Council Elects Hurst to Campus Master Plan Committee

Council meeting, a landmark decision by Vice-Chancellor John McCardell resulted in the election of council updating the Campus Master Plan for the University.

In response to issues raised by the Sewanee Leaseholders' Association at its Aug. 23 meeting, Jerry Forster, University chief financial officer, discussed land use and campus master plan activity since 1992. "The Domain 2020 Plan of 1992" anticipated population growth of 1,040 to 1,300 by 2020 and made recommendations for a more residential campus.

Forster mentioned several unpopular residential development concepts that were not pursued, including development along Tennessee and Kentucky ing phase three, and the Parson's Green

At the Sept. 27 Sewanee Community rezoning that allowed smaller lots and mixed commercial-residential use in the downtown area.

The Fowler Center was expanded, representative Michael Hurst to serve and McClurg Dining Hall and Spencer on the steering committee engaged in Hall were built. A master plan update is underway, and Forester said he anticipates that residence halls will be on the front burner for current planners.

HOUSE FIRE LEAVES GRATEFUL HEARTS FOR COMMUNITY SUPPORT To the Editor:

This letter comes with a sincere thank you and grateful hearts after the loss of our home to fire. Our hearts are broken, but also overwhelmed by the outpouring of love that has been given to our family. This has meant so much to us.

We have so many special people to thank. First, we thank our Lord above for protecting, watching over and loving us through it all. Next, we have an extra special thank you to the Sewanee Fire Department these guys are great! From the time we called in the fire, they were there within seven minutes! These guys are experts at what they do. They worked as a team and got the fire put out quickly and then added moral support to our family. We thank our families for uniting to help push, pull and drag us through this horrible time ... in love, of course! We thank our friends, both old and new. We thank our community and surrounding communities for their love and generosity. To our churches, for the prayers, love offerings, benefits and household showers, we say thanks. To Emerald-Hodgson Hospital, area businesses and other special organizations, thank you so much. Now, to our friends of the University, we must thank our co-workers, the students, employees, sororities and fraternities! The support we have received from EVERYONE is unbelievable! Please keep us in your prayers and know we love you all.

Re: Overtime with Coach Shack. John Shackelford's father is terminally ill. In "Overtime" he has paid tribute to the qualities taught him by a kind and loving father. Speaking for his many admirers, we feel John's life is a daily tribute to his father's wisdom in rearing a wonderful example of all that is fair and right.

FEDERAL BUDGET CLARIFICATIONS To the Editor:

says that we should not blame President [George W.] Bush for his budget deficits because Democrats controlled Congress and spending bills originate in the House. In fact, although the House must pass the budget first and then send it to the Senate, it is the president who, by law, proposes the budget. And it was President Bush who, in February 2008, proposed the $3.1 trillion Barack Obama and not the members of the House, either Democrat or Republican. In addition, President Bush did not include spending for the Iraq or Afghanistan wars in any of his budgets, but requested off-budget supplemental the $700 billion Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) funding, another program proposed and pushed by President Bush and his treasury secretary, lovely art. Hank Paulson. These proposals were all before Obama was elected, much less president. So yes, it is President Bush who left a $1.3 trillion deficit; they were his proposals; it was his spending. Likewise, the FY 2000 budget was Clinton's, not the Republicans in Congress. Congress changed neither budget substantially.

Secondly, Ms. Clark is concerned about Bush's tax cuts to the top two must thank our new special friend will receive a continuation of the tax who may surely have saved our lives, cuts on the first $250,000 of income "Mr. Skunk." Intriguing, I know, but they pay tax on. An important point is that the increase is on the amount over $250,000 after all exemptions and deductions are taken. This means after subtracting mortgage interest, property taxes, state income or sales tax, charitable giving, etc. For small businesses, this would include subtracting half of the Social Security and Medicare taxes. So one would have to make considerably over $250,000 to see a tax increase and then it is $20 for every $1,000 made on the income over $250,000 after subtracting exemptions and deductions. That $20 per $1,000 would hardly make a difference in deciding to hire someone or not, especially considering the small business tax credits proposed by President Obama.

