Dear Friends,

We mourn the passing of our friend and longtime board member, Ted Koplar, in April. Ted was a television pioneer and entrepreneur, and St. Louis benefited from his generosity. He will be missed.

May is Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month, and it's also Mental Health Awareness Month. It has been an uneasy time in our country, with the rise in violence against Asian Americans and the pandemic's toll on mental health.

Racial equity gives us the strength to affirm our shared values and keep working on behalf of all children, families, and communities. We stand in solidarity with the Asian American community and those in our community who are hurting.

You will find a full schedule of Asian American and Pacific Islander content on the Asian American experience and their extraordinary contributions to our country in this issue. Amy Tan, who graces our cover this issue, is one of many.

You'll also find programming that celebrates our humanity, offers resources, builds character, and unites us. I hope you check out our offerings.

Inside Nine PBS, we're focused on creating a positive, more inclusive, and high-performing culture. The Women's Foundation of Greater St. Louis recently recognized Nine PBS as a top place for women to work. It's an honor to receive this distinction for all the women who work at Nine PBS, those on our board, and to me personally as the first female president and CEO of the organization. When women do well, everyone benefits.

Thank you to our team, our volunteers, our board, and our donors and members for the patience, resilience, flexibility, and deep commitment you have shown to serving our community while working remotely, embracing the new normal, and rising to unprecedented challenges.

The Nine PBS 2020 Annual Report to the Community reflects and celebrates our team's impact producing stories that moved us during a particularly challenging year. Find it at ninepbs.org/annualreport.

Best,

Amy Shaw

Novelist Becomes the Voice of a Generation of Asian Americans

Her family legacy provides Tan an inexhaustible well of creative inspiration.

Although Amy Tan: Unintended Memoir was programmed to coincide with Asian Pacific American Heritage Month in May, hateful rhetoric and crimes against Asian American communities were occurring at the time of publication. Nine PBS stands in solidarity with the Asian American community. To learn more, go to ninepbs.org/asianamericans.

Amy Tan's success was central to the history of Asian American representation in literature and on-screen. American Masters—Amy Tan: Unintended Memoir is an intimate portrait of the groundbreaking author. It interweaves archival imagery, including home movies and personal photographs, animation, and original interviews to tell the inspiring story of Tan's life and career.

Her hit debut novel, The Joy Luck Club (1989), catapulted her to commercial and critical success, spending over 40 weeks on The New York Times' best-seller list. With the 1993 blockbuster film adaptation that followed, which was selected for the National Film Registry in 2020, as well as additional best-selling novels, librettos, short stories, and memoirs, Tan firmly established herself as one of the most prominent and respected literary voices working today.

She speaks with remarkable frankness about traumas she's faced in her life and how her writing has helped her heal. The film traces her meteoric rise, from the point when she picked up fiction writing as a mental break from her freelance writing business to being offered three book deals after completing only three short stories.

Humanity Infuses Her Work

Born to Chinese immigrant parents in Oakland, CA, in 1952, it would be decades before Tan would come to fully understand how her mother's battle with suicidal tendencies was rooted in a legacy of suffering common to women who survived the ancient Chinese tradition of concubinage. However, this legacy provides Tan an inexhaustible well of creative inspiration, and her work has made her a global icon for Asian Americans.

Tan's other best-selling novels include The Kitchen God's Wife, The Hundred Secret Senses, The Bonesetter's Daughter, Saving Fish from Drowning, and The Valley of Amazement, and her work has been translated into 35 languages. Featuring footage of her performing as the lead singer of the Rock Bottom

Reminders, a band comprised of best-selling authors, including Stephen King, Scott Turow and Dave Barry, as well as a look at her recent explorations in nature journal sketching, the film offers an inside look at a brave artist whose humanity infuses all of her work.

The documentary had its world premiere at the 2021 Sundance Film Festival in February. The last completed film from director James Redford (1962–2020), American Masters—Amy Tan: Unintended Memoir features new interviews with Tan; fellow writers Kevin Kwan, Isabel Allende, Dave Barry, and Ronald Bass; actors from The Joy Luck Club, including Lisa Lu, Rosalind Chao, Tamlyn Tomita, and Kieu Chinh; and friends and family.

