Love Your Historic Windows

By Erin Anheier, V.P. Development

What a pleasure to see National Grid recently debunk the myth that replacing windows is the best way to insulate a house. They point out there are more cost effective solutions such as sealing air leaks or adding insulation. As preservationists, we love historic buildings and appreciate the beauty of their well-thought-out window design and placement. We know that the wood of historic windows exceeds the quality of what is currently available.

Historic wooden windows were designed to last “forever.” The Museum’s 1834 church still has functioning windows. You would be hard-pressed to find replacement windows with even a 20 year warranty, many are just five years. You will surely be replacing the replacements before you have recouped their cost in energy savings.

Windows are a character defining element of any architecture. Change the windows and any building will look “wrong.” Buildings that would otherwise qualify for the National Register of Historic Places (and therefore tax credits for rehabilitation) have been rejected due to replacement windows. Replacements usually have less glass surface than originals because they are fitted inside the original framing, or worse, the framing is changed and the new windows are the wrong size or proportion.

If your historic house still has its original windows, rejoice! Are they drafty or in need of paint? Don’t fret. Replacing caulk and weather stripping will stop the drafts. Painting is an easy project – just don’t paint them shut! Cracked or broken panes can be replaced. Historic windows can be restored by a skilled contractor or the average homeowner. These are inexpensive repairs. Last year we held a workshop to educate people on the maintenance of historic windows. Our expert, Steve Jordan, stated that in decades of experience, he has rarely seen a pre-1940 window that could not be restored.

If you have historic windows, treasure them and maintain them – they add beauty and value to your property.

Greetings from Washington, D.C.

By Diane Palmer

Hello friends! We now have a wonderful view of the Washington National Cathedral, a beautiful landmark listed on the National Register of Historic Places. We are having fun exploring D.C., but miss our Albion community! Even though we have moved we will remain connected to the Cobblestone Museum. Be on the lookout for our new video that will introduce visitors to the Museum. I am working with Drew and Megan Davidson to see this project to completion.

Missing you all!

Exhibit of Rogers Groups

Two examples of Rogers Groups that will be highlighted in the new exhibit opening in May, 2019. (Left) "Checkers at the Farm," 1875, Plaster. (Right) "Is It So Nominated in the Bond," 1880, depicts a scene from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."

During the 2019 season, a special exhibit of Rogers Groups will be on display in the Danolds Room at the Cobblestone Museum. John Rogers (1829-1904) became known during his long career as "the people's sculptor." Before the Civil War, sculpture was largely patronized by the very rich. Hand carved marble works of art and cast bronze statues were very expensive. By contrast, Rogers sculpted in more affordable plaster and painted the color of putty to hide dust. His genre subjects, often with an element of humor, appealed to the middle class. These could be ordered by catalogue and shipped in wooden boxes packed with saw dust and a small bottle of paint if a touch-up was needed.

These published groups were sold for around $15 each or about $450 in today's dollars. Between 1859 and 1893, John Rogers sculpted 80 different subjects. These were cast at his New York shop where there were 25 employees. It is estimated he sold over 80,000 groups. By the 1880s it seemed that families that did not have a John Rogers Group were not conforming to the times. Even Abraham Lincoln and Gen. George Custer were known to own Rogers Groups. It was said of him at the time that "no American sculptor has remotely approached Rogers in popularity!"

There were of course others who tried to copy Rogers' work but these competitors never achieved the quality of detail or acclaim that Rogers did. But by the 1890s, their faddish appeal was on the wane. However, by the 1930s, renewed interest came about and Rogers Groups became highly sought after by antique collectors.

Cobblestone trustee Bill Lattin will curate and share his collection of Rogers Groups and photographs in this seasonal exhibit. Plans are underway as of this writing to repaint the Danolds Room a more suitable color to enhance the exhibit. An opening reception will take place in May when Lattin will give a brief talk and explanation of Rogers' background and statuary.

Progressive Organ Concert II: "So Much More Than a Concert" - Saturday, May 11 at 4:30pm

By Aaron Grabowski

On Saturday May 11, we will take a journey in tastes and sounds to three different Village of Medina churches. The first stop is Trinity Lutheran, which has a 1960s three manual Holtkamp organ nearly complete from its original specification, when it was originally installed in its first home in the chapel of the Episcopal Cathedral in Cincinnati, Ohio. This organ was built in the Neo-Baroque style fashionable of mid-1950 to 1980. This style emulated the European ideal of the late 17th to the mid-18th century style of organ building of the times. Not unlike the Victorian concept of what a Gothic church might look like, the Neo-Baroque style was an approximation of the actual style, colorful reeds and bright upper work that gives a Neo-Baroque its unique flavor and brightness. It almost sounds like we are talking about a wine!! (Wine and appetizers will be enjoyed at Trinity Lutheran.)

