A LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

ALUMNI AND FRIENDS...

Happy Holidays! The fall 2013 semester at MGCCC has been an exciting one filled with progress. I hope you enjoy the photos and stories from Homecoming, the Festival of Lights and other noteworthy college happenings provided in this edition of Action.

Featured in this edition are the many new MGCCC programs and locations across the region, including the Haley Reeves Barbour Maritime Training Academy in Pascagoula and the new Nursing and Simulation Center at Tradition. These new facilities will provide MGCCC students with an innovative place to learn. They will also provide our educators with an environment that supports creative teaching methods that will foster student success.

Also showcased are distinguished alumni who have been honored for their many talents - from Teacher of the Year to appointment to public service. I am exceedingly proud of the many successes of our alumni.

Finally, the Bacot McCarty Foundation and Todd Trenchard are featured for their support of the community and MGCCC. Without the generous support of the Alumni Association and MGCCC Foundation, we would not be able to provide our students and future alumni with the scholarships they need.

We look forward to your continued involvement in the New Year!

Sincerely,

Mary S. Graham, Ph.D.

Local business and civic leaders join together each year to help raise money through the Bacot McCarty Foundation's annual Jolly McCarty Memorial Golf Classic. This two-day extravaganza has raised more than $2 million for programs all across South Mississippi, including various programs at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College. Todd Trenchard, a New Orleans native and a member of the MGCCC Foundation Board of Directors, was in his 40s when he realized that he was wellsuited for volunteer work. In fact, his outlook on life changed - he discovered that life is about helping others.

Through his work, which has included being director of Community Relations for the Homes of Grace and Development Director for Youth for Christ, Trenchard met Jolly McCarty, who was on the Board of Directors for the Homes of Grace. Through McCarty, Trenchard met many more people in the community, including Royce Cumbest, president and CEO of Merchants & Marine Bank. "God started opening door after door for me," he says.

Cumbest eventually hired Trenchard to replace McCarty, who had passed away from cancer. Today, he is the bank's senior vice president and Marketing and Business Development director. "I would never have gotten to where I am today if it had not been for Jolly McCarty, Royce Cumbest, Brother Bill Barton, Dave Dennis, Robbie Maxwell and Mike Dickson. These men are giants, and I am forever grateful to them all," Trenchard says.

When McCarty passed away, Trenchard and Carl Crawford, owner of Shell Landing, planned a memorial for their friend - the Jolly McCarty Memorial Celebrity Golf Classic, now one of the biggest and most anticipated fundraiser events in Jackson County. The Bacot McCarty Foundation, which addresses the needs of youth, education, seniors and the arts across South Mississippi, partners with the IP Casino Resport Spa and Merchants & Marine Bank for the event. Under the direction of Trenchard, millions of dollars have been raised for agencies across the region.

The Bacot McCarty Foundation is also a supporter of Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College. It contributes to the Athletic Hall of Fame Banquet, Scholarship Gala and the Foundation. Merchants & Marine Bank also sponsors several MGCCC student scholarships. The bank and the Bacot McCarty Foundation also support the college's leadership-development programs.

Pearl River Valley EPA's Round Up for Education: Empowering students

Special to Action Magazine

More than 170 students from throughout Pearl River Valley Electric Power Association's 12-county service area have received scholarships of nearly $1,000 each to attend state community colleges during 2012-2013, thanks to the generous spirit and support of the association's member-consumers. Fifty-two scholarships were awarded to Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College students.

The Round Up for Education scholars program is funded by members who round their bills up to the nearest dollar each month, an average of about 50 cents monthly. Scholarships are available to members who round up, as well as for their spouses or dependent children who enroll for their first semester at a Mississippi community college in the fall.

"More than 90 percent of our members are presently enrolled in the programs," says Randy Wallace, Pearl River Valley Electric general manager. "Throughout our history, Pearl River Valley Electric has not only been providing electric service to rural areas, but working to improve the quality of life of our members and the communities where they live. We selected first-year community college students as a starting point to enhance the program's initial impact. Community colleges are an excellent value and are an ideal place to begin higher education for many of our members."

