TRAVEL TIPS

Traveling is meant to be a sit-back-and-relax, exhilarating, majestic experience. But airports can be nerve-racking, especially when it comes to checking luggage. Here are a few tips to alleviate the apprehension that can come as a result of checking bags at the airport:

1. Tag your bag with your name, cell phone number, and home address. Use a strong luggage tag to prevent it from easily falling off.
2. Keep a copy of your travel itinerary inside of your suitcase, along with any other important contact information.
3. Arrive early for your flight. Some airlines have a cut-off time for checked luggage in order to give airline employees enough time to load each suitcase onto the airplane. If you arrive too late, you could miss the opportunity to check your bags.
4. When the luggage tag is printed, double check your name and the airport code to ensure your bag is checked to the correct person and the correct destination. Airline employees are supposed to ID every passenger in order to guarantee each bag travels with its rightful owner. Notify airline personnel immediately if any of the information on your bag tag is incorrect.
5. Attach an easily identifiable item on your luggage, perhaps a colorful ribbon or a piece of duct tape. This will help you differentiate your suitcase from other suitcases that look similar.

6. Take a photo of your luggage. A photo can be beneficial towards helping the airline staff locate your bag in the unlikely event it gets misplaced.

Summertime in the Midwest calls for sunglasses and warmth. On day one of this excursion, we make our way to Michigan, stopping along the route for lunch and for a ride on dune buggies over mountains of sand. We reach our overnight accommodations at the Little River Resort & Casino in Manistee, MI by early evening. The evening is free to enjoy the amenities of this beautiful resort.

Known for its inland lakes, beaches, bays, dunes, and 180 miles of sugar-sand shoreline on Lake Michigan, Traverse City is the perfect place to experience summer. We visit the lakeshore, small towns, winery, lighthouses, and scenic vistas. We have dinner in this charming location before returning to Little River for the evening.

On day three, we venture to Grand Rapids. This trend-setting city is known for its breweries, food, art, and music scenes. Here we will enjoy a guided tour of the city, visit a brewery, have lunch, and spend the afternoon at Frederik Meijer Gardens and Sculpture Park. This park is one of the nation's most significant sculpture and botanic experiences. After a tram ride and free time to explore the gardens, we head home, glowing with new stories and memories of our sublime summer getaway.
