn't help but wonder why. Found some 1-800 numbers on the boxes of cereals.

SEMINOLE OPINION

And here are some of them, taken from the side panels of some of the most popular items: Ralston Foods - 1-800-RALSTON, Kellogg's USA Inc. 1-800-982-1413 and General Mills - 1-800-328-1144.

I know! You, at least some of you, are wondering "Well, did I call and ask why?" You bet your biffy I did - all three numbers. Do I now know why the costs are somewhere in orbit?

You've got to be kidding if any of you indicated a yes answer. Some answers sounded a little like doubletalk. Some non-answers sounded like a plea of ignorance of the facts in the case. Some answers talked all the way around the subject while totally skirting the direct questions. All the answers and non-answers were totally polite.

Why don't a few thousand of you good folks out there in readerland give it a shot and you make a call. Maybe you will be more successful than I was. Bealdea, if the cereal manufacturers get enough calls of complaint from Mr. and Mrs. Consumer, maybe, just maybe something positive might happen. You never can tell.

And now as a final welcome, let me welcome you to the United States of double standards. Oh yes, we do have them - and in almost every category known to mankind.

We have the most desirable standard - the one we talk about - and we have the most despicable standard - the one we live by. These two diametrically opposed standards permeate nearly every aspect of nearly every person's life. The one we talk about generously gives to the people. The one we live by grievously takes from the people.

This double standard is all around us all of the time. Much like the air we breathe, the grass in our yards, and the fleas on your dog. Maybe it's always been there. Maybe it's worse now because it's more noticeable. Open your eyes - look around you - maybe you'll notice it too.

place to place. The floors are bare but the carpet is ordered and will be installed soon. Donated plants and floral arrangements are placed around the room to herald the facility's opening. Facing a deadline to be in operation to qualify for state funds, the Seminole County Victim Rights Coalition has been operating in high gear for weeks putting finishing touches on the building which will provide a safe place for battered women and their children. Safehouse of Seminole opens Friday as a refuge for domestic and family violence victims created by the coalition with the help of the community. Wednesday afternoon, invited guests got a chance to tour the facility which has been seven years in the making.

Susan Denton, Safehouse executive director and Linda Kuhn, director of victim services in State Attorney Norm Wolfinger's Sanford office talk with workers and staff to make sure preparations are complete.

"We got our certification from HRS," Kuhn says, proudly, referring to the all-important go-ahead from the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "We sign the papers this afternoon."

One wing of the 24-hour emergency shelter will begin taking clients Friday in the 6,500 square foot building donated by Seminole County Board of Commissioners. Extensive renovation was required to make the building habitable, including a new roof. The second wing will be brought on-line when donations of furniture or money and vertical blinds for the windows are made.

Safehouse of Seminole will be able to serve up to 38 individuals and their children on a daily basis when the building is fully furnished. The shelter residents will be able to stay up to six weeks and will receive counseling and guidance.

In order to qualify for funds from the State of Florida Marriage License Trust Fund set aside to help victims of domestic violence, the shelter had to be in operation Friday. Funding for the not-for-profit 501 organization also comes from individuals, businesses, special events and grants.

Right now, Safehouse's most pressing need is M-O-N-E-Y. No contribution is too small, Denton noted, although large donations from businesses or corporations are encouraged.

"We need money to operate," Denton explained. "Even if someone can donate $5, that's postage...and small donations add up."

Contributions are tax deductible in accordance to IRS regulation. For more information on how you can help Safehouse call 330-3011.

A church donated new linens to the shelter as a Lenten project, Kuhn said.

A partial list of items needed by the shelter includes: two heavy duty vacuum cleaners, dressers, hair dryers, baby food and formula, a television and VCR, a new clothes dryer, twin-size mattress pads and sheet sets, portable cribs and paper products.

an opportunity to do things together. We want to travel and enjoy our golden years."

Now with the children out of the nest, Sonnenberg said, "We don't have anyone to tie us down. We like to travel and want to see the country. We want to get a vehicle and visit family and friends."

Another outing planned in the future is across the waters. "We plan to visit Ireland next year," she said. "We read an article in a paper once about a writer who bicycled 30 miles a day. That's what we want to do."

Although biking across Ireland may take some time the couple have added other stops to their itinerary. "We went to Europe before," she said. "We had talked about bicycling and then going on Brit-Rail. We thoroughly enjoyed the British Isles, Scotland and Wales."

