CULVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

WANTED:
CLEANER CULVER

Culver - The above notice will be seen about town and serves to inform all residence that their support is needed in the effort of cleaning up our town.

The week May 7 - 11 has been proclaimed clean-up week in Culver. As such, the Culver Chamber of Commerce has been actively promoting clean-up projects and total community involvement.

You can help by sweeping the street in front of your home and be generally cleaning and painting what mother nature has dirtied over the winter. Arrangements will be made to pick up the piles of sand and dirt you gather during the week of May 7 - 11th. This will be extremely helpful to our street department which has been busy repairing water and sewage lines and patching pot holes. Together, our efforts will bring about a Cleaner Culver in which to live, work, and play.

Following are some of the currently planned events:

Saturday, May 5th, 10:00 a.m. an exciting clean-up parade is scheduled to kick off the week. All are invited to participate - wear your work clothes, bring your broom and shovel and join in the parade. The parade will travel north on Main street from the Corner Tavern to Papa's Pizza on Lake Shore Drive.

Thursday, May 10th, a number of merchants will be dosing an hour early (about 4:00) to help the Jaycees sweep Main Street and Lake Street and to clean up and paint up their place of business. Once swept, the fire department has volunteered to hose down the streets (we are counting on everyone's help.)

Friday, May 11th, streets will be painted with cross walks and parking areas.

Saturday, May 12, -- Judging will be done to determine the school or civic organization who has contributed most toward our community clean-up efforts. This group will be awarded the beautiful traveling trophy.

To Kill or Not To Kill

When controversy arose about "cruel and unusual punishment" concerning capital punishment, I thought I was against it. There are, however, times when justifiable homicide could be condoned.

For instance, when my youngest daughter didn't show up at home after school and I called 19 of her friends trying to locate her. My folks were taking me out to dinner at a new restaurant just opening up in town and I didn't want to miss it so I left instructions with her sister. "Here's her money for the movie," I said, "and she told me she's spending the night at Lori's house afterward."

When I arrived home, her sister said, "She was at a track meet in the pouring down rain when you were looking for her."

"Real bright kid," I said,

"she isn't even in track and she could have walked across the street to tell me where she was going."

Her loving sister replied, "I hope she catches pneumonia."

I thought no more about it till the phone rang at 7:30 a.m. Saturday (the only morning I can sleep in). It was the youngest calling to let me know she was at her friend's house. This is a case of justifiable homicide.

Others that come to mind might be when you go shopping for clothes and find that a friend bought the exact same outfit you did, only $10 cheaper.

Or when you're having company for dinner and put a $15 steak out on the counter to thaw only to discover that your obedience-trained dog developed amnesia and consumed everything except the bone.

Or when you're traveling and sit idly for hours along side the expressway because you're husband said, "we've got plenty of gas to get to the next exit" in response to your suggestion, "we'd better stop here for gas."

Or when you took your young children to a drive-in theatre where "Midnight Cowboy" was playing because you thought it was a western.

Or when you spend $1,500 on fancy tackle, reels, fishing poles, lures, bait and fish all day without a nibble then an eight-year-old boy comes up to the bank with a stringer full of bass he caught on a cane pole with a rotting cord attached.

Or when you're almost at the end of a hilarious joke and someone else butts in with the punch line.

Or when your last child (born when you were 40 years plus) goes with you to the supermarket and reaches into another shopping cart and the lady pushing the other cart says, "No, no, honey, you're Grandma doesn't want that."

Or when the preacher is having dinner at your home and your four-year-old son asks, "Does adultery mean the same thing as grown up?"

I'm not sure whether or not I believe in capital punishment, but there's certainly instances when unpremeditated homicide is justifiable.

PUBLISHER'S 'PINION

by Dave Tranter

A trend started developing about 10 years ago that is important to the welfare and future planning of the smaller communities in America. The trend is the growth of the giant businesses and the gradual decline of the smaller businesses unable to compete.

It is a known fact that every discount store that opens its doors on the edge of a large city cannot survive without the closing of 50 independent merchants within a 30 mile radius.

Since the large metropolitan stores are in a position to compete, due to size, location, etc., it is the smaller communities in the surrounding areas that suffer the most.

This newspaper recently chatted with the manager of a very large retail establishment on the edge of a city of over 250,000 population. This manager did not know that we were the owners of a community newspaper or he would not have said what he did. For this retail store to survive, it must rely on 50% of its gross sales to come from outside the city limits. Almost 10% of its business came from people living over 30 miles away.

The new metropolitan Sunday newspapers contain advertisements and inserted circulars offering products of every type and description. These are enticements to all of their readers to shop those stores. Since the large newspaper covers an extremely large area, these advertisements will be read by people within a 30 to 40 mile radius of the city. Consequently, the large store needs the large newspaper to reach its customers.

