"Our house can not stand it, but there is another place for some of us, full of sunlight and heat and prey for all seasons. I i I've seen it in my dreams. I believe in my heart that these mountains are not where all cats belong. The other place is waiting for those of you who have the courage to make the journey". Stoneteller (Half Moon) Dawn of the Clans is the fifth arc of the popular Warrior Gats series, after the arc of the stars' omens. From 2013, it tells the story of the origins and early days of the Warrior Clans, when the Warrior Clans, which was the Warrior Clans, which and serves as the epilogue of the arc. It stars Moth Flight, the first medical cat, and explains the beginnings of the medicine code and how the founders got their nine lives. The characters from the Dawn of the Sun's Path. Originally members of what was to become the Rapid Water Tribe, these sixteen cats left their mountain home to find a new place to live when it became apparent that there was not enough food to support everyone. The outside world is a shock to cats who have spent their entire lives in the mountains, and are forced to adapt to it on their journey. Eventually, they come across a seemingly idyllic forest. However, their arrival causes tensions with the forest cats, and they soon find themselves involved in a conflict far beyond anything the Wise, Clear Sky, Tall Shadow, Thunder, Wind Runner, River Ripple, and many others. This series provides examples A day in the spotlight: WindClan first appears in a book of the main series from Gray Wing's death. The El The scenes provide this, giving a minor character in the books some time in the center of attention. In The Sun

Trail, Petal is the only one who gets any love. In Thunder Rising, River Ripple is the star. In The First Battle, Wind Runner becomes the center of attention. Sun Shadow (son of Moon Shadow) receives a POV on The Blazing Star, and Slate (Grey Wing's new love interest) receives his on A Forest Divided. Tall Shadow intended to get a chapter on A Forest Divided. However, it ended up being reworked into a Thunder chapter. All Your Base belongs to us: At one point on the Sun's Path followers and a great battle ensues. In The Blazing Star, while Clear Sky is out for a reunion with the Four Trees, One Eye and his crew take over his camp and then force him out of the woods when he returns. Anyone can die: After Power of Three and Omen of the Stars slide in with this, The Sun Trail brings it back in full force with the deaths of Bright Stream, Shaded Moss and Storm, all of them being main characters. Thunder Rising kept this going, killing Moon Shadow and Bumble. The First Battle went even further with Turtle Tail, Falling Feather, Hawk Swoop, Frost, Rainswept Flower, and Jackdawâs Cry dying. The second half usually has only one major death per book, with The Blazing Star having Petal die to save their adopted kits, A Forest Divided having Quiet Rain die after reuniting with their children, and Path of Stars having Gray Wing die surrounded by their friends and family. Arc Words: "Follow the trail of the rising sun" on The Sun Trail. Extra Ascended: The Clan Founders, minor characters of this series. Thunder Clear Sky even become point of view characters, while Wind Runner and River Ripple have Bonus Scenes that feature them and reveal their background stories. The original medicinal cats (Cloudspots, Dapplepelt, Pebbleheart, and They were all minor characters mentioned in Secrets of the Clans, Here, they are important supporting characters, and Mothflight even gets his own Super Edition. Lightning, once mentioned in Secrets of the Clans, appears as a supporting character in Thunder Rising, before becoming a main character in The First Battle. Badass Crew: The Followers of the Sun Trail are an amazing group that combines many skills that the Clan's cats will possess in the future. And one of your first actions? Fighting four eagles and frightening three of them by knocking down one, something that most of the tribe's cats consider impossible. The Great Evil Shuffle: A lot. At the end of The Sun Trail, it seems that the antagonist will be Clear Sky, who has become a fallen hero. Then, in The First Battle, Clear Sky realizes the error of his ways and promises to change. Meanwhile two new characters appear who could be the main villain, Tom and Snake. After this, in The Blazing Star, Tom is killed by a new character named One Eye, who becomes the main villain. But then Thunder manages to kill One Eye at the end of the book, and it looks like Snake may become the big bad guy after all. Then, in A Forest Divided, a completely new character named Slash appears and appears to be the main villain, but it hints that Star Flower may be the real villain, with Slash actually being his lackey. But then on Path of Stars, it turns out Star Flower may be the real villain, with Slash actually being his lackey. But then on Path of Stars, it turns out Star Flower is good and Slash is the final boss. In addition, Snake returns, but takes the role of