This year, 1995, Sonnenberg said, "We had decided this year would be the big year," she said.

"We work with the Grace and Grits program at Holy Cross (Episcopal Church). We've worked since the beginning ever since it evolved out of the Cold Night program. I funnel my activities through the church." In regard to her church work, Sonnenberg said, "We feel strongly about sharing and witnessing our testimony and what Christ has directed us to do."

Sonnenberg does enjoy various crafts such as knitting to relax. "I have a knitting machine and a knitting loom," she said. "I'm looking forward to hand and machine knitting."

Since her background in teaching was in the art field, Sonnenberg said, "I like to do stuff with my hands. I hope to be able to paint some. We want to fix up the house. Maybe we'll do some gem tumbling and rock cutting too."

Concerning her voyages after retirement, she said, "I can be a kid again. Hopefully we can afford to do it now."

Address

The president defended his economic program all day Wednesday in Atlanta, where he lauded strides by southern economies but said "the news is not all good."

He welcomed calls from the handpicked economists and business leaders to improve the region's economy with comprehensive education and training programs and expensive initiatives bolstering small businesses.

When hecklers asked Clinton why he wanted 100,000 more police officers on the street, he noted that a GOP crime bill would kill the program and turn the money over to states to use at their own discretion.

Clinton saluted the South's new dynamism, noting it accounted for 40 percent of the nation's new jobs over the past two years while comprising only 30 percent of its population.

"As the industrial age gives way to the information age, and all of our economies are linked as never before, the South has really done a remarkable job of tapping in to all the opportunities that are presented," he said.

"When the wrestling guys first came to me," Taylor said, "I said you're crazy, there ain't no way."

Muscular, with an iron stare, Taylor has a soft spot in his heart for the sixth, seventh and eighth graders he serves at Sanford Middle. Upon further contemplation of the request, he decided he couldn't turn them down.

He said, half-jokingly, that he couldn't get anyone to be his tag-team partner once he got permission from the school to take part in the event.

Finally Sutton, the strong silent type, stepped forward and agreed to help Taylor.

"He doesn't say much," Taylor said of his partner, "but he really cares about the kids."

Sutton declined comment on the match, leaving his office to assist a student with a problem, when the subject of the match arose. Taylor said he worked out with the wrestlers six days ago and says that his "neck is just starting to feel right."

The Sanford Middle PTSA organized the event to raise money for school programs for the students.

Tickets are $8 for ringside seats, $6 general admission, and $5 for students.

"I hope people come out to see this," Taylor said. "I'd hate to be doing this for nothing."

Taylor and Sutton aren't making any predictions about the outcome of their match.

"I just hope I live to see Sunday," Taylor said.

have long believed that our state's strategic location and South Florida's tremendous community support make Miami a natural choice for this important section of our armed forces."

Government and business officials in South Florida have been lobbying for the Southern Command headquarters for more than 15 months, dangling a $50 million package of public and private incentives as bait.

"It's the only city that makes sense if the command is going to be relevant over the next 20 years," said Art Teele, chairman of the Metro Dade Commission. "Miami is the other home for people throughout this hemisphere."

Only about 700 officers and staff that make up the headquarters will move and jobs will be provided for 800 more civilians. Forces needed for any military operation will be drawn from troops based elsewhere, as is the case with all the commands.

Lossing out in the administration decision was the Tampa-St. Petersburg area, home of MacDill Air Force Base. MacDill already hosts two other joint commands, the U.S. Central Command, responsible for the Persian Gulf and East Africa regions, and the Special Operations Command.

Contract

The union members have worked without a contract since 1990. Seminole County commissioners granted the raises earlier this month but sided with the county staff on other issues at impasse including arbitration and grievance and management rights.

Negotiations on a new contract are expected to begin soon.

M&M lovers get the blues

NEW YORK — Announcing a new color that won't melt in your hand: blue.

The results of a two-month campaign to choose a new M&M color were unveiled Wednesday. Blue won easily with 54 percent of the more than 10 million votes cast, beating out pink and purple.

M&M-Mars unveiled its new confection on the 86th floor of the Empire State Building, which was lighted all in blue in honor of the occasion.

"For the first time since M&M plain chocolate candies were introduced in 1941, America has voted for a new color to appear in the traditional mix," said Pat D'Amato, a spokeswoman for the Hackettstown, N.J.-based company.

Blue will replace tan in bags of plain M&M's; it will replace orange in almond and peanut butter M&M's and it will be added to peanut M&M's without displacing a color.