Pearl River Valley Electric serves more than 47,000 meters. Since the Round Up program began in November 2012, more than $184,000 has been collected and deposited in an account overseen by the Greater PineBelt Community Foundation. Ten percent of each year's funding will be set aside in an endowed fund for future use. The remaining money is divided equally among the number of eligible participants, resulting in 171 scholarships worth $963.74 per student this year.

"We are very grateful to Pearl River Valley Electric for this opportunity to help our students succeed," says Dr. Mary S. Graham, MGCCC president. "A degree in higher education means a better life for students. Sometimes, they need financial assistance to reach their educational goals. Round Up for Education is helping our students go to college and seize the opportunity for success."

Applications for 2014 scholarships will be available beginning in February.

"Round Up for Education is an exciting new program that we hope will have far-reaching results within the areas we all call home. For many years, we had looked to develop a cooperative effort that would have a positive impact on the lives of virtually all of our members—something that will help create educational opportunities and economic benefits."

Woodward and Taylor approved as campus vice presidents

At its December 11 meeting, the Board of Trustees approved Dr. Jonathan Woodward to serve as the vice president of the Jefferson Davis Campus, the Naval Construction Battalion Center and the Keesler Center, and Ladd Taylor, dean of Athletics at MGCCC, to serve as interim vice president of the Perkinston Campus and the George County Center.

MGCCC opens Healthcare Simulation Center at AMTC

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College held a ribbon-cutting ceremony on October 11 for the Healthcare Simulation Center at the Advanced Manufacturing and Technology Center in Gulfport. More than 100 community partners, students, faculty and staff attended the event. The new center will be the only simulation center with public access on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Part of the master plan for MGCCC's Nursing and Allied Health Division, the center will be available to Nursing and Allied Health students as well as clinical affiliates, community partners and public/private organizations not affiliated with the college. It will contain state-of-the-art simulators designed to help students and practitioners develop preparedness and insight that is best learned and practiced in realistic conditions.

Continuing-education opportunities will also be offered at the center using stateof-the-art health care simulators, and it will provide health care industry personnel the means to achieve recertification and to be up to date on new procedures and skills.

The center will include areas for obstetrics, intensive care, medical/surgical/pediatric and emergency/triage.

MGCCC signs agreement with EPA to promote environmental programs

Dr. Mary S. Graham, MGCCC president, with Ben Scaggs, director of the U.S. EPA Gulf of Mexico Program, at the December 5 signing of the MOU between MGCCC and the Gulf of Mexico program.

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College and the Environmental Protection Agency's Gulf of Mexico Program administrators signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) on December 5 at the Jackson County Campus Estuarine Education Center in Gautier.

The purpose of the MOU is to increase cooperation between MGCCC and the EPA's Gulf Program, including activities promoting equal opportunity in higher education; contributing to the capacity of the Gulf Program to provide high-quality education; encouraging participation of MGCCC students and faculty in the Gulf Program's activities; assisting the Gulf Program in expanding the conversation on environmentalism; working for environmental justice; and stimulating student interest in science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

MGCCC and the Gulf Program will work together to enhance environmental education in tandem with promoting interest in restoration and preservation of the Gulf of Mexico. MGCCC students will be offered opportunities for internships and co-ops; research opportunities, such as students monitoring water quality;

Gulf Program staff lectures; and community outreach and engagement, such as educational workshops or meetings.

MGCCC's Estuarine Education Center is home to an expansion of MGCCC's environmental and marine technology programs, with the additions of natural-resource management and outdoor-recreation leadership as associate degree programs, and serves as the focal point for community-based outreach and research-based programs.

The Gulf of Mexico Program was initiated in 1988 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as a non-regulatory program. Founded on the threefold principle of partnership, science-based information and citizen involvement, the Gulf Program joined the Great Lakes and Chesapeake Bay Programs as flagships of the nation's efforts to apply an adaptive management approach to large coastal freshwater and marine ecosystems. By partnering with MGCCC's Estuarine Education Center, the Gulf Program seeks to raise awareness on issues impacting the Gulf of Mexico and the citizens who rely either directly or indirectly on this critical resource.

