WWF has been closely associated with the region for many years and recent successes include "Operation Oryx", a project developed to protect the Arabian Oryx from extinction. Other projects include establishing protected areas of natural habitat like the tidal marshes, mangroves and coral reefs to the protection of many indigenous species such as the Arabian leopard and marine turtles.

WWF is working for the long-term preservation of the environment and the immense natural wealth that we find here in the UAE. It aims, with the assistance of local agencies and businesses, to create a consciousness of the many environmental issues that face society every day in the hope that together we can all make a difference.

By working together, pooling resources and sharing knowledge, we can bring about that change and real conservation achievement in our uniquely beautiful part of the world.

Thank you for your support.