Term limit amendment defeated

WASHINGTON — The House threw itself into the path of a popular grass-roots movement and slowed the momentum of the new Republican majority by defeating a constitutional amendment to limit the years members of Congress may serve.

But 10 hours of politically charged debate and a historic first-time floor vote did nothing to put the issue to rest. The spectacle of lawmakers agonizing over their own fates and the intentions of the founding fathers promised to recur throughout the 104th Congress and infuse the next election cycle.

"Term limits will be voted on as the first item in the new Congress if we are the majority," House Speaker Newt Gingrich vowed Wednesday night. "I can assure you it will be a major issue in the '96 campaign."

Where are the clothes?

LOS ANGELES — Through a limousine driver and a sky cap, prosecutors sought to explain one of the most tantalizing mysteries of the O.J. Simpson case: If Simpson was the killer, where did he ditch his bloody clothes?

The prosecution offered one suggestion Wednesday — that Simpson stuffed the clothes in a garbage can near an airport sky cap station just before he flew to Chicago the night of the knife murders.

But the theory was supported by no facts, just innuendo. It emerged in bits and pieces through the testimony of two witnesses over two days.

"The theme for the day is general confusion," said Southwestern University law professor Robert Pugaley. "I was confused and I'm sure the jury is feeling it, too."

Boy, 5, apparently beats AIDS

NEW YORK — Baffled doctors are struggling to learn how a 5-year-old boy apparently fought off an AIDS infection, and they hope solving the mystery might one day protect others.

Researchers reported today that a Los Angeles boy who was infected with AIDS at birth, and remained so for at least a month, is now free of any sign of the virus.

Doctors cannot be certain the virus isn't hiding somewhere in the boy's body. But his continuing good health is additional evidence that the infection has disappeared, researchers said.

The team that studied the boy was led by Dr. Yvonne J. Bryson, a pediatrician and AIDS specialist at the UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles. She believes she has the first carefully documented case of someone casting off all signs of infection.

Giant panda may be welcome

WASHINGTON — Once again, the giant panda may be welcome on American shores.

The Interior Department is proposing to lift its two-year ban on the importation of giant pandas, the furry, cuddly, black and white creatures from China who are sought after by zoo keepers from coast to coast.

A final end to the ban may be months away because the shift in government policy must be subjected to a formal rule-making procedure, including asking for comments from the public.

But sources at the Interior Department and within the environmental community said a proposal to resume importation of the animals would be announced today at the National Zoo by Assistant Interior Secretary George Frampton.

WORLD BRIEFS

Early-morning ambush

TOKYO — A masked assailant pumped four bullets today into Japan's top police official, the man heading the investigation of the deadly nerve-gas attack on the Tokyo subway.

The early-morning ambush, which left National Police Agency chief Takaji Kunimatsu hospitalized in serious condition, heightened fears of an escalating wave of violence targeting police and others.

The March 20 subway attack, which killed 10 people and sickened more than 5,500, was aimed at trains bound for the station just next to the headquarters of the national and city police.

Shortly after the shooting, an anonymous caller telephoned several Japanese news organizations saying the chief of Tokyo Metropolitan Police would be the next target unless police stop raiding a doomsday sect suspected in the subway attack.

Cheap high

BOGOTA, Colombia — Colombian drug traffickers, long the source of most of the world's cocaine, are smuggling a powerful sedative onto the streets of the United States.

The drug Rohypnol is gaining popularity as a cheap high among young people in Colombia, the United States, the Netherlands, Germany and other countries.

Jim Shedd, a spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration in Miami, called it the "Quaalude of the '90s" and said Colombians were bringing it into Florida to sell on the street.

Rohypnol, made by the Swiss company Roche, is not sold in the United States but is available by prescription in Colombia, as well as in other South American countries, Asia and Europe.

Clinton to visit Haiti

WASHINGTON — It's been more than 60 years since an American president visited Haiti, and President Clinton will break that drought on Friday when he heads for Port-au-Prince to celebrate a rare foreign policy triumph.

Clinton will be joined by U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros Ghali at a ceremony formally transferring responsibility to U.N. peacekeepers from the U.S.-led multinational force sent to Haiti last September. The U.N. force will be under the command of U.S. Army Gen. Maj. Joseph Kinzer.

From a high of 22,000 troops, the U.S. military presence will drop to about 2,400 by mid-April. That constitutes less than half of the planned 6,000-member U.N. force, which will remain in Haiti until next February.