New locations!

MGCCC adds two new locations to better serve its four-county district

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College and Ingalls Shipbuilding held a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the Haley Reeves Barbour Maritime Training Academy located on Jerry St. Pé Avenue in Pascagoula on November 6. The 75,000-square-foot facility will be operated as a partnership between Ingalls and MGCCC for apprenticeship training.

Governor Phil Bryant, speaking about the facility's opening, said, "This training academy will ensure that the next generation of shipbuilders in Mississippi maintains the worldclass shipbuilding reputation built right here at Ingalls."

With 400-600 apprentices being trained in 12 different program areas and who are co-enrolled as both students at MGCCC and in the Ingalls Apprenticeship Program, the facility will graduate a significant number of associate degree recipients in Maritime Technology. There are currently 390 apprentices in the programs, with 500 expected by the end of next year.

Apprentices will take two classes each semester tuition-free over the course of their four-year apprenticeship program.

Ingalls will pay the cost of training for these students.

"This academy represents the kind of innovative venture that both MGCCC and Ingalls work to achieve every day, one that will change the lives of many hundreds of Ingalls employees as they strive to not only advance their education but their careers as well," said Dr. Mary S. Graham, MGCCC president.

Classes will begin at the facility in January. Over the next few months, an array of student services will be available, including a full-time MGCCC representative to help with enrollment and counseling, a bookstore, and a library.

Funding for the center was provided through a $25 million post-Katrina discretionary grant from the state. The intent is to provide employability and educational opportunities for residents of South Mississippi and to provide a well-trained workforce for the shipbuilding industry. The apprenticeship program offered as a partnership between Ingalls and MGCCC is a model for success. It has been in place since 1959 and is the oldest apprenticeship program in the state.

Nursing and Simulation Center • Tradition

FROM LEFT: Connie Rocko, Harrison County Board of Supervisors District 5; Philip Gunn, Mississippi Speaker of the House; Joe Canizaro, chairman of First Bank and Trust's holding company, First Trust Corporation, and founder, president and CEO of Columbus Properties LP; Dr. Mary S. Graham, MGCCC president; and Governor Phil Bryant.

On November 20, MGCCC president Dr. Mary S. Graham, joined by Governor Phil Bryant and other state and local leaders, announced that the college had approved building a new Nursing and Simulation Center at the health care zone located on Hwy. 67 at Tradition. It will be MGCCC's 10th location within its four-county district.

This new complex, once completed, will double the number of nurses who will graduate from MGCCC's Associate Degree Nursing program and will provide an easy transition to both the School of Nursing programs at The University of Southern Mississippi and William Carey University through articulation agreements already in place between the institutions.

Funding sources for the complex include $12 million in Katrina Community Development Block Grant funds (KCDBG funds), a $1.5 million land donation from Tradition, and $2 million from MGCCC for the equipment for the complex and other project costs. Tradition will match the KCDBG funds with an additional $12 million of private funds in housing construction for students of MGCCC and William Carey University, which currently has about 1,000 students on its Tradition campus.

Tradition will donate the rights of way to the county for the roads and utilities to serve MGCCC and student housing. Tradition will also commit to MDA that it will be responsible for causing the Tradition Health Care Industry Zone (created under House Bill 722 in the 2013 Mississippi Legislative Session) to produce a minimum of $70 million in investments in capital improvements over the next five to 10 years. That time frame is projected to produce 2,500 new, permanent jobs in health care institutions and businesses.

Providing nurses to fill the current and future needs is a key element in making the health care industry viable in the state. A 2009 study shows that for every one new nurse, more than 22 lives are saved annually; there is an increase in worker productivity by $9,900 per year; $46,000 is saved annually on medical costs; and an increased productivity attributable to decreased length of stay in hospitals was estimated at $2,000 annually.

The Mississippi Health Care Industry Zone Act, administered by the MDA, is a program designed to provide incentives to qualified applicants of new health care related projects within the state of Mississippi. Blueprint Mississippi has a goal of 4,000 new nurses by the year 2016, so this announcement by MGCCC and Tradition is a vital step in meeting that goal.