Since only the very large stores can afford this expensive means of advertising, what happens to the smaller stores in the surrounding communities?

The smaller store must offer something different. Conveniences to its hometown customer is a big factor. Service after the sale is an even bigger factor. Also, a price factor that is not too much more than its large competitor in the city, is an essential for economic survival. But, can the local store survive financially and still meet these requirements?

The decline of the number of retail establishments in the small towns over the last 20 years is proof that it is difficult.

Another problem added recently is the high rate of inflation. Local citizens are now shopping price more than ever before.

What is the answer? More and more retailers are gradually converting to more service types of business. The sale is losing its importance to the local merchant. The installation, repair and maintenance are now becoming a big factor. Many are branching into new areas such as glass breakage repair, installation of accessories on products purchased in the big city, and making house calls for the convenience of the customer.

The smaller communities are far from dying, rather they are growing both physically and economically. Business blocks that use to contain several grocery stores, bakeries, doctor's offices, shoe stores, clothing stores, etc., now contain insurance offices, real estate offices, plumbing/electrical contracting, all service related stores, etc. - all service related businesses.

It is almost becoming a trend for the average citizen to subconsciously think "Buy it in the big city, get it repaired at home."

A solid plus-factor in favor of shopping at home is now emerging. It will take several years for the average citizen to realize that the savings in the big city is rapidly being eaten away by high fuel costs for the auto.

We are not too far from the point where it will be necessary to live within a few blocks of the local shopping area. The horse and buggy might even make a comeback.

On May 29th of that year the bank was robbed by 7 bandits. W. O. Osborn, 95 year old president of the State Exchange Bank, was present at the time the bank was robbed. He spoke about the experience and remarked on how the residents stuck together and personnel and cadets from the Culver Military Academy, came to the aid of the apprehension of the criminals. The robbers were armed with sawed off shot guns and a machine gun.

Carl Adams and Oliver Shilling present at the meeting were also eye witnesses of the robbery. Shilling fired at the driver of the get away car. Mr. Sowiski and wounded him. He died later that night and the other six were arrested.

ENVELOPE STANDARDS SET BY POST OFFICE

Argos - "Use up your small and undersized envelopes and cards before July 15," Postmaster Francis Coplen reminds Argos customers. That is the date when the Postal Service's new size standards become effective.

Postmaster Coplen said that after July 15, envelopes and cards measuring less than 3 1/2 inches high or 5 inches long will be returned to the sender if mailed.

The Argos postmaster said that because the envelope and greeting card industries have had more than three years to prepare for the new standards, few retailers should still be selling undersized pieces.

"Many consumers, however, are likely to still have smaller envelopes and cards in their supply of stationery," Coplen said.

The regulations also pro-can also be damaged. The standards also affect oversized and odd-shaped pieces of mail, Coplen said. For first-class mail weighing one ounce or less, there will be a surcharge of 7 cents for pieces more than 6 1/4 inches high or 11 1/2 inches long.

For more information, the postmaster suggests customers check with a post office window clerk.

CULVER LIBRARY NEWS by Mary Jane Guise

On Tuesday, May 8th from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. the library will offer a special program on music sponsored by Elsa H. Tom Jordan will demonstrate his knowledge of electronically synthesized music and the public is invited to hear him perform. Mr. Jordan comes to us through the support of the Indiana Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts. Tell your friends and family about this unusual and exciting program.

We have three new pictures in the library donated in memory of the following people, the picture "Skating at Central Park" donated in memory of Miss Bess Easterday, the portrait "Abraham Lincoln" donated in memory of Mr. Morris Curtis and the "Henry B. Hyde" donated in memory of Mr. William Easterday. The donations are very much appreciated and will be a wonderful addition to the library.

Thanks to Tri Kappa for their contribution towards the purchasing of new shelves in the library. Thanks also to Mrs. Warren Conover for her donation of "Smithsonian" and thanks to the person who left the box of paperback westerns.

The library now has picture pages available for those who have been waiting. The issues begin with Week K.

The CCJHS girls have not yet had the "home track" advantage. Both boys and girls teams play host to Caston on May 7.

Although Culver is the least experienced team to be entered in the County Track Meet, our girls are definitely in the running. With unbeatable Jill Johnston in the 60 and 100 yd. dashes, once defeated Julie Kline in the 220, strong Rose Jacobson in the mile and 880, powerful Tricia Wentz in the shot put, and two speedy teams in the 440 and 880 relays, we should excel in the county meet. Both coaches Dains and Drew feel winning the County Meet is a strong possibility. Make plans now to be at the County Meet on May 16 at Culver. Both the boys and girls teams will be competing.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON LADIES LEAGUE

by Jean Triplet

Reinhold Livestock 35-17

Two weeks ago, I had a first hand look at the substitute umpires in the major leagues, while attending a game in St. Louis. While these men should be commended for their efforts, they just aren't doing the job of their striking superiors.