Test first target of FDA probe

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Bonnie Sklar cries and tries to see each of the eight times a day her mother pricks her finger to test her blood sugar.

The scenes are agonizing for the diabetic toddler's parents because, they say, the Food and Drug Administration is sitting on a device that could use light pulses to monitor her diabetes painlessly.

The Diasensor "will be a godsend for us, for any parents with a diabetic child or any diabetic themselves," said Linda Sklar of Columbia, Md., who has awaited the test since 2½-year-old Bonnie was diagnosed 15 months ago.

Today, the Sklars take their complaint to Capitol Hill, as Congress begins investigating whether the FDA delays new drugs and medical devices to the detriment of American patients.

Opponents want the agency revamped. Suggestions range from giving private organizations the FDA's job of approving new medicines, to having the FDA judge only a therapy's safety and letting individual doctors decide whether it actually works.

FDA Commissioner David Keasler contends his agency is improving. The FDA is reviewing new drugs 21 percent faster, and reviews half of its simplest medical devices in less than 98 days. But the other half take longer, some more than 500 days. "There is still much to be done," Keasler acknowledged.

The Diasensor, under FDA review for 15 months and counting, illustrates the problem, says Rep. Joe Barton, chairman of the House Commerce oversight subcommittee that is investigating the FDA. Sixty companies worldwide are racing to develop similar devices, "with 12 competitors already having ceased operations because of FDA delays," Barton said in a statement.

Some 14 million Americans have diabetes, in which the body doesn't produce or respond to the vital hormone insulin. Millions need insulin shots, and time the injections by pricking a finger and dripping blood onto special chemical strips that measure glucose, a sugar that insulin mediates.

The Diasensor, made by Biocontrol Technology Inc. of Pittsburgh, would become the first non-invasive glucose test. A probe would beam infrared light that filters through the skin and detects the chemical structure of glucose. The light reflects back to a sensor that reads the glucose level.

Biocontrol sought FDA approval in January 1994. In December, the FDA requested more information, and Biocontrol the following month provided additional tests. The FDA is combing that data for proof that Diasensor measures glucose as well as current blood tests, said FDA device chief Dr. Bruce Burlington. "The concept of a non-invasive measurement of glucose is an exciting one," he said. "We are working with the company and will proceed expeditiously."

Biocontrol declined to participate in Barton's hearing or comment on the debate, saying only that it has "a good relationship with the FDA."

Patients, fingers aching from daily blood tests, anxiously await the test, said Dr. Kathleen Wahner, president of the American Diabetes Association.

But while the technology, derived from huge machines that measure the sugar in sugar cane, works in the laboratory, it has been hard to translate into a home test, she explained in an interview.

The Diasensor would have to be specially calibrated for each patient.

Jobless benefits: New claims decline

By JOHN D. McGLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing new claims for jobless benefits fell by 10,000 last week, breaking the first three-week string of increases in nearly a year.

The Labor Department said today new applications for unemployment insurance totaled a seasonally adjusted 338,000, lowest since a similar 338,000 during the week ended March 4.

It was the largest decline since a 12,000 drop during the week ended Feb. 25.

Claims during the week ended March 18 totaled a revised 348,000. The government originally had estimated that claims last week totaled 348,000.

Many analysts had expected claims to fall only about 5,000 after rising each week since the period ending March 4. It had been the first three-week increase since the period ending last April 16.

Analysts say job growth has slowed recently as a series of interest-rate increases engineered by the Federal Reserve have taken hold. The Fed has boosted short-term rates seven times in 13 months to slow the economy and curb inflation.

These analysts contend the trend for the weekly new claims now is about 340,000, up from a 320,000-330,000 range through the final six months of 1994.

Despite last week's decline, the closely watched four-week moving average of weekly jobless claims continued to rise.

It totaled 341,750, up from 340,250 during the period ended March 18 and the highest since 347,750 during the period ended last July 30.

The less-volatile four-week average often smooths out the spikes in the weekly reports. Forty-five states and territories reported decreases in regular claims during the week ended March 18 and eight recorded increases. National figures are reported a week ahead of the state totals.

