

Treasures of New York: Friars Club

Treasures of New York: Friars Club offers an inside look at one of the city's most exclusive private clubs, known for its celebrity roasts and a membership that reads like a who's who of entertainment royalty, from Irving Berlin and Frank Sinatra to Barbara Walters and Jimmy Fallon.

What began as a weekly meeting of New York City press agents in 1904 soon morphed into a club largely comprised of famous performers, composers, producers, singers, actors, and comedians. "Friars" stems from "Frater," Latin for "Brother," a perfect name for the entertainment world's most notorious fraternity.

Quickly becoming the "club to join," Friars Club began honoring its own, throwing lavish black-tie dinners as tribute to the members. The club hosted the first-ever "Roast" in 1949, where entertainment greats would take their best shots at a guest of honor, an event that would become one of the most imitated affairs worldwide. French entertainer Maurice Chevalier was the first to take the hot seat; Lucille Ball, Johnny Carson, Harry Belafonte, Rita Moreno, Sid Caesar, Whoopi Goldberg, Jerry Stiller and Betty White were just a few of the many to be roasted in the years to come.

Dedicated to charitable giving, Friars' charitable groups support performing arts organizations and students, senior citizens and children's centers, and veterans and military families. This year, the Friars held its inaugural Lincoln Awards, recognizing outstanding achievement in providing opportunities and support to veterans and military families. The Lincoln Awards: A Concert for Veterans & the Military Family will air on sister station THIRTEEN on May 22 at 9pm.

This documentary explores the club's rich history of entertainment and laughter through never-before-seen footage of Friars roasts and interviews with some of the club's most prominent members, including Larry King, Joy Behar, Jerry Lewis and Lisa Lampanelli.

SCITECH NOW

This month, SciTech Now explores the role of genetics in autism spectrum disorder; discusses Bitcoin and other digital methods of transmitting money; learns how grizzly bears may help find a cure for diabetes and discovers the different methods of de-extinction, or bringing extinct species back into our world.

"Science and Technology isn't something discrete from the rest of life. It is life, a glimpse into the future. It is our ability to use our opposable thumbs, our ability to look beyond ourselves, to envision solutions to problems, to imagine a better world. How can anyone not be curious about that?" asks host Hari Sreenivasan.