The next stop on our journey is St. Mary's Roman Catholic

Church. The building is a fine example of late Victorian Gothic architecture wherein an early 20th century organ was installed. The organ was originally installed to support the Latin Mass celebrated at the time. The organ fell into disrepair and parts of it were sold for pennies on the dollar sometime in the 1960s. In 2010, the writer of this article endeavored to start rebuilding the organ. The project, still in progress, has taken on a life of its own. It will be one of the largest if not the largest organs in Orleans County with three manuals and approximately 54 ranks of pipes. It emulates the mid-18th century French and German classical style of fully developed foundational pipes and bold and assertive reeds with clear sounds. (The delightful music enjoyed at St. Mary’s will be supplemented by a delicious dinner prepared and served by Zambistro.)

The last stop is to historic St. John’s Episcopal Church -- the “church in the middle of the road.” The organ was originally a good example of late Victorian style organ building made by the Hook and Hasting firm of Massachusetts. Sometime in the late 1950s (I’m not sure exactly when) the Buffalo, NY firm of Herman Schlicker rebuilt the instrument to give it a somewhat Neo- Baroque sound and specification. This is the smallest organ in our tour with two manuals and 18 ranks over a somewhat quiet disposition that pleases the pallet. It will have a nice finish to our dining experience! (The dessert course will be enjoyed at St. John’s at the conclusion of the evening.) Tickets for the Progressive Organ Concert II are available at the Cobblestone Museum or online at cobblestonemuseum.org. Single tickets are $40 and two tickets are $75.

Cobblestones To Our East

This nicely maintained cobblestone house at 8412 Emerick Road, Town of Lysander, Onondaga County, was built in 1850 at a settlement once known as Hortontown by Elias Cox. Cox's great-granddaughter, Mrs. Marshall Bradway, recalled it took three days to transport a load of stone used to build it, by ox cart from Lake Ontario, a distance of 24 miles. It is of Greek Revival architecture.

There's a NEW opportunity for talented individuals with SEWING skills. We need a few volunteers to create period costumes for some of our Living History re-enactors, as well as some costume accessories for participants in the 2019 Ghost Walk. Patterns and fabric will be supplied.

We have NEW opportunities for FAMILIES seeking involvement. Help at special events or behind-the-scenes to complete necessary projects within the Museum buildings.

There's a continuing need for additional DOCENTS, GREETERS at Admissions and Special Events, OFFICE helpers, USED BOOKS volunteers, and PARKING ATTENDANTS to join our roster for assistance throughout the season.

Cobblestone Trail Bus Trip II Wayne & Monroe Counties—May 18

By Sue Bonafini, Assistant Director

Are you a cobblestone aficionado or history lover? Do you have a fascination with antique quilts, coverlets, or clocks and timepieces? Then you'll want to reserve your seat today to join Cobblestone Museum staff for an exciting 9am – 4pm road trip on Saturday, May 18, exploring cobblestone gems and museums in Monroe and Wayne Counties.

Upon arrival at the Cobblestone Museum, a grab 'n go bakery treat from Grinds Café will be available for you to enjoy before or during your comfortable motor coach ride to Webster Baptist Church – the largest cobblestone building in the U.S. still being used for its original purpose. In Palmyra, we'll take in the view from the home at the Martin Harris Farm, built of cobblestones hauled from Lake Ontario's shoreline.

We'll be greeted by Director Bonnie Hays at the Alling Coverlet Museum, which features the largest collection of American hand-woven coverlets in the U.S. It takes more than six years to rotate their public displays! Take a self-guided tour of the collections or browse their gift shop before enjoying lunch steps away at Muddy Waters Café and Bistro, overlooking the Historic Erie Canal.

After lunch we head to Newark, another canal town, stopping at the Hoffman Clock Museum. Chris Clemens of Exploring NY describes, "... a fun, somewhat quirky stop-off, ... a fascinating glimpse into New York and the clockmakers that once practiced their craft here..." A final pitstop at the Cobblestone Starbucks in Victor, will allow passengers a chance to purchase an optional snack or beverage for the return trip to our starting point.