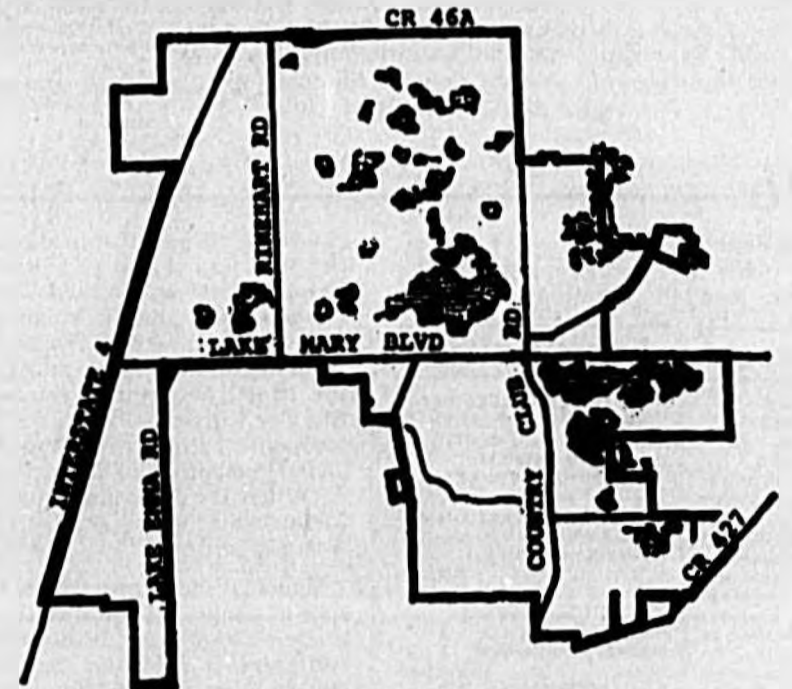

States reporting the biggest declines were Ohio, 1,784; Missouri, 1,721; New Jersey, 1,682; New York, 1,652; and Pennsylvania, 1,488.

States with the largest increases were Texas, 923; Iowa,

843; Wisconsin, 689; Oregon, 458; and Kentucky, 160.

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF LAND USE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Lake Mary City Commission will hold a public hearing to discuss amendments to the City's Comprehensive Plan. Amendments may include changes to the official Future Land Use Map and changes to goals, objectives and policies of the Comprehensive Plan. This meeting will be held April 8, 1995 at Lake Mary City Hall, 100 North Country Club Road, Lake Mary, Florida at 7:00 P.M. The entire incorporated land area of the City of Lake Mary, Florida, as shown in the map below, may be affected by the proposed amendments to the Comprehensive Plan.

A copy of the Comprehensive Future Land Use Plan and proposed amendments are available for inspection in the City Planning Department, 100 North Country Club Road, Lake Mary, Florida, Monday through Friday from 8:00 A.M. until 4:30 P.M.

Interested parties may appear and be heard regarding the proposed amendments to the Comprehensive Future Land Use Plan or written comments may be filed with the City Clerk at 100 North Country Club Road, Lake Mary, Florida.

NOTE: If a person decides to appeal any decision made by this Board with respect to any matter considered at the meeting or hearing, he or she will need a record of the proceedings and that, for such purpose he or she may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based.

Persons with disabilities needing assistance to participate in any of these proceedings should contact the city's ADA Coordinator at least 48 hours in advance of the meeting at 407-324-3024.

A Day Of Thanks.
For A Lifetime Of Caring.

The employees and volunteers of Central Florida Regional Hospital would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to our physicians for the quality medical care provided to patients at our hospital.

Doctors' Day has been celebrated since 1933. March 30 was selected as Doctors' Day because it is the anniversary of the first use of sulfuric ether as an anesthetic by Dr. Crawford W. Long in 1842, thus providing freedom from pain during surgery.

We at Central Florida Regional Hospital are fortunate to have a medical staff that has worked in partnership with us to make our hospital the most comprehensive facility in Seminole County. Their input and support has allowed us to provide our community with a complete range of medical services, including:

- The Central Florida Heart Center
The only open-heart surgery center in Seminole County.
- The Baby Place
Pampering for new moms in private suites.
- FastTrac Emergency Services
Allowing patients to be seen with less waiting time.
- A Full Service Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory
- State-of-the-Art diagnostic imaging services
- Inpatient and Outpatient physical therapy services

Our highly qualified medical staff of more than 200 physicians, representing 36 specialties provide the utmost in care to thousands of your neighbors every day. If you would like more information about our doctors, please contact our Physician Referral Service at 330-9446 or 1-800-492-2747. We would be happy to refer you to a physician who can meet all of your healthcare needs.

And then, you'll know why we are celebrating.