Joseph C. Canizaro (pictured with Dr. Mary S. Graham at the Tradition event) is a key player in the development of the Nursing and Simulation Center. He is chairman of First Bank and Trust's holding company, First Trust Corporation, and founder, president and CEO of Columbus Properties LP, a commercial real estate development company that has acquired, developed and/or managed office buildings, mixed-use projects, and land and residential projects throughout the southeastern and southwestern United States.

Raised in Biloxi until moving to New Orleans in 1964, Canizaro is a trustee and former chairman of the Urban Land Institute and has served on the Advisory Committee on Real Estate Development of the Harvard University Graduate School of Design. In addition, he is a member of the Business Council of New Orleans and the Tulane University President's Council and founder and co-chairman of the Committee for a Better New Orleans.

His wife, Sue Ellen (Mattina), was a Perkette at Perkinston Junior College. In 2008, she was named to the MGCCC Bulldog Hall of Honor.

MGCCC wins Halbrook Award for second year MGCCC takes top spot in state with 98 percent graduation rate for athletes

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College has been named the winner of the annual Halbrook Award for having the highest graduation rate among all of Mississippi's community college athletic programs. The college was presented the award on October 22 during the Mississippi Association of Colleges and Universities Conference (MAC) at Hinds Community College's Eagle Ridge Conference Center in Raymond.

MGCCC, which has more than 200 student-athletes, produced a graduation rate of 98 percent for the 2012-2013 school year.

Two MGCCC athletes were also recognized for having the highest averages for athletics at MGCCC during the 2012-2013 school year. Softball player Julie Butler and baseball player Michael Gilbert were recognized along with 28 other community college students. Students from public and independent colleges and universities were also recognized.

The Halbrook Award was established in 1984 by the state Legislature and was set up to recognize colleges that achieve high academic standards and to encourage high graduation rates. For the past two years, MGCCC has maintained a 98 percent graduation rate for student athletes and has held the top ranking for the state's 15 two-year colleges both years.

"This award is a real tribute to our student-athletes and what they are able to accomplish on and off the field," says Dr. Mary S. Graham, MGCCC president. "It is a reflection of the commitment our coaches and assistant coaches have to education as well as the dedication of our faculty members who strive to provide these athletes the opportunity for success in the classroom."

Bulldog teams hit the courts, ready for postholiday action

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College scored 11 points late in the second half and held Southwest scoreless for more than five minutes in a 78-70 MACJC South Division victory on December 9 in Summit.

The Bulldogs (8-2, 2-0) got 23 points from Roger Woods, his third-straight game with 20 or more points. Chris Bilbo had 18, while Rashad Perkins added 12. Gulf Coast has won eight out of its first 10 games despite returning only one starter from the 2012-13 squad. The Lady Bulldogs (4-6, 1-1) opened MACJC South Division play on December 2 with a 63-58 win over South Division power Co-Lin, the first win by Gulf Coast over the Lady Wolves since 2008. The Lady Bulldogs are also in transition after losing five starters from the 2012-13 team that reached the Region 23 semi-finals.

After the Christmas break, both teams resume play on January 9 against Delgado.

Golf team ready for spring action, two players commit to four-year colleges

Faulkner St Community College shot rounds of 285-297—582 and cruised to a 12-shot victory over Rend Lake Community College (Illinois) in the MGCCC Fall Invitational Golf Tournament held this fall at Windance Country Club.

Bulldog golfer Hayes Weathersby won his third-straight individual title. Darton State College (Georgia) finished with a 597 total to capture third, followed by Gulf Coast 599, University of Mobile 604, Andrew College (Georgia) 606, Central Alabama 607, Meridian 610, Spring Hill 611, Belhaven 615, Spring Hill (B) 622, Copiah Lincoln 632, William Carey 635, MGCCC (B) 649, Loyola New Orleans 654, East Central 662 and Georgia Military College 663.

Weathersby fired a 4-under 68 in the final round for a 139 total, two shots better than CACC's Tim Walker 71-70—144. He made his lone bogey on the 210-yard second hole after his approach rolled off the back of the green.

