2019 ANNUAL REPORT

OCTOBER 1, 2018 – SEPTEMBER 30, 2019

2019 In Review

Collaboration, partnership, community. In our 2019 fiscal year, the Jackson Hole Land Trust had the opportunity to step into these core values in a very visible way. Together we saved a treasured block in the heart of downtown Jackson with a groundswell of support from more than 2,500 community members. While this two-acre easement may not be our largest easement to date, the conservation of this community space truly reflects our commitment to serve all members of our local communities and engage a broader audience by creating opportunities for everyone to connect with open space in Northwest Wyoming.

The year also brought noteworthy successes and opportunities within our larger Land Protection department. We conserved one additional property in Teton County and two properties in Sublette County as part of our Green River Valley Program. Our Stewardship staff monitored more than 56,000 acres of protected properties across the region and supported landowners in sustaining and enhancing the conservation values of their unique easements.

JHLT has also secured more than $4 million in public funding for active priority protection projects across Northwest Wyoming. These projects will protect over 2,400 acres of working lands, wildlife habitat, and scenic vistas across Teton, Sublette, and Fremont counties.

Looking ahead to fiscal year 2020, we remain committed to our 5-year strategic plan with a focus on organizational durability as we embark on the search to replace Laurie Andrews, who has led the JHLT for the past 15 years. We are so grateful for her invaluable contributions and commitment to conserving Northwest Wyoming during her time as JHLT president and are thrilled that she will continue to be a leader in the community. With our talented staff, strong leadership team, and clear, compelling vision, the organization is poised for continued success. Your ongoing involvement with this organization matters deeply and makes a significant impact on our community, our wildlife, our open spaces, and our future. We look forward to celebrating 40 years of conservation success with you in the upcoming year.

Thank you for your support,

Jason Snider

OPEN SPACE PROTECTED IN OUR 2019 FISCAL YEAR

PROTECTING LAND

Northwest Wyoming is a region of unparalleled beauty, productive agricultural lands, and abundant wildlife, where herds of elk, deer, pronghorn, and moose travel ancient migration routes across open, working ranchlands and trout spawn in clean flowing rivers and streams. With your support, we're strategically protecting priority conservation properties and stewarding more than 56,000 acres to safeguard this incredible wildlife habitat connectivity, community open space, and agricultural heritage across our region. In our 2019 fiscal year, we successfully completed four projects and raised public funding for active conservation priorities in all three of our program areas—Jackson, Wind River, and Green River Valley.

Chimney Draw

In December of 2018, 112 acres south of Fall Creek Road were protected to preserve crucial range for moose and elk, in addition to seasonal habitat for bighorn sheep and mule deer. The easement was generously donated by the Snake River Ranch to protect an important linkage for wildlife between the Bridger-Teton National Forest and the Snake River Riparian Corridor.

Wapiti Junction

The Wapiti Junction Conservation Easement protects two parcels totaling 39 acres in the Hoback Ranches subdivision, located north of the Hoback Rim about 4 miles from Bondurant. This easement was generously donated by Mr. Robert Hover. Though this property burned in last year's Roosevelt Fire, the area remains crucial range for moose and elk, as well as seasonal habitat for mule deer. The fire reclamation process will also provide opportunities for the Land Trust to gather valuable data by monitoring the vegetative succession.

Genevieve Block

On August 16, JHLT successfully recorded an easement on a portion of the Genevieve Block that will protect its community greenspace and historic character forever. This easement was purchased using private funds raised through the Save the Block campaign, which generated over $7 million through more than 5,700 gifts and 2,500 donors. The JHLT will steward and activate green space for the community in perpetuity.

Willow Lake

The Willow Lake Conservation Easement now held by the Green River Valley Program protects 605 acres in Sublette County along the Red Desert to Hoback migration corridor. The project was completed in August with funding from the Wyoming Wildlife and Natural Resource Trust, the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service Agricultural Conservation Easement Program, and the Wyoming Governor's Big Game License Coalition. Additionally, a large portion of the value was generously donated by the landowner. Willow Lake holds 6.3 acres of ephemeral pothole wetlands that provide habitat for waterfowl and other birds, as well as small mammals and migrating big game. The entire easement also falls within the Daniel Greater Sage-Grouse Core Area.

INSPIRING PEOPLE

Open space is for everyone, whether you've come to know the movement of wildlife across your property or you enjoy elbow room and accessible community spaces that immerse you in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem. Our Community Conservation programming celebrates this connection between people and the land, and in our 2019 fiscal year, we engaged diverse groups at R Park, hosted yoga and five community concerts at the Greenspace on the Block, launched the Wyoming Leaders and Discoverers (WYLD) to bolster conservation leadership in our community, and so much more.

FoundSpace

Partnering with Jackson Hole Public Art for the fifth year of FoundSpace, the JHLT invited the community to join six local artists in experiencing art installations spread throughout R Park. This collection of temporary, innovative installations was created from or inspired by objects found in nature and conserved public access lands. The project is designed to encourage access to and exploration of protected open spaces via interactions with nature through art.

Art Association Camps

For the second year, the popular annual Plein Air Painting and Drawing Kids Camp organized by the Art Association of Jackson Hole took place on JHLT-protected properties: R Park, Spring Creek Ranch, Emily Steven's Park, Boyle's Hill Swan Ponds, and Karns Meadow. Throughout the summer, kindergarten through 8th grade students explored each open-access protected property and spent the day outside studying lines, shadows, light, and color as they appear in nature.

Slide into R Park

Slide into R Park's first cohort created 20 printed conservation photographs focused on R Park. Geared towards the bilingual youth of Jackson, the program uses photography and place-based storytelling to develop skills, empower youth, and inspire a conservation ethic. While exploring R Park's open spaces, students developed visual storytelling skills with onsite photography lessons.

Coombs Outdoors at R Park

A third year partnership with the Doug Coombs Foundation led to a summer of fun, exploration, and education at R Park. From fishing for the first time to jumping through the Ring of Fire and earning Jr. Ranger certifications, Coombs Outdoors participants took advantage of all of R Park's programming.

THANK YOU

With a groundswell of support in the form of 5,700 gifts from 2,500 community members raising over $7 million, we saved the block! On August 16, 2019, the JHLT successfully recorded an easement on a portion of the Genevieve Block that will protect its community greenspace and historic character forever. The Jackson Hole Chamber of Commerce recognized the Jackson Hole Land Trust and other Save the Block project partners with the Citizen(s) of the Year Award in October 2019. In addition, the Teton County Historic Preservation Board awarded the JHLT for the efforts of the Save the Block campaign to preserve the historic resources of Teton County. The Save the Block campaign featured five concerts in the greenspace sponsored by Bank of Jackson Hole as well as other community outreach efforts such as Casting and Cocktails, the July 4th parade float and celebration, and a booth at the Jackson Hole Farmer's Market. Thank you to all of the Save the Block donors who made this community vision a reality.