IN MEMORIAM

Edward “Ted” Koplar, 1943 2021

Edward “Ted” Koplar, a longtime friend of Nine PBS and a board member since 2008, passed away April 4, 2021. He was 77.

Koplar served on the Nine PBS Board of Directors as vice chair from 2009–2011 and presided as chair in 2012. He had been an emeritus member since 2017. While on the board, he was instrumental in the success of the first public capital campaign and the design and completion of the Public Media Commons. He was an advocate for our Stay Tuned public affairs series, American Graduate, Arts Are Alive programming, and the 2012 Homeland: Immigration in America special.

Koplar was a television pioneer and entrepreneur, making his mark in broadcasting, video production, and real estate. As president and chief executive officer of Koplar Communications International, he grew KPLR-TV into one of the most successful independent television stations in the country.

Nine PBS Named Top Place for Women to Work

In late March, the Women’s Foundation of Greater St. Louis recognized Nine PBS as a top place for women to work in its fourth annual “Women in the Workplace: Employment Scorecard.” Nine PBS was recognized as one of 21 employers in St. Louis demonstrating excellence in four areas of workplace gender equity—leadership, compensation, flexible work policies, and recruitment and retention.

Unlike most “Best Places to Work” reports that rely on employee opinion surveys, the Women in the Workplace: Employment Scorecard looked at objective criteria and outcomes, including women in top leadership roles, most highly compensated employees, starting wage, flexible work policies, and recruitment and retention programs targeted at advancing women.

“ I am proud to carry on Nine PBS’s 66-year commitment to our region as its first female president and chief executive officer. ”

Local Teens Perform in Talent Competition

Fifty metro-area high school acts competed in the semifinal round of the 11th Annual St. Louis Teen Talent Competition. The 14 acts (20 students) who moved to the finals performed in April on the Fabulous Fox stage, which will air as a special Nine PBS broadcast on May 24.

Due to pandemic constraints, the competition was not filmed in front of a live audience, but the finalists had the opportunity to perform in front of a small group of their closest family and friends.

The full list of finalists can be found at foxpacf.org/2021-slttc-finalists.

The Fox Performing Arts Charitable Foundation will award nearly $50,000 in prizes, cash awards, and college scholarships to the top competitors. Finalists will be judged on technical ability, interpretation, stage presence, and originality.

Immediately following the broadcast, join us for the live after-party on the Nine PBS Facebook page, where you will have a chance to vote for the Audience Choice Award.

The broadcast is coproduced by Nine PBS and Fox Performing Arts Charitable Foundation, supported by Grand Center Arts Academy.

- ▶ The 2020 winner, hip-hop dancer DemBari Taneh (pictured here) will be featured in the special.

Ways to Watch: Monday, May 24, 7 pm, with encores Saturday, May 29, 3 pm, and Sunday, May 30, 9:30 am and 2 pm on Nine PBS. Livestream during broadcast or anytime at ninepbs.org.

New Kids Series Inspired by Mister Rogers' Neighborhood

Donkey Hodie is a whimsical, new PBS KIDS® puppet series produced by Fred Rogers Productions and Spiffy Pictures. It encourages preschoolers to aim high, embrace challenges, and work hard to achieve their goals.

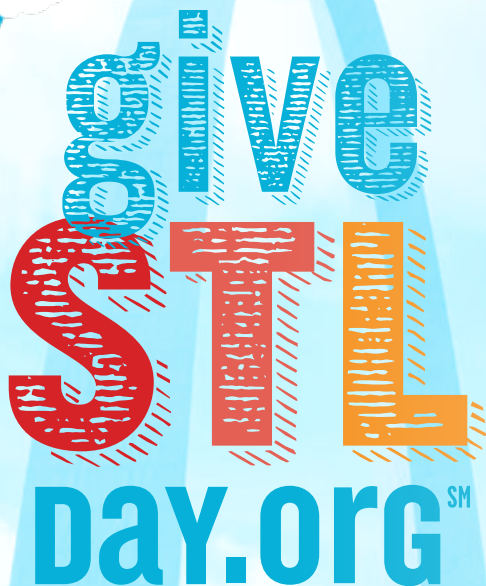

The colorful multiplatform show follows the adventures of Donkey Hodie, granddaughter of the original Donkey Hodie character from Mister Rogers' Neighborhood (now known as "Grumpy Hodie"). Original new music, along with reimagined versions of Rogers's songs, is a big part of the show and reinforces the stories' positive messages.