Slash's lackey. In addition, throughout the series, the characters face the threat of foxes, but they don't actually end up playing an important role, despite presaging it. Shameless lies: Clear Sky after he attacks Falling Feather for criticizing his leadership". Everything I do, I do for all of us." Aproximadamente dos tercios del camino a través de The Sun Trail, Clear Sky, Quick Water, Moon Shadow, Falling Feather y Jagged Peak salen group on the girch to live in the forest. Later, Turtle Tail leaves to become a kitten. Bring help back: The climax of The First Battle begins with Clear Sky and her band catching Gray Wing, Tall Shadow and Jackdawâs Cry on the Great Rock at the Four Trees. Thunder, who was also trapped but managed to escape, has to run back to the shelf for the cats to come back and save the others. Call-Back: Lionâs Roar mentions his mother Fawn Shy and how the Tribe used to live by a lake, referring to both the Long Shadows and the Moon Sign. Lionâs Roar also insists on calling Stoneteller "Half Moon". Stoneteller mentions Jayâs Wing, referring to the time she spent with him. Call-Forward: In The Blazing Star, Owl Eyes says that cats must follow a shooting star into new territory, which eventually happens in Dawn. Cartwright Curse: Spoilers to The Blazing Star. Gray Wing and Clear Sky experience this. Clear Sky loses her two companions, Bright Stream and Storm, while the three kittens Gray Wing have feelings for (the two above mentioned and Turtle Tail) to die. Then, Petal, who had a subtext with Clear Sky, also dies. However, at the end of Path of Stars, Gray Wing dies almost immediately, so he can't enjoy it. Melted Flock: At the end of The Sun Trail, the characters are divided into the Moorish Group (cats sitting on the shelf), the Forest Group (a group of cats living by the river led by River Ripple), and the trib (the cats that remained in the mountains). However, at the end of the series, they become the Clans. Character-Magnetic Team: The Forest Group continuously attracts new characters. During The Sun Trail, in addition to founding members, Leaf, Petal, Fox, And storm joins her. In Thunder Rising, she also wins new members just as quickly, because when your Clear Sky leader isn't alienating the members, you're throwing them out. The Moor Group also, but to a lesser extent. Wind, Gorse and Thunder join him, and often new kits are born. Chase scene: Near the end of The First Battle, Gray Wind, Tall Shadow and Jackdawâs Cry are trapped in the Big Rock and surrounded by hostile Clear Sky cats. Thunder has to run back to the pitch to get help, but some of Clear Sky's cats chase him to stop him. This leads to a chase through the tree, and through This is because Mothflight will someday be the first cat down there, leading to the discovery of the moonstone. Crash-Into Hello: Gray Wing at first, but eventually warms up towards him and the other followers of the Sun's Path. Condemned by Canon: In The Sun Trail, Stoneteller/Half Moon declares a cat named Shaded Moss the leader of the Sun Trail followers. As we have never heard of him as a great power in any of the field guides, his death shortly before the group arrived in the new territories is not so surprising. Dreaming of Things to Come: Stoneteller has a dream/vision that tells him that some of the Tribe have to leave to find a new home. Pebble Heart has several prophetic dreams, such as a vision where he walks towards the moonstone, a great battle with Clear Sky in the center of it, and a "bad thing" at the edge of the forest. Expy: Several characters are obvious shouts to the characters in the previous books. Stream for Spottedleaf. She is made of purity, is the loving interest of Clear Sky, and tragically dies in the book. Jagged Peak for Cinderpelt. Energetic apprentice of the protagonist who ends up with a broken leg? Yes, that's him. Tall Shadow's intelligence, appearance and cunning make her look a lot like Hollyleaf. Moon Shadow is a mixture between Berrynosis (due to its arrogance and bloodthirsty nature) and Crowfeather (due to its behaviour towards cats). It's as impressive as it sounds. Gorse is quite similar to Graystripe, with his love for food and adorableness. Find the cure!: A big part of The Blazing Star's plot is the cats trying to deal with the spread of a disease. Twist from Episode One: The Death of Bright Stream occurs at the beginning of The Sun Trail, but it's a pretty big twist and defines much of the book. Also, one of the biggest spoilers of the book, Storm and Clara Sky's son being Thunder, is something so important for later books that it cannot be discussed without mentioning it. Preconceived conclusion: A die, considering that this series is a preguel. We know that the Clans will be founded, and which Clans will be founded by which cats. Prognostic: Thunder Rising has clues to the events of The First Battle, with Pebble Heart dreaming of a massive battle with Clear Sky, and River Ripple will continue to found the Kingdom: It's a whole series about them. Eventually, Thunder, Wind