TIME BRINGS CHANGES

Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian Harriett Geywits

Throughout its history of 112 years, this hotel saw many changes not only in ownership but in size and improvements as well. First, it was the American Hotel from 1830-1850. Then ownership changed from 1851-1888 as did the name when it became the New American. In 1888 to 1907, it became the well-known Earlington, owned and operated by Eugene M. Earle, who was a long-time hotel owner in New York City. This change of ownership was described in the July 2, 1888 Richfield Springs Daily as follows:

“Sauntering by the New American the other day, one might have thought that some weird magician of the Arabian Nights must have visited the town while the people unconsciously went their busy way. The magician, however, appeared to be no other than Mr. Eugene M. Earle. The transformation within a few short weeks in startling. No one would have dreamed that such a wonderful change could have been wrought within so short a time.

The paint, which it needed very badly, is of stylish chrome yellow and maroon. The entrances by way of the veranda have been made into one broad entrance way which is ornamented on either side by two majestic palms. The front lawn has been greatly improved and is as smooth as velvet. The vases have been filled with beautiful flowers and several new plots, in unique designs have been laid out by the skillful hand of florist Moore.

Passing inside, the office and reading room first greet the eye. This presents a decidedly improved appearance and is a sort of foretaste of what is to follow. An artistic mind and skillful handiwork are evinced on every side. The walls are newly decorated in exquisite designs. New furniture is arranged in a charming manner and elegant pictures grace the walls. The ladies' reception room is a perfect gem of refined taste. The rare cabinets are filled with bric-a-brac, the luxuriant divans, the cozy chairs nonchalantly placed here and there, wait so temptingly for someone to occupy them. The beautiful rugs strewn about and the faint light from the burning log on the pretty hearth makes the room extremely beautiful. The broad hallway was never so alluring as now. Elegant pictures have been added, tete-a-tetes arranged so cozily and the old spinning wheel stands before the fireplace. The parlors are being entirely refurnished and will be beautiful when completed. The dining hall will be more attractive than ever. It is the finest room of the kind in town and the cuisine will be perfect in every particular. The private suites upon the main floor have also been greatly improved and the sleeping apartments throughout the house have been very thoroughly renovated. The new electric light system shed a beautiful light and greatly adds to the already enchanting scene.

The New American has ever been a great rendezvous for pretty girls and charming young men. It will not fail in this particular feature this season. Mr. and Mrs. Earle are to be congratulated on their success in making such an attractive place for their summer guests. The Daily predicts a successful season for the New American.”

Added to the many improvements noted in this glorious review, was the installation of an elevator, a novelty in the Village. After completion of the renovations, the name was changed to the Hotel Earlington until 1915 when Allen J. Bloomfield took ownership until 1938 and lastly, from 1942-1943, it became the Richfield Springs Hotel, taken down in 1943.

The ideal location across from Spring Park and the bath house along with the special care and activities offered to the guests, always made this hotel a most popular place for summer visitors to stay.

- Keep your pet's vaccinations up-to-date.
- Don't leave pets unattended in the car, even with the windows down.
