KIDLIAUS

Woody Allen

Chapter One.
He was as tough and romantic as the city he loved.
Behind his black-rimmed glasses was the coiled sexual power of a jungle cat... New York was his town.
And it always would be." - Woody Allen, Manhattan (1979)

Early Career

A PROLIFIC WRITER AND DIRECTOR, Allen often appeared in his own plays and films, including What's New, Pussycat? in 1965 and his first play, Don't Drink the Water, on Broadway the following year. He made his directorial debut in 1966 with What's Up, Tiger Lily?, his career really beginning to soar by 1969 with Take the Money and Run.

Allen followed with Bananas (1971), Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex (But Were Afraid to Ask) (1972), Play It Again, Sam (1972) and Sleeper (1973). The filmmaker also wrote humorous short prose pieces throughout his career, many of which were originally published in The New Yorker magazine.

Career Highlights

ALLEN'S CAREER BREAKTHROUGH came in 1977 with Annie Hall, starring Diane Keaton, with whom Allen became romantically involved. He starred, directed and co-wrote the movie (with Marshall Brickman), and it went on to win four Academy Awards, including for best picture, best director and best screenplay. Manhattan, released in 1979, was his homage to his beloved New York City, a setting for many of his future films.

Over the next two decades, Allen produced mostly hits and some misses, and a combination of comedies and drama, including 1982's A Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy—the first of Allen's films to star his new love, Mia Farrow. In 1986, Hannah and Her Sisters earned Allen his second Oscar (best original screenplay) and broke box-office records, taking in $18 million. He and Farrow maintained a relationship during this period, but never married.

Late Career

ALLEN BEGAN THE NEW MILLENNIUM with a string of comedies and mixed reviews, including Match Point in 2005, Vicky Cristina Barcelona in 2008 and the romantic comedy Midnight in Paris in 2011, for which he won the 2012 Oscar for best original screenplay. To Rome with Love, a 2012 episodic comedy that featured an international cast, marked his first on-screen role in six years. Two years later, Allen was nominated for an Academy Award in the category of best original screenplay for the film Blue Jasmine (2013).

In 2014, Allen released the romantic comedy Magic in the Moonlight, which starred Colin Firth. In 2015, he turned back to drama with the release of his film Irrational Man, which brought together Joaquin Phoenix and Emma Stone in the starring roles.

BEES vs. PESTICIDES

Cumulative Mortality %

The honeybee, Apis mellifera, is undergoing a worldwide decline whose origin is still in debate. Studies performed for twenty years suggest that this decline may involve both infectious diseases and exposure to pesticides. Joint action of pathogens and chemicals are known to threaten several organisms but the combined effects of these stressors were poorly investigated in honeybees. Our study was designed to explore the effect of Nosema ceranae infection on honeybee sensitivity to sublethal doses of the insecticides fipronil and thiocloprid.

3D PRINTED EXO PROSTHETIC

1. Fit Socket technology scan internal anatomy, specific tissue properties and stiffness of amputated limb

Titanium is cheap, light, strong and hypoallergenic is commonly used as medical steel.

2. Parts are scanned and printed out of titanium by a 3D designer to fit the amputee's style and aesthetic needs.

3. Parts are assembled and ready to be fit and worn

Current Process

Mold → Cast → Vacuum Form → Fit
Assemble → Adjust → Repeat

New Process

Scan → Print → Assemble