Runner, Tall Shadow, Clear Sky, and River Ripple will continue to found the rest of the series. Sun's Path. Later on The Sun Trail, this is still the case, even with deaths. A Tom and a cat die, keeping the number the same. Gray and Gray Morality: Thunder Rising basically has all this around. On the one hand, we have Clear Clear who only wants to protect his group and create a better life for the cats of the forest, but is getting crazier and more violent, and is also perfectly willing to send cats that he considers incapable of continuing with the group until their death. Then we have Wind Runner, who sees how the cats are being fucked by the changing community, but responds with warmongering. And that's not even starting to reach the other groups around the forest. The hero dies: At the end of Star Path, Grey Wing dies of a slow variant from the Thunder Rising. It's all my fault: Gray Wing and Clear Sky blame themselves for Bright Stream's death. Gray Wing finally manages to move on, but Clear Sky never lets go of the blame. Jumped to the Call: Clear Sky is very eager to take the journey to find a new home. Kick the Dog: Clear Sky never lets go of the blame. Jumped to the Call: Clear Sky is very eager to take the journey to find a new home. Kick the Dog: Clear Sky never lets go of the blame. Jumped to the Call: Clear Sky never lets go of the Call: C Frost out of the woods even though he could still hunt, and throwing Thunder into a fox's path. Killed Offscreen: In The Sun Trail, two of Storm's kits die off screen before Gray Wing can reach them. In Thunder Rising, Moon Shadow succumbs to his wounds and dies off the screen. However, the scene where he receives these wounds, and his funeral, are on-screen events. In The First Battle, Turtle Tail is hit by a car and dies off the screen. At the end of The First Battle, after the battle is over, Lightning Tail and Acorn Fur find Hawk Swoop dead. Last episode, new character: We do not meet Thunder the last chapter of The Sun Trail, but oh boy it's important to the book. Fircone and Ortiga don't show up until the last chapter of Thunder Rising. However, they are important because of Thunder confront the clear sky. Late arrival spoiler: the existence of the lion roar and half of the moon is the first stoneeteller are big turns on moon sign. The prologue of the Sun's path casually reveals them to the reader, and if you haven't read the power of three are many leaders and future leaders on the path. Half the moon / stoneeteller of the power of three and the omen of the stars still leads to the tribe. The shaded moss is called the leader of the crew that prepares to find a new home. After his death, the high shadow, the clear sky, the ripple of the river, the ox eyes and the muzzle of dust must be clan leaders. Starting with Thunder Rising, the Grey Wing has become a leading set of proto-windclan alongside the High Shadow. Legendary in the sequel: Inverted. The Sun Trail is about the founder, as well as many other legendary cats like Graywing the Wise, Pebbleheart, Owley, and Gorsestar. Look both ways: on the solar path, the shaded moss accidentally runs towards the road, resulting in its death when hit by a car. In the first battle, the turtle tail is struck by a car on the TwoleGplace and dies. On the way of the stars, the bar is mentioned as the rain, one of its chariots, was hit by a car. He considers it a stupid way to die. Dodecahedron love: the tail of the turtle loves the grey wing, who loves the grey wing will probably meet with the turtle tail. Significant funeral it is a customized tribe. One is held to flap the bird when it dies, and the followers of the subsequent Sun Trail have a funeral for the shaded moss. Change their names to Wind Runner and Gorse Fur. In the bonus scene of Thunder Rising, it is revealed that River Ripple's name was once Ripple, but he changed it to show how he had become a River Cat. Occupational Risk Mentor: In The Sun Trail, Shaded Moss, leader and mentor of the other Sun Trail followers, dies shortly before reaching his new home. Subverted in the bonus scene of Thunder Rising. It seems that Arc is going to die, as we never hear anything about him in the main story, but it turns out that River Ripple separates from him. Migration: The Path of the Sun is about a group of cats that leave the mountains to move into the forest. Mutual Killing: In the First Battle, during the Great Battle, Jackdawâs Cry and Falling Feather fight and end up killing each other. My God, what have I done?: Clear Sky's reaction to everything he did in The First Battle. Mythology Gag: Storm calls Gray Wing showed Jagged Peak? These were first shown in Clan Battles as Wind Clan battle strategies invented by Gray Wing himself. Looks like we know where he got them. Turtle Tail scares Bumble by telling him he eats bones. Obviously this is a joke about how kittens see the clan's cats. Gray Wing and Gorse meet when they collide and then start fighting. This is the opposite of how Firestar and Graystripe met: they started fighting, but