SUPPORT OF PRO-CHOICE To the Editor:

I applaud the Cumberland Center for Justice and Peace (CCJP) for their heartfelt plea for equal protection and justice for our Muslim-American brothers and sisters. As a Catholic woman with Irish and Hungarian discrimination has cost our country and her citizens, as well as those outside the U.S. who have paid dearly for the promise of peace and protection. I challenge the members of the CCJP to widen their definition of just who gets to sit at the table and partake of American justice. CCJP, become radical advocates of peace and extend your voices and resources to the most vulnerable of our society, the unborn. Next time you want to protest a war, speak out against religious discrimination, or advocate a more sensible environmental policy, I ask you to please stand up for those people, peace and justice in any meaningful way when one of the most dangerous places you can be is no longer in your mother's womb.

"I want to change that. How do we address that?" McCardell asked.

Council representative Pamela Byerly suggested that having a community representative who could report back to the Community Council would be useful because community members' filters for assessing information differ from those of individuals who represent the University.

Armour proposed a resolution that a member of the community serve on the campus master plan steering committee. McCardell supported the proposal, and discussion followed about how that person would be selected. The council voted to elect someone from their ranks to serve and discussed whether University employees, their spouses and former University the position, which would exclude all but three council members. Continuing the discussion on issues raised by the Leaseholders' Association Council representative David Coe at the August council meeting, Forster acknowledged a need to review the 6 percent ground rent fee and frozen ground rent policies. Regarding estate planning, Forster proposed a policy change: if a nonemployee wishes to add a family member to an existing lease or to refinance the lease and if the term of the lease is not extended, McCardell asked the council: "How the Lease Committee should consider allowing the ground rent to remain frozen through the remaining term

Forster mentioned some of the other issues raised, particularly the need for ombudsmen to represent leaseholders in disputes and the role of leases in promoting diversity among leaseholders. Haskell thanked Forster for continuing the dialogue and for his recommendations on ground rent and estate planning.

In regard to management of municipal services, another item introduced by the Leaseholders' Association, Forster said the Sewanee Fire Department would report to the council in October, and the Police Department would report in November.

Forster introduced Dennis Jones, manager of Sewanee Emergency Medical Service (EMS), the volunteer first-response ambulance service serving the Sewanee community. By early in the second half, Centre was ahead 37-0. A 17-yard completion by freshman quarterback Lee Schurlknight to sophomore Jase Brooks moved the ball down the field. ### Men's Soccer Battles to a Double Overtime Tie with Austin

On Oct. 2, the men's soccer teams of Sewanee and Austin College battled through 110 minutes of intense physical play before finishing in a 2-2 tie after two overtime periods. The following day Colorado College won 1-0 over the Sewanee Tigers. Sewanee dropped to 2-6-2 on the season and 0-2-2 in SCAC play.

Against Austin College, despite playing most of the second half and both overtime periods down one man, the Tigers persevered and managed to hold on for the tie. In an ultra-physical match that resulted in a combined 30 fouls and eight yellow cards, the Tiger defense stepped up when it counted most, and Sewanee was able to walk away with a tie for the second time in three conference schools having no player ejections matches. Austin held the advantage in shots, 22-18, on the night. Derek Williams collected nine saves for the Tigers, while Grant Gosselin grabbed eight for the Kangaroos. Both teams earned six corner kicks and Sewanee led in fouls, 17-13.

On Oct. 3, two second-half goals gave Colorado College the win over volleyball team got off to a quick the Sewanee men's soccer team. The home Tigers ended the contest with 13 shots, while Colorado recorded 15. Williams came up with five saves in 90 minutes of action.