Meanwhile back in Culver, entry forms are now out for the 2nd Annual Maxinkuckee Lake Run, a 15 Kilometer (9.3 mile) run around beautiful Lake Maxinkuckee and Culver Military Academy. This year's race has been moved up to July 28, the same day as the Annual Corn Roast. Once again the race is sponsored by the Odd Fellow Lodge. They have also been joined by the Adidas Shoe Company. They will be awarding the champions with Adidas running shoes. Last year's race, won by Chuck Koeppen had a fine turnout. Let's hope this year's field doubles in size. Interested runners should contact Kerry Haines.

THE CULVER GOLDEN AGERS

The April 25th meeting of the Culver Golden Agers at Grace Church was opened by Betty Coplen the director of Older Adult Services for Marshall County with a funny story and a prayer.

The members were greeted with tables decorated with lovely Daffodils and Jonquils from the garden of Mary Hatten.

The women of the Burr Oak Church of God Fern Davis, Mary Hatten, Evelyn Overmyer, and Leona Zeckel served the meal assisted by Adrianna Hellstrom and Lovina Wesson.

We celebrated the 99th birthday of Effie Kline one of our members. Olga Mahler played the piano while members sang "Happy Birthday." A card was given to her signed by everyone present. Five members brought birthday cakes and cake and ice cream were served following the meal.

"Happy Birthday" was also sung to Pauline Chapman, Adrianna Hellstrom, Viola Heggard and Ann Zehner.

Visitors were Gerry and George Veenstra and their grandson Bobby Anker, and Rev. and Mrs. Richard Bennett of the Emanuel United Methodist Church.

For door prizes Warner Williams well known Culver sculpture donated two hand sculpted creations won by Olga Mahler and Angas Hogabaum. Other prizes donated by Bud Craft and Tot Strang were won by Robert Bernhauer and Bud Craft.

The program was given by Warner Williams who also makes a study of the meaning of names and how some of the members names must have originated. For instance the name Banks means near an embankment. Bernhauer a woodcutter. Coplen Scottish or Swedish tenant. Hatten a dweller in a swamp. Kline a small or nice man. Mahler one who paints buildings or ships. Zehner a tax collector.

Names are derived in five ways, by a persons occupation - barber, cooks - miller. Location - Hill, Woods, Marshland, Appearance - Short, Tall, Small. Signs - Fox, Fish, Patronymic - Son of so and so. Everybody seemed to enjoy the program.

The menu for May 9th will be V8 juice, pepper steak with gravy, sweet potatoes with margarine, peas, plums, whole wheat bread, margarine, milk, tea, coffee.

Argos - The following article was taken from the Plymouth Pilot newspaper of Tuesday, July 28, 1964.

Plans are being discussed by the Argos Town Board on remodeling and rearranging of the building which houses the clerk-treasurer's office and the library. Clerk-Treasurer Guy Thayer is preparing plans and getting estimates for the town board. The fire department is no longer using the left front of the building. Thayer said that one of the suggestions made is to remodel the former fire station and transfer the library to the clerk-treasurer's office located in the center. The floor would be raised in the Fire Station portion of the building and this would also be used for the library. This would enlarge the library giving much needed space and the other side could be adequate for the clerk-treasurer's office. Thayer said.

ARGOS R.E.A.L. SERVICES

by Sharon Mevis

Argos - The chill in the weather was no indication of the climate in the REAL meeting room at the United Methodist Church when the Argos senior citizens gathered for their weekly meeting. The guest speaker was Herkimer Poen from Goshen.

The folks were pleased to welcome back Gladys Gates, Lillian Ruffner and Evelyn Funk. The sick list included Barbara Hann and Olive Quimby.

The life of two ladies from Webster, North Dakota was shared to encourage each other adult to consider new or old hobbies or interests. Mary VanDerWeele shared some quips and bits of wisdom. A poem, "When It's Dark", furnished by Grover Shafer proceeded the before meal prayer.

Ethel Overmyer, Francis Nelson and Ruth Gordon represented the Whippoorwill club who served the meal.

Next week the program will be given by Wesley Brubaker of Walderton. The menu will be: Chicken Chop Suey over Rice, cole slaw, fruit cobbler, V-8 juice. It will be served by the Green-Walnut Young Farmers.