when Graystripe crashed into Firestar they stopped fighting and became friends. Part of the Clear Sky situation on The Sun Trail is one. The pure-hearted turtle shell she loves dies, causing her great pain, but she eventually joins a thorny cat named Storm? Where have we heard that before? The cover of The Battle obviously refers to Dangerous Path with its take of two lines of getting ready for a fight. They never found the body: In The Sun Trail, Sun Trail followers do not find the body of Bright Stream appears as a ghost, confirming his death. No Antagonist: Most of The Sun Trail is about cats who move and settle in a new home, without any real villains. However, subverted when the ending sets Clear Sky as an antagonist. Unnamed: As they approach Highstones, the Followers of the Sun's Path meet a Tom with long legs brown and grey tabby. He talks to them for a while, but he never gives his name. At the end of The Sun Trail, Storm has three kits. She named them, but we never learn their names. This is used as a plot point. Since Gray Wing doesn't have a name to call the survivor, and doesn't remember him, Turtle Tail calls him Thunder. Nightheart's brother is featured at Thunder Rising, but not named. In The First Battle, Wind Runner has four kits. However, of her three sons only one of them has her name revealed (Emberkit), and her daughter's name (Moth Flight) is known only because of The Ultimate Guide. Once an episode: All prologues so far have some kind of dream or vision. The Sun Trail has Stoneteller's vision of another place where some of the tribe's cats can live. Thunder Rising has Thunder meeting his late Storm mother in a dream. A Forest Divided has Clear Sky watching Stoneteller again in a dream by Turtle Tail. Episode Origins: The series shows us the origins of the Clans. In addition, the Bonus Scenes of The Sun Trail and Thunder Rising reveal the of Petal and River Ripple respectively. Prequel: This series develops before any of the other warrior books and shows us the origins of the clans, that everything Notes Dark River, Long Shadows and Moon Sign contain scenes that take place before the Dawn of the Clans and deal with the founding of the Tribe. However, these scenes are in Jayfeather's flashback sequences, and the main stories of those three books take place long after the Dawn of the Clans. Previously he overlooked Paramour: Turtle Tail is about the same age as Gray Wing and likes it, but Gray Wing is too much in love with Bright Stream, and then Storm, to notice, even when an old man suggests that Turtle Tail might be a good match for him. Eventually, Turtle Tail decides to leave the band for a while, and returns pregnant with another tom. It is after the kits are born that Gray Wing finally realizes how he feels about her and they officially become friends, and everyone else congratulates him for finally realizing that they are perfect for each other. The Promised Land: The plot of the first book. Stoneteller, who is leading a hungry tribe in the mountains, has a vision of a place where cats will be hot and fed. The book follows the part of the tribe that decides to travel there, looking for a better life. Protagonist's Title: Book two is called Thunder Rising. Thunder is one of the main characters of the book, along with Gray Wing. Retcon: A whole series based on conflicting information is expected. The Path of the Sun, as well as in Secrets of the Clans, despite having been previously included in the Clan Code. At the end of The Sun Trail, while Thunder is called Storm, not Thunder as a deuteragonist. The First Battle stars Thunder, while Gray Wing to the role of Deuteragonist, and adds Clear Sky as a tritagonist. Saved by Canon: Because the Flight Vision of the dawn of the clans, it is safe to assume that all original medicinal cats (Moth Flight, Pebble Heart, Dappled Skin, and Cloud Spots), Liedres (Wind Runner, Tall Shadow, Thunder, Clear Sky, and River Ripple), and deputies (Lightning Tail and Gorse Fur) survive dawn of the clans. Save Al Villain: In Thunder Rising, the Moro Group faces a forest fire to rescue the Forestry Group, who treats them with great hostility. Shipper on Deck: Silver Frost, one of the top cats of the tribe, send Clear Sky with Bright Stream. He also sends Gray Wing with his Turtle Tail admirer. Tall Shadow pushes Gray Wing towards Turtle Tail and looks pretty happy in Thunder Rising when they come together. Sibrary team: Gray Wing and Clear Sky are brothers who work together to hunt and fight. Later in The Sun Trail, this stops, as they become enemies. Fox and Petal are a team of brothers and sisters that only depend on themselves. Nightheart and her brother work as a team from the first battle onwards, with Thunder finally deciding that Lightning Tail will lead the group of him if he dies. However, they are not a team of brothers of blood, since Thunder is the adoptive brother of Lightning Tail. Sigilose output: In The Sun Trail and find the new home of it. This launches the plot, since Gray Wing has to go after him and