Sewanee Topped in SCAC Volleyball

The Sewanee Tigers fell to Birmingham Southern, 3-0, and Oglethorpe, 3-0, on Oct. 2 in SCAC volleyball play. And on Oct. 3, the Tigers were topped by Hendrix and Millsaps in SCAC Cross Divisional play; both matches were decided by 3-0 scores.

On Oct. 2, in the first match of the day, Birmingham Southern bested the Tigers 3-0 (25-8, 25-9, 25-13). Liz Boddiford paced the Tigers with seven kills and a block. Erin Brahm led the way with seven assists, while Lydia Day had four digs. Tarver Shimek picked up three aces.

Shimek had four kills as the Tigers dropped their second match of the day to Oglethorpe by the score of 3-0 (25-13, 25-15, 25-12). Brahm chipped in 11 assists. Kim Conkell and Brahm picked up one block, and Callie Sims contributed four digs. Brahm, Shimek and Adrienne Borchardt each had

SAS Drops Tullahoma Match

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee School start Wednesday night, Sept. 21, taking the first set from Tullahoma High School, 25-23. However, they dropped the next three sets: 21-25, 17-25 and 20-25. Emily Thomas and Sam Stine did a nice job of running the offense, while Jenna Burris and Hannah Wimberley had strong games at the net. Wimberley and Christiana True led the team in scoring. Catelyn Hutcherson added 10 digs and Madison Culpepper had 11 digs.

SAS Varsity Girls' Soccer Racks Up Two Victories

The St. Andrew's-Sewanee girls' soccer team defeated Huntland High School, 6-1, on Sept. 28 and on Sept. 30 overcame district rival Davidson

At home against Huntland, Allyson Ridley put SAS on the board in the 15th minute of the match from an assist by Nikki Johnston. Senior forward Allison Post scored a goal off another assist from Johnston. SAS continued to dominate play during the second half. Ridley scored two more goals, and Sadie Shackelford and Helen Wilson each converted a goal. Alex Berner-Coe earned one assist, and Johnston made four assists on the day. The defense, including goalkeeper Katie Craighill and backs Marianne Sanders, Hannah Horton and Eliza McNair, held firm.

Two days later the Mountain Lions went on the road and defeated Davidson Academy. Much of SAS's attack came from outside backs Horton and Sanders. With five minutes remaining in the half, Shackelford found the back of the net. In the 75th minute junior Johnston scored the game-winning goal off a double assist from Wilson and Horton. "We moved well off the ball, strung multiple passes together and attacked as a team," said Coach Margot Burns.

SAS moves to 5-6-1 on the season. The team will be at home for the final two regular season matches. On Thursday, Oct. 7, at 5 p.m., the Mountain Lions take on Middle Tennessee Christian, and on Tuesday, Oct. 12, they will host Webb School at 4:30 p.m. Following the final match, the senior players will be recognized for their contributions to the program.

St. Andrew's-Sewanee School was during 2009–10. Grundy County and Tullahoma high schools also made the list.

SAS Athletic Director Ellis Mayfield is proud to be included among these schools."Respect is at the heart of good sportsmanship," said Maysportsmanlike incidents reported field. "At SAS, we coach our athletes with respect, and then teach respect for our opponents, for the officials and for the game itself."

Overtime with Coach Shack

By John Shackelford

If you came out to watch one of Sewanee's many athletic contests played over this past weekend, you likely witnessed the team running onto the field or onto the court with their coaches in preparation to play. What you didn't see was the PPS crew that groomed and lined the fields, and the equipment room staff of Art Hanson and Brian Ochletree that washed and prepared uniforms and equipment for our 24 teams. Then they figure out how to set up for the 12 events played on the Mountain this past weekend. Office Manager Jane Hawkins, whose "office" extends well beyond her six-by-six desk area onto every field and stadium in Sewanee, must compress her 80-hour work week into a 40-hour time clock. Sports Information Director Kelsea Wissing tirelessly writes up the results of each contest and then gets them out through Tiger Sports and onto the website late into the evening.