Ways to Watch: Broadcast premiere on Nine PBS: May 3, 9 am, on Nine PBS KIDS: May 3, 3 pm. Livestream or anytime at ninepbs.org/ninepbskids or the PBS KIDS App.

▶ Watch Your Favorite PBS KIDS Shows on the Go

The PBS KIDS Video App gives kids and parents access to thousands of free videos, including full episodes and clips from top PBS KIDS series. You can watch your favorite shows without an internet connection using the new download feature on your tablet or mobile device. This feature is available for phones and tablets on Android and iOS. To begin downloading videos, a network connection is required. Once videos are downloaded, they can be watched with or without a network connection.

Schools of the Future through a '90s Lens

In the era of The Lion King, Friends, and Playstation, Nine PBS examined the potential impact of technology on education in a four-part series called Schools of the Future (parts one and two were distributed nationally). By the time the first episode aired in 1994, computers were already considered indispensable, and kids had discovered how easy it was to do homework with “word processing” and explore resources at distant libraries.

In the January 1996 edition of the KETC Guide, the series producer, Mary Leahy, wrote that teachers were being trained to equip students with the skills they need to not only ask questions, but find the answers themselves. Enter dial-up internet access via modem to online databases and CD-ROMs.

She noted “how touchy machines can be about entries” and “the syntax error” her five-year-old got by entering, “How come Davy Crockett got deaded.” (When entered in Google today, about 605,000 results were returned.) This was back in the day of computers equipped with 8 megabytes of memory. Today, an average computer has up to 32 gigabytes.

Residents in some Missouri towns were concerned that “interactive instructional TV” would close schools. But one teacher interviewed correctly predicted that the technology might be a high-tech lifeline for rural schools because it hooks them up to the outside world, to big universities, and vocational schools.

Computers were thought of as electronic workbooks, with a tendency for educational TV to feel just like a normal classroom. But it was just the starting point, said Linda Roberts, former director, U.S. Department of Educational Technology. “Every technological tool offers a new set of capabilities, and lots of times we don’t even know what those capabilities are.”

“I think my biggest criticism at this stage would be that the schools are often mindlessly applying technology. ...without asking more fundamental questions about...how to educate. Could we use technology to do something completely different that would be more effective?” wondered Christopher Dede, George Mason University.

Nine PBS’s latest foray into educational television is Teaching in Room 9, which began in April 2020 in response to the coronavirus, which necessitated remote learning. The on-air classroom series connects students with their teachers via video camera, but it is much more playful, aligns to state-approved learning goals, and has a diverse lineup of educators.

► Check out the series at ninepbs.org/room9.

Nine PBS's Community Impact Initiatives

Building strong relationships with partners is the crux of Nine PBS's engagement work. By providing reliable and accountable services over the years, Nine PBS has fostered community trust and developed programming informed by community priorities. Two important partnerships making moves this spring are with East St. Louis School District 189 and Saint Louis Public Schools.

Saint Louis Public Schools

Since 2017, Nine PBS and Saint Louis Public Schools (SLPS) have been strong partners united around the goal to advance the well-being of vulnerable learners and connect educators to essential resources.

On February 12, Nine PBS held a training for SLPS early educators. This virtual professional development engaged pre-k teachers in playful learning strategies, discussed how to approach the topics of race and racism with young learners, and provided tips for how to meaningfully integrate media into their learning environments.

This training was so successful that Nine PBS is holding a second training on May 4 for the additional teachers eager to attend. Through these two trainings, Nine PBS will have extended this professional learning opportunity to all 90 Saint Louis Public Schools pre-k educators, impacting almost 1,500 vulnerable early learners.

This work is possible, in part, thanks to PNC Grow Up Great.

AS A RESULT OF PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT:

Early education resources

Nine PBS KIDS resources build social and emotional learning, literacy, STEM, social studies, and art skills for children across the region.

ninepbs.org/learningtoolkit

East St. Louis School District 189

When Director of Communications and Strategic Partnerships Sydney Stigge-Kaufman, MSW, shared the district's need for early education resources, Nine PBS and Ameren joined together to support these young learners.

