A resume is a document that you - the job seeker – use to promote your skills, abilities, and knowledge to a potential employer. Resumes do not generate job offers, but well written resumes do facilitate interviews. They are a marketing tool used to articulate your transferrable and soft skills, as well as show how you have added value to the organization. The resume is important, but just one of several steps that make up a successful job search.

Starting your Resume

Things to Keep in Mind:

- Do not use a template, create your resume with Microsoft Word. Templates do not stand out and can have problematic formatting issues.
- Use a common font such as Times New Roman, Arial, Tahoma or Lucida Sans.
- Use a font size between 10-12 points. Resume should be one page.
 - ❖ As you gain work experience, multiple pages are acceptable. Multiple pages are also acceptable, if you have numerous activities and leadership experiences.
- Use bullet points and bold words to make your resume more reader –friendly and to focus the reader’s attention.
- Keep sentences short- fragmented statements are acceptable.
- Avoid using “I” “Me” and “We.”
- Be consistent with spacing /punctuation.
- Incorporate “keywords” (skills). Target keywords to the job description you are applying. Applicant tracking systems scan resumes for key words that match the company’s job descriptions.
- Statement should be accomplishment - driven, not duties –driven. This will set you apart from other candidates.
 - ❖ Start statement with an action word. Avoid repeating action words.
 - ❖ Use the proper tense (present, past) and be consistent with tenses for action words.
- List all dated items in REVERSE CHRONOLOGICAL order (start with most recent).
- Do not include High School Education or High School activities.
- Do not type “References available upon request.” List them on a separate sheet and only submit them when specifically requested by an employer.
- Check and re-check for spelling and grammatical errors.
- When sending your resume as an attachment to an email convert formatting to PDF.
- Print resume on 24 lb. Bond resume paper (White or Cream).

Aspects of a quality resume:

Highlights of Qualifications

2

- The qualifications section delivers an impact at the top of your resume – it's your first impression.
- The qualification statements should match your skills to target the job description.
- Information in this section must be customized to fit each position you apply for.
- Place most important words first since the scanner may be limited in the number of words it reads.

Activities

5

- Involvement in extracurricular activities demonstrates leadership, time management and organizational skills.
- Include: organizations/associations, volunteerism, community involvement, and athletic teams. List dates you were involved and leadership positions. Provide an explanation of the organizations you were involved in.
- You may choose to have a leadership section if you have several experiences.

Experience

- Use separate headings for Internship and Work experience
- List in reverse chronological order, specifying employer name, city and state, job title, and dates of employment.
- Use action words (see sheet) to describe your tasks, highlighting your accomplishments and skills (review accomplishment sheet) and relating these to individual job requirements.

- It is understood that you will supply references.
- Create a separate reference page and bring it with you to the interview. Include the reference name, title, organization/company name, business address, phone number, and email of each reference.

Accomplishments Worksheet

The best measurement of the future is to show what you have accomplished in the past.

Hiring professionals already know what the job duties are; your resume should highlight your accomplishments in that position.

As you evaluate your past experiences, work or otherwise, consider the following:

1. Try to list accomplishments that are specific and measurable.
2. Quantify whenever possible. (Examples: Increased sales by 50 percent over the previous year; Built a customer base of 150, the largest in the firm's customer-service team.
3. Use superlatives and "firsts." Use words such as "first," "only," "best," "most," and "highest."
4. Consider the "so-what factor." For every accomplishment you list, ask yourself, "so what?" Does the item you've listed truly characterize your abilities and your potential for contributing to your next employer's success?

A series of brainstorming questions are asked below to consider when evaluating experiences from your work history that will assist you in creating accomplishment statements.

- What special things did you do to set yourself apart? How did you do the job better than anyone else did or than anyone else could have done?
- What did you do to make this job your own? How did you take the initiative? How did you go above and beyond what was asked of you in your job description?
- List any awards you won, such as Employee of the Month, President's Club?
- What are you most proud of in this job?
- What tangible evidence do you have of accomplishments -- publications you've produced, products you've developed, software applications you've written?
- How did you contribute to operational efficiency in this job, such as through cost reduction percentages? How did you help this employer or a part of the organization to save money, save time, or make work easier?
- How did you build relationships or image with internal and/or external constituencies? How did you attract new customers or retain existing ones?
- If you had to ghostwrite a letter of recommendation about you from your boss, what would be in it?
- How did you solve one or more specific problems in this job? What were the problems or challenges that you or the organization faced? What did you do to overcome the problems? What were the results of your efforts? Hint: Use the SAR or PAR technique, in which you describe a Situation or Problem that existed in a given job, tell what Action you took to fix the Situation or Problem, and what the Result was.