All of this work is closely watched by a man born before the dinosaurs and who is cheaper than day-old bread. Business and Facility Manager Bill Barry ensures that each event will have the least expensive toilet paper available and that every team will be housed in a hotel with a price that even William Shatner's "The Negotiator" couldn't touch.

Head Trainer Ray Knight and his assistants, Matt McGraw and Laci Lincoln, tape ankles, ice elbows, wrap injuries hours before each contest begins and hours after they have blown the last whistle. With more than 400 athletes competing, that is more rolls of tape and band-aids than Bill Barry has had birthdays.

Our admissions office rightly sells the idea of the Sewanee community experience to prospective students. I would imagine that for many parents and students their first thought is of the unique nature of our professors' homes dotted throughout our beautiful campus. Having the teacher and the students all live and work closely together weaves an incredible fabric that enhances the learning relationship. What isn't so apparent on that first visit and that first look is the so many people who make things happen before they arrive and after they leave. It is that insulating layer just beyond the games, classrooms and labs that turns our weave into a functional community that operates with championship teamwork.

I know that as our athletes leave this Mountain to become doctors, lawyers, leaders, writers and perhaps professors, they will take with them the ability to write, communicate, analyze and decipher from their experience in the classroom. If they are to be successful, however, they will also take with them the work ethic, teamwork and sense of community they have witnessed in preparation for their events. They will know that to win you must arrive early and stay late until the job is done. And quite possibly, they will need to know how to save some budget money by purchasing the cheapest toilet paper on the market.

Nature Notes

Yellow-Shafted Flickers are Plentiful

This month, Jean and Harry Yeatman have noticed more than the usual number of Yellow-shafted Flickers hopping on the ground to eat the numerous ants. Flickers have a curved bill, which is more like a pickax than a hammer. It inserts this bill into an ant nest and with its long, sticky tongue, it pulls out hundreds of tasty ants. When it has young in its tree nest hole it regurgitates partly digested ants into the mouths of its young birds. This is easier than feeding them one ant at a time. Both male and female Flickers have a gray head cap with a red patch. The bib is black and the olive back and light underparts are covered with round black spots. A conspicuous white rump patch is visible when the flicker flies. The underside of the wings is golden yellow. This gives these birds the name Yellow Hammer. The male (on left in illustration) has a black cheek patch or moustache that the female lacks. All baby Flickers have this black crescent, so the male "thinks" they are all males and drives them away when they leave the nest hole. Then the young females lose this patch and are accepted by the father. The nest is usually excavated in a semi-soft dead tree, but flickers will also accept a large-holed nest box. One female Flicker laid her eggs in the sandy beach at Fisher's Island, N.Y., because no good trees were available. Freddy Tucker had a Yellow Hammer gouge a nest hole in a telephone pole in their yard. Five to nine white eggs are laid. This Flicker is the second largest woodpecker in Tennessee beside the huge Pileated Woodpecker. The voice of the Flicker is "wicky-wick-wickwick" or "cuh-cuh" or "kee-yer" or "yar-up," etc.

From Bard to Verse

by Scott and Phoebe Bates

October: Latino History Month

...From France, and Okinawa, and the atolls of Leyte (Norman Mailer has written it out) and the infuriated air and the waves, almost all the men have come back now, almost all... The history of mud and sweat was green and sour; they did not hear the singing of the reefs long enough and perhaps never touched the islands, those wreaths of brilliance and perfume, except to die: dung and blood hounded them, the filth and the rats, and a fatigued and ruined heart that went on fighting. But they have come back, you have received them into the immensity of the open lands and they have closed (those who came back) like a flower with thousands of nameless petals to be reborn and forget.

> —From "Que Despietre El Leñador' ("I Wish The Wood-Cutter Would Wake Up") by Pablo Neruda, translated by James Wright (1948)