On March 9, Nine PBS, in partnership with Ameren, distributed essential learning resources to 302 kindergarten and 414 first-grade students in East St. Louis School District 189. First graders received Nine PBS Learning Kits with school supplies, and kindergarteners received PBS KIDS® Playtime Pads preloaded with educational games, apps, and videos for hours of educational fun with or without the internet. In addition, all students received a book from St. Louis Black Authors of Children's Literature thanks to support from Dana Brown Charitable Trust.

Superintendent Arthur R. Culver said, "The past year has been particularly challenging for our young learners while in remote learning. We are grateful for the additional digital devices and supplies that will help engage students in learning."

To ensure the long-term impact of these resources, Nine PBS is providing professional development for East St. Louis School District 189 educators and parents of kindergarten and first-grade students. Together, they will strengthen their digital literacy skills and confidence implementing proven PBS KIDS educational resources in the classroom and at home.

This collaborative effort between families and schools is the kind of innovation needed to close achievement gaps. In St. Clair County in the Metro

East, 67% of third graders were below grade level in English/Language Arts in 2019 (IL Report Card, 2020). Nine PBS is excited to grow the footprint of our on-the-ground work to support high-quality early education across our entire region.

Nine PBS has been working to build relationships in East St. Louis for the last three years through active participation in the Greater East St. Louis Early Learning Partnership and with the Erikson Institute's Early Development Instrument (EDI), a neighborhood-level population measure for the development of young children. This new programming with East St. Louis School District 189 is the result of years of work in the region.

- PBS KIDS Playtime Pads can be enjoyed for hours without the internet, which helps to bridge the digital divide.

American Experience: Billy Graham

As an intimate of presidents and other leaders and a public figure of acknowledged moral authority, Billy Graham attracted thousands to evangelistic campaigns he called “crusades.” In addition to serving as a biography of Graham, the film uses his story as a lens to gain perspective on the evolution of American evangelicalism in the last quarter of the 20th century.

Living St. Louis Special: Early Childhood Education

Research shows the significant, long-term benefits of early childhood education; yet, equity in education has been a long-standing issue for our region's earliest learners, children from birth to age five. From the need for affordable, high-quality programs to the struggle of childcare providers to stay in business and retain quality teachers, the special explores the challenges our region faces and some of the solutions to ensuring the well-being of our most vulnerable learners.

Tulsa: The Fire and the Forgotten

The film examines one of the worst incidents of racial violence in American history on its 100th year anniversary, May 31, 1921. Known as the Tulsa Race Massacre, a mob of white residents set fire to “Black Wall Street”—hundreds of Black-owned businesses and homes in the Greenwood district of Tulsa, OK—killing an estimated 100–300 Black residents and leaving an estimated 10,000 Black residents homeless.

Channel 9.3 and Spectrum 185 | May features a collection of films that highlight the Asian American experience and their extraordinary contributions to our country.

America ReFramed: Far East Deep South

A fateful trip to Cleveland, MS, to visit the gravesite of his father, only raises more questions and prompts Charles Chiu and his family to dig even deeper into their past. They meet historians and Mississippi Delta residents from the Black, White, and Chinese communities who help fill in the blanks to their family's life in Mississippi. At every turn, more surprising revelations pop up and change their family forever.

Tuesday, May 4, 7 pm

America ReFramed: Curtain Up!

The film follows elementary school kids in New York's Chinatown as they prepare for a musical production and begin to discover their identities. Behind the scenes, they face cultural stereotypes, families' expectations, and uncertainties after graduation.

Tuesday, May 11, 7 pm

DON'T MISS

Hamtramck, USA, is a documentary exploring life and democracy in U.S.'s first Muslim majority city. Tuesday, May 25, 7 pm.

Us on Masterpiece

In this new drama, tinged with humor and heartbreak, Tom Hollander and Saskia Reeves play a couple who embark on a long-planned grand tour of Europe, despite the wife's wrenching proclamation that she wants to leave the marriage. The four-part series is based on a novel by best-selling author David Nicholls.