Rounding out the scoring for Gulf Coast were Gabe Ahlers 152, Jake Pritchard 153, Fant Carpenter 155 and Danny De Los Santos 158. Gulf Coast wrapped up the regular fall season on October 29 with the fourth-place finish and will begin conference play February 2-3, 2014, at Great Southern Golf Club. The team is looking for its seventh straight NJCAA Region 23 title.

Weathersby, of Poplarville, will sign with The University of Southern Mississippi while Pritchard has committed to Louisiana Tech. Pritchard, a sophomore from Angie, Louisiana, was a 2013 NJCAA Second Team All-American and was also named to the 2013 All-Region 23 squad and was an All-MACJC First Team honoree.

Fall Tennis Action

On November 6, the men's team fell 7-2 to Faulkner, with the doubles team of Bobby Vo and Tyler Youngblodd winning 8-3 and Josh Johnson teaming with DeAngelo Vaxter, taking their doubles match 8-4.

The Lady Bulldogs got by Faulkner 5-4 behind the play of sophomore Aliesha Barlow and freshman Ana Pol, who both earned victories in singles and doubles.

Sophomores Brittney Buker and Anneisia Johnson also picked up wins for Gulf Coast.

A week later, Gulf Coast traveled to play Faulkner State, where the men fell 8-1, with Vo winning his singles match. The Lady Bulldogs dropped Faulkner again 6-3, with Christa Owen, Kit Chowdhary and Pol taking singles victories, and the teams of Owen/Chowdhary, Buker/Tori Rose and Barlow/ Johnson winning in doubles.

"We're a young team, but we must stay focused and develop more patience and discipline. The fall season is a great opportunity for these players to develop," says coach Gary Bourgeois.

MGCCC's Bobby Vo looks on as doubles partner Tyler Youngblood returns a shot against Faulkner State on November 13 in Wiggins.

Luckett made 70 tackles for the Gulf Coast defense in 2013 and had two sacks and a pass break-up. Keys intercepted two passes while patrolling in the secondary.

The All-MACJC Second Team squad features Gulf Coast tight end Marlon Pope, offensive lineman Jonathan Steube, punter Kevin Phillips on offense, linebacker Trey Wafford and defensive back Justin Evans on defense.

In 2013, Gulf Coast made a record-setting seventh-straight trip to the MACJC playoffs and finished the season with an 8-2 record.

For the eighth straight season, Gulf Coast has finished the year ranked in the NJCAA'S final top-10 football poll, coming in at No. 9. That streak dates all the way back to September 2005. At the end of that season, Gulf Coast finished the season ranked No. 13. Since then, Gulf Coast has won an NJCAA national title, three MACJC championships and five MACJC South Division crowns, including three straight from 2007-2009.

In 2013, Gulf Coast began the season ranked No. 1 and stayed there for three weeks, went 8-2, and made a record seventh-straight trip to the MACJC playoffs. The Bulldogs also had 10 players earn All-MACJC and All-Region 23 honors.

Steve Renfroe, a lifelong Moss Point resident and an MGCCC alumnus, was named public service commissioner by Governor Phil Bryant on September 3. He will serve out the unexpired term of Leonard Bentz, who resigned from the position in August to become head of the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

Renfroe retired in 2011 after 35 years at the Chevron Refinery in Pascagoula, where he worked as an environmental specialist and then later as a public affairs manager. He earned a bachelor's degree in mathematics from Mississippi College. He began his career as a math instructor in the Moss Point School District.

The Public Service Commission regulates electric, gas, water and sewer utilities; regulates telecommunications; and hears and investigates complaints regarding public utilities. The commission consists of one member elected from each of Mississippi's three Supreme Court districts.

A 1953 alumnus of Perkinston Junior College, Charles "Dinky" Evans (pictured above in the 1953 Perkolator as football captain, along with co-captian Charlie Branch), was inducted into the 2013 class of the Mississippi State University Sports Hall of Fame during pregame festivities of the September 12 MSU-Troy game. Evans was a two-year letterman (1953-54) for the MSU Bulldogs. He earned the Jacobs Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the Southeastern Conference in 1954. MSU reports that many believed him to be the best blocker in the entire country that season, when he played for firstyear MSU coach Darrell Royal. He was named honorable mention All-SEC both of his seasons at MSU and was chosen to participate in the Senior Bowl in 1954.

