ROYAL CANADIAN MINT— AN ONGOING LEGACY OF INNOVATION

Throughout its history, the Royal Canadian Mint has continually advanced the science and art of making gold and silver bullion of unsurpassed purity.

1979 – Launched Canada’s first 99.9% pure gold bullion coin

1982 – Unveiled the world’s first 99.99% pure gold bullion coin

1988 – Produced the world’s first 99.99% pure silver bullion coin

2005 – Released the 99.95% pure Palladium Maple Leaf bullion coin

2007 – Created a 99.999% pure gold bullion coin—the first-ever investment coin issued at such a high purity standard

2013-2015 – Added enhanced security features to popular bullion coins—including radial lines, micro-engraved security marks and Bullion DNA anti-counterfeiting technology

A SECURE INVESTMENT

Sought after for their exceptional quality, Maple Leaf bullion coins from the Royal Canadian Mint also boast several unique security features including industry-leading digital non-destructive activation (DNA) technology.

The Mint’s unique Bullion DNA system stores high-resolution images of Maple Leaf bullion coins in a secure database. Dealers use a special-purpose Bullion DNA reader to match coins to those images and facilitate authentication.

This Bullion DNA reader can help authenticate Gold Maple Leaf coins dated 2014 and later; Silver Maple Leaf coins dated 2015 and later—contributing to investors’ peace of mind.

OTHER EXCEPTIONAL SECURITY FEATURES

The Royal Canadian Mint has replaced its traditional bullion finish with precisely machined radial lines that create a unique, identifiable light-diffracting pattern. As well, every Mint bullion coin features a laser-engraved maple leaf visible only under magnification as further proof of authenticity.
