Introduction

The City of Madison, Wisconsin is seeking proposals to rehabilitate and restore the Worden House, located in James Madison Park at 640 East Gorham Street. A successful proposal will adhere to the criteria laid out in the "Selection Criteria" section of this RFP.

The James Madison Park Disposal Surplus Criteria and Selection Committee (the "Committee") was charged with the creation of this RFP and an initial review of proposals. The Committee will make a recommendation to the City of Madison Common Council, which will then take final action to accept a proposal.

A map of the Worden House (640 East Gorham Street) and environs is shown in Appendix A.

This RFP identifies the scope of the development, the submission requirements, and the process that will be used to select a proposer.

Background

The Worden House (also called the “Connors House”) was built in 1920 in the Colonial Revival style. It was constructed for Irene Collins Conner and her husband Robert Conner. The Collins and Conner families were local lumber business families in the first half of the twentieth century. Irene Collins was the daughter of Cornelius C. Collins, founder of the lumber firms Collins Brothers Lumber Company, C.C. Collins Lumber Company, and C.C. Collins and Son Lumber Company. Irene’s mother Anna had been vice President of C.C. Collins and Son. After Anna’s death in 1932, Irene became Vice President and Robert Conner became Manager of C.C. Collins and Son by 1925 and Secretary of the company by the early 1950’s. Cornelius C. Collins lived in the Claude and Starck house at 704 East Gorham Street that was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1974. While the architect of the Worden House at 640 East Gorham Street is unknown, it may have been Edward F. Starck.

The City of Madison acquired the Worden House located at 640 East Gorham Street for $275,000 in 1992 for the expansion of James Madison Park. The Worden House is currently owned by the City of Madison and is designated as a City of Madison Landmark.

The City of Madison Board of Park Commissioners declared the houses located at 640 and 646 East Gorham Street surplus on April 14, 2004. It should be noted that the Board of Park Commissioners specifically did NOT declare the land beneath the two houses located at 640 and 646 East Gorham Street surplus.

Following this declaration, the City of Madison convened the James Madison Park Property Planning Committee to identify a long-term plan for the two houses located at 640 and 646 East Gorham Street, the Collins House (704 East Gorham Street) and the land under Lincoln School. The results of this committee’s work can be found at the City’s Legistar web page, located at:
