Trees in Mythology

According, to the Vamana Purana the following plants arose as listed below

1. Lotus (Neiumbium speciosum) from Vishnu's navel.
2. Kadamba (Anthocephallus cadamba) from the forepart of the hand of Kandaripa.
3. Banyan (Ficus bcngalensis) from Manibhadra, the chief of the Yakshas.
4. Datura (Datura fastuosa) from the chest of Siva.
5. Khadira (Acacia catechu) from the middle body of Brahma.
6. Bread fruit (Adansonia digitata) from the body of Visvavarman.
7. Kurchi flowers (Jasminium pubescens) from the palm of Parvati.
8. Sindhuvaraka (Vitex negundo) from the temple of Ganesha.
- 9 Palasa (Butea frondosa) from the right side of Yama.
10. Udumbara (Ficus glomerata) from the north-south side of Yama.
11. Vrsa drig (Banduvija pentapates) from Rudra.
12. Bamboo (Banduvija pentapates) from Skanda.
13. Aswattha (Ficus religiosa) from Ravi.
14. Sami (Acacia suma) from Katyani.
15. Bilva (Aegle marmelos) from Lakshmi.

Trees / Plants Assigned to Directions

Smaller shrubs may be planted on the East or North sides, but no trees should be planted in the North-East corner as they block the useful morning sun rays.

Tall trees like Coconut can be planted in the South-West, West sides but should not be too close to a building as they block the sunlight completely. A tree should be planted such that its shadow should not fall on the house, at least between 9.A.M to 3P.M.

Large trees like Peepal, Banyan should not be located too near the house as their roots can damage the foundation and compound wall. Also, the large trees absorb most of the sunlight, meaning these positive rays will not be received by the building.

Good trees that can be planted in a house compound are useful trees like coconut, neem, betel, sandalwood, lemon, pineapple, bilva, almond, jackfruit, pomegranate, mango, amla, and katha.

Avoid flowering trees in gardens Reason They shed leaves during the summer.

Trees with insects worms, honey bees, bumble bee, owls, serpents, should be avoided for obvious reasons. If a tree must be removed because it is inauspicious or for other reasons, the day before cutting the tree, one should express regret to the tree, and it must be removed from its rooting. A new tree should be planted in its place within the next three months. This is a way of conserving nature.