keep him safe on the long trip ahead. In Thunder Rising, Thunder escapes from the paramo to go see the forest with Shattered Ice. Stealth Pun: Something creepy at The First Battle, cats on the shelf discuss whether or not they should attack Clear Sky. They've come to a standstill when Cloud Spots Spots pointing out that they don't have any prey stored, and that feeding themselves is a higher priority than dealing with Clear Sky. Speaking in Your Dreams: The prologue to Thunder Rising, Gray Wing is visited by Stoneteller, who tells her that it may be her destiny to lead proto-Clan Wind. Gray Wing has another dream about the tribe in the prologue to The First Battle. Theme Name: Lightning Tail is named after her brother that it may be her destiny to lead proto-Clan Wind. Gray Wing has another dream about the tribe in the prologue to The First Battle. Theme Name: Lightning Tail is named after her brother Thunder, with whom she always hangs out. Title Drop: In The Sun Trail, the cats of the tribe refer to "the trail of the rising sun". In The Blazing Star, the title drops a crazy number of times, this is because the Blazing Star is a healing herb. Trailers Always Spoil: Before The Sun Trail even came out, Thunder Rising's show revealed that the group would split into two, Gray Wing and Clear Sky. Thunder Rising's full statement clearly states that Clear Sky is Thunder's father. The blur of Thunder is going with him, but he is going back to the pitch, which is exactly what happens. Before A Forest Divided was released, the Path of Stars announcement revealed that Star Flower would become Clear Sky's companion and bring their kits. Tree Cover: In The Sun Trail Gray Wing finds a cat hidden in a pile of bracken he had just passed. This is very embarrassing for him, as he had just scolded his younger brother Jagged Peak for claiming that they were being watched. Twist Ending: The Path of the Sun has one. The son of Clear Sky and Storm? Yes, it's Thunder. Unexpected Character: Most fans correctly predicted the appearances of Thunder, Shadow), Clear Sky, Wind, Gorsestar (como Gorse), Cloudspots (como Cloud Spots), y Dapplepelt (como (como Pelt) on The Sun Trail. However, virtually no one suspected The Sun Trail would feature Grey the Wise of Clan Battles, and if they did, they probably didn't think he would be the protagonist. In addition, the Crescent/Stoneteller and the Lion Roar were quite unexpected. Also, although her mother is a supporting character with a name, the father of Gray Wing, Clear Sky, Jagged Peak and Fluttering Bird is not mentioned or mentioned throughout the book. Tacit Plan Guarantee: In The First Battle, Lightning Tail does not explain its plan to save Tom's Turtle Tail kits, and carries it out successfully. Villain's protagonist: In The First Battle, Clear Sky, who has become a villain, is one of the characters of the point of view. However, he realizes the error of his ways at the end of the book and ceases to be a villain. Villain Team: Towards the end of the book and ceases to be a villain. Villain Team: Towards the end of the book and ceases to be a villain, is one of the characters of the point of view. However, he realizes the error of his ways at the end of the book and ceases to be a villain. Villain Team: Towards the end of the book and ceases to be a villain. rogues join Snake, an old enemy of Clear Sky. Visual Pun: The gorge on the cover of Thunder Rising. The followers of the Sun's Path are divided. We Hardly Knew Ye: Several characters from The gorge on the cover of Thunder Rising. The followers of the Sun Trail die after playing minor roles, such as Fluttering Bird, Petal's brother, Fox, and two of Storm's kits. Although in the case of Fox, it is slightly arranged that he appears on the Bono Scene and we learn more about him, but only after his death. We used to be friends: At the end of The Sun Trail, all the Sun Trail fans who are still on the pitch feel this way towards Clear Sky, who used to be friends: At the end of The Sun Trail, all the Sun Trail fans who are still on the pitch feel this way towards Clear Sky, who used to be one of their trusted allies, but now is power hungry and isolated. Episode Wham: The last chapter of The Sun Trail. Storm dies protecting the kits that with Clear Sky. Only they die too. Wait, one of them is alive! And he is thunder! Thunder! fandom quickly went crazy. The extra scene in The Blazing Star, begins by introducing us to a new character named Sun Shadow, all good and dandy, then Stoneteller dies, and he leaves, and the silent rain of all the people reveals that she is coming with him. Wow. Wham Line: The Lion's roar is addressed to the crescent by its name in the prologue, which reveals that much less time than expected had passed since the formation of the Tribe. The last chapter of The Sun Trail has a huge one. Gray Wing is trying to think of a name for the only surviving Storm and Clear Sky kit. Turtle Tail says, "How about Thunder?", revealing the kit to be the future founder of the ThunderClan. ThunderClan.