On September 10, 2013, Leonard Fuller, PJC '55, participated in the unveiling of the plaque marking Gautier Elementary School's designation on the National Register of Historic Places. Fuller, chair of the Gautier Historic Preservation Commission, attended the elementary school in the 1940s and was principal at the school from 1978 until his retirement in 1988. He says that the school has served continuously since it opened in 1941, with the exception of two years after Hurricane Katrina. Thanks to this new designation, the school, which already boasts a state marker from the Mississippi Department of Archives and History, now qualifies for federal historical grants.

Dr. Bill (Billy Ray) Gregg graduated from Perkinston Junior College in 1950. That year, he was voted Most Intellectual, was president of Phi Theta Kappa, was a Duke in the Royal Court of the Annual Ball, was a member of the Agriculture Club and International Relations Club, and was a columnist for the Bulldog Barks newspaper. Now a Starkville resident and retired Mississippi State University professor, he recently shared with the Alumni Office his memories of Perk.

After Perk...

- Attended Mississippi State University and Washington State University
- Received a doctorate in agronomy-seed from MSU
- Retired from MSU as professor of Agronomy-Seed Technology
- Formerly a widely known international consultant, specializing in developing, organizing and managing efficient seed programs, government seed activities, and private-sector companies
- · Worked in some 90 countries as a specialist-adviser and consultant
- Served as manager of Washington State University's Foundation Seed Program; Alabama Seed Extension specialist; and manager of the Alabama Seed Certification Agency

Perkinston Junior College and Why It Mattered to Me

I will always have a soft spot in my heart for "Perk." It was the place of my transition from life on a small family farm to "the real world." It formed my character and direction, and affected where I went in life and how I went there.

The faculty had the capability of making students feel as if they were important and really mattered. It has been many years since I was a student at Perk, but I will never forget some of the Perk faculty members who were so important to me.

Mr. J.V. Gammage, agriculture teacher, farm manager and campus-grounds supervisor, contacted me my senior year in high school and invited me to attend Perk. He knew I had no money and offered me a full-time summer job and a part-time winter job to help pay my costs. He even helped guide me toward my career after I left Perk. He introduced us to E.B. Colmer, dean of Agriculture at (then) Mississippi State College, when he visited Perk. When

I completed military service, Dean Colmer invited me to come to MSC and study. Dean Colmer and Dr. Louis Wise of MSC practically railroaded me into the Seed Technology major; this was the best and most important decision ever made for me! My career in seed-industry development has been more than a job; it has been a fascination and an overriding interest.

At Perk, Ms. Susie Cooley and Ms. Frances Harrell taught English. They helped me get involved in the campus student newspaper. Their teachings were very important to me. During my professional career, I have published several hundred articles, papers and books, and this early training was most important.

Floye O'Neal and Gregg - Most Intellectual 1950

One person to whom I shall always owe a debt is Professor K.P. Faust, who taught chemistry but helped me develop useful study habits. In high school, I made straight As without studying. My first test at Perk was in chemistry — my work was so poor that he didn't even mark a grade on it. He wrote on it, "Come see me." On his own time, Professor Faust taught > me how to study and organize my time and studies. His guidance was effective – I went from the very bottom to a graduate with honors at Mississippi State and ranked No. 5 in a class of 511, even though I worked almost full time as I studied.

At Perk, I worked on the campus grounds year round. Next to the president's home, there was a rose garden for which I cared. The president, Albert L. May, always brought me iced tea and talked with me when I worked in the rose garden. Even as president, he knew many students and could greet them by name.

Mr. Tom Gibson handled the college's finances. He was often out and about and willing to talk and give encouragement. Mr. Leonard Blackwell and his family lived in our dormitory, and daily he checked on us and ensured that we were there, studying and going to bed. Mrs. Johnson ran the college cafeteria. When the work on the farm kept me late, she left a tray for me inside the back door of the kitchen. I also spent a lot of time working the dishwasher in the cafeteria.

