On the Front Cover:

This stunning example of a 1965 Convertible is proudly owned by Libby and Tom Martin of Michigan. Originally delivered to Escobar Ford in California, the 'bird found itself in Michigan sometime in the 1980s, and around 1989 the previous owner treated it to a new paint job and new interior. This is a loaded car, with almost every option, including AC, leather interior, and AM/FM Stereo with a power antenna. The original 390 engine has been reworked to almost 427 specs, with a race cam, GT pistons and a Ford Original high-rise intake manifold from a 1966 model. It now produces roughly 375 horsepower!

The building it is pictured in front of is modeled after Henry Ford's first factory, located on Mack Avenue in Detroit, MI. Workers built several early vehicles here starting in 1903. They soon outgrew this factory and moved to a larger building on Piquette Avenue in Detroit, where the Model T was created. Built in 1945 in Greenfield Village, this replica is one-quarter the size of the original Building.

This picture was taken at Motor Muster in Greenfield Village, an annual event held over Father's Day weekend. It usually gets over 3000 cars in attendance, with people coming from all over the country to attend. After 6:00 pm the gates are opened, and cars are allowed to drive throughout the village on roads they would not normally be allowed on.