$50 for Cobblestone Society members, or $55 for non-members, will cover all transportation, admission fees, and food costs. Reserve early to avoid disappointment, seats are limited. Visit CobblestoneMuseum.org or call 585-589-9013 for additional information or reservations.

Erie Canalway Honors Cobblestone Museum

The Cobblestone Museum is pleased to announce the receipt of an Event & Festival Sponsorship Grant from the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor for our "Old Timers Fair," to be held on Saturday, September 14th, 2019. This sponsorship is one of only 28 awards that are being presented statewide in 2019 for events and festivals that highlight cultural heritage within the Erie Canalway National Heritage Corridor.

Erie Canalway travelers and regional tourists will be invited to enjoy "Old Timers Fair" activities throughout our historic campus. Costumed docents will lead tours throughout the day and explain how the opening of the Erie Canal in 1825 created the impetus for local farmers to leave behind their pioneer log cabins, and build the amazing architectural structures that comprise the Cobblestone National Historic Landmark District today.

Farmers Hall Repairs Underway

Constructed in 1855 in the Greek Revival style, Farmers Hall served Kendall as a Universalist Church for several decades. In the 1870s, the German Lutherans became owners of the building and used it for services. It later became Kendall's Town Hall and served that purpose until a new facility was constructed.

In 1978, the building was given to the museum. CETA workers dismantled the building and reconstructed it on a parcel of land given to the museum by Mrs. Neva Murray. It now functions as an exhibition hall for 19th and early 20th century farming implements.

In 2018, a Structural Evaluation conducted by Bero Architecture uncovered several hidden (and not so hidden) issues that have crept up since Farmers Hall was reassembled on-site in 1978. Large among those issues were shifting foundation piers, and a separation and inadequacy in the rafters and ceiling beams that allowed the outer walls to start to lean outward.

These issues are currently being addressed through the help of the Curtis Foundation that provided a grant to begin these repairs.

"Piping" in Genesee County

Everything looks pretty "normal" at this beautiful cobblestone home located at 9295 Fargo Road in Stafford. But, a closer look at the mortar embellishment in the lower photo illustrates a fairly rare form of cobblestone masonry called "piping."

This handiwork is thought to be the trademark of Giles Miner, who was a prominent farmer in the Town of Stafford, Genesee County, in the 1840s. Known as the Miner House, this cobblestone treasure originally had a companion smokehouse as seen on the left side of the upper photo. (Photo courtesy Richard Palmer)

Cobblestone Donuts

If you're cobblestone house hunting along Route 104 on a Saturday or Sunday between now and the end of November, look for Mrs. Randolph's 1833 cobblestone gem, and have one of her homemade doughnuts.

Old timers still remember making the trek to Niagara County to purchase some of Mrs. Clayton Randolph's "Cobblestone" Donuts. For several decades this dedicated baker made fresh fry cakes every day in her charming Cobblestone house at 8472 Ridge Road in the Town of Hartland. (Pictured below.)

Many folks stopped by while commuting on the Ridge, and even more made a special trip to acquire these famous fry cakes. The only disappointment would be to arrive too late in the day and Mrs. Randolph would be "sold-out."

Built in the 1830s by Washington Chaplin, this simple story-and-a-half farmhouse with red sandstone quoins, had two wood frame additions over the years. The covered porch provided the entryway to Mrs. Randolph's donut shop.

Railroad Shanty

The Cobblestone Museum has a great collection of ancillary buildings and structures that help "round-out" its collection of historic architecture. One such building is the Flagman's Shanty, formerly located at the Clinton Street Railroad crossing in the Village of Albion. It serves as reminder of our early transportation heritage when flagmen were needed to protect many local intersections in a day and age before modern crossing arms and lights.

The Flagman's Shanty was a gift to the Museum in the early 1980s by Marie Costello who gave the structure in memory of her sister, Mrs. Angeline Epke. During the early years at the Museum, the shanty served as the home of the Cobblestone Café for outdoor events like the Old Timers Fair. From within, a great assortment of home-made pies were cut and served to many a hungry fairgoer.

The Buildings and Grounds Committee gave the Flagman's Shanty some much needed TLC last year. The preservation work included new roofing shingles, complete exterior repainting, and rebuilding the historic spire at the peak of the hip roof.