How do I still remember these Perk people and how they helped me? Simply put, they taught me not only academics, but they also taught me about life and people.

The letter and the canister in which it was found, December 6, 2013.

A milkhand's letter discovered in Perk Dairy Barn

At 9:45 p.m. on April 29, 1941, Perkinston Junior College student Charles Earl "C.E." Murphy wrote a letter. He placed the letter in a canister and inserted it into a wall of the concrete-block Dairy Barn, which was completed that same year. The canister was found on December 6, 2013, by a construction worker and was promptly delivered to the MGCCC Archives by Jason Breland, MGCCC construction manager.

Murphy, a Vancleave native who died on January 19, 2013, entered Perkinston Junior College on September 10, 1940, and graduated with special honors on June 1, 1942. He was "a milkhand" at Perk, and he was obviously proud of his professor and the brand-new barn. It was a promising time at Perk, but for the world, there was darkness on the horizon in the form of World War II.

"Murphy did not know how prophetic his reference to Germany (in the letter) would be," says Charles Sullivan, MGCCC archivist. "He was on one of 5,000 ships that took part in the greatest amphibious assault in history: D-Day, June 6, 1944." Murphy's son, Kenneth, told Sullivan that his father was a machine gunner. He was the recipient of a purple heart and an oak leaf cluster. (A purple heart with an oak leaf cluster indicates twice wounded.)

Murphy graduated from Mississippi State University with a degree in entomology and retired from the Louisiana State Department of Agriculture with 30 years of service.

Transcript of The Milkhand's Letter:

"To the finder of this note: May the wall that contains this note be destructed only with the purpose of building the barn larger or getting rid of the partition altogether for a betterment of the plan of the structure. May this barn be a model structure for other dairymen to follow suit in building clean, neat, sanitary buildings in which the cleanest most precious food on earth is extracted.

"May the Professor of Agriculture, Mr. F. O. Parsons, be generously rewarded (by profits and a wonderful exhibi¬tion of his skill as an able and efficient manager) for the tireless efforts that he has put forth in the construction of this modern building.

"I hope that when there is reason for this note to be discovered that Mr. Parsons will be retired from active ser¬vice, that this school will have become a Senior College, that I may be a prominent citizen of the United States and that Germany will have ceased to exist as a distrustful nation."

A Milkhand—1940-41 C. E. Murphy

Tradition Meets Innovation

Phase I of the Yellow Brick Project is The Dairy Barn. Your donations will help renovate this historic yellow brick barn located at the Perkinston Campus. The Dairy Barn will be utilized to promote a creative economy through community arts-based projects and programming. It will provide a place for students of all ages to experience the arts through classes, performances, exhibits, and workshops that promote creativity and celebrate our community. Floor plans include creative spaces for exhibitions and meetings, a working studio space with a glass and ceramic kiln room, storage, a kitchen, an office and restrooms.

History of The Dairy Barn

In 1941, a small concrete block dairy barn was built to sell surplus milk to soldiers at Camp Shelby. Construction continued in January 1953 to include a Malvern tile storeroom and pasteurizing plant. Milk processing ceased operation in 1959. The building was then converted into an Agriculture classroom. In late 1968, it became the headquarters for the MGCCC Maintenance Department, and in 2000, the building served as the Engineering Building, Computer Service Center, and a storage facility.

Message from Alumni Relations

I offer a special thanks to those of you who supported and attended the 2013 Homecoming celebration. It was wonderful to see Reflections alumni join President Dr. Mary S. Graham for a breakfast celebration at Liaison and then at the beautiful chapel service. The smiling faces of those who returned to the campus for the first time in many years set the tone for a fun-filled day of activities and celebration.

As the holiday season approaches, I hope that you will take time to enjoy family and friends and to remember your alma mater. We encourage you to consider donating to the MGCCC Foundation, which directly benefits college programs and scholarships. Have a happy and safe holiday, and we'll see you next year!
